2,000 guards, no-car zone: Police now clear Diljit concert in Delhi next week

New Delhi, October 23

SINGER DILJIT Dosanjh's October 30 concert at Delhi's Jawaharlal Nehru (JLN) Stadium received clearance from the Delhi Police on Friday — a day after permission was denied over security concerns — following discussions between the force and organisers on crowd management, traffic regulation, parking and security arrangements.

Officials who attended the meetings said the organisers had initially proposed deploying around 400 private security personnel. The Delhi Police, officials said, stressed that 1,500 to 2,000 would be required to assist with crowd management, regulate queues, guide concert-goers to designated entry gates, man help kiosks, and facilitate pedestrian movement in and around the venue. This, they said, will ease the burden on police and prevent last-minute congestion.

A police officer said permission had been denied earlier because the arrangements proposed by the organisers did not meet the force's requirements. The ongoing festive season was also a concern, with markets across the city already witnessing heavy footfall, placing additional demands on

ITBP flags Arunachal face-off, Govt says China patrols stray time to time

MEA: Both sides using military, diplomatic mechanisms to avoid LAC miscalculation

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 23

A MONTH after India and China held Corps Commander-level talks in Arunachal Pradesh amid reports of tension in the Taksing area of Upper Subansiri district following moves by the Chinese PLA, Shatrujeet Kapur, Director General of the Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP), has admitted to a "face-off" at "several locations in Arunachal" which are "still ongoing".

The ITBP chief's remarks, the first by an official on the situation in the frontier state, drew a sharp reaction from the Opposition Congress Friday which demanded "immediate answers" from the government on the situation.

The Ministry of External Affairs, responding to a question on Kapur's comments, said the situation along the Line of Actual Control "gets disturbed from time to time when Chinese forces diverge from established patrolling patterns". It underlined that "maintenance of peace and tranquility in the border areas is essential for the overall development of bilateral relations".

Speaking at the Himveer Samman Samaroh, an annual felicitation ceremony for ITBP personnel, in Alwar in Rajasthan Thursday, Kapur said, "Our newly raised Shaurya commandos are doing great work. Recently, a situation arose where a face-off took place at several locations in Arunachal and is still ongoing. There, our Shaurya Commando teams played an exemplary role. As everyone knows, the ITBP was raised as a mountain guerrilla force and we were given the duty of guarding the border along China in 2004. We should not abandon our exact mandate."

"We do not need guerrilla warfare these days. A specialised high-altitude mountain fighting force is being set up, which will be different from the Army. As of now, we have formed one Shaurya Commando team in every battalion, and two more have been constituted, so that there will be a

ATTACK ON TIGER SHROFF

'Chehre aa gaye hain, nikal jao': On the run, shooters got updates via calls, messages

Mumbai, October 23

IN THE cat-and-mouse chase between the Mumbai Police and the shooters who fled on a motorcycle after opening fire at actor Tiger Shroff's car in Juhu on October 18, the shooters allegedly had an edge — they were being constantly told how far the police investigation had progressed, based on what television channels were reporting.

According to police sources, at one point, when their photographs from videos of the shooting were flashed on TV screens, one of the shooters got a message that carried an instruction: "Tumhare chehre aa gaye hain, nikal jao waha se" (your faces have come out, get out of there).

Joint Commissioner (Crime) Anil Kumbhare did not respond to a message seeking comment.

Shroff escaped unhurt in the attack, but his driver and a vlogger sustained injuries. The three accused — Phool Singh, 18, Rehan Rahisuddin Ansari, 18, and Rithik Mahto, 22 — were arrested in Rajasthan the next day and have been sent to police custody until October 31. So far, 10 people have been arrested. Anil Pandit, who claims to be linked to the Lawrence Bishnoi gang, has claimed responsibility for the attack in an unverified social media post.

Sources said police are yet to establish who was relaying the updates from TV channels to

George Mathew

Together with anchor book subscription, the worth of the bids mounted to Rs 7.4 lakh crore.

The Rs 30,213-crore offering was subscribed 22.19 times, signalling a massive appetite for shares of the telecom-to-digital conglomerate.

The frenzy was led by institutional investors, with qualified institutional buyers (QIBs) bidding for 70.55 times their allotted quota on the closing day of the IPO, according to stock exchange data.

Fadnavis orders probe into Jarange claim, Sena says bid to 'finish' Shinde

Mumbai, October 23

AMID RISING tensions in Maharashtra's ruling Mahayuti alliance over an audio clip released by Maratha quota activist Manoj Jarange-Patil, Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis Friday ordered a forensic probe, even as a leader of ally Shiv Sena accused some BJP leaders of conspiring to undermine Deputy CM Eknath Shinde and politically "finish him off". In response, the BJP said it would not tolerate such attacks from an ally.

At a press conference on Thursday, Jarange-Patil played an audio clip of an alleged conversation between BJP functionaries on efforts to counter his influence before the 2024 Assembly elections, including references to Rs 500 crore allegedly meant for him. Shinde and his son Shrikant Shinde, an MP, were in the middle of this, he alleged. The Shiv Sena has denied the accusations, while the BJP has cast doubts about the clip's authenticity. The activist, meanwhile, has emphasised that he did not accept any money.

In Nagpur, Fadnavis told reports, "I have ordered a forensic probe into the audio clip that has come out in public. The matter will be thoroughly investigated to authenticate it. Even Jarange-Patil has demanded an investigation. The Shiv Sena leaders and

Himanshu Bhau was arrested in Las Vegas

ABSCONDING GANGSTER Himanshu Bhau has been arrested by law enforcement agencies in the United States after they were alerted by India's Central agencies about his location in Las Vegas.

Another fugitive, Neeraj Faridpuria, who had been evading arrest after removing his ankle bracelet tracker following his detention and release on bail this year, was also picked up.

A source in the National Investigation Agency (NIA) said an Interpol red notice had been issued against Himanshu and multiple teams of Delhi Police and Haryana Police had been working to trace his location in the US.

"With the help of technical surveillance and on the basis of source-based information, his location in Las Vegas was tracked down and the

• RANDALL SEQUEIRA COMPLETED HIS MBBS FROM BENGALURU AND IN 2017 DECIDED TO SETTLE IN KALAHANDI; POLICE SAY HE IS ACCUSED OF INSTIGATING PEOPLE TO MAKE FALSE ALLEGATIONS AGAINST GOVT

Doctor moved to Odisha to treat Adivasis, now behind bars for anti-mining protests

Sujit Bisoyi
Bhubaneswar, October 23

AFTER COMPLETING his medical studies, Randall Sequeira chose a path less travelled. Leaving behind Mumbai, where he grew up, Sequeira moved to Odisha's Kalahandi district, where basic healthcare remains out of reach for many tribals.

While he worked to improve healthcare access for locals, Sequeira (39) was, like several other activists, vocal against bauxite mining in the region.

Around 11 pm on October 16, Sequeira and another anti-mining activist, Laxman Naik, were picked up by the Kalahandi police from the former's house at Bhawanipatna. Officers handed them over to the Rayagada police, and Sequeira is now in judicial custody in the sub-jail there, charged with offences ranging from attempt to murder and rioting to possession of arms.

Speaking to The Indian Express, Inspector General, southwestern range, Akhileshvar Singh said the arrests were undertaken to maintain law and order in the region.

"At least four to five serious cases were pending against him, and he was accused of instigating others in the region to make false allegations against the state government. Two tribal women have also lodged a complaint against him for instigating them," Singh told The Indian Express.

Police officers say the arrest is linked to a violent clash between tribals and the police in April over the construction of an approach road to the Sijimali bauxite reserve in Rayagada district. While Sequeira wasn't named in the FIR registered in connection with the clash, which left people on both sides injured, police claimed his role was established during the investigation.

Randall Sequeira visits a patient in Odisha.

Originally from Mangalore, Karnataka, Sequeira grew up in Mumbai and completed his schooling there. He completed his MBBS from St. John's Medical College, Bengaluru and MD in internal medicine from Sawai Man Singh Medical College and Hospital, Rajasthan.

In 2017, he decided to settle in Kalahandi to work with NGOs operating in the tribal region.

After a few years, he started working independently, often travelling to hard-to-reach villages to treat tribals and understand how they live.

"Sequeira, rather than merely prescribing medicines to treat malaria and tuberculosis — diseases that have long been prevalent among tribals — would try to understand the underlying social, economic and environmental factors," Dr Dewal Sawarkar, who worked with him for several years in Kalahandi, told The Indian Express.

She said Sequeira believed people should be empowered to make decisions about their own health issues rather than depending entirely on doctors and medicine. "He used to move from village to village holding camps for pregnant mothers and malnourished children to raise awareness, address nutritional and maternal health challenges, and enable them to take an active role in improving their own health," said Dewal.

Sequeira, according to his friends, helped tribal students prepare for medical entrance examinations as well.

According to Sequeira's LinkedIn profile, he has worked closely with Adivasi communities and trained voluntary health workers on providing basic primary healthcare. "I enjoy this because it directly

President Droupadi Murmu being presented with a memento as she visits an exhibition on Bastar Dussehra on Friday. ANI

Educate children, preserve cultural identity, President tells tribals in Bastar

Raipur, October 23

PRESIDENT DROUPADI Murmu on Friday urged Bastar's tribal communities to educate their children and embrace new opportunities for progress without giving up their cultural identity, saying the region's young people could excel in different fields with adequate encouragement and resources.

Murmu visited Jagdalpur as part of the trip and cited opportunities such as the Bastar Olympics as a platform for young talent to showcase their abilities.

"The traditional system of tribal communities is an excellent example of social unity, justice, mutual cooperation and good governance," she said, addressing representatives of tribal communities and their leaders at the 'Muria Darbar', a traditional tribal assembly organised as part of the 75-day Bastar Dussehra festival in Jagdalpur.

Bastar Dussehra, she said, is a living symbol of social harmony, collective faith and tribal heritage, with its unique traditions and participation of different communities in celebrations spanning 75 days.

"The active participation of different clans, communities and all sections of society is the most distinctive feature of Bastar Dussehra," she said.

Murmu described the Muria Darbar, where representatives discuss public grievances, needs and social issues, as an example of grassroots democracy, saying such traditions promote dialogue, cooperation and collective decision-making.

Recalling Bastar's cultural links with the Ramayana and Dandakaranya, she said tribal heritage was integral to Indian tradition. She urged people to draw inspiration from the ideals of Lord Ram, Sita and Shabari.

Speaking of her own tribal identity, the President said tribal communities' respect for nature offered valuable lessons.

"Tribal traditions regard trees and plants as sources of life, rather than merely as resources," she said.

Murmu also referred to the state's efforts to push out Maoism from Chhattisgarh, expressing hope that Bastar's tribal youth would contribute to the country's development.

Chief Minister Vishnu Deo Sai said Bastar was moving towards post-Maoism reconstruction and development, adding that the government had prepared a roadmap focused on improved road and rail connectivity, healthcare, education and tourism. The government has also increased the monthly honorarium for traditional representatives.

J&K court hands two life terms to militant: Human testimony not expected to be precise

Arun Sharma
Jammu October 23

CRIMINAL TRIALS are not decided by counting discrepancies, a court in Jammu and Kashmir's Ramban said as it sentenced a militant to two life terms for the 2005 killing of a family.

Mohammad Sharief and another militant, Shabir Ahmed, were accused of entering the house of Rashid Bohra on the evening of July 27, 2005, and firing indiscriminately, killing three members of his family, including his five-month-old grandson. Rashid and his daughter-in-law survived the attack but were seriously injured.

Sharief was arrested in 2019, while Ahmed, who was never arrested, died in 2006.

The Ramban court sentenced Sharief to two life terms — one for murder and another for criminal conspiracy to commit an offence against the state. He was also sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for 10 years for attempted murder and another 10 years under the Arms Act. All sentences will run concurrently, Ramban Principal Sessions Judge Ajay Kumar Gupta said.

Rejecting the defence plea seeking the accused's acquittal on grounds of discrepancies in prosecution evidence, the judge said: "Human testimony is not expected to reproduce an event with photographic precision. Depending upon their nature, only contradictions relating to the core of the occurrence, identity of the assailant and those affecting the presence of witness may ordinarily have substantial bearing upon credibility. Minor discrepancies regarding sequence, exact position, words spoken, or peripheral details may naturally arise with passage of time".

Soon, we will have one full battalion of Shaurya commandos and our operations wing is working on this. This battalion will become our elite battalion and will get a special identity in our force for high-altitude operations," he said.

"It may be difficult to counter China by conventional means because their PLA (People's Liberation Army) and BDR (Border Defence Regiment) have gone way ahead with investment and modernisation," Kapur said. "However, drones are a field where even a smaller nation can mount a challenge to bigger nations. We saw how Ukraine challenged a superpower like Russia. The war was supposed to be over in a few days, but 10,000 to 15,000 Russian soldiers are being killed. They are suffering. Look at Iran... without even a navy, it challenged America with the help of drones," he said.

"We have to move towards drones and anti-drone systems. We spent 70 per cent of our Rs 400 crore modernisation funds on drones. There is one drone platoon in all border guarding battalions, we have started training drone pilots, and we are making drones in-house. Out of another modernisation scheme of Rs 3,500 to Rs 4,000 crore, Rs 1,000 crore have been earmarked for drones," he said.

"Personnel who are over the age of 50 can understand that the weapons are the same as when they joined the force. We are using the same old weapons. There have been some changes in weaponry, but they are all the same. There is a need for modernisation and we have made a big provision for it in our scheme," he said.

On Friday, the Congress, reacting to Kapur's remarks, demanded that Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah clarify reports that China had prevented Indian troops from patrolling certain areas of Arunachal Pradesh.

"After Galwan, now Arunachal Pradesh? Disturbing reports suggest that China is attempting to push further into areas in Arunachal Pradesh, an inalienable part of our nation. This demands immediate answers from the Modi Government," the Congress said on X.

Later in the day, MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal, responding to a question on the ITBP chief's remarks, said, "Insofar as the specifics are concerned, I would refer you to the Ministry of Defence. As we have noted in the past, the situation in the India-China border areas gets disturbed from time to time when Chinese forces diverge from established patrolling patterns."

"Both sides continue to use existing diplomatic and military mechanisms to resolve outstanding issues and avoid misunderstanding and miscalculation along the Line of Actual Control. The two sides have also agreed to discuss ways to improve understanding of LAC in appropriate areas for better border management. I would also like to emphasise that the maintenance of peace and tranquility in the border areas is essential for the overall development of bilateral relations," Jaiswal said.

ministers met me and sought a thorough probe. The question is why such an audio clip has surfaced after two-and-a-half years. What was the motive and whom are they targeting?" A day earlier, the CM had met a delegation of Sena leaders who sought a forensic and cyber investigation into the matter.

In Mumbai Friday, Sena leader Ramdas Kadam addressed a press conference in which he laid the blame at the BJP's doorstep. "Is it that some people in the BJP are trying to cut Shinde down as his popularity grows? Who are the ones in the BJP trying to finish off Eknath Shinde? The BJP will have to answer who within the party is working against its own alliance partner," he said.

Kadam displayed photographs of Jarange-Patil and BJP MLA Prasad Lad sharing meals and at public meetings, questioning the activist's links to the ruling party. Kadam alleged that at one such public meeting, Jarange-Patil had criticised Shinde. The Sena leader also named BJP MLC Pravin Darekar in connection with his allegations and said he had written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Union Home Minister Amit Shah, Fadnavis, and RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat seeking an investigation.

Describing the matter as serious, Sena leader and state Industries Minister Uday Samant said the clip appeared to be an attempt to create discord within the Maratha community. He alleged that the individuals heard in the clip were associated with the BJP and demanded that a forensic laboratory examine their voice samples. The clip was part of a conspiracy to defame Shinde since he had effectively handled the Maratha community's past agitations and "consistently supported" the community's "cause of justice", Samant told reporters in Kolhapur.

BJP's warning

"If Ramdas Kadam is going to blame the BJP, we will not tolerate it. He may speak aggressively, but we too know how to respond. He must understand that he is part of the government and the Mahayuti. To remain in the alliance while attacking your principal ally does not fit Maharashtra's political culture," Darekar said.

"We are in power together as allies; why would the BJP want to finish off Eknath Shinde?" the MLC asked. "The BJP supported him when he became the CM. If we had wanted to undermine him, we would have started then. If you accuse the BJP of conspiring, we will not remain silent."

"If there are differences or any suspicion, senior leaders can sit together and resolve them. Making accusations through the media creates tension instead of strengthening the alliance," Darekar said.

Prasad Lad also hit back at Kadam, cautioning him against making statements that could create a rift in the Mahayuti.

Jarange-Patil also targeted Kadam, saying, "I have remained silent out of respect for his age, but Ramdas Kadam must stop making personal allegations against me."

What the controversy is about

At his Dussehra rally in Beed district's Narayangadh on October 20, Jarange-Patil alleged that Shinde had told BJP leaders ahead of the 2024 Assembly elections that Rs 500 crore had been paid to him to stop his quota agitation. The activist also questioned whether the money had been routed through Shrikant Shinde, the Kalyan MP. All this, he alleged, was part of an attempt to influence the Maratha vote, a substantial chunk of which had shifted towards the Opposition a few months earlier in the parliamentary elections.

Shinde denied the allegations and dared Jarange-Patil to provide evidence. On October 22, the activist released the audio clip whose authenticity — including the identity of the speakers — has not been independently established.

While BJP insiders said this row would not have a long-term impact, they said it could dent the party's image and, as Kadam's remarks suggest, deepen the divide between it and the Sena. There has been a sense of unease in the ties between the two parties since Shinde, the CM in the previous tenure, had to accept the Deputy CM position following the 2024 elections. Since then, there have been several instances of runins between the state BJP and Shinde, who enjoys a link with the top BJP leadership and has often travelled to Delhi to make his voice heard.

"Even if hypothetically we accept all three characters in the audio clip are allegedly from the BJP, none of them have a decision-making role. None of them is part of the core committee, which is the highest decision-making body in the state unit," said a BJP leader.

"Yet, irrespective of whether this audio is AI-generated or not, such discourse in public dents the party's image," the leader said.

Another BJP leader said Jarange-Patil might have scored an "own goal" by releasing the audio clip. "By making such an audio clip public, Jarange-Patil has fuelled the view that he might have called off the agitation because of the money factor," the leader said.

The controversy has also given the Opposition readymade ammunition for targeting the Mahayuti. "In the past, they (ruling coalition) used money power to split parties and buy MLAs. Now, this was used against Jarange-Patil," said state Congress president Harshvardhan Sapkal.

Jio IPO

employees 2.93 times. Against 19.75 crore shares on offer, investors put in bids for 438.26 crore shares, committing Rs 4.90 lakh crore at the upper end of the Rs 1,065-1,119 price band. It had earlier attracted bids worth Rs 2.5 lakh crore in the anchor quota.

The final IPO price is set to be fixed at the upper end of the price band of Rs 1,119 per share, according to investment bankers. While the shares are expected to be listed on the BSE and the NSE on October 28, the company is likely to witness a market capitalisation of over Rs 10 lakh crore, bringing it to the top five league in valuation, analysts said.

The issue comprised 27 crore fresh equity shares. The company plans to use Rs 27,500 crore of the proceeds to repay debt, with the remaining funds intended for general corporate purposes, subject to the stated limits.

The IPO has drawn unprecedented institutional interest, with demand for its Rs 8,110-crore anchor book exceeding 30 times the amount on offer and aggregate institutional demand touching nearly Rs 2.5 lakh crore. There was strong response from global asset managers, sovereign wealth funds, domestic mutual funds, insurers and pension funds.

The Jio IPO mobilised the funds at a time when the stock markets were reeling under a host of problems including high crude oil prices, rising inflation, bond yields and high interest rates. The Sensex had lost nearly 15 per cent in the calendar year 2026.

The IPO of Jio Platforms has been one of the most closely watched developments in India's capital markets, largely because of the company's dominant position in telecommunications and its rapidly expanding digital ecosystem. Since its launch in 2016, Jio transformed the Indian telecom sector through aggressive pricing, widespread 4G and 5G adoption and large-scale investments in network infrastructure.

Jio has over 524 million subscribers across India. Jio's network leadership in 5G continued to attract subscribers with a total 5G subscriber base reaching 268 million as of March 2026. Customer engagement also remains robust with 5G now accounting for 55% of total wireless traffic, the company said.

The company had earlier attracted billions of dollars in investments from global technology majors like Meta Platform, Google and Intel in 2020. The fundraising exercise brought in strategic investors who valued the business at levels that placed it among India's most valuable unlisted companies. Meta invested $5.7 billion to acquire its 9.98 per cent stake in Jio in 2020.

Among large IPOs in the last two years, Hyundai raised Rs 27,870 crore through its IPO in October 2024, surpassing the Rs 21,008-crore issue of Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC) in 2022. The National Stock Exchange (NSE) mobilised Rs 22,561 crore through an offer for sale recently. Other landmark offerings include Paytm's Rs 18,300-crore IPO in 2021 and Coal India's Rs 15,475-crore issue in 2010. Reliance Power raised around Rs 11,500 crore through its IPO in 2008.

Ahead of the company's IPO, managing director Akash Ambani said the company is looking to tap a significant share of India's expanding digital economy.

Doctor moved to Odisha empowers communities to build local agency in taking health and wellbeing-related decisions," he wrote.

During his time there, Sequeira also began supporting the tribals in their resistance against the bauxite mining project. In September 2023, the Kashipur police in Rayagada district made a general diary entry about Sequeira for circulating pamphlets, maps, and anti-mining materials in villages around the Sijimali hills, a proposed bauxite mining site.

In July 2025, the Orissa High Court quashed an "exclusion order" issued under Section 163 BNSS that barred Randall Sequeira from entering Rayagada district. The section empowers Executive Magistrates to issue temporary written orders to prevent danger, public nuisances, riots, or threats to public safety and tranquillity.

Cyriac Abby Philips, a doctor and his senior from MBBS days, claimed Sequeira and Naik were held overnight without a warrant, an arrest memo or any stated reason, and kept from their lawyers and families.

"Randall has spent years taking healthcare to Adivasi communities in the remote hills of Kalahandi and Rayagada. His arrest is part of a wider crackdown on Adivasi and Dalit communities resisting bauxite mining in the Sijimali and Kutrumali hills. More than a hundred people have been jailed, and movement leaders are re-arrested in new cases each time they get bail," Philips wrote in an Instagram post.

Protest against bauxite mining

The Sijimali and Kutrumali are two rich bauxite blocks in the Eastern Ghats hill ranges, interspersed with valleys. Both blocks, spread across Rayagada and Kalahandi districts, are known to have high-grade bauxite. The Sijimali block spans 1,500 hectares, with an estimated reserve of 311 million tonnes, while the Kutrumali block covers 702 hectares, with an estimated reserve of 127.737 million tonnes.

While Vedanta bagged the Sijimali mine in February 2023, Adani Group-owned Kalinga Alumina Limited (formerly Mundra Aluminium Limited) was declared the preferred bidder for the Kutrumali bauxite block around the same time.

Some tribals have been opposing the bauxite mining project, citing that it would endanger their lives and livelihoods. They say the project would have a cascading impact on the region's ecology and biodiversity. They have also been opposing the infrastructure projects to the region like railway connectivity and road construction, saying it would benefit corporate houses. The Maa Mati Mali Surakhya Manch spearheads the anti-mining protest in the region.

On April 7, a pre-dawn raid by the police in Kantamal village had triggered a clash between tribals and police personnel. Locals alleged the police raided the village at 3 am to detain those opposing the construction of an approach road to the Sijimali mining project.

Villagers alleged electricity to the village was disconnected before the raid, and the police broke down doors to enter houses. Police claimed they had gone to the village to arrest one person, against whom a non-bailable warrant had been issued. Nearly 58 people, including police officers, sustained injuries in the clash and 23 activists and local villagers were arrested.

Activist Prafulla Samantara, who has been conferred with the Goldman Environmental Prize in 2017 for leading a 12-year battle against bauxite mining in Niyamgiri hill in Kalahandi district, condemned Sequeira's arrest.

"Is it a crime for a doctor like Randall to be sympathetic for the tribal cause within constitutional right," he wrote in a letter addressed to the superintendents of police of Kalahandi and Rayagada.

Samantara, who is the national convenor of Lok Shakti Abhiyan, also condemned the ongoing "police repression" through the arrest of local tribal and Dalit villagers and their supporters.

the shooters. But investigators suspect those guiding Rehan Ansari through a communication app were either Anil Pandit, who is believed to be holed up in the US, or Ankit Khatak and Sameer Khatri, recently arrested in Sonipat, who allegedly formed the link between the shooters and Pandit.

Police sources did not reveal which messaging app was used. The Bishnoi gang is known to use Signal, developed by a US-based company, or Zangi, an app developed in Armenia that does not require a mobile number to register.

The source said that CCTV footage showed Rehan was constantly on the phone. "We knew it was an app that used Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP), but we could not trace it," the source said. With the accused now in custody, police have accessed some of the communication between the two sides.

"Apart from some videos and photographs, we have found they were being guided by the person about how far along the police are in identifying them. We suspect the person at the other end was scanning news channels and as soon as some information flashed, he would alert Rehan," the source said.

At one point, when television channels zeroed in on their faces using videos shot by paparazzi and vloggers outside the park, Rehan received a message — an alert.

The source said the other messages ran along the same lines. The handlers kept them feeding investigation updates. For instance, they were allegedly told that police had traced their bike in Andheri and knew they had taken a train.

"This could be one of the reasons why they kept changing modes of transport as they went from a bike to a train to a cab and later wanted to take a bus from Surat bus stand. But when it took too long, they decided to take another train," the source said. Acting on a request from the Mumbai Police, the Kota police apprehended them on that train.

The Indian Express first reported on October 20 that while fleeing, the accused made calls only over the internet rather than on the mobile network. Such calls do not show up in call records, making them difficult to trace. According to sources, the accused made only one regular phone call — to the cab driver who drove them from Borivali in Mumbai's northern suburbs to Surat. It was this call that eventually led police to Surat, and from there to the railway station where they boarded a train to Jaipur.

coordinates were shared with the LEA (law enforcement agencies) in the US, which made the arrest Thursday evening," the source said.

In August 2023, the Interpol issued a red notice against Himanshu.

Indian agencies are now coordinating with the LEA in the US to expedite his deportation proceedings, the source said, adding that a special team of senior officers is also likely to visit the US to complete document work.

Himanshu (23), alias Kunal, a native of Ritoli village in Rohtak, began his career in crime by carrying out extortion in the Subzi Mandi area of Rohtak. He allegedly killed a local youth, Sunny of Ritoli village, and subsequently managed to escape from a juvenile correctional facility in Haryana's Hisar in 2020.

"After fleeing the juvenile home, he joined local criminals, including jailed gangster Neeraj Bawana, and started threatening businessmen of his area for extortion. He later formed his own gang. He has over 30 cases, at least 16 of them for murder and attempt to murder," the source said. "Before a lookout circular was issued in his name, he obtained a passport from Bareilly using forged papers in the name of Kunal Singh in August 2022 and fled the country," the source said.

Himanshu flew to the United Arab Emirates, from where he took the "dunki route" to Europe. He was followed by his relative Sahil, 22. Himanshu ran his syndicate — it operates in Delhi, Haryana and Punjab — from Portugal with the help of Yogesh Kadian alias Bobby, Sahil and Neeraj Faridpuria.

"To run his gang, he adopted a modus operandi and would make threatening calls from outside. If someone refused to pay, they would carry out firing outside their houses through their men. To lure youths, they would post their stories on social media and whenever anyone would comment or follow them, they would contact them and assign them the task of firing," the source said.

India's central agencies are likely to get the custody of Himanshu, along with Faridpuria, who works with Punjab's notorious Bambiha gang, a rival of the Lawrence Bishnoi gang.

"Faridpuria, who had fled India, initially met Kaushal Chaudhary and his henchman Amit Dagar in jail. From there, he came close to the Bambiha group through one of its members, Dinesh Gandhi, and started working with them," the source said.

Sharing details of one of their coordination meetings with the states, a source in the NIA said the Haryana Police, in its presentation, had said that there are around 80 active criminal gangs in the state. Among the major gangs, they named the Himanshu Bhau gang, the Neeraj Faridpuria gang and the Lawrence Bishnoi/Bhanu Partap gang, which have been indulging in extortion and other violent crimes, the source said.

Diljit concert gets nod

police deployment.

Officials said the police had also requested the organisers to consider changing the concert date but this was not possible because of Dosanjh's prior commitments.

Police have asked the organisers to book adjoining parking spaces to accommodate visitors arriving in private vehicles.

Dedicated stretches for pedestrian movement and help kiosks at important points have been recommended to ensure concert-goers can locate their designated gates and avoid confusion, particularly during peak entry and exit periods.

Police are also planning to designate an area extending 500-700 metres around the venue as a pedestrian-only and no-car zone. Only vehicles belonging to the artist and others authorised in connection with the event would be permitted in this restricted area, officials said.

Officials said JLN Stadium has a capacity of around 55,000, but officials are preparing for a large turnout, with support staff and event personnel adding to the number of people at the venue. Police have emphasised the need for adequate personnel at entry and exit points and along approach routes to ensure that the crowd can be managed without bottlenecks.

Sources said the organisers are also considering increasing the length of the performance ramp to allow Dosanjh to move further into the audience area and interact with concertgoers. The proposal is being discussed with police, and final arrangements will be made only after taking into account security requirements and obtaining the necessary approvals.

Officials said potential security risks linked to threats reportedly issued by pro-Khalistani groups were being factored into the arrangements, with police taking measures to ensure the safety of the singer, the audience and others associated with the event.

Separately, Mumbai Police launched an investigation Friday after Dosanjh received a threat email warning of a possible "suicide attack" at his November 27 concert at Mahalaxmi Racecourse.

On Thursday, a senior Delhi Police officer had told The Indian Express that a letter was sent to the ticketing partner, 'BookMyShow', stating that there had been inputs regarding some possible 'threats' at the singer's concert.

In May this year, shots were fired outside the Karnal residence of his manager, Gurpartap Singh Kang, with the Lawrence Bishnoi gang allegedly claiming responsibility in social media posts. The Delhi show marks the opening leg of Dosanjh's ongoing Aura India Tour, which will travel to Indore, Ahmedabad, Mumbai, Bengaluru and Chandigarh.

29.5 lakh SIR cases 'resolved, parked for final roll' in Delhi

Devansh Mittal
New Delhi, October 23

AROUND 29.5 lakh or nearly 90% of the nearly 33 lakh cases involving unmapped electors and logical discrepancies during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls in Delhi have been "resolved" or "parked for the final roll" by electoral registration officers (EROs) and assistant electoral registration officers (AEROs), the office of the Delhi Chief Electoral Officer (CEO) said on Friday.

The cases include 13.79 lakh electors who could not be linked to the electoral roll of the previous SIR – conducted in 2002 – and 19.33 lakh whose enumeration forms were flagged for logical discrepancies. The CEO's office did not disclose how many cases had been rejected.

Delhi had around 1.45 crore electors before the SIR process began in the city.

When the draft electoral roll was published on August 31, around 97.5 lakh names were retained, while around 47.5 lakh electors were classified as uncollectible after booth level officers (BLOs) found them to be absent, shifted, deceased or having duplicate entries.

The disposal process was initially slow, prompting the Election Commission of India (ECI) to simplify hearing procedures. BLOs were asked to visit electors and collect supporting documents in cases involving logical discrepancies and unmapped entries, while the number of AEROs was increased.

Further, since September 30, EROs have been able to dispose of notices without conducting a hearing. A letter from the BLO stating that the elector's details had been verified to their satisfaction is sufficient for the ERO to take a decision, said sources.

According to the CEO's office, 13 district election officers, 70 EROs, 902 AEROs and 14,947 BLOs were involved in the exercise. The deadline for disposing of notices is November 30, while the final electoral roll is scheduled to be published on December 4. (See box)

The period for claims and objections, which began on August 31, will end on October 30. Electors can apply for inclusion in the electoral rolls or file objections to names appearing on them until then.

The CEO's office said 2,50,754 Form 6 applications for enrolment had been received since the claims and objections period began, in addition to 2,12,400 applications received before the draft roll was published. All these applications will be disposed of by November 30.

To reach eligible voters left out of the draft roll, special camps have been organised at educational institutions, night shelters and other locations to assist young voters, homeless people, transgender persons and sex workers. Camps were also held in colonies affected by demolitions.

According to the CEO office, more than 89,000 special camps had been organised across Delhi's 14,947 polling stations over six Sundays. Another round of camps is scheduled for October 25.

On September 29, the ECI ordered a special drive across the 20 States and Union Territories where the SIR had been completed to enrol voters left out of the rolls, directing them to apply using Form 6, prescribed for new voters.

In Delhi and Maharashtra, where the SIR is still underway, Form 6 is also being used to bring back voters whose names may have been deleted from the draft rolls.

Last week, the office of the CEO in Maharashtra sent a proposal to the ECI to amend Form 6 so that voters deleted during the SIR could seek re-enrolment without declaring that they were enrolling "for the first time".

A false declaration can attract criminal penalties.

Nerve repair to COPD 'cures': FDA flags 9 products after raid at Gurugram company

Gurugram, October 23

THE HARYANA Food and Drugs Administration (FDA) raided the premises of Gurugram-based wellness firm Midvision Private Limited on Thursday, flagging nine food products for suspected misbranding over health claims ranging from nerve repair to lung detoxification and blood sugar control.

The firm markets health supplements and cosmetics under the brand name Miduty through its website, www.miduty.in. The raid at its Fazilpur Jharsa premises was carried out by a joint team of drugs control officers and a food safety officer.

In a statement, the FDA said the raid aimed to examine regulatory compliance, particularly the nature, presentation and substantiation of health-related claims on the company's website. The action was ordered by the Haryana FDA Commissioner as part of a state-wide drive against misleading wellness claims, it added.

The FDA said certain products found at the company's premises carried claims relating to nerve and joint pain relief, constipation management, improved lung function, liver detoxification, blood sugar control and reduced skin pigmentation.

According to sources privy to the investigation, the raid followed a confidential complaint received by drug authorities and coincided with the company's application for a retail and wholesale drugs licence. The team questioned director and CEO Pranav Midha after arriving at the firm's office.

Investigators flagged several products for claims that appeared to extend beyond those permitted for dietary supplements. According to sources, a 'Lung Detox' supplement was advertised as protecting smokers against Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD), easing chest congestion and clearing accumulated tar and toxins from the airways.

The sources added that a metabolic supplement containing berberine claimed to reduce HbA1c and fasting blood sugar levels, while a pigmentation supplement asserted that it could neutralise oxidants "7,500% better than any known antioxidant". Joint support products allegedly promised a "pain-free" life and cited pain reductions of up to 61.9%. Also, sources said, gut health formulations reportedly cited numerical reductions in insomnia severity and diarrhoea episodes.

They added that the company's nerve recovery formulations were flagged for potential violations of the Drugs and Magic Remedies (Objectionable Advertisements) Act, which prohibits commercial advertisements claiming to mitigate, treat, or cure disorders of the nervous system.

When officials sought clinical trial validations, peer-reviewed literature and statutory approvals to substantiate the claims, no documentary evidence could be furnished on the spot, sources said. The company maintained that its products were licensed by the FSSAI, but food regulations prohibit unauthorised curative or disease-prevention claims.

"A showcause notice will be issued to the firm, providing it... opportunity to explain its position and submit supporting evidence and documents. Further action will be taken... after due consideration of the firm's response, and the findings of the investigation," Drugs Control Officer Amandeep Chauhan said.

The Indian Express has reached out to the firm for a comment.

Diljit Dosanjh's Delhi concert cleared after security scare: What was at stake

Devansh Mittal

Diljit Dosanjh

AFTER A last-minute scare, megastar Diljit Dosanjh's Delhi concert is back on. The October 30 show at Jawaharlal Nehru (JLN) Stadium received police clearance on Friday, a day after permission was denied over security concerns.

The approval came following discussions between the Delhi Police and organisers on crowd management, traffic regulation, parking and security arrangements.

Had the concert been cancelled, the fallout would have extended beyond disappointed fans, with promoters, ticketing platforms, vendors, and hospitality businesses facing potential losses. It could also have raised questions about Delhi's ability to host large-scale concerts at a time when cities are competing to attract major artists and the economic activity they bring.

Deepak Choudhary, founder of Eva Live and president of the Event and Entertainment Management Association (EEMA), said a cancellation or postponement would have affected ticket buyers, vendors, partners and promoters alike.

A concert of this scale involves expenditure on stage construction, sound and lighting systems, artist arrangements, technical crews, transportation, security and venue infrastructure. Much of this spending becomes difficult to recover close to the event. "Roughly 85-90% of a concert's budget is typically spent and becomes irrecoverable a week before the show," said Mohit Bijlani, founder of event management company Team Innovation.

He added that standard event insurance policies in India also rarely cover late-stage regulatory permit changes, leaving promoters exposed to significant liabilities.

Ticketing platforms, meanwhile, would have to process large volumes of refund requests and handle customer grievances, while potentially absorbing non-refundable banking and payment gateway charges.

For ticket holders, the losses could extend beyond the ticket price to travel and accommodation bookings. With "gig-tripping" — travelling to another city to attend a concert — gaining popularity, fans arriving from outside Delhi could have been affected, Bijlani said.

Those buying tickets through secondary-market resellers or peer-to-peer transfers could also have faced difficulties recovering premiums paid above the original ticket price.

Large concerts generate business for a wide network of companies, including production agencies, staging vendors, technical crews, transport operators, hotels, caterers and private security agencies. A cancellation could leave these businesses bearing costs for work already undertaken or equipment mobilised for the event.

Bijlani said a sudden cancellation during the peak festive and touring season could also leave specialised audio-visual equipment stranded, creating opportunity costs for vendors who might be unable to redeploy it at short notice.

The uncertainty could affect future investment, too.

Corporate sponsors committing substantial sums to major tours might become more cautious, seek stronger contractual safeguards or demand additional protection against cancellation-related losses.

The episode comes at a time when Delhi-NCR is seeking to strengthen its position as a destination for major concerts and capture the economic benefits they generate.

Since coming to power in Delhi, the government of Chief Minister Rekha Gupta has sought to attract artists as part of its push to grow the Capital's concert economy. Delhi-NCR is currently India's second-largest concert market, accounting for nearly 17% of the country's concerts and live events — about half Mumbai's share.

Coming up, 4.7-km flood protection wall along Yamuna river

New Delhi, October 23

THE DELHI government on Friday cleared projects worth Rs 622 crore to strengthen the Capital's flood management and drainage infrastructure, including funds to build a 4.7-km reinforced cement concrete (RCC) wall along a vulnerable stretch of the Yamuna, as well as three biomining projects, to scientifically dispose of silt removed from drains.

The decisions were taken at the 40th meeting of the Flood Control Board, chaired by Irrigation and Flood Control Minister Parvesh Sahib Singh at the Delhi Secretariat.

The proposed RCC wall -- around six to seven feet tall and estimated to cost Rs 99 crore -- will run along the Yamuna from the Magazine Road drain to the Old Railway Bridge. "The wall will protect low-lying areas during high water levels. During monsoon season, Yamuna river swells and reaches roads and houses," Singh said in a statement.

The Board also gave in-principle approval to three biomining projects worth Rs 260 crore to address the longstanding problem of disposing of silt removed from Delhi's drains. Officials said desilted material, often left along drain banks or roadsides, subsequently washes back into the drains during rainfall, reducing the effectiveness of desilting operations. "The projects will especially benefit the Najafgarh drain and other major drains, which carry the heaviest silt load in the city," Singh said.

"Desilting means nothing if the silt finds its way back into our drains. For years, this is exactly what happened. With biomining, we will dispose of silt scientifically and break that cycle once and for all," he added.

Further, the Board discussed developing drain banks across Delhi along the lines of the Barapullah drain, with walkways, green belts, plantation, lighting and protective fencing.

The government said the initiative aims to transform neglected spaces along drains into cleaner, more accessible public areas while addressing encroachment issues.

Haryana power dept employees end strike

Chandigarh, Gurugram, October 23

POWER DEPARTMENT employees and engineers on Friday ended their strike after Haryana Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini said the state government has directed the HERC (Haryana Electricity Regulatory Commission) to review its decision to grant a licence to a private company and cancel the order.

The decision to withdraw the strike was announced at a joint press conference attended by the Chief Minister, state Power Minister Anil Vij and representatives of the employees' unions. It followed two rounds of talks between the state government and union leaders.

Saini told reporters in Panchkula that the power disruption caused by the strike will also be restored.

One of the employee leaders, Devender Singh Hooda, said the unions went on strike to oppose the privatisation of electricity distribution in the state. However, he said the CM assured them that the government would not allow the privatisation of electricity services in Haryana.

Another employee leader said, "We will restore electricity supply across the state with immediate effect."

According to Hooda, Saini directed the HERC under Section 108 of the Electricity Act, 2003, and provided a copy of the directions to the employees' representatives. The section empowers a state government to issue written policy directions to the State Electricity Regulatory Commission on matters of policy involving public interest.

Saini said HERC is an independent statutory body established under the Electricity Act, 2003, and exercises its powers in accordance with the law. In view of the situation arising from the Commission's order, the state has decided to initiate appropriate action within the framework of the applicable legal and statutory provisions.

He said the government would take steps under Section 108 of the Electricity Act, 2003, to issue directions to the Commission. The government would also pursue a review of the order under Section 94 of the Act, in accordance with the Commission's powers and procedures.

'BREACHED ORDER DESPITE WARNING'

HC dismisses AISA chief's plea against preventive proceedings

Sohini Ghosh

AISA president Neha

REFUSING TO interfere with preventive proceedings initiated against AISA president Neha, the Delhi High Court has observed that a show-cause notice issued to her by the Special Executive Magistrate (SEM) met requirements of law.

The court said that "it is not necessary that the SEM has to investigate like a fact-finding authority" at this stage. It also held that "even one incident is sufficient" for initiating preventive proceedings "if the circumstances so suggest that there is an apprehension that such a person will indulge in further incidents of the same nature which can breach peace and disturb public tranquillity".

Justice Subramonium Prasad noted that Neha has breached the order related to prohibition of assembly of persons under BNSS Section 163, "despite being warned."

The court also emphasised that the SEM will take into account safeguards as set by the Supreme Court while passing its final order.

Neha contended that she had assembled at Mandi House which was not covered under prohibitory orders. The court, however, ruled that a prohibitory order of August 24 covering the entire jurisdiction of police stations of Barakhamba Road and Tilak Marg was in force at the time, which would also cover the Mandi House area.

The student leader is expected to appear before the SEM on Saturday to respond to the show-cause notice that had directed her to explain why she should not be made to execute a bond in order to ensure that she does not breach peace.

Justice Prasad, in his order, also recorded that it is "needless to state that there will be several opportunities to (Neha) to take recourse to the remedies under law at different stages of enquiry, including after passing of the final order upon conclusion of the enquiry".

A key contention by the AISA chief was that the show-cause notice could not have been issued without completion of the inquiry against her.

Justice Prasad said: "...the SEM in the present case, has duly examined the information received by him, including the three (03) general diary entries along with kalandara dated 17.10.2026 and examined the three (03) witnesses, which would satisfy the requirements under Sections 126 (executive magistrate's power to execute a peace bond by an individual) and 130 (magistrate's requirement to pass a written order) of the BNSS. It is not necessary that the SEM has to investigate like a fact-finding authority while forming an opinion regarding apprehension of breach of peace...which is preventive and not punitive in nature."

"...this case is only at the stage of show-cause notice where this court cannot substitute its conclusion to the one arrived at by the SEM on the basis of material before him. The present case is not based merely on hearsay material, as contended (by Neha)," the court reasoned.

While Neha contended that the SEM did not apply his mind and merely copied the police report, the court held that BNSS provisions "does not require the show-cause notice to read like a judgment, but merely set out the substance of the information received by the SEM and the opinion formed thereof".

On October 16, Neha was detained while on her way to the 'Lehra Do Tiranga' march at Connaught Place, and released a day later.

Over 150 detained in Delhi during protest against CEC Gyanesh Kumar

Pragynesh
New Delhi, October 23

DELHI POLICE Friday detained more than 150 protesters during a march in Central Delhi against the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls and Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar.

The call for the march was given on Thursday by the Delhi Coordination Committee of People Against SIR, a civil society collective. CJP founder Abhijeet Dipke, AISA president Neha, actor Prakash Raj and BKU chief Rakesh Tikait were also invited to join the protest.

CPI(M) leaders Brinda Karat, CPI's P Sandosh and members of the All India Democratic Women's Association (AIDWA) and the All India Democratic Students' Organisation (AIDSO) joined.

Around 2 pm, around 300 people gathered near Gole Dak Khana, at the intersection of Kalibari Marg and Bhai Vir Singh Marg, with participants carrying the national flag and banners demanding an end to the electoral roll revision exercise.

The group started marching towards Gurdwara Bangla Saheb. More than 1000 police and Central Armed Police Forces personnel were deployed around the area, with heavy barricading at the ECI office and the Jantar Mantar protest site.

Unable to go towards ECI, most of them gathered around the roundabout near Bangla Sahib and started a sit-in protest dubbed 'people's Parliament'.

By 3 pm, security forces started detaining people. As protesters moved to Baba Khadak Singh Marg, police officers initially started asking them to vacate. As traffic snarls continued, with roads being blocked by the protesters, the police started detaining them, starting with a group of AISA and KYC female protesters.

As detentions gathered pace, some climbed atop buses. Within an hour, at least three buses were filled with detainees and taken to multiple detention centres.

By 4.30 pm, most of the area was cleared.

The 'People against SIR' announced on its website that 145 organisations will organise more protests in 88 cities across the country in the coming days.

This was the first major protest call after October 16, when Dipke had announced a 'Tiranga Lehra do' march at Connaught Place's Central Park.

By the end of that protest, more than 100 people were detained, including AISA's Neha.

Shah likely to visit Delhi Police HQ today

Sakshi Chand

Amit Shah

UNION HOME Minister Amit Shah is expected to visit the Delhi Police headquarters on Saturday around 3 pm to take stock of the law and order situation in the Capital, with the fallout of the July protest by the CJP likely to figure in discussions with senior officers, sources said.

The proposed visit would mark Shah's return to the Delhi Police headquarters after more than four years. Shah had last visited the headquarters on August 30, 2022. Since then, he has participated in Delhi Police events, including the force's Raising Day celebrations, held outside the headquarters.

The visit is expected to serve as a morale booster for the force, particularly after the violence during the CJP's 'Sansad Chalo' march and the subsequent allegations of excessive use of force by police personnel during the protests. The meeting is likely to review the circumstances that led to the confrontation, the police response and measures required to ensure that similar incidents do not recur.

Further, the meeting is expected to focus on the government's priority areas, including the fight against drugs, action against gangsters operating from abroad and their local associates, and crimes against women. Sources said the meeting would provide an opportunity to take stock of the police response to recent incidents and assess the progress made in investigations and enforcement. Senior officers are expected to brief the Home Minister on measures taken across these areas, as well as the challenges faced by the force.

The crackdown on drug trafficking is expected to be among the key agenda items. Another major focus is expected to be the network of gangsters operating from foreign locations and directing criminal activities through associates in Delhi and the National Capital Region. The police are likely to discuss action against their local operatives, including shooters, arms suppliers and those allegedly involved in extortion and targeted firing.

The third key area is expected to be crimes against women, particularly in view of a series of recent cases. These include the alleged gangrape of a 17-year-old girl at Aastha Kunj Park in September. Three men had allegedly posed as police officers and sexually assaulting the teenager.

Five bankers among six arrested for Rs 7.36-crore cyber fraud

Pragynesh
New Delhi, October 23

A CYBERCRIME investigation that began with a suspicious bank account in Northwest Delhi has led to the arrest of five bank officials and a man as well as the unearthing of an alleged network of mule accounts linked to cyber fraud complaints across the country, police said on Friday.

In June this year, officers at a cyber police station received information about an account at the Tri Nagar branch of CSB Bank, formerly Catholic Syrian Bank, that was allegedly being used to route money obtained through fraud. The account had over 100 complaints against it on the National Cyber Crime Reporting Portal (NCRP), police said.

The account was found registered in the name of Rahul, purportedly a resident of Najafgarh. However, when police verified the address, they found that he lived in Wazirabad.

According to DCP Akanksha Yadav, Rahul had neither visited the Tri Nagar branch nor applied to open the account.

"The addresses associated with two other suspected mule accounts maintained at the same branch could not be verified. All three accounts were found to be linked to cybercrime complaints registered across India," the DCP added.

Rahul's account was part of a mule account network, allegedly being run by six bank officials — Shobhit Aggarwal, Sushant Kumar, Manoj, Ankur, Fatma and Pankaj.

Besides Sushant, the rest of the five men have been arrested. Police identified the sixth person arrested in the case as Mayank Kapoor.

Further investigation revealed that at least 20 suspected mule accounts had been opened at the Tri Nagar branch. Police said more than 100 NCRP complaints had been lodged against the accounts, with Rs 7.36 crore moved through them.

"The addresses of the account holders were found to be non-existent and the photographs and KYC documents had not been captured in live condition," Yadav said.

According to the police, they traced the email IDs and IP addresses associated with the accounts to Mayank, who allegedly operated a fake call centre from Baba Haridas Nagar.

"He was arrested, following which, seven mobile phones, a laptop, seven cheque books linked to mule accounts, Rs 60,000 in cash, around 150 grams of gold, 55 passport-size photographs, 11 SIM cards, 63 Aadhaar cards, 60 PAN cards and seven debit cards were recovered," the DCP said.

During questioning, Mayank allegedly told police that he procured documents from daily-wage labourers by promising them loans and passed them on to Shobhit, then a branch manager at CSB Bank's Saraswati Vihar branch. Shobhit had joined another bank by June this year, police said.

Police said they subsequently traced the alleged mule account network to Sushant, the branch manager at the bank's Tri Nagar branch. "Shobhit introduced Mayank to Sushant, and bank employees allegedly helped open mule accounts at the two branches," said the DCP.

"With the alleged assistance of the bank officials, 17 mule accounts were opened at the Saraswati Vihar branch and around 20 at Tri Nagar Branch," said Yadav.

Police alleged that not just the managers, but business development executives (BDEs) and sales executives at the bank were also involved in the operation. The accounts were processed by the sales team: Manoj, Ankur, Fatma and Pankaj.

"Sobhit has been running the sham for years. He lives a luxurious lifestyle, and his finances are being verified," a senior officer said.

All cases filed during anti-CEC stir transferred to Crime Branch: Police

Pragynesh
New Delhi, October 23

OVER 57 cases — registered against political leaders, CJP and AISA members, and others during a series of protests held in demand of Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar's removal that rocked the Capital between October 2 and 15 — have now been transferred to the Delhi Police Crime Branch, officers said.

A senior officer said that all the cases were transferred as they involve "meticulous technical investigation" and "thorough questioning".

More than 10 of these cases are related to alleged assault of police officers.

The cases also include those filed against CJP leader Abhijeet Dipke and those against protesters who had allegedly entered Gurdwara Bangla Sahib. A complaint filed by the Delhi Sikh Gurdwara Management Committee states that the protesters violated the "sanctity" of the Guru Ghar by shouting slogans, and attempted to use it for political activities, police said.

At least three FIRs have named Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi Vadra for allegedly assaulting security personnel during the INDIA bloc's protest in the Capital, police sources said.

Other cases include violation of prohibitory orders under BNS Section 163, breaking barricades, using casteist slurs against police officers, and rioting, police said.

Prayers allowed at Race Course Masjid amid police watch, access curbs

Tabshir Shams & Sohini Ghosh
New Delhi, October 23

PRAYERS WERE allowed at the Race Course Masjid on Friday, even as police personnel remained stationed at the gate leading to the structure, monitoring those entering and leaving the premises. While scores of worshippers were allowed in for Jummah prayers in the day, access was restricted later, with a handful of people turned away by sunset.

The restrictions come amid concerns over the future of the Waqf-notified Grade II heritage structure. Its water and electricity connections were disconnected on October 7 during the demolition of three jhuggi clusters in the area.

The masjid is located inside the Race Course Club, which occupies around 53 acres near the Prime Minister's residence at 7, Lok Kalyan Marg. The club premises and surrounding slum clusters face eviction with the Centre citing national security concerns to justify taking over the area. However, officials had said on Thursday that no eviction notice had been sent to the mosque.

A 35-year-old man leaving the masjid after afternoon prayers said he had worshipped there since childhood. He was among the residents of one of the three jhuggi clusters opposite the PM's residence who have been rehabilitated to Savda Ghevra, nearly 50 km away.

"I was born here and grew up here and have always prayed at this masjid. I work at the Ashoka Hotel in Chanakyapuri, so it is easy for me to come here and offer prayers every day. This gate leading to the masjid was installed recently, after they started demolishing the slums," he said.

While several worshippers were allowed in for Jummah prayers in the day, access was restricted later. EXPRESS

At the gate leading hangs a Delhi Police notice imposing prohibitory orders under Section 163 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita in the area.

By 4 pm, fewer than 10 people were allowed inside for the Asr (afternoon) prayers. Media personnel were asked to wait outside the gate.

Hamid (20), who works at a nearby petrol pump, said, "There were fewer than 10 people for the prayers."

By sunset, media personnel had left and the police presence had thinned. A handful of worshippers gathered at the gate for Maghrib (evening) prayers but were not allowed in.

Among them was Altaf Khan, who works at a nearby hotel. "The police said we were allowed inside only for the length of the namaz, for 15 minutes," he said.

"For Asr, they let us pray. Now they are saying we will need permission from higher officials. How is that fair to us?" he asked.

A man who lives on the masjid premises, said the mosque now sees only four or five worshippers at a time, with prayers held two or three times a day. "Since the disconnection of utilities, residents have arranged a generator and draw groundwater for ablutions. But the prayers are mostly held in the dark," he added.

On October 8, the Delhi Waqf Board had written to the NDMC executive engineer seeking the restoration of the utilities. On October 15, NDMC refused to restore the utilities, saying that "since demolition work is still going on" in the area, which involves demolition of the jhuggi structures, "and there is an element of public harm involved, the electricity connection cannot be restored".

The masjid's imam had also approached the Delhi High Court seeking restoration of the utilities, but the court had declined the same on October 15.

THE WORKERS WILL NOW RECEIVE A MINIMUM MONTHLY SALARY OF RS 18,000, ALONG WITH DEARNESS ALLOWANCE

For public health workers in the Capital, decades of struggle finally pays off

Drishti Jain

FOR YEARS, Madhubala's salary went towards her children's school and college fees, leaving little for herself. A single mother who has raised two sons alone for the last three years, she has spent two decades working as a domestic breeding checker (DBC) with the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD). Now, after years of demanding better pay, the 45-year-old hopes she can finally start saving a little.

The reason: On Friday, she received Rs 27,000 in her bank account, a change from the around Rs 17,000 she earned every month until September.

The increase follows the MCD's decision to raise the minimum monthly salary of its public health workers to Rs 18,000, along with dearness allowance, under the principle of "equal pay for equal work".

"I have been raising two sons alone since the last three years after I separated from my husband due to domestic abuse. I spent all my salary on my children's school and college fees. I have not spent anything on myself," Madhubala says, adding that she will now try saving some money.

According to MCD Commissioner Sanjeev Khirwar, the decision will benefit around 4,000 workers and entail an annual financial burden of Rs 52 crore.

For Madhubala and her colleagues, the revised pay follows years of demands for better working conditions.

It was October last year when she took part in a strike along with Multi Tasking Staff (MTS) of the civic body. They demanded standardised pay, medical and earned leaves, and jobs for family members of employees who have passed away. After the strike was called off, the Mayor had promised them to consider the demands.

Devananda Sharma, the general secretary of the DBC Workers Union who has worked as a frontline worker for over 30 years, recalled: "In 2016, we sat on the streets to protest and got provision for casual leaves, medical leaves and maternity break. Then in 2023, workers were redesignated as MTS."

Alka (54), another worker, now wants to start saving for her daughter's wedding. "Even if we don't spend on anything extra, we still need to pay a rent of Rs 10,000. The landlord shows up on the first day of every month," she says. Alka, who has worked for over 25 years now, says her medical expenses also need to be taken care of.

"We sometimes climb to the upper floors or terrace of buildings to check the water tank for mosquito breeding. Our knees hurt." Alka works in Mayur Vihar and goes door to door to check for breeding. "But I still enjoy my work. This (hike in pay) will push us to do it more nicely," she says.

Mayor Pravesh Wahi said the proposal had been announced in the previous Budget and was taken up with Chief Minister Rekha Gupta for an approval.

The CM, meanwhile, said on Friday that her government is committed to upholding the dignity, rights and welfare of all those who work tirelessly to serve the people of Delhi.

The post of DBC was created after the 1996 dengue outbreak in the Capital, when 10,252 cases and 423 deaths were registered in a year.

Usha Mangeshkar to get 1st Bhupen Hazarika national award: Himanta

Shinjini Ghosh
New Delhi, October 23

ASSAM CHIEF Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Friday announced that the closing ceremony of Bhupen Hazarika's birth centenary celebrations will be held on November 29 in Delhi. Sarma said the state Cabinet had also approved the institution of a national-level award named after the legendary singer-composer.

The inaugural 'Bharat Ratna Dr Bhupen Hazarika National Award' will be presented to eminent singer Usha Mangeshkar in recognition of her outstanding contributions to Indian music, the CM said.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi will present the award at the concluding ceremony of the centenary celebrations at Bharat Mandapam.

"It will be conferred once every three years to an internationally or nationally recognised figure in music, arts or cinema," Sarma said, adding that the award will include a cash prize of Rs 10 lakh and a citation.

Following PM Modi's comments on Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi being a "failed product", Sarma on Friday said the Congress party has been trying to "relaunch the same product" every year. He said the Congress has "discovered an eternal youth product called Rahul Gandhi".

Taking a jibe at Gandhi's foreign trips, the CM said the LoP travels abroad "for a cooling-off period and then is relaunched".

"Those who launch him don't get tired of doing so, but the customers get tired."

'This is how they take revenge': Mann on being stopped at Delhi airport

Kanchan Vasdev
Chandigarh, October 23

Punjab CM Bhagwant Mann addresses the Vidhan Sabha in Chandigarh on Friday. KAMLESHWAR SINGH

PUNJAB CHIEF Minister Bhagwant Mann on Friday broke his silence on the controversy over being made to "sit for two hours" at the Delhi Airport upon his return from Paris and fined Rs 50,000, saying "this is how" the BJP-led Centre "takes revenge". He also linked the controversy with the AAP's ongoing protests against Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar, saying his brother Manish Kumar, an Indian Revenue Service (IRS) officer, heads the Delhi Customs Zone.

Mann made the remarks in the Vidhan Sabha while participating in a debate on an official resolution seeking an independent inquiry into alleged irregularities concerning electoral processes and functioning of the Election Commission (EC) under CEC Kumar.

The CM said that upon his return from Paris, the officials at the Delhi airport took him to one side and made him sit for two hours. Mann said he told the officials to follow the protocol accorded to chief ministers.

"They kept saying they wanted to check my luggage. When they could not find anything, they said we could go. As I was leaving the airport with my delegation, the officers came back and said there was lot of 'pressure from above' on them and that they would have to issue a challan," Mann claimed.

"They asked us to pay a Rs 50,000 fine. We told the officers that if it was about their job, then they may impose the fine," he said.

Hitting out at the Centre, he said, "This is how they take revenge...Who is the Customs head at Delhi airport? It is Manish Kumar, brother of (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar".

The remarks drew sharp reactions from the BJP with party's state general secretary Anil Sarin saying Mann could not evade accountability by claiming that the head of the Customs Department at Delhi Airport is the CEC's brother. Sarin dared Mann to explain why the Customs Department fined him and demanded that he make the receipt public.

Sarin said that passengers arriving at and departing from Delhi airport are routinely subjected to security checks and customs procedures. "While the chief minister might be exempt from personal screening under protocol, his luggage would not necessarily enjoy the same exemption. The exemption also would not automatically extend to members of his entourage either," the BJP leader said.

Mann had travelled to France to promote Punjab's agricultural and food-processing products at the SIAL Paris 2026, an international food trade fair, held from from October 17 to 21. He went to Paris after the Punjab and Haryana High Court allowed a state government plea challenging the Centre's denial of political clearance for the visit.

"Punjab's economic progress must not be held hostage to political differences. Investment, employment and prosperity are directly linked to the future of our youth. Every effort to attract investment and create opportunities must be encouraged," Mann said.

The CM further said that Pakistani Punjabi poet Baba Bashir Husain Najmi had invited him to attend the World Punjabi Conference in Lahore on November 27, and that he would like to attend if permitted.

"I told him, I am not being allowed to go to France; how will they let me go to Pakistan," Mann said. He added that several Punjabi writers and poets from India were expected to travel to Pakistan. "Our culture is the same".

Mann further said that he wanted all legislators of the Punjab Vidhan Sabha, including those in the Opposition, to visit Kartarpur Sahib in Pakistan if the Kartarpur Corridor reopened.

Punjab House resolution seeks probe into 'irregularities' under CEC

Kanchan Vasdev
Chandigarh, October 23

THE PUNJAB Vidhan Sabha on Friday passed a resolution seeking an independent and impartial investigation into alleged irregularities in voter lists, electoral processes and functioning of the Election Commission (EC) under Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar.

During the debate, several speakers also demanded Kumar's resignation.

When the House passed the resolution tabled by Finance Minister Harpal Singh Cheema, the Congress, Shiromani Akali Dal and the BJP MLAs were not present in the House.

Apart from ruling Aam Aadmi Party, those present included two rebel Akali MLAs, a BSP legislator and an Independent MLA.

Taking part in the debate on the resolution, CM Bhagwant Mann alleged that the BJP-led Centre was "undermining the electoral process" and manipulating the electoral rolls. He claimed that names of 14 crore voters had been deleted from electoral rolls nationwide under the garb of SIR and said such 'vote chori' was dangerous for democracy.

Yusuf Pathan gets his 'gift': Vadodara civic body clears transfer of 978-sq-m plot

Aditi Raja
Vadodara, October 23

Baharampur MP Yusuf Pathan

THE STANDING Committee of the Vadodara Municipal Corporation (VMC) on Friday unanimously approved the allotment of a 978-square-metre plot of land to Yusuf Pathan, over which it had served the former India cricketer an encroachment notice two years ago.

Congress leaders staged a dharna outside the Standing Committee hall, carrying placards opposing the allotment. No questions were asked inside.

All 12 members of the Standing Committee are elected corporators from the BJP. The Congress, which has only six corporators out of the total 69 in the VMC, has no representation in the Standing Committee.

The proposal was "approved unanimously, with no questions raised during the (Standing Committee) meeting", sources said. The proposal will be now put before the General Board, the top legislative and decision-making body of the civic administration, for ratification.

The Indian Express first reported on October 19 that Gujarat's BJP government had decided to allot the plot to Pathan two months after he rebelled against Mamata Banerjee and broke away from her Trinamool Congress (TMC) along with 19 other West Bengal MPs.

Pathan, who won the Baharampur Lok Sabha seat on a TMC ticket in 2024, and the other MPs have since joined a little-known outfit called the Nationalist Citizens Party of India (NCPI), and asked Speaker Om Birla to be seated separately from the TMC in Lok Sabha.

The 978-sq-m plot located at Vadodara's Town Planning Scheme 22, Final Plot 90, is adjacent to the Bagh-e-Mehmud bungalow owned by Pathan. Five hundred square metres of the land will be transferred to him as "gift", while the remaining 478 sq m will be given at a concessional rate of 55% of the valuation made by the Valuation Committee of the Vadodara Urban Development Authority.

The proposal that the Standing Committee cleared on Friday essentially approved an application that Pathan had submitted on March 3, 2012, seeking a 99-year lease of the plot without an auction.

The VMC's Standing Committee and General Board at the time had approved Pathan's proposal, but the Gujarat government rejected his request in June 2014. The VMC subsequently alleged that Pathan had fenced and occupied the plot despite the rejection.

Pathan had challenged the rejection before the Gujarat High Court, where a single judge dismissed his plea in August 2025.

Pathan had appealed this order, but withdrew the appeal on August 31, 2026 — two days after the VMC received a communication from the state government approving the transfer of the plot to Pathan.

In June 2024, days after Pathan became a TMC MP, the VMC had served notice on him, asking him to remove alleged encroachment on the plot.

With proceedings in court still underway, the Standing Committee, which is the highest executive body of the VMC, had in July this year, began preparations for a public auction of the plot — and approved a valuation of Rs 2.10 lakh per sq m, which put the estimated value of the land at around Rs 20.5 crore.

However, this proposal was withdrawn after the General Board raised questions about the alleged encroachment by Pathan, saying the plot could not be disposed of without the matter being settled.

Form 7 submissions in Karnataka surged from 58,475 to 2.28 lakh in one month, shows data

Express News Service
Bengaluru, October 23

AMID ALLEGATIONS of bulk submission of Form 7 during the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls in Karnataka, data shows the Election Commission received 2,28,917 Form-7 applications in the state between June 16 and October 22.

Form 7 is used to lodge objections against the proposed inclusion of a name in the voter list, or to request the deletion of a name due to specific grounds from the electoral rolls.

In fact, between September 23, when the total Form 7 received was 58,475, and October 22, the number of applications surged by 1,70,442. All Form-7 applications received up to September 23 have been cleared on priority, the CEO's office said in a statement issued on Friday.

The office of the Chief Electoral Officer, Karnataka, will release the final roll on October 27.

The ruling Congress in Karnataka, led by Chief Minister D K Shivakumar, has alleged that the opposition BJP is misusing Form-7 to file bulk objections. The party also staged a protest in front of the CEO's office earlier this month over the issue, after which the CEO directed a probe by Electoral Registration Officers. The state BJP has rejected the allegations.

The CEO's statement also noted that hearings for all 43.82 lakh voters in the draft roll – against whom notices were issued during the verification phase — were over. Apart from Form-7, the EC has received 10.42 lakh Form-6s for inclusion into the electoral roll, and 13.10 lakh Form-8s for correction of entries such as voter address changes and others.

The SIR exercise has been at the centre of an intense political and civil society controversy in Karnataka since the completion of the enumeration phase in August. Over 1.08 crore electors were left out during the enumeration phase, which brought down Karnataka's total voter tally from 5.54 crore to 4.46 crore in the draft electoral roll.

According to sources, around 10-13% of the 43.82 lakh voters who received notices could be removed from the final roll. In total, around 1.2 crore voters featured in the rolls prepared prior to the SIR exercise are likely to be removed.

Along with the notices, voters in parts of the state were concerned about the bulk submission of Form-7s. More than 10 FIRs were registered in different police stations across the state regarding the issue.

Recently, taking note of the bulk filing of Form 7s, the Election Commission capped the number of applications that can be submitted by an individual. In the instructions issued to Chief Electoral Officers of all states and UTs, the EC put a limit of 10 Form 7s per individual, in both online and offline mode, during the claims and objections period of the revision process, and five per month during continuous updation of electoral rolls in the normal course.

"... instances have been brought to the notice of the Commission of filing of Form 7 objections in bulk by individual electors on unsubstantiated grounds, resulting in avoidable inconvenience to the elector objected upon and increased workload on field-level functionaries," it said.

• Most objections received from...

We must unite society against divisive forces, says PM Modi at Chinmaya Amrit Mahotsav

Press Trust of India
New Delhi, October 23

Prime Minister Narendra Modi being felicitated by Global Head of the Chinmaya Mission, Pujya Swami Swaroopananda at Bharat Mandapam in New Delhi on Friday. ANI

PRIME MINISTER Narendra Modi on Friday called for collective efforts to address emerging challenges and societal ills over the decades, unite society against divisive forces and inspire citizens towards self-reliance.

Inaugurating the Chinmaya Amrit Mahotsav Global Sammelan, Modi said he had spent the last 25 years serving the nation as head of government to the best of his ability, while carrying forward the vision of Swami Chinmayananda, founder of the Chinmaya Mission, a global spiritual movement dedicated to making the wisdom of Vedanta and the Bhagavad Gita accessible to all.

He said the Chinmaya Mission was not merely an institution but a thought, with 'Chinmaya' meaning pure consciousness, and noted that its founder's journey over the decades had been marked by divine resolve. "... times have changed, new challenges have emerged, and new societal ills have surfaced. Today, the responsibility to solve them rests upon all of us," Modi said.

"We must unite society against divisive forces. We must inspire citizens toward self-reliance, and we must connect every individual to the vision of a Developed India by 2047. For these objectives, we must become even more proactive."

The PM said the vision of far-sighted luminaries such as Swami Chinmayananda around the time of Independence reflected the direction in which the country was fulfilling its responsibilities today.

"To ensure that our education system meets the needs of a 'New India', we introduced the National Education Policy (NEP). This new policy accords high importance to Indian Knowledge Systems, instruction in mother tongues, modern science, and cutting-edge technology," he said.

Modi said the youth had remained at the core of his efforts and policies, first as Gujarat chief minister and later as prime minister.

Expressing delight at the role young people played in the Chinmaya Amrit Mahotsav, he said several had travelled nearly 40,000 kilometres over about 300 days, reaching more than one lakh youth.

MHA to build civil defence network in 12 states, UTs

THE UNION Home Ministry will conduct a first-of-its-kind joint training with the Army to build a civil defence network of around 60,000 volunteers in 12 states and Union Territories (UTs) as part of a pilot project.

In the first phase, a three-day specialised training will be given for civil defence master trainers from the participating states and UTs, the ministry said.

The initiative stems from the PM's Independence Day speech, in which he announced the vision of a civil defence network equipped with modern systems, technologies and contemporary preparedness capabilities to address emerging security challenges. PTI

DELHI CONFIDENTIAL

From Field to Rail Bhawan

RAILWAY MINISTER Ashwini Vaishnaw recently gave a surprise to his officials. Chairing a track maintenance review meeting earlier this week, the minister called some Senior Section Engineers from the field to Rail Bhawan for cross-checking the reports. In the meeting, Vaishnaw asked the field officials to share their experiences. An official from Nagpur division explained how technological advancement and passenger safety measures have ensured more effective functioning. The minister later spoke to that official on phone too. Sources said feedback from the field — field officials are usually not part of such high-level meetings — would help the ministry improve its safety standards.

Down and Out

THE KARNATAKA unit of the BJP — which is yet to get a fresh team under party president Nitin Nabin's leadership — got another reason to be upset when the Yuva Morcha announced new national office-bearers. Only one leader from the state found a place in the 34-member team led by Hemang Joshi. This has triggered angry reactions from the state leaders who want to know why they have failed to "function as a strong, independent and effective organisation" despite Karnataka having the most "favourable" atmosphere for the BJP among the southern states, said sources. They pointed out that the Yuva Morcha in Karnataka had produced strong youth leaders who later influenced the state and national politics. The Yuva Morcha appointment has become yet another bone of contention for the "already-disillusioned" state unit.

Rallying for Rally

WITH A rally on the "vote chori" issue scheduled at Ramlila Maidan on November 1, Congress has started holding meetings with leaders from some states to plan the mobilisation of supporters. Congress general secretary (organisation) K C Venugopal held meetings with party leaders from Haryana and Uttar Pradesh on Thursday. The leaders were instructed to ensure maximum mobilisation for the rally in Delhi. They were asked to take a cue from the recent march to the Supreme Court led by senior Congress leader Rahul Gandhi.

AHEAD OF ASSEMBLY POLLS

Cong opens with 180-seat pitch in UP, Akhilesh caps offer at 80

SP seeks details of candidates' winnability factor; unreasonable demand, says Cong

Asad Rehman
New Delhi, October 23

THE TUG of war between the Samajwadi Party (SP) and the Congress over seat-sharing for the Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections has gone up a gear as the two parties insist on different things.

While the SP is asking the Congress to share names of "winnable candidates", the Congress is refusing to do so and has shared a list of 180 Assembly seats. Sources in the SP said the party was not happy with Congress leaders making "unnecessary statements" in the media about the number of seats it should get. The SP, party insiders said, is particularly upset with AICC in-charge Rajendra Pal Gautam, who has said his party should get around 200 seats, roughly half the 403 seats in the UP Assembly.

A highly placed source in the Congress said the SP's Lok Sabha MP Rajeev Rai had asked Congress general secretary and Wayanad MP Priyanka Gandhi Vadra during the high tea at Rahul Gandhi's residence on October 13 to share a list of seats that the party was looking to contest in the state. Vadra is learnt to have told Rai that a list would be shared soon.

Vadra subsequently held a meeting at her residence on October 19 to discuss the matter with the state Congress leadership. Among those who were present at the meeting were UP state president Aradhana Misra, working president Imran Masood, and Gautam.

Sources said that Vadra told the three that they should focus on "quality of seats" rather than getting fixated on the number. "She told the leaders that we should convey to the SP that we are willing to sit at the negotiation table and not make it full and final. We have sent a list of 180 seats we want to contest. This is how a negotiation starts," said a source.

"We might settle for something around 80-90 seats," said another source.

Congress insiders said the party had divided the seats into four categories — A, B, C and D — based on its internal assessment of electoral prospects and organisational strength.

"We are fighting in the state to defeat the BJP. We have strong candidates," Gautam told The Indian Express.

Despite the bickering, top leaders of both the Congress and Samajwadi Party are confident that the alliance will continue

Why Congress is miffed

The SP has adopted a "wait-and-watch" stance, asking the Congress to share a list of "winnable candidates". "They should give us a list of who they have in mind for seats because if we give them some seats and they field weak candidates, then it will be a loss for the alliance and not just the SP or Congress. We saw how the Congress performed in 2022," said a senior SP leader.

The Congress contested the 2022 polls on its own — 40% of the seats were given to women — and bagged just two constituencies with a vote share of 2.33%. The Congress had struggled to find candidates for all the constituencies and the SP leadership does not want a repeat in the coming poll battle. The SP had won 111 seats in 2022, with a 36% vote share. It had contested in alliance with several smaller parties, including Om Prakash Rajbhar's Suheldev Bharatiya Samaj Party, Jayant Chaudhary's Rashtriya Lok Dal, now in the NDA, and Pallavi Patel's Apna Dal (Kamerawadi).

"We are willing to give the Congress seats which it can win. But they should share the details of the candidates who can win in UP. The Congress organisation in the state is weak and that will reflect in the results too if they do what they did in 2022."

The SP's proposal, however, has irked the Congress. "Why should we give them a list of who will contest from where? No party does this anywhere. This is an unreasonable demand from the SP," said a Congress MP.

Another bone of contention

Sources said another bone of contention between the two parties would be the dozen seats in the Congress list that have SP MLAs. "In our list, we have named some seats which the SP had won in 2022. We feel we have a better chance of winning those seats," said a Congress leader. SP leaders said it would be nearly impossible to do that.

Sources in the SP said party president Akhilesh Yadav wants to give the Congress fewer than 100 seats. "We can give them something between 50 and 80 seats. That is what our leader (Akhilesh) had also told us," said a leader.

Despite the bickering, top leaders of the two parties are confident that the alliance will continue, with Akhilesh and Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi having impressed upon them that it should not be jeopardised.

Bihar MLC polls: 74% vote in teachers' seats and 43% in graduates'

Santosh Singh
Patna, October 23

FOUR TEACHERS' constituencies in Bihar recorded a voter turnout of 74.5 percent and four Graduate constituencies 43 percent in elections to eight Legislative Council seats on Thursday. The high-stakes Patna Teachers' and Patna Graduates' seats are being closely watched, with a divided Grand Alliance and the entry of the Jan Suraaj Party (JSP) adding a triangular contest to the electoral battle.

The Patna Graduates' seat, where JD(U) chief spokesperson Neeraj Kumar was seeking re-election for a fourth term, saw a challenge from party MLA Anant Singh, who openly campaigned for JSP candidate Anuj Singh. Neeraj Kumar, who was hospitalised during the campaign, was discharged just a day before polling.

Election officials, however, said the final turnout figures could see an upward revision, as voters who were standing in queues at 4 pm were allowed to cast their ballots.

According to the Election Commission of India, the Kosi Graduates' constituency recorded the highest turnout among the four Graduate seats at 52.51 percent, while Patna Graduates recorded the lowest at 36.19 percent.

Tirhut and Darbhanga recorded turnouts of 42.15 percent and 42 percent, respectively.

Among the Teachers' constituencies, Saran recorded the highest turnout at 87.16 percent, followed by Darbhanga at 79 percent, Tirhut at 78.10 percent and Patna at 56.89 percent.

A total of 150 candidates are in the fray across the state's four Graduate and four Teachers' constituencies — 90 from the Graduate seats and 60 from the Teachers' seats.

Darbhanga Graduates has the highest number of candidates at 40, while Patna Teachers and Saran Teachers have 18 each.

While the results will not immediately alter the NDA's broader numerical majority in the Legislative Council, they will serve as a barometer of sentiment among intellectuals and salaried professionals in the state. For the NDA, which replaced Nitish Kumar with Samrat Choudhary as Chief Minister earlier this year, the polls are a test of satisfaction with the administration.

For the Mahagathbandhan, they offer an opportunity to consolidate any anti-incumbency sentiment, though friendly contests in several seats highlight its internal divisions. For the JSP, the elections mark its first major test of electoral strength across multi-district constituencies.

'Ram ne Yadav ko maara': UP CEO cites software error for discrepancies in MLC voter rolls

Maulshree Seth
Lucknow, October 23

UP Deputy Chief Minister Brajesh Pathak and wife after casting vote during MLC Graduate and Teacher constituency in Lucknow. EXPRESS

RAMHIT YADAV, a common name in Uttar Pradesh, became 'Ram ne Yadav ko maara (Ram hit Yadav)' in the state's Legislative Council electoral rolls after a software error turned a transliteration task into a translation exercise, prompting the Chief Electoral Officer (CEO) to demand explanations from officials responsible.

The errors were found in 158 of the 14.81 lakh entries in the voter list for the biennial polls to five graduate and six teachers' constituencies, for which polling was held on Friday. The entries contained unusual names of voters or their relatives.

Uttar Pradesh CEO Navdeep Rinwa has attributed the discrepancies to a combination of software-related errors and human negligence.

For the first time, online registration was introduced for enrolment in the electoral rolls for the Legislative Council elections. According to the CEO's office, the software was designed to transliterate names entered in English into Hindi. However, in some cases, it apparently translated the words instead of reproducing the names phonetically.

For instance, the CEO office said, when the name 'Ramhit Yadav' was mistakenly entered as 'Ram hit Yadav', the software interpreted it as a sentence and translated it into Hindi as 'Ram ne Yadav ko maara'.

The CEO's office said software-generated errors could have been corrected through an editing facility provided. Such discrepancies remained in cases where people handling entries failed to check and correct them. In another instance, 'B Com' was reportedly entered in place of a father's name, which the CEO's office described as a human error or negligence.

While the number of such entries was small compared with the total electoral roll, the nature of the errors raised questions about the verification process, particularly in an electoral exercise where the accuracy of personal details is essential.

The CEO's office said the divisional commissioners concerned serve as Electoral Registration Officers for the electoral rolls, while the district magistrates of the respective districts function as Assistant Electoral Registration Officers. These officials have been asked to explain discrepancies. The CEO's office has also directed district magistrates to ensure that voters do not face any inconvenience because of the errors.

According to official data, the turnout stood at 55.24 per cent till 4.00 pm. The Gorakhpur-Faizabad teachers' constituency recorded the highest turnout at 79.01 per cent, followed by the Bareilly-Moradabad teachers' constituency at 73.69 per cent.

The Varanasi teachers' constituency saw turnout of 68.21 per cent, followed by Agra at 63.84 per cent. Agra's graduates' constituencies witnessed highest voter turnout at 51 per cent, followed by Allahabad-Jhansi at 41.40 per cent. Counting of votes will take place on October 27.

Karnataka MLC polls: BJP-JD(S) alliance, Cong vie for 4 seats

Press Trust of India
Bengaluru, October 23

VOTING FOR four Karnataka Legislative Council seats was held on Friday, featuring a direct face-off between the ruling Congress and the Opposition BJP-JD(S) alliance. The four constituencies are South-East Graduates', West Graduates', North-East Teachers' and Bengaluru Teachers'.

The counting of votes is scheduled for October 27. While the South-East Graduates' Constituency witnessed a 73.58 per cent voter turnout, West Graduates' Constituency saw 75.62 per cent. The poll percentage was 86.97 per cent in the North-East Teachers' Constituency, and 81.98 per cent in Bengaluru Teachers' Constituency, the office of the Chief Electoral Officer of Karnataka said in a release.

The contest is seen as a test of the BJP-JD(S) coalition's coordination and the ruling party's support base among graduates and teachers. A total of 43 candidates were in the electoral fray from all four seats.

The BJP currently holds three of the four seats and is seeking to retain them, while the JD(S) aims to wrest Bengaluru Teachers' constituency from the Congress. It will test whether the partners can transfer support to each other's candidates.

The Congress is seeking to retain its lone seat and make gains in the other constituencies.

Polling held for 5 Maharashtra council seats amid Opp claims of 'bribes and use of spy pen'

Mumbai, October 23

Maharashtra CM Devendra Fadnavis after casting his vote for the MLC elections in Nagpur on Friday. DHANANJAY KHEDKAR

POLLING FOR five Legislative Council seats in Maharashtra – three graduates' (Nagpur, Pune, Chattrapati Sambhajinagar) and two teachers' (Amravati, Pune) constituencies – was held on Friday with Opposition raising allegations over "bribing" voters and "use of spy camera". The counting will take place on October 27.

Official data showed that an average of 42.7 per cent polling was recorded across till 2 pm on Friday, the PTI reported.

NCP (SP) working president Supriya Sule alleged use of pens fitted with spy cameras during the polling. "Voters are reporting use of spy pen in their pocket which records them casting vote for BJP. After showing this video, they are given certain amount," she claimed in a social media post.

Responding to the allegation, Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis said: "Why would anybody do this? If Sule has concrete evidence she should inform. We will look into it."

In another allegation, OBC leader Laxman Hake claimed that voters were bribed with Rs 20,000. Sena (UBT) MP Sanjay Raut also made the same allegation and said, "The ruling parties BJP and Shiv Sena have money for voters. They can shell Rs 10,000 per vote. But for drought hit farmers, they have Rs 5,000."

A BJP spokesperson termed Opposition charges as baseless.

"All party leaders and workers are closely monitoring the process and are at polling stations. Moreover, BJP and alliance partners are confident of their support base. They don't have to restore to misuse of money," he said.

In Nagpur, Congress alleged there were more than 8,000 duplicate voters.

In graduates and teachers constituencies, the registered graduates and teachers are eligible voters.

In Nagpur graduates' constituency, where Fadnavis and Union Minister Nitin Gadkari exercised their vote, Sudhakar Kohle is BJP candidate. He is pitted in against Congress's sitting MLC Abhijit Wanjari.

In Pune graduates', the direct contest was between BJP's Smita Jadhav and NCP(SP)'s Harahada Deshmukh.

In Chhatrapati Sambhajinagar graduates' seat, the contest was between NCP's Satish Chavan and NCP(SP)'s Pratapsingh Patil.

At Pune teachers constituency BJP's Kaustubh Gawde was pitted against Congress sitting MLC Jayant Asagaonkar.

The Shiv Sena has backed Sachin Sanap, an independent candidate. Whereas, Amravati teachers' saw contest between Shiv Sena sitting MLC Kiran Sarnaik and Congress candidate Aditi Pohare.

The Shiv Sena (UBT) rebel candidates were also in fray at Pune graduates' and Amravati teachers'.

Punjab's drug crisis is BJP's opening, its credibility remains the test

NORTHERN LIGHTS

BY MANRAJ GREWAL SHARMA

A WEEKLY DISPATCH ON THE POLITICS AND IDEAS SHAPING NORTH INDIA

"I HAVE never felt so sad."

Union Home Minister Amit Shah's words, spoken after meeting three families devastated by Punjab's drug menace, may have struck a chord in rural Punjab, terrain the BJP has often found a no-go.

For long, the BJP has struggled to make a dent in the state, amid the dearly held belief, especially among intellectuals, that it will never gain an inch given the historically rebellious mood of the border state. There was quiet jubilation in the Opposition when Shah presided over a lacklustre rally marking the culmination of the party's "nasha mukt (free from addiction)" marches. It showed, went the refrain over the next 20-odd days, how little the party resonated with the masses. Then Shah came calling again, this time on Dussehra, and stole a march on the day good defeats evil.

That the BJP has made drugs its main poll pitch is there for everyone to see. But can it stir emotions when this menace has been normalised? The state has seen far too many crusades and promises to weed out drugs to really believe in a new one.

The ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government and the opposition Congress, and to a lesser extent the Shiromani Akali Dal, speak in one voice when it comes to countering the BJP's narrative. Both Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann and newly installed Punjab Congress chief Pargat Singh, a hockey Olympian, are on the same page when they ask two questions: Why has the BJP not been able to stop drugs from coming across the border manned by the Centre-controlled Border Security Force (BSF)? And why has it not been able to stop them from arriving at Kandla port and being distributed from there?

What is BJP game plan?

As the party increasingly takes the centre stage, Punjab is agog with speculation about its game plan. Is it playing the long game: increasing its vote share and the number of seats, making inroads into rural Punjab in the 2027 Assembly elections and using that to pave the way for victory in 2032? Or is it there to win by might or right? Will it "co-opt" legislators en masse to install itself? Then there is a third view: will it woo Punjab like never before?

Union Home Minister Amit Shah meets family of late Gulzar Singh at Tur Banjara village in Sangrur district, Punjab on Oct 20 2026. PTI FILE

The latter is a favourite of the glass-always-half-full gang. There are hushed conversations about the rabbits the party may pull out of its hat to reach out to the strong-headed Punjab. Those close to farming circles have their own suggestion: promise to address the debt burden of farmers. But the hard-nosed insist that no promise will count unless the party announces concrete measures, given the long-held mistrust that began with the farm agitation. Then there is another speculation: the party might announce the transfer of Chandigarh to Punjab. To this comes the counter that it might then lose Chandigarh and perhaps Haryana.

It is against this backdrop that Shah's day-long visit gains significance, at a time when his hands are full with elections in Uttar Pradesh and the Cockroach Janta Party in Delhi.

Jhota killing

It is not wrong to say that drugs have been normalised in Punjab. Even something most abhorrent can become ordinary when we live with it long enough. That is our default way to remain sane. But the BJP's pointed attention on chitta, as heroin is called in Punjab, and the toll it is taking, along with pharma drugs, could slowly begin to prick even those who have become immune to it.

The killing of anti-drug activist Parvinder Singh Jhota, shot by a chemist after he questioned the sale of banned drugs, has left behind a family that refuses to be consoled with money. His father, Bhim Singh, a retired soldier, declined the hiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee's offer of fixed deposits for his two young grandsons, saying the family wants justice, not charity. His widow, Manpreet Kaur, and their two little sons now stand at the centre of a grief that Punjab can no longer look away from.

They may yet do what Jhota could not do in his lifetime: stir the state out of its drug-induced numbness.

Bhim Singh, who can go from sounding fiercely emotional to infinitely wise, is dealing with grief in a manner no father should have to. Yet, even under the all-pervasive media glare, he keeps coming out with words that unite. When an army of reporters, eager to get an "I will boycott Shah" quote from him, crowded around him, he stared them down with the simple, rustic logic of a soldier. "I have served on the border; he is my Home Minister. He is welcome to my home."

Later, when Shah was leaving, Bhim Singh saluted him. The simple act of a disciplined soldier. In Punjab, the BJP's challenge is not to be seen or heard, but to be believed.

Veeramani's daughter taken off flight bound for Singapore

Chennai, October 23

THE DAUGHTER of granite businessman R Veeramani, who is facing multiple cases of alleged sexual abuse of minor girls, was taken off a Singapore-bound flight at Chennai International Airport on Friday afternoon, minutes before departure, as investigators widened their inquiry into financial transactions and possible attempts to shield the accused.

Archana Veeramani, 49, had cleared immigration and boarded an IndiGo flight scheduled to depart at 2.20 pm when officers from the Special Investigation Team reached the airport and alerted authorities. With assistance from the airline crew, she was brought out of the aircraft and taken into police custody for questioning, police sources said. The flight eventually departed at 2.32 pm without her.

The operation followed intelligence received by investigators, led by an Additional Superintendent of Police, who had been tracking Archana's movements and those of other people suspected of having links to the alleged offences.

After a brief interrogation at the airport, Archana was taken away in a police vehicle. Investigators are particularly interested in cash and gold transactions allegedly involving Veeramani after the first complaint of child sexual abuse was lodged in November 2024.

Investigators were examining whether she possessed information about the alleged activities of her father and his associates. Police have registered seven cases under Pocso against Veeramani, 84, while a separate investigation concerns allegations that he abetted the suicide of a minor girl in 2004. Veeramani, his associate Shanthi, her husband Mahendra Simhan and five others have already been arrested and lodged in Puzhal Central Prison.

Arunachal: Four injured during protest against hydel project

Press Trust of India
Itanagar, October 23

AT LEAST four women were injured after a clash broke out between police personnel and protesters on Friday over the Siang Upper Multipurpose Project in Arunachal Pradesh, prompting security forces to fire tear gas shells to disperse the mob, officials said.

The incident occurred at Dite-Dime near Geku in Siang district. Siang Superintendent of Police Kamdam Sikhom said, "Around 150 to 200 protesters from Geku and Komkar areas gathered at Dite-Dime... They attempted to vandalise police barricades, hurled stones and violated prohibitory orders."

The shutdown to protest the hydel project was called by Adi Bane Kebang United, SUMP Affected Area Youth Association, Siang Indigenous Farmers' Forum Youth Wing and Adi Galo Welfare Society.

Congress insiders behind sting operation on Siddaramaiah, says his minister son

Bengaluru, October 23

KARNATAKA MINISTER Yathindra Siddaramaiah on Friday alleged that some people from his own party, Congress, were behind a purported "sting operation", aimed at tarnishing the image of his father and former chief minister Siddaramaiah.

Both Siddaramaiah and Yathindra spoke publicly for the first time about the "fake sting video" from 2023 and indicated that some Congress insiders were involved in the alleged sting by Power TV Managing Director Rakesh Shetty.

Shetty, meanwhile, has been granted interim bail by a local court in Bengaluru in the wake of the city police summoning him for interrogation.

The Power TV MD sought anticipatory bail on Thursday fearing his arrest in the wake of the Bengaluru cyber crime police serving a notice for his appearance before police despite previous cooperation with investigations of the alleged sting video case filed on a complaint by Siddaramaiah on October 6.

The counsel for Shetty argued that the Power TV MD was "not the owner, creator or administrator of the YouTube channel which was created and is run by someone else" who allegedly uploaded the fake sting video on September 27.

Siddaramaiah has obtained an injunction from a court against airing or telecasting the defamatory video, which was posted on a social media site.

"The sting is a fake story. It was done with the intent of blackmailing. This is why I have filed a complaint for the truth to come out. We need to know who is behind this operation. In order to prevent large-scale dissemination of fake news, I went to a civil court and obtained a stay order on the circulation of the fake news," Siddaramaiah told reporters.

"In the video there is a woman from Mangaluru... There is a man called Rakesh Shetty from Power TV. They joined hands together to film the video. Rakesh Shetty has admitted that he conducted the sting operation and that it was false," the former CM said.

"Only an investigation can reveal if someone from our own party or some other party is involved. I came to know about this on September 27 (when the video went viral). I am not disturbed by the video because it is totally concocted. It is false propaganda," he said.

Yathindra, however, indicated that the woman captured in video was a Congress worker.

"This was done to defame my father and destroy his legacy and to blackmail him. The video itself shows that people from our party were involved. There is also the head of a media organisation in the video. An investigation is necessary to find out if they did it themselves or whether someone else was involved," Yathindra said.

"We do not have suspicions about anybody. There is a woman in the video who indicates that she wants the election ticket to contest the Puttur Assembly polls (in 2023). The sting was done to help her secure a ticket, it seems on prima facie viewing of the video. Just because a party worker is involved, it does not mean that the entire party is against us," he said.

Yathindra said his father was upset by the episode involving false allegations.

"After 40 years in public life he has not been tainted and this has happened at the end of his political career, he is naturally upset. However, truth is on our side and whatever allegation has been levelled, the truth will come out through the investigation," said the state minister who holds the Urban Development portfolio.

When asked if he will demand a high-level investigation, Yathindra said, "We do not want an SIT at this stage. We have confidence that the investigation being conducted by the police will be thorough and proper. If we find that it has not been conducted properly, we will raise the demand for a different agency then," he said.

Kochi synagogue arson: Police probe crypto trail and outside handlers

Express News Service
Thiruvananthapuram, October 23

THE KERALAM Police have invoked the anti-terror Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) in connection with the October 12 arson near the Kadavumbagam Synagogue in Kochi, as they investigate what officials describe as a larger conspiracy involving cryptocurrency payments and handlers based outside the state.

According to police, Ebin Paul, 32, a resident of Puthancruz in Ernakulam rural district, set fire to the boards of a horticulture nursery maintained by the synagogue's management committee at the Ernakulam market.

The investigation led police to Paul, who allegedly confessed to three other arson incidents in Ernakulam rural district.

Kochi Police Commissioner Kalirak Mahesh Kumar told the media on Friday that police had decided to invoke the UAPA against Paul.

He said the investigation had pointed to the possible involvement of other people, raising questions about a wider conspiracy.

"The probe so far has revealed a larger conspiracy involving more people. He carried out arson at the direction of handlers based outside the state. We cannot reveal further details at this stage. He had surveyed several locations, including sensitive targets, and shared videos of the arson incidents with the handlers. The fire near the synagogue was the fourth incident, indicating that he was practising the act. He also received payments in cryptocurrency after sharing the videos," the commissioner said.

The commissioner said police intended to invoke Sections 16, which deals with terrorist acts, and 18, which deals with conspiracy to commit a terrorist act, of the UAPA. He said the state anti-terrorism unit and central agencies had also investigated the matter. A decision on handing over the probe to the National Investigation Agency (NIA) would be taken later, he said.

Police sources said Paul's digital devices had been sent for forensic examination, which could yield further information about the alleged wider conspiracy.

The fire near the synagogue broke out around 2.30 am on October 12. According to police, Paul drove to the premises, poured petrol on the horticulture nursery and threw a flame at it from a short distance.

The synagogue is located behind the nursery, which also houses an aquarium. Paul allegedly recorded the act on his mobile phone.

The next day, police traced him after examining CCTV footage from the premises and the car's registration number. According to police, he was staying in rented accommodation near his home in Puthancruz.

Officials said a search of the premises led to the seizure of 100 grams of synthetic drugs and heroin, following which another case was registered.

During the investigation into the synagogue fire, Paul allegedly told police that he had set fire to a spot near a used-car showroom in Muvattupuzha in March. He also allegedly admitted to two arson incidents near a house in Muvattupuzha in January and March. Police said neither incident caused any damage and no cases were registered at the time.

An FIR had been registered over the showroom fire on the basis of CCTV footage, but the investigation had made no breakthrough.

Following the alleged revelations, Paul was named as an accused in that case, and two fresh FIRs were registered against him on Thursday over the other incidents. All three cases fall under Muvattupuzha police station limits.

Residents in Puthancruz said Paul had remained aloof from his well-to-do family and lived alone in rented accommodation. He had graduated from a college in Pune, where, residents alleged, he had become addicted to drugs.

NEET leak probe: All Chemistry questions found on coaching class founder's phone

Mahender Singh Manral
New Delhi, October 23

QUESTIONS RECOVERED from the phone of the founder of Latur-based RCC Classes, arrested in the alleged NEET-UG 2026 paper leak case, matched all 45 Chemistry questions in a master test booklet, according to a CBI supplementary chargesheet citing an expert opinion from Delhi University, The Indian Express has learnt.

A source said the CBI found that exam-related material was circulated before the test via WhatsApp, Telegram and AirDrop. Investigators traced its movement using recovered files, witness statements, handwritten notes, and messages related to payments.

The chargesheet, filed before a Delhi fast-track court on July 28, names 13 accused, including the NTA experts Manisha Mandhare (Biology), Pralhad Vithalrao Kulkarni (Chemistry) and Manisha Sanjay Havaldar (Physics).

The CBI filed a supplementary chargesheet last week naming a fresh accused and attaching forensic reports.

During the investigation, the National Testing Agency (NTA) informed CBI that four master sets of question papers are prepared for NEET, each comprising 180 questions divided equally across Physics, Chemistry, Botany, and Zoology.

"Out of these four sets, two are designated as administrative sets. They are printed in required quantities and distributed at exam centres," a source said.

"For NEET-UG 2026, the two administrative sets were codenamed 'Kailash' and 'Shivalik'. The remaining two sets are treated as non-administrative sets and are not meant for distribution in the ordinary course of the examination," the source added.

CBI compared the Chemistry questions recovered from RCC Classes' founder Shivraj Motegaonkar's phone with the exam master sets.

"Forty-three of the 45 questions of master set Kailash matched the recovered document containing the leaked Chemistry questions. All 45 questions of the master test booklet Shivalik matched the document. Forty of the 45 questions of master set 2 matched the document," the source said.

"Only one question of master set 3 matched the document recovered containing leaked Chemistry questions. Motegaonkar's associate, arrested teacher Kulkarni, did not have access to that set because it did not undergo back translation," the source added.

CBI has also received expert opinion from Delhi University on RCC mock test papers seized from candidates enrolled at the coaching institute. "A mock test dated April 19 contained 15 questions that matched master set Kailash. A second mock test, dated April 30, contained six questions matching master set Shivalik and five matching master set 2," a source said.

During the investigation, 12 images containing 13 Chemistry questions recovered from Kulkarni's phone, between April 11 and April 29, were also sent to experts for comparison. They matched 13 questions across the four Chemistry master sets.

One witness is learnt to have informed the CBI that a Chemistry PDF attributed to Motegaonkar was received and circulated through WhatsApp.

The supplementary chargesheet records statements from several people describing an advance payment of Rs 5,000 to the arrested accused Vikas Biwal of Jaipur, followed by the receipt and onward transmission of PDFs containing hundreds of questions around May 1.

Spreading Wings

Chief of Air Staff Air Chief Marshal A P Singh undertook a flying sortie with Senior Wing cadet Jakkula Tejasvi Reddy of the National Cadet Corps on October 20 at the Air Force Academy, Dundigal. The sortie took place before the Air Chief's final flying sortie with his first flying instructor. The sortie highlighted the opportunities available to NCC Air Wing cadets to gain experience in aviation and explore careers in the Defence Forces.

Foreigners held in NIA case get nod for longer stay abroad

Nirbhay Thakur
New Delhi, October 23

A DELHI court Friday extended till February 24 the permission granted to US national Matthew Aaron VanDyke and six Ukrainians, arrested in March by the National Investigation Agency (NIA) for allegedly conspiring to carry out terror activities against India, to remain abroad.

The accused had earlier sought permission to return to their home countries for six weeks to meet their families. On September 24, the court allowed them to leave for a month and directed them to return by October 23.

VanDyke appeared before Rouse Avenue court Friday and sought the release of his seized personal articles. The court is yet to hear his application. The six Ukrainians, who did not return to India, sought an extension, which was granted.

VanDyke was also allowed to remain in the US and appear through video conferencing (VC) before Special NIA Judge Prashant Sharma on the next date of hearing.

"NIA has submitted that further investigation is going on and NIA is in the process of collecting evidence from various sources, for which (it) needs at least three months time... NIA, on instructions, has submitted that accused Matthew Aaron VanDyke can go back to America and can return by next date of hearing or may take steps for his appearance through... VC," said the order.

VanDyke also sought legal aid. The court appointed advocate Nishant Singh as amicus curiae to represent him.

Matthew Aaron VanDyke

The seven were arrested by the NIA in March from airports in India for allegedly training insurgent-linked groups in Myanmar. VanDyke was arrested at Kolkata airport on March 13 under Section 18 of anti-terror law UAPA. The six Ukrainians — Hurba Petro, Taras Slyviak, Ivan Sukmanovskyi, Marian Stefankiv, Maksim Honcharuk and Viktor Kaminskyi — were arrested at airports in Delhi and Lucknow the same day.

The agency has not filed a chargesheet against them under the anti-terror law. After no UAPA chargesheet was filed within 180 days, all seven sought and were granted default bail.

The NIA had told the court that the seven entered Mizoram on visas, crossed into Myanmar and allegedly contacted ethnic armed groups.

According to the agency's remand papers, they allegedly imported "huge consignments of drones from Europe to Myanmar via India" for these groups, which allegedly supplied weapons and other equipment to proscribed Indian insurgent groups and trained them.

In an application dated August 19, the NIA sought permission to interrogate VanDyke and Kaminskyi inside Tihar jail. It said the Centre had received "credible information" indicating the involvement of Ukrainian and US nationals in a drone attack on a civilian aircraft in Myanmar.

On September 8, the agency filed a chargesheet invoking only Sections 21 and 23 of the Immigration and Foreigners Act, 2025, offences that can be compounded before the Foreigners Regional Registration Office. It did not include any UAPA charge, despite the FIR being registered under Section 18 of the anti-terror law.

The NIA said a substantial part of the UAPA investigation had been completed but more time was needed to verify the facts concerning the alleged import and recovery of drones and accessories through India.

On September 18, the court called the chargesheet "piecemeal", as it covered only immigration offences as the UAPA probe remained ongoing.

From data centres to lithium cells, MP looks at Rs 9,625 crore of investments in tech sector

Bhopal, October 23

MADHYA PRADESH is seeking to expand beyond its traditional industrial base, with a proposed Rs 6,415-crore hyperscale data centre in Gwalior, a Rs 2,000-crore lithium-cell manufacturing plant in Bhopal and new electronics and information technology facilities among the projects announced at the state's Semiconductor Summit-2026 on Friday.

The five projects for which the state government issued letters of intent for land allotment involve proposed investments of Rs 9,625 crore and are expected to generate more than 4,450 direct jobs. Chief Minister Mohan Yadav said the summit also saw fresh investment proposals worth Rs 5,800 crore.

Yadav said the state was working to attract investment in semiconductor manufacturing and related technologies.

"The state government is committed to encouraging semiconductor investment and positioning Madhya Pradesh among the country's leading technology hubs...Madhya Pradesh has received investment proposals worth approximately Rs 34 lakh crore, of which more than 30 per cent have progressed to ground-level implementation," he said.

The Semiconductor Summit-2026 brought together more than 1,000 delegates, with representatives from Japan, South Korea, Taiwan and Sweden among those attending. Discussions covered chip design, testing, AI, electronics manufacturing and the development of semiconductor supply chains.

The largest of the five projects is a proposed 50-MW hyperscale data centre by CyTac RE at Ganga Malanpur in Gwalior, involving an investment of Rs 6,415 crore.

Bhopal is set to be the location of a proposed lithium-cell manufacturing unit by Una Ecosystems Pvt Ltd, which plans to invest Rs 2,000 crore in a facility with a capacity of 1.5 gigawatt-hours at Electronics Manufacturing Cluster-2.

The other projects include an electronic system design and manufacturing unit by Meena Circuits, with a proposed investment of Rs 400 crore, and a Rs 310-crore electronics manufacturing unit by Kaynes Electronics at IT Park, Badwai, in Bhopal.

Auriga IT Solutions Pvt Ltd has proposed a Rs 500-crore Global Capability Centre at Sinhasa IT Park in Indore.

The government also announced plans to establish a Semiconductor Centre of Excellence and a separate Centre of Excellence for Photonics and Quantum Technologies.

The photonics and quantum centre is expected to focus on quantum computing, quantum communication, advanced materials and deep-tech research, a government official said.

Oskar Klein medal for physicist Ashoke Sen, first Indian to be honoured with top prize

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 23

NOTED PHYSICIST Ashoke Sen has been awarded the prestigious Oskar Klein medal, one of the highest honours in theoretical physics, the Bengaluru-based International Centre for Theoretical Sciences (ICTS), where Sen is a professor, announced.

A decorated scientist, Sen is the first Indian to win this medal, awarded every year since 1988 by the Stockholm University and the Nobel Committee for Physics of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences.

Known for his work on string theory, Sen has earlier been awarded the Dirac medal as well as the Breakthrough Prize in Fundamental Physics, both very prestigious honours.

String theory is one of main efforts to bridge the inconsistencies between quantum theory and gravitation, in an attempt to find a new grand unified theory of physics that can explain the behaviour of all particles and forces at every scale, from tiny subatomic particles to large galaxies.

"Prof Sen, an ICTS-Infosys Madhava Chair Professor, is internationally recognized for his pioneering work on S-duality, the precision counting black hole entropy and string field theory, all of which have helped shape modern string theory," ICTS said in its announcement.

Ashoke Sen

As part of the award, Sen delivered a lecture titled 'Gravity from Strings and Strings from Gravity' at the Stockholm University on Thursday, ICTS said.

The Oskar Klein medal is the latest in a string of top physics honours for Indian scientists in the last few years. Earlier this year, theoretical physicist Deepak Dhar had been named as the winner of the Dirac medal, making him the second Indian, after Sen, to win this prize.

A few years ago, he was also awarded with the Boltzmann Medal, another top prize in physics. He is the only Indian to win both the Dirac Medal as well as the Boltzmann Medal.

Last year, Professor Jainendra Jain, an Indian-origin American physicist who is associated with multiple institutions in India, was named one of the winners of the Wolf Prize. These are all some of the most prestigious honours in physics, considered just below the Nobel Prize.

Maoist couple, who were active in Jharkhand, give up arms in Kolkata

Express News Service
Kolkata, October 23

TWO MAOIST cadres, carrying a bounty of Rs 7 lakh, surrendered before the Kolkata Police Commissioner Ajay Kumar Nand on Friday and handed over their weapons.

The Maoist couple have been identified as Mangal, a resident of Salboni in Paschim Medinipur, and Malti, from Gopiballavpur in Jhargram district. Although the couple hails from West Bengal, they were active in Jharkhand, Nand said.

Mangal turned himself in with an AK-47 assault rifle and ammunition, while Malti surrendered an INSAS rifle.

According to police records, Mangal joined the underground group in 2005 and served as an associate and bodyguard to prominent top-tier leaders including Kishenji and Akash (Asim Mandal). He carried a bounty of Rs 5 lakh on his head and faces several police cases. Malti, who joined in 2010 after an attack on ex-Bengal CM Buddhadeb Bhattacharya's convoy, carried a bounty of Rs 2 lakh. However, she has no active cases registered against her in the state.

The Kolkata Police accepted the surrender symbolically and confirmed that they will receive support under the state government's Surrender and Rehabilitation Scheme to help them return to mainstream society.

MHA draft on Ladakh demands: Elected body's laws need L-G nod

Deeptiman Tiwary
New Delhi, October 23

EVERY LAW made by a proposed elected body for Ladakh would require the assent of the Lieutenant Governor before it takes effect, while existing Central laws would continue to apply to the Union Territory, according to a draft governance framework prepared by the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA).

The draft has become a key point of disagreement in its negotiations with Ladakh leaders.

The draft says: "As a legislative practice enshrined in the Constitution of India, every regulation (law) made by the UT Level Body would go to the Lt. Governor and would take effect after his assent."

The October 15 draft proposes giving constitutional status to a Union Territory-level elected body through a new Article 371K, but envisages its law-making authority as powers to make "regulations" on specified subjects, with the institution itself and its functions to be provided through a Presidential regulation under Article 240.

According to Ladakh leaders, this marks a significant departure from the understanding recorded following negotiations on May 22, whose minutes were finalised and signed by representatives of the MHA and Ladakh on July 3.

More significantly, the draft provides for removal of members of the elected body by the LG for specified reasons such as conviction, insolvency, incapacity or conflict of interest.

Also, the Union's executive power would extend to issuing directions to the body, while the Administrator would have oversight powers.

Those minutes recorded a unanimous decision to establish a customised Union Territory-level elected body with "executive, financial and legislative powers", along with constitutional safeguards through a proposed Article 371K.

The minutes also recorded agreement that control and supervision of bureaucrats dealing with subjects under the elected body, including their annual performance reports, would vest with the elected executive.

The MHA document, however, repeatedly makes clear that this is not a final government position and describes itself as a "draft for consultation" whose regulatory, executive and financial powers are only "indicative".

The details of the proposal have emerged after Apex Body Leh (ABL) chairman Chering Dorjay Lakrook Thursday released documents exchanged between representatives of Ladakh and the MHA, saying they should be available for "public information and independent assessment".

He said the documents were being released following public speculation over what had been agreed during the negotiations and what subsequently went wrong.

The disclosure comes amid uncertainty over the negotiations, with a meeting scheduled in Delhi on October 22 failing to take place. The October 15 talks in Leh had ended without agreement after Ladakh representatives rejected the MHA draft, saying it did not reflect what had been agreed earlier.

Ladakh L-G Vinai Kumar Saxena

Under the proposed framework, Parliament would first insert Article 371K, while the composition, elections, functions and powers of the UT-level body would subsequently be provided through a Presidential regulation under Article 240.

Ladakh representatives have argued that this would make the institution fundamentally different from the kind of legislature they had sought, with its legislative competence defined in the Constitution or parliamentary law rather than primarily through a Presidential regulation.

The MHA draft does not presently propose giving it general competence over the State List. Instead, it identifies subjects on which the body could make regulations, including land and land records, community land, cultural affairs, forests other than reserved forests, environmental planning, conservation, planning and development and budget-making. It says additional matters could be conferred through the Article 240 framework.

Ladakh leaders have argued that several of these functions are already performed by the autonomous Hill Councils and that what had been negotiated in May was an elected body exercising genuine legislative authority at the UT level, rather than another institution exercising delegated regulatory powers.

The bureaucratic structure is another major point of disagreement.

The May minutes recorded that "control and supervision over bureaucracy" would rest with the elected body for subjects within its jurisdiction. Ladakh's October proposal consequently seeks control over transfers, postings, allocation of work and supervision of officers, besides a separate Ladakh cadre and an independent Public Service Commission. It also proposes that the Chief Minister be the reporting authority for the Chief Secretary.

The MHA draft instead provides for a Chief Executive Secretary to head the secretariat of the proposed UT-level body, without conceding the wider administrative control sought by the Ladakh representatives.

Another sticking point is the protection Article 371K would provide against Central laws. The draft says the body would work "within the Constitution and all laws applicable to Ladakh", that "Central laws would continue to apply", and that regulations made by the body "would not affect the powers of Parliament, Courts, Central Government or the Administrator".

This is one area where the proposal differs from the Article 371A model operating in Nagaland — one of the constitutional precedents Ladakh representatives have invoked during negotiations.

Article 371A restricts the application of Acts of Parliament on four specified fields: Naga religious and social practices, customary law and procedure, administration of justice involving customary law, and ownership and transfer of land and its resources. Such laws do not apply to Nagaland unless its Legislative Assembly passes a resolution accepting them.

Ladakh representatives have sought a similar constitutional protection for a wider set of subjects, including land and natural resources, domicile, public employment, education, culture and languages.

Their proposal says Parliamentary legislation or executive action concerning these protected fields should apply to Ladakh only through a consent or resolution mechanism prescribed under Article 371K. The MHA draft released by Lakrook does not spell out such a mechanism.

Cyclone forming in Bay of Bengal, landfall likely on October 28: IMD

Express News Service
Bengaluru, October 23

INDIA'S EAST coast is bracing for what is building up to be the year's first cyclone – Arnab.

According to the India Meteorological Department (IMD), the low-pressure area that has formed in the southeast Bay of Bengal is forecast to intensify into a depression and, ultimately, a full cyclonic storm in the coming days.

"The low pressure will intensify into a depression on Saturday. Thereafter, it is very likely to move west-northwest and intensify further into a deep depression by October 25. This system will then develop into a cyclonic storm on October 26 and will remain over the west-central Bay of Bengal region," the IMD said on Friday.

If developed, this will be the first cyclone to form in the Bay of Bengal this year, and will be identified as Arnab – a name proposed by Bangladesh.

According to the Met department, the cyclone would move west-northwest as it approaches the coast. "The cyclonic storm would move towards the north Andhra Pradesh and adjoining south Odisha coast around the early morning hours of October 28," said Mrutyunjay Mohapatra, director general, IMD.

India's east and west coasts are affected by cyclones that form in the north Indian Ocean – Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea. On average, four cyclones form here in a year. Of them, three develop in the Bay of Bengal. In view of the developing storm, the IMD said that squally weather and rough sea conditions currently prevail, with wind speeds ranging from 35 to 45 km/h and gusting up to 55 km/h.

By Saturday, wind speeds will gradually increase to 45 to 55 km/hr and gusting to 65 km/hr over east-central and adjoining Bay of Bengal region. Further, from the morning of October 26, gale winds (70 to 80 km/hr and gusting to 90km/hr) will prevail. Wind speeds will continue to increase and prevail until October 28.

"Due to high winds and squally weather, fishermen are advised not to venture into the sea till October 29. Those currently at sea should return to the coast immediately," the IMD chief said.

With the northeast monsoon presently active with the developing cyclone over the southern peninsular India, the IMD has forecast heavy rainfall to continue over Tamil Nadu, coastal Andhra Pradesh, Kerala and coastal Karnataka till October 27.

Coastal Odisha and northern regions of Nicobar islands are bracing for very heavy rainfall on October 26 and 27, as per the IMD forecast.

India, Azerbaijan seek to reset ties after Operation Sindoor fallout

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 23

A YEAR after ties between India and Azerbaijan soured over Baku's alignment with Pakistan during Operation Sindoor, External Affairs Minister (EAM) S Jaishankar met with the country's top leadership in an attempt to reset bilateral relations.

Jaishankar, who arrived in Baku on Friday for a one-day visit, called his talks with Azerbaijani Foreign Minister Jeyhun Bayramov "very productive", noting they helped set a path forward for improving relations between the two countries.

"Our talks dwelt on further expanding our bilateral relations. We spoke about economic cooperation, including in trade, investment and energy, which are central to our bilateral ties. Given our complementary economies, we believe that there is very good scope for further enhancement of our bilateral trade and investment," Jaishankar said.

The North-South Transport Corridor – a 7,200km-long multimode transport project for moving freight among India, Iran, Afghanistan, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Russia, Central Asia and Europe – featured in their talks.

"We are both invested in the International North-South Transport Corridor. That's very important for us. We agreed today that we will coordinate more closely in that regard," the EAM added.

Meanwhile, Bayramov said he was delighted to welcome Jaishankar to exchange views on the current state and prospects of Azerbaijan-India relations.

"We also discussed regional and international developments, and cooperation within multilateral frameworks. Emphasised the importance of continued dialogue and exploring opportunities for cooperation in areas of mutual interest," he wrote on X.

In his press remarks, Jaishankar said the two sides agreed to deepen cooperation in the oil and energy sector and also expand it to other areas. On air connectivity, he said there are daily flights, but to deepen ties, the two sides have to think about how to grow that further.

He thanked Bayramov for evacuating Indian nationals, particularly students from Iran earlier this year, during the conflict. "We have Indian students in Azerbaijan. I want to thank you for the care and consideration with which you look after them," Jaishankar said.

The EAM also suggested resuming and increasing the number of Azerbaijani professionals from various domains to utilise the Indian Technical and Economic Cooperation programme.

Stating that India has been monitoring developments in this region carefully, the EAM welcomed the August peace agreement between Azerbaijan and Armenia and hoped that it would lead to a durable peace.

"India has a very clear position that disputes should be settled through dialogue and diplomacy. And in that context, we had, of course, discussions that covered the Middle East, Europe and Eurasia," Jaishankar said.

Jaishankar said the two sides assessed the global implications of these conflicts, because they have created a big problem, particularly for Global South economies in food, fuel, fertiliser and finance.

"We have a common interest in really promoting peace and progress and prosperity," he said, adding that threats like terrorism, conflict and instability are "our common enemies". "We exchanged views on reforming and expanding international and regional organisations, making them more contemporary and relevant," the EAM added.

He also invited Bayramov to visit India soon at his convenience.

Jaishankar, who earlier called on President Ilham Aliyev and discussed ways to strengthen bilateral ties, said he conveyed greetings from President Droupadi Murmu and PM Narendra Modi to him.

He recalled the recent meeting between Modi and Aliyev on the sidelines of the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation summit in Bishkek and said his visit to Baku is a follow-up to that meeting.

"Our discussions were focused; they were forward-looking, and we exchanged views on various aspects of our relationship. In fact, the President was kind enough to give a lot of time to really review the entire gamut of our ties, including ongoing cooperation, what we could be doing more, what we could be doing differently," the EAM said.

"We also discussed important regional and global developments from a strategic perspective," he added, asserting that both countries are independent-minded and can make their own call on the important issues.

The Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) confirmed on Friday that terrorism, security issues and common threats were discussed during Jaishankar's official visit to Azerbaijan.

MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal stated that India and Azerbaijan concurred that both nations must cooperate to enhance peace, prosperity and security for their citizens and address shared challenges collectively.

Mirzapur village awaits safe return of 22 Umrah pilgrims stuck in Saudi

Manish Sahu
Lucknow, October 23

ON FRIDAY afternoon, the residents of Bani village in Uttar Pradesh's Mirzapur district gathered for an emergency meeting.

The agenda of the meeting was to discuss how to secure the return of 22 pilgrims from the village, including three elderly couples, from the holy cities of Mecca and Medina in Saudi Arabia after Indian airlines abruptly suspended flights amid escalating security concerns and disruptions to airspace across the Middle East.

The pilgrims were scheduled to return home on October 22, but the suspension of flights has left them stranded there. For now, the villagers have decided to wait a few more days before approaching the authorities, holding on to the hope that flights would resume and their loved ones would be home soon.

The pilgrims' families said the ordeal has cast a shadow over what was meant to be a once-in-a-lifetime spiritual journey. For many, it was their first visit to the two holy cities, a pilgrimage they had likely spent years hoping and preparing for.

Moharram Ali, 45, a farmer, said, "My father, Sohrab Ali, 70, and mother, Badrun Nisha, 65, call us regularly, asking what can be done to ensure their safe and early return. We have no answers, so we keep reassuring them that flights will resume soon. The truth is, we do not know when that will happen."

Moharram is the eldest of the couple's six children.

The family, he said, drew some comfort from the fact that his parents are not alone and that they were offering one another company in an unfamiliar and uncertain situation.

The group of 22 pilgrims from Bani, located nearly 20 km from the district headquarters, left for New Delhi on October 5 and flew to Mecca the following day, it is learnt.

For Mobin Khan, 35, the uncertainty has brought anxiety and an unexpected financial strain on the family. His parents, Nizamuddin, 62, and Abartum, 57, remain stranded in Mecca. Mobin, who runs a business, said the travel agent charged Rs 70,000 per person to cover accommodation and meals. But after their scheduled return on October 21 was disrupted, the agent refused to bear the cost of their stay and food beyond that date, he claimed. The family has since been sending money to his parents to arrange for their own accommodation and meals.

"Over the past five days, the travel agent has given my parents two different dates for their return. Each time, he has said a flight could not be arranged. This morning, he told them they would fly home today, but by the evening, he informed them that the flight had been cancelled again," Mobin said.

Afsar Ali, 35, also a farmer, said his parents Ashraf Ali, 61, and Chand Tara, 56, spent two months preparing for the pilgrimage, setting off with excitement for what they had hoped would be a memorable spiritual journey. But with their return now uncertain, that anticipation has given way to anxiety and helplessness, he said.

"...My parents are on medication and need regular check-ups with doctors. They cannot stay there for long," Afsar said.

Amid flight cancellations, 600 from Karnataka stranded

Express News Service
Bengaluru, October 23

NEARLY 600 Umrah pilgrims from Karnataka are stranded in Saudi Arabia amid flight disruptions, the Karnataka government said on Friday.

In a press release, the government said the Minority Welfare, Haj and Waqf Department has been informed that the pilgrims are stranded in the country and it is "closely monitoring the situation".

● VEER NARMAD SOUTH GUJARAT UNIVERSITY IS REPLACING ALL CEILING FANS IN HOSTELS WITH 'ANTI-SUICIDE' SPRING-LOADED FANS IN WHICH ANY UNUSUAL LOAD RELEASES A LOCK AND PULLS THE FAN CLOSER TO THE GROUND

Worried over deaths by suicide, university in Gujarat installs special fans in hostels

Kamal Saiyed
Surat, October 23

TO PREVENT incidents of suicide by hanging, a prominent public university in Gujarat is in the process of replacing all ceiling fans in its hostel rooms with special "anti-suicide" spring-loaded fans.

More than 250 fans in rooms in both girls' and boys' hostels of Veer Narmad South Gujarat University (VNSGU) in Surat have already been replaced, Dr K N Chavda, vice-chancellor of the university told The Indian Express.

'Spring-loaded' fans have a built-in mechanism that is released when a load exceeding a certain threshold – say, between 10 kg and 25 kg – acts on the rod. The spring uncoils and lowers the fan – and in some cases an alarm goes off as well.

In 2023, after 23 students died by suicide in the coaching hub of Kota in Rajasthan, the district administration had asked hostels to install these devices in fans, and to cover balconies and lobbies with "anti-suicide nets". The proposal had originally come from the Kota Hostel Association in 2017, and was officially mandated after the city saw 23 suicides by students that year, the highest ever.

On August 9 this year, Dr Harsh Pandya, a first-year postgraduate student in the Microbiology department of Government Medical College, Surat, died by suicide in his hostel room. The father of the student had filed an FIR against four senior doctors accusing them of harassment that had allegedly driven the young doctor to end his life by hanging. All four doctors have been arrested.

VNSGU officials said there are 312 hostel rooms in the university, in which a total 840 students — both boys and girls — currently reside. The hostels have a total of 388 ceiling fans, the officials said.

After deciding to replace these fans, the university placed an order for 375 units of spring-loaded anti-suicide ceiling fans through the Government e-Marketplace (GeM) portal, a platform for the procurement of goods and services by government organisations, departments, and public-sector units, VNSGU sources said.

VNSGU V-C Dr K N Chavda

Each "ADHUNIK 5 Star Electric Ceiling Fan with Brushless DC Motor" costs Rs 2,247, adding up to a total order value of Rs 8.42 lakh, the sources said. The fans have 24-inch-long anti-suicide rods with an anti-ligature safety mechanism, they said.

Vice-Chancellor Chavda said, "These anti-suicide fans are equipped with a specialised safety mechanism. If an unusual weight is applied to the fan — such as in a hanging attempt — the spring mechanism causes the fan to extend downwards immediately. This prevents the act of hanging."

Dr Chavda added, "So far, 268 fans have been installed, out of which 158 are in the girls' hostels and 110 in the boys' hostels. Our university campus has five girls' hostels and four boys' hostels."

VNSGU Registrar Dr Rameshdan Gadhvi said: "This step is being taken to ensure student safety in accordance with the directives of the Supreme Court and guidelines of the University Grants Commission. Anti-suicide fans in the hostels will help reduce risks. Additionally, instructions are being issued to affiliated colleges to implement necessary safety measures."

As academic and other kinds of pressures on students increase, deep concern has been expressed over mental health on India's campuses.

According to National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) data, the number of student deaths by suicide increased by 34% in 2023 compared to 2019, reaching a staggering 13,892 deaths.

This number rose further to 14,488 in 2024. In 2025, three separate Benches of the Supreme Court took note of this "disturbing pattern" and asked for effective steps to improve mental health in higher education institutions.

Vishakha Yadav, Shilpa Yadav, Chandani Desai, and Darshan Parmar, student mental health counsellors at VNSGU, said students are under immense pressure to achieve high marks in examinations and to build their careers. Providing them with emotional support is critical, they said.

"Due to factors like exam failure or family expectations, some students may become despondent and begin contemplating extreme actions such as suicide. While technical interventions like anti-suicide fans are useful, providing emotional and mental support to students is equally important," the counsellors said.

Keralam Governor's directive for veg-only food at Lok Bhavan draws Cong criticism

Shaju Philip

Governor Om Prakash Mathur

WITH BJP VETERAN Om Prakash Mathur taking charge as the Keralam Governor, the ruling Congress has found political ammo in his kitchen, taking exception to his directive that only vegetarian food be cooked at Lok Bhavan.

Mathur, a former Rajya Sabha member, became the Sikkim Governor in July 2024 and will now succeed Rajendra Arlekar in Keralam. Arlekar has been appointed as the governor of Tamil Nadu.

Mathur has directed that only vegetarian food be cooked in the Lok Bhavan kitchen. In response, AICC general secretary (organisational affairs) K C Venugopal said, "Kerala has a diverse food culture, and people of the state have always enjoyed the freedom to have vegetarian or non-vegetarian food. Any move to restrict food habits or a directive on what they should eat cannot be accepted. Such a directive violates the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution. The governor-designate is trying to usurp individual freedom using his power."

Venugopal said the decision is a continuation of the unconstitutional agenda of the Sangh Parivar. "The Governor can follow his own dietary choices. However, a directive restricting the functioning of the Lok Bhavan kitchen to accommodate his personal preferences alone cannot be accepted," he said.

Lok Bhavan sources, however, called it a non-issue. "The governor has every right to decide what should be cooked in his kitchen. Who calls the shots in Venugopal's kitchen," quipped one official.

"The Lok Bhavan kitchen is meant for cooking food for the governor. Staff do not take food from there; they either bring food from home or eat out. The governor's kitchen is exclusively to cater to his dietary needs, and the newly appointed governor is vegetarian."

Lok Bhavan sources also said the governor is entitled to bring his own cook. The former governor, Arlekar, had a cook from Goa to prepare dishes of his home state.

Chief Minister V D Satheesan, who maintained cordial ties with Lok Bhavan under Arlekar, has not reacted. He had earlier approved the full rendition of Vande Mataram at official Lok Bhavan events, signalling a conciliatory approach. On the other hand, Venugopal has been critical of issues where the Satheesan government has ostensibly been soft on the BJP.

This is not the state's first food-related row. In 2017, Keralam led protests against the BJP-led Centre's cattle-sale rules, with the Congress and CPI(M) holding beef festivals.

Taunted for 'eating beef', Dalit student dies by suicide in TN

Teacher arrested; headmaster, two students booked for abetment

Chennai, October 23

POLICE IN Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu, have arrested a teacher at a government-aided school and booked its headmaster and two students for abetment of suicide after a 16-year-old Dalit student died by suicide. His family alleged that he had faced caste-based harassment that intensified after a classroom discussion about eating beef.

After the Class 11 student was found dead at his home in Peelamedu on Wednesday, his mother alleged that two classmates had repeatedly targeted him with caste-based remarks, taunted him over his food habits and assaulted him.

The police arrested the student's class teacher, P Vijayakumar, on Thursday. The school headmaster, Arun Kumar, and the two students have also been named in the case and are being questioned, according to the police. The allegations centre on an incident in the student's classroom about two months ago.

According to the mother's complaint, Vijayakumar had sought to identify Scheduled Caste students eligible for a scholarship programme, and the student enrolled for the benefit. The teacher subsequently asked which students ate beef, prompting the student and several others to stand up, she alleged.

After that episode, the mother claimed, two classmates began harassing the student over his caste and food choices. She alleged that her son complained about the harassment to Vijayakumar and later to the headmaster, but neither intervened.

The mother said she had considered approaching the school herself but abandoned the idea because the student feared that doing so could further isolate him and make him a target.

The student had stayed away from school for several days before returning recently, according to his family. On Wednesday morning, he left home around 8 am, telling his mother he was going to school. Police believe he subsequently returned home.

The mother, who works as a domestic worker, found him dead when she returned around lunchtime. The student did not leave a suicide note, police said. His father works at a resort in Kerala.

"He wanted to become an advocate," the father told the Tamil media, accusing the school authorities and teacher of responsibility for his son's death and demanding justice. Relatives and family members gathered outside the Peelamedu police station and protested, demanding arrests and a thorough investigation.

Police registered a case under sections of the BNS relating to abetment of suicide and voluntarily causing hurt, along with provisions of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act.

Senior police officers and the Child Welfare Committee are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death.

The District Educational Officer also conducted an inquiry at the school on Thursday. The preliminary inquiry found that two Dalit teachers had voluntarily been handling the process of enrolling students for scholarships. It also noted that the mother had visited the school on October 8 to sign the student's progress report but had not raised a complaint about the alleged harassment at that time. That finding does not resolve the family's allegations, which remain under police investigation.

The Tamil Nadu State Commission for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes has sought a report from the Coimbatore City Police Commissioner within a week.

'Unfair, arbitrary': Gujarat High Court strikes down GAIL clauses on Reliance

Aditi Raja
Vadodara, October 23

THE GUJARAT High Court has set aside clauses in contracts requiring Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) to pay GAIL (India) Limited transmission charges for natural gas even though it had laid its own pipeline network, holding that the provisions were "unfair, arbitrary, and against public policy".

The court also directed GAIL to refund the charges paid during the legally permissible period, with simple interest at 8 per cent per annum.

The ruling, delivered by Justice Nirzar S Desai on October 16 and made available Thursday, came two days after another single-judge bench of the HC ruled in RIL's favour in a separate dispute over government land allotted for its special economic zone (SEZ) project in Jamnagar.

In the gas transmission dispute, the court set aside the contested clauses in two contracts between RIL and GAIL, executed on March 30, 2000, and August 31, 2008. It rejected GAIL's argument that the provisions had been incorporated after due deliberation and negotiation, relying on an earlier SC ruling in a dispute between GAIL and Indian Petrochemicals Corporation Ltd (IPCL).

The court described GAIL's defence as "nothing but an eyewash", observing that RIL had invested in its own pipeline infrastructure but had no alternative but to accept the disputed terms because of GAIL's monopolistic position. The judgment said the clauses "can be termed as unfair, unconscionable, arbitrary and against public policy" and could not be sustained.

RIL argued that it should not have to pay transmission charges for transporting natural gas to its plant through a pipeline network it built at its own expense. The company had laid a 70.08-km pipeline and sought waivers from GAIL through letters dated February 1, 2000, and October 13, 2008.

According to RIL's petition, GAIL rejected the requests on March 28, 2000, and October 24, 2008, respectively. Despite RIL's objections and investment in its own infrastructure, the company had "no other option but to succumb to the unfair and arbitrary clause of the contract", the court observed, citing GAIL's dominant market position.

On the refund, the Gujarat High Court applied the principle laid down by the Supreme Court in the GAIL-IPCL dispute, limiting recovery to the legally permissible period rather than the entire contract duration.

It rejected RIL's request for interest at 18 per cent and directed GAIL to pay simple interest at 8 per cent per annum from the payment dates until the refund.

The case concerns transmission charges imposed by GAIL for supplying natural gas to RIL's Dahej petrochemical complex, which RIL challenged as unfair, unreasonable, unconscionable and contrary to public policy.

RIL's predecessor, Indian Petrochemicals Corporation Ltd, established the complex after receiving government approval and an assurance of a supply of about 8–9 million metric standard cubic metres per day of rich gas.

Himachal DIG booked for fund fraud, 2nd FIR in 2 days

Saurabh Parashar
Shimla, October 23

HIMACHAL PRADESH Deputy Inspector General (DIG) of Police, Sanjeev Gandhi, has gone through many ups and downs in his nearly three-decade-long police career. The former Shimla top cop has now been booked by the Shimla police in two separate cases over the last two days.

On Thursday, the police registered an FIR against DIG Gandhi on charges of cheating, forgery and misappropriation of Rs 2.35 lakh of funds during his stint as the SP in Shimla.

He was booked under Sections 316 (5), 314, 318, 336 and 340 of the BNS on the complaint of a police constable Jagdish Kumar, who accused him of diverting his Rs 1.80 lakh reimbursement amount incurred on various official work despite obtaining his signatures on certain documents.

Gandhi, 53, who had served as the SP Shimla from January 23, 2023, to February 7, 2026, has rejected the allegation as false, calling it a "witch hunt" against him. Currently, he is the Managing Director of the Himachal Backward Classes Finance and Development Corporation .

On Friday, a second FIR was registered against Gandhi under Section 316(5) of BNS over alleged irregularities in the use of about Rs 14 lakh government funds allocated for repair and maintenance of police buildings and residential accommodations.

"The FIR was registered on the basis of an audit held recently. ... Financial irregularities were detected in expenditure of approximately Rs 1.28 crore... allocated for the repair and maintenance of police buildings... Rs 14,07,392 was shown as expenditure on repairs to the official residence of then SSP Sanjeev Gandhi at Southwood... Records of prior permission and requisite approvals from the competent authority were not found during the audit," a police officer said.

Rejecting allegations, Gandhi said, "Southwood ... is not my personal property; it is government property. ... I contested notice issued to me by officiating DGP Ashok Tewari over penal rent and other penalties. The state government put that notice in abeyance last month."

3 ex-students held within 48 hours of attack on Jharkhand missionary school principal

Shubham Tigga
Ranchi, October 23

THREE MINORS, all former students of a missionary school in Jharkhand's Khunti district, have been arrested in connection with an attack on its principal, within 48 hours of the incident. Police allege the suspects broke into the school premises to steal cash and a mobile phone and left the principal seriously injured.

The attack took place on the night of October 21. The principal, Father Benedict Barla of St Michael School, was found unconscious with serious head injuries the following morning. He was taken to a hospital in Ranchi, where he remains under treatment.

Khunti Police told The Indian Express that cash allegedly stolen from the school premises and the principal's mobile phone had been recovered from arrested minors. A fourth accused, also a minor, is on the run, and efforts are underway to find him.

"They entered the premises and were not expecting the father to be there," Khunti Superintendent of Police Rishabh Garg said. "When they saw him, they panicked, fearing that he would identify them and they would have to go to jail. They then fled."

The accused allegedly told police during questioning that they were familiar with the premises and knew where the principal kept his money. The SP said they had allegedly stolen from him before.

"They would steal amounts from Rs 500 to Rs 1,000 whenever the principal kept money in his office. However, this time, they did not expect to confront him," he said.

Meanwhile, Bisu Benjamin, Vicar General of the Koti Diocese, said Barla's condition had improved, although he remained critical and had not regained consciousness.

"His blood pressure and sugar levels have been brought under control. His other organs, including the kidneys, stomach and liver are functioning properly. The remaining concern is his brain," Benjamin said after speaking to the doctors treating the principal.

He added doctors were working to stabilise Barla's condition and assess the brain injury. The principal was not yet in a condition to speak, Benjamin said.

A FAMILY'S WAIT FOR CLOSURE

TWO MONTHS AFTER NEPAL FLOODS

Long after the flood waters have receded in Nepal, somewhere between the death toll and stories of survival is another list: of 5,285 'missing' people. Among them is Priyanka Choudhary, a 40-year-old public health specialist in Finland. VIDHEESHA KUNTAMALLA talks to her brother in Chhattisgarh to know what it is for a family to live without answers

ALL OF six seconds. That's how long the video lasts. In a dark jacket and a wide-brimmed hat, against clear blue skies and the vast, rocky Kailash mountain range, Priyanka Choudhary on a pony, waving at the camera, wearing her brightest smile.

These six seconds now fill her mother Madhu's hours as she watches the video on a loop at her home in Bilaspur, Chhattisgarh. She sometimes attempts to pinch the screen and zoom into her face. But it's a video, she fails, so she starts all over again.

It's a video of Priyanka shot days before the catastrophic floods that hit Nepal on August 26. The 40-year-old public health specialist was one of 77 pilgrims and three volunteers from an Isha Foundation pilgrimage group that was on its way back from Kailash Mansarovar, when a giant wall of water, mud, ice, and boulders struck the Gyirong immigration office on the Tibet-China side near the Nepal border, levelling the entire complex. Two months after the tragedy, Priyanka, a citizen of Finland, remains on a list of 5,285 people reported missing from across Nepal.

Where is Priyanka? Where do you look for a loved one, a child, who leaves without a trace? When the questions get unbearably heavy, Madhu, 63, turns to the video, one of many in a Google Drive link that the Isha Foundation shared with the family in the days after the tragedy.

"She watches it again and again. You cannot make a mother understand," says Priyanka's younger brother Tarun Choudhary, 38, who handles the family's mining business in Bilaspur.

Tarun says he initially asked his mother not to keep watching the video, worried it would only deepen her distress. "But how do you ask a mother to stop looking for her daughter? So now, I sit with her and tell her, 'Look how happy Priya was. She has gone to God, and God has happily taken her away,'" he says.

A window closes

On October 5, the Nepal government announced that it was ending the search-and-rescue phase of its post-disaster operations and shifting its focus to rehabilitation and reconstruction. The authorities said they would continue recovering remains and belongings found during the rehabilitation work, but would no longer actively search for bodies.

Among those missing are 275 Indians (as of September), besides many others of Indian origin. At a media briefing on September 22, Randhir Jaiswal, the official spokesperson of the Ministry of External Affairs, said the Indian government was working closely with Nepal to trace the missing. "We have a forensic team in Nepal, which is working in Kathmandu in several laboratories along with their Nepali colleagues. The Indian team has been working on 3,000 samples, of which they have been able to so far arrive at over 1,200 DNA profiles," Jaiswal said.

Tarun says his family shared their DNA samples too, but haven't heard from the authorities yet.

In the aftermath of the disaster, the Nepal government issued an ordinance to reduce the waiting period for declaring a missing person dead — from 12 years to 45 days. October 12 marked 45 days of the tragedy. Since then, said Lok Bahadur Chhetri, spokesperson of Nepal's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, over 35 countries, whose citizens are missing, were in touch with the government to coordinate the process.

In its statement, Isha Foundation said it remained in regular contact with Chinese, Indian and Nepalese authorities and the relevant embassies of 19 countries to seek information about those missing. Speaking to The Indian Express, a spokesperson for the foundation said Priyanka had been associated with them since 2013.

'I was losing all hope'

On August 26, Tarun was on his way to work when he got a call from his mother Madhu, informing him about the floods. Priyanka usually spoke to Madhu every evening, but that day, the phone did not ring.

Tarun checked his email. Since Priyanka had listed him as an emergency contact, he had begun receiving communication from Isha Foundation.

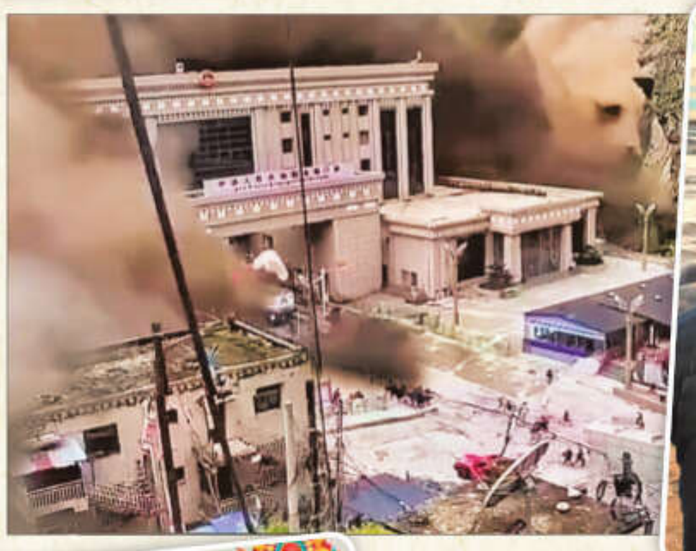

"The email spoke about the floods and that they had lost contact with the group. I didn't know what to do," he says. "I called up my relatives for advice, but there wasn't much we could do from here."

Three days later, he flew to Kathmandu. He started by visiting some of the biggest hospitals in the city, hoping Priyanka might be among those who had been rescued but were probably too traumatised to talk or identify themselves. But he soon hit a dead end. The hospitals said all those admitted had been accounted for.

"I was completely confused, losing all hope. What is this? How can I ever do this? How can I find her?"

From Kathmandu, he travelled to Bidur Nuwakot, along the Trishuli river, roughly 80 km from the immigration centre that was Priyanka's last known location.

He had seen photographs of the floods before travelling to Nepal, but nothing prepared him for what he saw at the site of the tragedy. All around him was mud, with the debris in some cases reaching at least 20 feet high and covering buildings up to the second and third floors.

The trip left him humbled. "It is heartbreaking and traumatic. The human body seemed so small and insignificant amidst all that wreckage," he says. "I felt lost. Where do I find Priya? Where do I even start? I was blank. I was not able to do anything for my sister."

Three days later, he returned home to his family in Chhattisgarh, carrying Priyanka's suitcase — and a heart full of grief for a family waiting for answers.

In Priyanka's suitcase, which she had left at a hotel before she went missing in the floods, were chocolates that she had bought for Tarun from Nepal. There were also clothes, souvenirs and gifts for her family.

Now, two months since Tarun brought the suitcase home, it remains unpacked, the chocolates still inside. "I don't let anyone touch the suitcase. These are the last things that Priya used, things she bought for us," he says.

'She wanted so much...'

The last time Tarun spoke to Priyanka was on the night of August 25, the day before the floods. She had returned from the pilgrimage and was at the immigration centre in Gyirong, preparing for the journey home.

"While she was at Kailash, she called us on video. She was very happy, she had been wanting to visit Kailash for a very long time. She told me that she was tired after the road journey, and now she was just waiting to get home and rest properly," Tarun recalls. "We did not speak for long. I thought, let her rest, we'll talk in detail once she's home."

The family was excited. This was to be Priyanka's first visit home from Finland in about five years. "She wanted to spend more time with family as she was away from home for so long," says Tarun.

Shortly before the pilgrimage, the siblings had got on a long phone call, during which the conversation drifted towards their growing up years, how they would tease their cousins, how Tarun would play the elder brother and irritate Priyanka no end.

"It was a conversation full of very nostalgic memories," Tarun says. "That was my last proper conversation with her."

The siblings had lived in different countries for much of their adult lives. With the family moving from Haryana to Chhattisgarh, Priyanka stayed with her uncle's family in Gurgaon until her Class 12. Their father, Ramesh Choudhary, 64, wanted her to be a doctor, but she had other plans. After a Bachelor's in dentistry from Chhattisgarh, Priyanka went to London for a Master's degree in public health and worked there for a few years before moving to Finland in 2017, where she worked as a postdoctoral researcher in the Research Unit of Clinical Medicine at the University of Oulu, Finland. She worked on a project on obesity-related fibrotic pathologies, and taught in the university's International Master of Epidemiology and Biomedical Data Science programme.

Tarun, two years younger, spent four years studying marketing and finance in Australia before returning to India to take over the family business. They saw each other from time to time, but their calls could stretch for hours, taking in work, daily life, childhood memories and plans for the future.

He remembers his sister as "fiercely independent, someone who did not allow other people's opinions to determine her choices. There was so much she wanted... She wanted to be a mother. I wish we had more time with her."

Priyanka was happiest when she was travelling. Tarun says she had visited more than 30 countries and often took four or five trips a year, usually with her husband, Jani Rusaka, who works in the construction sector. The couple met in Finland and married in 2023.

The Kailash pilgrimage was unusual because she had chosen to travel solo. "She wanted to do this for herself," Tarun says. "She was deeply spiritual and had followed Sadhguru and the Isha Foundation since around 2013."

Tarun wishes he had taken some time out to visit Priyanka in Finland. "I was busy with my life and career and always thought there would be opportunities to go to Finland later. Though we would talk regularly, I met her only once in the last five years, in Delhi. Now, all I think of are the places we did not visit together and all the conversations I put off for later," he says.

But there's one trip he wants to go on now — he plans to visit the immigration centre in Gyirong where Priyanka was last seen, this time with his parents and her husband, Jani Rusaka. "We will do that whenever they open it up for visitors. It is going to be difficult for me to visit the place, but I think it is important for my family to be where Priya last stood," he says.

The evenings are different now

In the weeks after Priyanka went missing, Tarun contacted MEA officials, trying to look for leads that might help locate her. "I was told that around 900 articles had been recovered, but I could not obtain details about what the items were or whether any belonged to Priya," Tarun recalls.

The family kept hoping. Every time his parents gave up, someone would tell them about people swept away in floods but who had turned up months later. And they would begin to hope again.

The nights were especially difficult, with both the parents sleepless and anxious. Tarun knew he would soon have to prepare them for the worst. He started showing them videos of the floods, explaining to them the odds of someone surviving the catastrophe. Gradually, his mother began to confront the possibility that Priyanka may not return. On October 23, the family performed her last rites. "I hope my parents find some closure, some peace now. I hope they can have some semblance of an ordinary life," he says.

The loss has changed how the family spends its days. "Earlier, we largely stuck to ourselves, all of us doing our own things. But now, I try to be home by 6 pm, around the time my mother usually speaks to Priya. And then, I don't leave the house. I stay with my mom. We watch TV together," he says. "She doesn't say much, but I can sense an insecurity, as if she doesn't want to lose me now."

Others like them

Since his Nepal trip, Tarun has stayed in touch with some of the families, who, like him, were looking for their loved ones. "I met a woman whose husband had travelled alone to Kailash Mansarovar and who was now missing. She asked me what she should tell their two children. I met a husband who was waiting for his wife, a mother of three. I had met them in Kathmandu, before I could travel to the site of the tragedy. I talk to them sometimes, tell them about the scenes of destruction that I saw near the river. I can only help them face the reality that their loved ones may not return," he says.

Priyanka's husband Jani, too, is struggling to deal with his loss. The couple had been together for eight years. "He isn't doing too well. He is in Finland, away from all of us. It can get lonely in times like these," Tarun says.

He says he is still trying to figure out what to do with the things Priyanka left behind. He plans to donate her clothes, while keeping some things close. "Things that remind me of her... A reindeer souvenir she once got. Good memories," he says.

There's one place, one memory, he will definitely hold on to. "I have no answer to where Priya is. But for me, that place (Nepal) is now my sister. I will keep going to Nepal again and again."

Bihar needs to talk about prohibition, addiction

In 2016, months after the Nitish Kumar-led NDA government began its third term in Bihar, the Bihar Prohibition and Excise Act came into effect. The political logic behind the law banning and criminalising the consumption of alcohol was plain enough. In his first two terms, Nitish Kumar had built up considerable support among women by addressing what many saw as a broken law-and-order system. Schemes like the Mukhyamantri Cycle Yojana gave women greater mobility and independence. Addiction, in its worst forms, takes a toll not merely on the addict but also on their family and the broader community. Banning alcohol was part of addressing the concerns of women voters. Prohibition, however, is not the silver bullet it was made out to be — its failures are well documented across countries and other Indian states. Now, as an investigation in this newspaper shows, the substance abuse problem in Bihar has taken new forms and has reached alarming proportions. For Chief Minister Samrat Choudhary, the first to hold the office from the BJP, the growing use of narcotics is both a policy and political challenge.

The figures for arrests under the National Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act, seizures of synthetic drugs, and the growing numbers at the all-too-few de-addiction centres in the state, taken together, paint a disturbing picture. In the first five months of this year, 1,905 cases were registered under the Act. In 2019, this number was 697. "Tablets" seized have also seen an exponential rise — from 29,762 in 2022 to 9.29 lakh in the first five months of this year. These range from opioids and sedatives to psychotropic drugs. Hard, synthetic drugs like heroin, brown sugar and new varieties of these like "kota" follow a similar trajectory. The spread is also geographic. Behind each statistic is a tragedy, tales of families torn apart and a rehabilitation system pushed to the brink. The story of narcotics substance abuse — which often traps the young, particularly young men, in addiction — is unfolding alongside the illegal liquor market. In the 10 years since prohibition was introduced, it has led to an average of 196 arrests a day.

On the law-and-order front, the state government has acted: It has a Special Task Force on narcotics and the Prohibition and State Narcotics Control Bureau, set up in 2025, has been merged with the police's prohibition wing. But, as Kundan Krishnan, director general of Bihar Police's Special Branch and Operations, told this newspaper: "... mere police action will not suffice in the present situation... Only a community effort backed by the state government can contain the growing menace." The Choudhary government has its task cut out. It must address the social and psychological disease of addiction, taking society along with it. Mere prohibition and criminalisation, as the experience of the last decade shows, can make matters worse.

The problem is inflation's second-round effects

THE RBI's October monetary policy had a distinctively hawkish tone. The MPC had noted that inflation and its outlook were not benign. There were signs of price pressures becoming generalised and symptoms of elevated inflation expectations. Accordingly, the committee had voted to raise interest rates and change the policy stance to calibrated tightening. But while the decision to raise interest rates was unanimous, two members voted against the change in policy stance, preferring to retain a neutral posture. The recently released minutes of the meeting shed light on the differences of opinion among the committee members.

One issue is whether inflation is getting generalised in the economy. This could have a bearing on the extent of policy tightening. MPC member Nagesh Kumar, for instance, argued that "inflation is driven largely by supply-side factors and does not show any signs of overheating of the economy nor of generalisation". In contrast, there are fears that price pressures will spread further through the economy and, in turn, feed into higher inflation expectations. Committee member Saugata Bhattacharya cautioned that "data increasingly suggests that price pressures are getting entrenched into the economic system". RBI Governor Sanjay Malhotra seemed to concur with this view, saying that "there are increasing signs of generalisation of inflation as 37 per cent of the commodities in the CPI basket had inflation above 4 per cent in August — it was merely 20 per cent in March". The central bank's household inflation expectation surveys also show that the three-month ahead inflation expectations have jumped 70 basis points to 9.9 per cent.

Price pressures are likely to intensify. Global food prices, which were relatively soft compared to energy and metals, are now hardening. This could gather further momentum with El Niño strengthening and possibly impacting rabi crops in India. Energy prices are also elevated — Brent crude oil is trading at around $115 per barrel. So far, the central bank has noted that there "are only limited signs of supply-side pressures getting embedded in pricing behaviour". Going forward, the extent of policy tightening will depend on how committee members assess supply-side pressures across the economy, whether second-round effects take hold, and how growth-inflation dynamics evolve.

An Indian in squash's big league

WITH HER first career win over eight-time squash world champion Nour El Sherbini, Delhi ace Anahat Singh has begun to make a mark on the pro tour. Not only is the Egyptian her biggest scalp, but the Silicon Valley Open 2026 squash tournament in Redwood City, USA, has the biggest names in the sport. A day after stunning El Sherbini, the 18-year-old beat World No. 14 Salma Hany to reach a PSA Gold-level semi-final — a feat no Indian squash player, male or female, has accomplished.

Anahat had defeated World No. 6 Satomi Watanabe at the Asian Games. But the victory over El Sherbini is more than an upstart taking down a 30-year-old legend. Squash is now an Olympic event, and if Anahat continues her upward arc, she could be a medal contender in 2028.

India will also hope that Abhay Singh, Veer Chotrani and Velavan Senthilkumar make headway in the men's singles. Anahat, known for her shot-making, is a worthy successor to Joshna Chinappa and Dipika Pallikal and can take the next step, given that her pathway is lined with support from some of the best coaches in the world, including Frenchman Gregory Gaultier, who also coaches El Sherbini. Squash has a global presence. Anahat is likely to find the path getting tougher from here.

On IT, India had early advantage. It hasn't caught up with AI era

MANOJ PANT

M RAHUL

ON JUNE 12, Anthropic suspended access to its frontier models, Claude Fable 5 and Claude Mythos 5, to comply with export controls imposed by the US Department of Commerce. In less than three weeks, the controls were lifted, but the episode left a message. Frontier Artificial Intelligence (AI) will now be treated much like nuclear technology: The power to turn access on or off lies with the countries building these models.

The US and China have frontier models of their own. India does not.

As a global hub for IT services and with one of the world's largest pools of software talent, India had an early advantage. Yet it did not prepare adequately for the AI era. India's low R&D spending, around 0.84 per cent of GDP in FY24, has not provided the foundation from which frontier AI could grow. The comparable figures were 2.6 per cent in China and 3.4 per cent in the US.

In the IT services era, this mattered less, as Indian firms prospered by customising and maintaining software built in advanced countries.

In the AI era, this model may no longer be sustainable as AI can now write, test and maintain code on its own. It strikes at the very labour advantage on which India built its services exports.

The IT sector has remained resilient so far, with global capability centres booming. A survey of 651 IT firms across 10 Indian cities by the Indian Council for Research on International Economic Relations (ICRIER), conducted between November 2025 and January 2026, found that 55 per cent of firms reported a decline in entry-level employment, while 35 per cent reported an increase. Senior-level employment remained largely stable. Nomura's analysis of company announcements tells a similar story: AI-linked hiring in India still exceeds layoffs, but job losses are concentrated in support and entry-level roles.

The IndiaAI Mission was launched in 2024 to develop the country's AI ecosystem. Its five-year budget is around $1.2 billion and its shared compute infrastructure has expanded to over 45,000 GPUs available at subsidised rates for Indian start-ups and researchers. This is a welcome start, albeit a small one for building home-grown frontier models.

The scale of the challenge becomes apparent when compared with projected annual training and inference costs of $45.8 billion for OpenAI and $19 billion for Anthropic in 2026. While these are not directly comparable to a public mission's budget, they illustrate the vastly different resources available to India's AI ecosystem and the firms developing frontier models.

The challenge, however, is not simply to spend more, as China's experience suggests, but to develop a research and innovation ecosystem that can support home-grown models.

> While data centres are essential both for training domestic AI models and for data sovereignty, the net economic benefits may be minimal if the models running on them are foreign-owned

Yet, the focus now seems to have shifted to attracting data centres. While data centres are essential both for training domestic AI models and for data sovereignty, the net economic benefits may be minimal if the models running on them are foreign-owned. The hardware is imported, and most jobs are during construction. The Centre offers eligible foreign cloud-service providers using India-based data centres for global operations a tax holiday until 2047, while states compete with cheap land, water and electricity. The government estimates that AI data centres will add around 26.3 GW of demand by FY32, planned to be met mostly by renewables.

Generating enough renewable energy annually is feasible. The real issue is that data centres require round-the-clock electricity, which intermittent renewables cannot reliably provide without costly storage or other sources of firm power. This raises the cost of electricity supplied to data centres from the grid. Until sufficient storage and other sources of firm power are available, the nighttime gap may be partly filled by coal, while the cost of ensuring reliable supply may fall on already stretched grids and, eventually, other consumers.

Hosting data centres without a presence elsewhere in the AI value chain risks locking India into the lowest-value-added link. The semiconductor push is unlikely to change this soon.

Of the 12 semiconductor facilities approved, nine assemble, test and package pre-fabricated chips. This is a first step and has real strategic value in semiconductor supply chains. However, none of the approved facilities produces leading-edge AI chips. That would require a generational leap in manufacturing capabilities.

One way India could benefit from the "landlord role" it has chosen to follow is by ensuring compute-access guarantees, sovereign cloud capacity and local linkages in hardware and services in exchange for state support, so that investment in infrastructure also builds domestic capabilities. This would ensure an Indian presence at different points in the AI value chain. India must adopt a calibrated approach that secures such commitments from investors while maintaining a favourable investment climate.

What the wild knows about citizenship

AREFA TEHSIN

BENGALURU NEEDS a tunnel and 1,128 trees must make way. The proposed solution to congestion is a 2.2km tunnel for which a thousand trees are to be felled. Residents have taken to hugging trees in protest.

In Udaipur, once upon a time, hyenas came to feast on Dadi*jaan*'s pots of vinegar and Daddy just went to the perennial stream by our home to catch fish if there were guests at home. Foxes lived in graveyards, peacocks danced in the rain. Now the Aravalli hills are turning arid.

For the last two decades, I have lived in Colombo, a Ramsar wetland city, where the wild Sri Lankan nationals drop in uninvited. The city is densely plural. Marshes, waterways and patches of woodland are woven between skyscrapers, pubs and politicians. A bewildering variety of life co-exists with the bipedal apes.

I cannot name a single metropolis in India where a firefly lands on your spoon as you are about to serve aloo-gobhi. So here are a few lessons I have learnt from the wild philosophers of Colombo (As I write this article, a cormorant is pitifully looking at me for working on a sunny day meant to dry one's wings):

Crocodile: Your property deed is a work of fiction. Doob-doob is the juvenile saltwater crocodile in our backyard where our garden ends in a canal. You can see it often, taking a chill pill and soaking the sun. "Arrey baba, magarmachch! Aren't you scared?" Many people ask me. Yes, I am. As much as I am of this hair growing on my chin.

Terrapin: There's nothing wrong with retreating into a shell. Not only do these terrapins retreat into their shells, they feel duty-bound to pee on me whenever I try to help one to cross a road. Going into your shell is self-protection. One should peek out only when do-gooders like me have sneaked away leaving you the heck alone.

Porcupine: Carry quills on your back. Right at midnight, we often see a porcupine mum leading her prickle or a gent on a stroll. You must give them the right of way. The alternative is all your tyres getting punctured.

Purple-faced monkey: Ownership is a debatable concept. Also, your prized mangoes were never yours to begin with. Bandru that hangs around our home is made of sheer guts. Not only does he feast on the mangoes but also pulls my cushion out to take an afternoon nap.

Peacock: Vanity is not always a vice. I recently spotted a peacock in our garden checking out the metal sculpture of a peacock we have installed.

Paradise flycatcher: Beauty does not exist for social media. That gorgeous ribbon of a tail, fluttering through the canopy, doesn't exist for my social media feed. It just is. Empirical evidence of splendour.

Pelicans: Never underestimate the value of an absurd face. The spot-billed pelicans living in the woods around have claimed a few trees and painted them white with droppings. It's your problem if you don't find them conventionally handsome. They claim more rights to the vicinity than a legal voter.

The fishing cat: Incredible things happen in the margins. If our stars align, we get to greet a fishing cat late at night. This elusive predator thrives in the city's messy wetlands, the very spaces planners would like to drain and pave.

Kabaragoya, water monitor lizard: Carrion is easier to find than truth. The kabaragoya patrols the canals clearing carrion with a dedication no municipal council has matched. Tuk-tuks stop for it. So do I.

Fireflies: Important messages are often whispered. As darkness dawns, the astral fireflies come gallivanting in our garden. Their twinkle is an argument against the brute force of a floodlight.

These are not quaint encounters but daily tutorials in a different kind of citizenship. By imagining a single, human-centric perspective, we are not just silencing these other stories, we are making our own infinitely more brittle.

The traffic in Bengaluru will not be solved by a tunnel that destroys a million living things. That is like curing a headache with a guillotine. The solution lies in designing cities that acknowledge the intricate web of life.

My grandmother's hyenas are long gone. I hope Bengaluru's trees get to stay.

As for me, there is a kabaragoya waiting at my gate. He was here before the gate.

SYED MUNIR KHASRU

SWEDISH ECONOMIST and diplomat Dag Hammarskjöld, who became the youngest UN secretary-general (UNSG) in 1953 at 47, boarded a plane for Ndola, in present-day Zambia, to negotiate an end to the fighting in Congo. His plane crashed on September 17, 1961. Hammarskjöld's death immortalised a vision of the UNSG: Not a ceremonial custodian of an imperfect institution, but an independent diplomat willing to place moral authority, even at the expense of his own life, between nations and war. More than six decades later, as the UN prepares to choose its 10th chief, that vision has rarely been more necessary or more endangered.

The world experienced 65 state-based conflicts across 35 countries in 2025, the highest since 1946. Meanwhile, AI is transforming security and economic power faster than governments can establish safeguards, climate commitments remain dangerously inadequate, and the UN is constrained by institutions designed for 1945. Choosing António Guterres's successor is not another diplomatic rotation; it is a decision about whether the UN will continue managing the consequences of global disorder or begin confronting its causes.

From accelerating scientific discovery to improving public services, AI's benefits could be enormous. The same technology can produce disinformation, automate cyberattacks, intensify surveillance and reduce human control over military decisions. The UN has created a 40-member Independent International Scientific Panel on AI. A scientific body, however, cannot substitute for political rules. The next UNSG should pursue a narrow but enforceable global baseline: Mandatory safety evaluations for high-risk systems, disclosure of serious AI incidents, reliable identification of synthetic media and meaningful human control over decisions involving lethal force.

The next UNSG cannot compel governments to reduce emissions but can expose the distance between rhetoric and action through country-level assessments of emissions, adaptation and financing. High-level climate meetings should become implementation reviews rather than recurring stages for recycled pledges. Developing countries may need between $310 and 365 billion annually for adaptation by 2035. International public adaptation finance reached only $26 billion in 2023. Climate finance is partial restitution for a crisis they did not create.

Modern conflicts are increasingly internationalised, technologically enabled and entangled with rival great powers. A permanent UN mediation corps should be established, drawing on diplomats, regional specialists, ceasefire negotiators and experts in humanitarian access. It should deploy when tensions begin rising. The UNSC still reserves permanent membership and veto power for five states reflecting the settlement of World War II. Africa's 54 countries constitute approximately 28 per cent of UN membership, yet the continent has no permanent seat. Such exclusion weakens the legitimacy of the UN's decisions.

Hammarskjöld's final journey embodied the belief that diplomacy must sometimes venture toward danger rather than wait for catastrophe to arrive. The next UNSG need not imitate his sacrifice. But the office must recover his sense of purpose.

> Choosing Guterres's successor is about whether the UN will continue managing the consequences of global disorder or begin confronting its causes

MILITANT-BACKED Akal Takht jathedar Gurbachan Singh Manochahal escaped after an encounter with security forces. A school teacher was shot and wounded and nine terrorists were arrested in Punjab during the past 24 hours. Terrorists also made an abortive attempt to loot a bank in Jalandhar. Manochahal, a proclaimed offender and member of the Panthic Committee nominated by militants, was among the five people involved in an exchange of fire with a Central Reserve Police Force patrol near Naushehra Pannuan.

Karamjit test-fired weapon

KARAMJIT SINGH, who made an attempt on the life of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi at Rajghat, had test-fired his country-made revolver and killed an innocent person in Punjab, to convince himself of the weapon's efficacy days before the abortive bid. The Central Bureau of Investigation's (CBI) interrogation of Karamjit revealed that the person fired upon had died on the spot. CBI sources said investigations had shown that the October 2 incident was not as innocuous as it had seemed. "It is definitely not a simple matter and indicates a deep-rooted conspiracy to assassinate the Prime Minister," sources said.

Rebel Akalis' meet put off

THE AKALI DAL led by Parkash Singh Badal has decided not to hold a political conference at Malout, but the hard-hitting statement by Punjab Governor Siddhartha Shankar Ray that apparently led to its indefinite postponement has caused resentment in ministerial circles. Sukhdev Singh Dhindsa, general secretary of the Akali Dal (Badal), announced that the proposed conference would not be held in view of the prevailing tension in Malout. However, he claimed that his party had not put off the conference under any threat from the government.

SIR needs reform. But let's go by numbers, not protestors' slogans

SURJIT S BHALLA

CAN SOMEBODY please explain what is going on in political India? The agitation Rahul Gandhi has joined is, in Prashant Bhushan's words, a "fight for regime change". Regime change is what Donald Trump wished on Iran's clerics: The end of a political system, not a Congress victory in 2029. The foreign press, once the voice of relative sanity, has joined the chorus. The Economist (October 1) says the Election Commission "is barring tens of millions from voting". The Financial Times (October 15) headlines an overhaul "that removed 130mn voters", though its own chart says these are names "flagged for possible exclusion". The protesters' slogan is 13 crore votes deleted. And in these pages, Jean Drèze and Yogendra Yadav (DY) ('Let us not be in denial, disenfranchisement is real', October 20) find "well over 10 crore missing voters", about 14 crore for all India.

These are all-India numbers, including states whose final rolls are not yet out. So consider the nine states where the final rolls are known: Bihar and the eight large states of the second phase, home to three in five Indian adults.

Where registration is voluntary, the roll always falls short of the adult population: 4-7 per cent of eligible Canadians are missing from the lists, 11-14 per cent of Britons, and a quarter of American voting-age citizens. Nobody calls that disenfranchisement. Disenfranchisement is the gap between the final roll and the roll one should expect: Everyone who would normally register, and no one who should not be there.

DY measure against all adults instead. Their table sets each state's projected adult population from the government's Technical Group against its final SIR roll. The nine states have 59.9 crore adults and 52.8 crore names on the final rolls: 7.1 crore, or 12 per cent, short. DY call this disenfranchisement. Their table, drawn from my Substack, leaves out a crucial column: The young who did not register to vote. In 2024, the ECI's own rolls show, four in 10 young adults in Uttar Pradesh and Bihar were not registered. In these nine states, that is 5.2 crore young people, 8.7 per cent of all adults. The SIR cannot have deleted people who were never there. Add 1.5 per cent of adults for older people who never registered, or moved and never re-registered, and 6.1 crore adults would normally not be on the roll. Put that column back, and DY's own numbers give the answer: About 1 crore disenfranchised, not 7.1 crore.

The expected roll is 53.8 crore; the final roll is 52.8 crore. West Bengal, where the young register well, expected 7.4 crore and got 6.8: About 60 lakh short. And there the appeals failed: Of the 34 lakh Bengalis who appealed, The Economist reports, fewer than 0.05 per cent had their cases heard before election day, and the tribunals have since found 90 per cent of appellants valid all along. Bihar, where the outcry began, has 7.4 crore on its final roll against 6.8 expected: Largely migrants who work in other states but stay registered at home.

A crore of eligible voters wrongly removed is not nothing. But inflating 1 crore into 7 does not help the 1 crore; it lets the ECI dismiss the real crore along with the imaginary six

Nor were the old rolls clean. Before the SIR, these nine states had 58.6 crore names on their rolls. A clean roll, the table shows, would hold 53.8 crore. The difference, nearly 5 crore names, was the dead, the departed and the duplicated, and this on rolls that still missed 5.2 crore young people. Bloated rolls are not an excuse invented for the SIR. They are what the SIR removed. Drèze himself now concedes, in another newspaper (October 21), that the old rolls left out "up to 10 per cent perhaps" of adults, and that the "majority" of deletions are legitimate.

Accepting Uttar Pradesh's low youth registration, DY say, is "like saying if you skipped breakfast, you might as well skip lunch". Clever, but nobody skipped lunch. Uttar Pradesh's 2.3 crore unregistered young were counted by the ECI in 2024, before the SIR. Applying the national average to Uttar Pradesh is like measuring Rajathan's drought with India's rainfall.

K B S Sidhu, a former civil servant, put it simply on X: The 130 million in the headlines "was never a count of the disenfranchised". Article 326, he reminds us, sets only three conditions for the roll: "a citizen of India, eighteen years of age, ordinarily resident. A person who meets them shall be entitled to be registered. Everything else is fluff."

By Sidhu's test, the SIR was loaded with fluff, and the blame lies with the ECI and the government. In these pages on September 24 ('I have voted for three decades. Why is my SIR incomplete?), I set out, from my own experience, what went wrong: The haste, the paperwork demanded of poor and migrant voters, and "logical discrepancy" notices for a misspelt name. Those criticisms stand. The government changed the law in 2023 so that it effectively chooses the Election Commissioners, and now wonders why the Commission's impartiality is doubted; its ministers talk of "infiltrators" without producing even an approximate number for us mere mortals to assess. The Commission ran a hurried exercise, often just before state elections, let its discrepancy rules fall hardest on Muslims in Murshidabad and Malda and on Matua Hindus, added a declaration to Form 6 without changing the rules, and has still not published a national post-SIR roll, or removals by reason, state and booth. An umpire who will not explain his decisions invites the charge of bias. A crore of eligible voters wrongly removed is not nothing. But inflating 1 crore into 7 does not help the 1 crore; it lets the ECI dismiss the real crore along with the imaginary six.

So start from first principles, from Article 326. The citizen is entitled to be registered; it is for the state to show that he is not. Take the passport. India issues one only to its citizens, after police verification. Yet in June an External Affairs ministry official declared the passport a travel document, "not a document of citizenship", and the ECI had to clarify the next day that it still accepts one. A passport is the state's own certificate of citizenship; if the state now doubts it, the state must prove its case before a tribunal, not ask the citizen to prove it again. That is a reform worth marching for. Regime change is not.

A downturn in India-US ties, but all is not lost

RAM RAJYA

BY RAM MADHAV

SIX YEARS ago, when the US presidential election took place in November 2020, fans of Donald Trump in India were going to temples, praying for him to win a second term. He lost that election and accused the Democrats of stealing the mandate. There were many in the US who believed Trump's accusations. There were some in India, too, who sympathised with him and believed he was probably wronged by the Left-Liberal cabal. Four years later, when Trump registered a thumping victory in 2024, many watchers of US-India relations sincerely believed a golden age in bilateral relations would return.

But the past two years have proved a big disappointment, not only for Trump's admirers in India but also for pragmatic geopolitical analysts. Trump has resorted to an unprecedented weaponisation of trade. He has employed pressure tactics against India, subjecting it to harsh tariffs for its energy imports from Russia, and shown inexplicable bonhomie with Pakistan, the global epicentre of terrorism and an arch-enemy of India. The Republican Party's obsession with immigration issues has impacted Indians working in the US under the H1-B visa regime. There have been occasional racist outbursts with offensive phrases, such as Vice President J D Vance referring to H1-B visa holders as "indentured servants". All these have resulted in compounded unease, if not outright distrust, with the country once described as a "natural ally". As a result, as the US heads for midterms next week, there is hardly any support or sympathy for Trump in India. On the contrary, many sneeringly predict that the Republicans will lose their majorities in both the House and the Senate.

It is Trump's brinkmanship that has brought the US-India relationship, assiduously built over the last 25 years, to this situation. When Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited the US in February last year to greet the newly elected President, he carried an ambitious agenda concerning what the foreign ministry mandarins call the "US-India Compact". Defence, trade, critical and emerging technologies, nuclear energy, critical minerals, space and Indo-Pacific affairs — many such sectors were on the table.

ILLUSTRATION: VIKAS AGARWAL

But since then, the relationship has witnessed an enormous trust deficit. The US was party to the disruption caused to critical energy supply routes like the Strait of Hormuz through its war against Iran. That war plunged the whole world into an energy crisis. Oil production from the Middle East continues to be down. China, the major energy guzzler in the world, is feverishly importing oil from available sources, putting more pressure on the energy market. The resultant crisis sent inflation levels soaring in many European countries. It has acted as a catalyst for the people, already aggrieved by high food prices, stagnant wages and unaffordable housing costs, to hit the streets in several European cities. If India was able to thwart such a crisis, it was primarily due to the foresight of its leadership in ensuring energy security for its 1.4 billion people through imports from Russia, besides other sources. The US Congress and the White House seek to punish India for this.

The double standards are hard to miss. While threatening India with 100 per cent punitive tariffs, the US Congress was busy granting waivers and exemptions to its European allies. Worse still was the US's own agreement with Russia earlier this month for the import of 36 million barrels of diesel in the name of lowering domestic fuel prices. What is good for the goose is not good for the gander?

Despite such disappointments, all is not lost. Bilateral trade grew by 12 percent in 2025 to reach $240 billion. The defence partnership is robust and growing. Major American AI companies have pledged to invest close to $70 billion in India. On February 28, the day the US attacked Iran, the headline should instead have been the opening of US chip giant Micron's first assembly and test facility in India. Cooperation is substantially growing in space, critical technologies and minerals, and intelligence-sharing. There is an overt downturn in ties for sure, but beneath the surface, there is optimism for collaborative progress, seen in Ambassador Sergio Gor targeting $500 billion in bilateral trade by 2030.

We will know the verdict of the American people regarding Trump's two years on November 3. But what the world thinks about it was firmly conveyed by PM Modi recently: The "weaponisation of trade, technology and sea routes" must stop.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Evading accountability

THE ECI'S recent measures ('ECI's course correction is welcome, need for accountability remains', IE, October 23) suggest it launched the SIR without thorough consultation with stakeholders. In an RTI reply, it denied having made any formal decision to conduct the nationwide exercise or holding related records, such as meeting minutes. Does this not, in itself, make the SIR illegal and cast doubt on the EC's independent functioning? How can it evade accountability when more than 95 crore people were forced to take part in this exercise, and a sizable number were excluded from the draft rolls? With new skeletons emerging almost daily, the CEC's continued tenure in this post is becoming increasingly untenable.

Kamal Laddha, Bengaluru

Look inward

ATTRIBUTING INDIA'S current domestic unrest to a "foreign hand" oversimplifies complex socioeconomic realities. Democratic friction typically emerges from internal policy anxieties rather than external manipulation. ('Foreign hand bogey is wearing thin. Bury it', IE, October 23) Peaceful protest is an essential instrument of democratic expression. The government and society must collaboratively address grievances, strengthen public trust and uphold constitutional values.

Parag Deshmukh, Thane

Human expression

AI IS helpful as a tool, but harmful as a replacement ('When AI vies for literary glory', IE, October 23). The misclassification of original intellectual work as automated by the self-same "AI detector" is profoundly ironic. LLMs replicate such impeccable human prose to deliver flawless text, which has fostered a wide presumption that flawless authorship is synthetic plagiarism. That said, the idiosyncrasies and subtle nuances inherent in human phrasing form an organic signature that stands vindicated, completely beyond any machine simulation.

Building a giant cockroach and burning it

RAJU SANTHANAM

IN THE last four years, powerful leaderships in Sri Lanka, Bangladesh and Nepal have collapsed. They appeared secure until public anger overwhelmed their defences. Protests that had been building for months suddenly became an irresistible force. The common thread was not merely intelligence failure. It was a failure of political judgement: Leaders became so insulated from reality that they mistook the absence of visible resistance for public consent.

The Cockroach Janta Party's (CJP) rise in India offers an intriguing parallel. What began as online satire following controversial remarks comparing unemployed youth to cockroaches became a rallying point for anger over unemployment and the NEET-UG examination controversy. Unlike the Navnirman Andolan of 1973-74, which spread through campuses, pamphlets and street protests in Gujarat, the CJP built an audience online before taking its agitation to the streets. The Navnirman Yuvak Samiti brought together student leaders such as Manishi Jani and Anupam Mankad. Narendra Modi, then an RSS organiser, served as general secretary of the Gujarat Lok Sangharsh Samiti, which worked alongside the Navnirman protesters. The movement forced Gujarat chief minister Chimanbhai Patel to resign and contributed to the wider anti-Emergency political mobilisation associated with Jayaprakash Narayan. Although the two movements emerged in different political contexts, the CJP appears to be a political echo of that mobilisation.

One agitation, of course, does not guarantee an Opposition revival. Even then, for the BJP, the prospect of a more assertive Congress finding common ground with a youth-led movement should be a source of concern

Its agitation at Jantar Mantar turned digital discontent into a political challenge. On July 25, Union education minister Dharmendra Pradhan resigned. The movement claimed victory, although the resignation alone does not establish that every demand had been met.

The political response matters just as much as the protest itself. Police action at Jantar Mantar, reports of detentions, the decision to withdraw Jantar Mantar's designation as a protest site and allegations of intimidation have raised questions about how dissent is being handled.

Before the CJP emerged, the Opposition was struggling after defeats in West Bengal and Tamil Nadu. The TMC lost West Bengal after 15 years in power, while the DMK was swept out of office in Tamil Nadu by Vijay's TVK. The CJP has since given a dormant Opposition political momentum by bringing public anger onto the streets and onto the political agenda. Two issues resonate widely: Alleged NEET-UG paper leaks affecting 22 lakh candidates, and fears over voter deletions during the Special Intensive Revision. The two are different issues. But they strike a nerve: Young people's aspirations and citizens' democratic rights.

When fear recedes and public anger finds a collective voice, authority can unravel faster than expected. Winning back public confidence may then prove far harder than losing it. India's young electorate is substantial, though its size alone tells us nothing about how its members will vote.

One agitation, of course, does not guarantee an Opposition revival. Even then, for the BJP, the prospect of a more assertive Congress finding common ground with a youth-led movement should be a source of concern. Much will depend on how the leadership responds to the issues that matter to young people.

The question, then, is not simply whether India will follow its neighbours down the same path. It is whether those in power are reading the warning signs.

The burning of a giant cockroach at an event in Delhi is being presented as a symbolic victory of good over evil — a spectacle designed to energise a party's youth constituency, which appears to be running out of steam. The symbolism carries an unintended irony. Why build an "evil" cockroach 30 feet high and 12 feet wide, only to burn it? The spectacle may be intended to demonstrate confidence, but it also draws attention to how much space the CJP has come to occupy in the ruling party's imagination.

Childhood obesity deepens the nutrition challenge

RAJIB DASGUPTA

ON OCTOBER 7, the WHO issued the first-ever guidelines for integrated management of obesity in children aged 29 days to under 10 years. The evidence-informed recommendations include guidance on dietary interventions, physical activity, sedentary behaviour and sleep, behaviour-changing interventions, digital health interventions, pharmacotherapy, and bariatric surgery. Childhood obesity is on the rise globally as a result of a shift towards the intake of foods that are high in fat and sugar (deficient in diversity as well as vitamins, minerals and micronutrients) and less energy-intensive recreational activities and transportation.

Non-communicable diseases (NCDs) such as Type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular diseases and metabolic dysfunction-associated steatotic liver disease, which are diseases of adulthood, are increasingly being diagnosed in children and adolescents with obesity. The net for screening of these conditions therefore has to be cast increasingly at younger ages. Further, complications of NCDs such as chronic kidney disease, chronic liver disease or certain obesity-driven malignancies will be manifest in younger productive ages.

UNICEF's Child Nutrition Global Report 2025 marked a watershed moment — with obesity among school-aged children and adolescents, for the first time, surpassing underweight globally as the most common form of malnutrition. With childhood obesity no longer a marker of affluent societies, it put the number of children living with obesity at about 188 million — one in 10. In 2000, South Asian countries had the lowest prevalence of overweight children and adolescents; by 2022, the prevalence was up nearly fivefold across all three age bands (5-9, 10-14, 15-19). The projections suggest that by 2030, India will have over 27 million children and adolescents (5-19 years) living with obesity, about 11 per cent of the global burden.

It would be naïve to assume that undernutrition is no longer a concern. In fact, low- and middle-income countries such as India are battling a double burden — the unfinished agenda of communicable diseases and undernutrition on the one hand and the rising prevalence of risk factors of NCDs including obesity and overweight at younger ages. The explanations lie in inadequate prenatal, infant and child nutrition, followed by growing children experiencing exposure to high-fat, energy-dense, and micronutrient-poor foods, and not enough physical activity.

The food environment is the toughest challenge, due to weak interventions in marketing through TV and other media, and lack of front-of-package labelling

The policy approach is to address the obesogenic environment, that is, "an environment that promotes gaining weight and one that is not conducive to weight loss" within the home or school. The government's role is critical — the Union and state governments for agenda and policy framing, and local and municipal governments for adaptation and implementation in local settings. The major pillars include addressing the food environment and lifestyles, including promoting physical activity, establishing meal and obesity guidelines, and implementing health education and early intervention programmes such as limiting sweetened beverages at schools.

The food environment is the toughest challenge, due to weak interventions in marketing through television and other media, and lack of front-of-package labelling. A key implementation imperative is tailoring these to sub-national and regional variations, ethnicities, and cultures. These also entail increased capital investment; to a certain extent, sin taxes can generate revenue for specific public health interventions.

The signs and science of the Shamonda virus

Abhinav Chakraborty
New Delhi, October 23

FRANCE HAS confirmed the first known human case of Shamonda virus in a patient who died at a Lyon hospital earlier in October. In a joint statement, the country's health and agriculture ministries said that there was "no health risk to the general public identified at this time". The reported infection appeared to be "an exceptional case involving a severely immunocompromised patient" hospitalised for a serious medical condition, the statement added.

The Shamonda virus

The Shamonda virus is a vector-borne virus belonging to the genus Orthobunyavirus in the family Peribunyaviridae. It is part of the Simbu group of viruses.

First isolated in cattle in Nigeria in 1965 and since identified in parts of Africa, Asia, and Europe, the virus is understood to spread through bites from Culicoides midges (small fly-like insects). Although recent reports have primarily concerned cattle, cases have also been reported in sheep, goats, horses, and even alpacas.

Fever, diarrhoea, reduced milk production, and reproductive disorders are some of the signs reported in animals — neurological signs are less common. Since these can often resemble other diseases, laboratory testing is needed to confirm infection.

SEASONAL CYCLE
- The long-term impact in Europe is still unclear. Outbreaks caused by the Simbu group tend to occur in cycles as per the seasonal patterns of midges.
- European Shamonda variants may behave differently from those in endemic countries, especially in cattle populations that were previously unexposed.

According to the World Organisation for Animal Health (WOAH), two different variants — Shamonda virus Europe 1 (SHAV-EU1) and Shamonda virus Europe 2 (SHAV-EU2) — have caused this year's European outbreaks. Although the long term impact in Europe is still unclear, outbreaks caused by the Simbu group tend to occur in cycles as per the seasonal patterns of midges.

First known human case

The case in Lyon was detected after a hospitalised leukemia patient in their sixties went blind and became confused before falling into a coma. Doctors tested the patient's cerebrospinal fluid for genetic traces of any pathogen, only to find markers of the Shamonda virus.

After the patient's death, the medical team sequenced the entire genome from samples of their brain and confirmed it to be the SHAV-EU1 variant. The patient is understood to have contracted the virus through a midge bite in eastern France, where the virus was circulating in animals during spring and summer.

According to WOAH, there is presently no commercially available vaccine against the virus. It, however, recommended a few measures to control and manage risks arising out of potential Culicoides vectors to decrease the virus's transmission, such as physical barriers including fine mesh screens and double-door entry-exit systems, reducing or eliminating vector-breeding sites, vector surveillance and control around buildings, and transporting animals during periods of low vector activity.

How India's bullet train project took a long detour

It started as a Japanese high-speed rail project. After friction, it has evolved into a hybrid model: Japanese tracks, European signal systems, Indian trains

DHEERAJ MISHRA & ANIL SASI

IN SEPTEMBER 2017, work began on one of India's most ambitious and technologically advanced transportation projects — a 508-km high-speed railway line between Mumbai and Ahmedabad, popularly known as the bullet train project.

A joint-venture with Japan, known for its iconic 300 kmph Shinkansen trains, the project was initially estimated to be completed by 2022. Now, the first section of the Mumbai-Ahmedabad High Speed Rail is expected to open by December 2027.

Over the years, the project has run into rough waters several times — delays caused by the Covid-19 pandemic, a change in the Maharashtra government that resulted in land acquisition issues, and, most importantly, what appeared to be a degree of misalignment between the two sides.

A senior industry source, who has interacted with both the Indian and Japanese delegations, said that the two sides had "a grossly insufficient understanding of each other's objectives, business environment and way of working", having announced the project including timelines and costs "without sufficiently detailed homework and without taking into account risks".

Did each side clearly understand what the other side thought had been actually agreed? That seems unlikely. Did they understand or anticipate, but choose to remain silent, hoping for the best? Likely. Was there chicanery on the Indian side, as was alleged by former Japanese minister Hideki Makihara in July? "I think not," said the source. India's Ministry of External Affairs has dismissed Makihara's accusations of "sheer recklessness" by the Indian side.

Months down the line, the two sides seem to have largely reconciled their differences and agreed upon a pragmatic way forward. What started as a Japanese high-speed rail project is now heading towards a hybrid solution of sorts — Japanese track and civil infrastructure design, European signalling systems, India-made trains.

For the Indian Railways, the challenge going forward is to ensure that the different systems work with each other.

SANKHADEEP BANERJEE

At Vikhroli in Mumbai, one of the tunnels through which the Mumbai-Ahmedabad high-speed line will pass.

How we got here

Talks with Japan over the idea of a bullet train started well before 2013. But it was a feasibility study by Japanese consultants in December 2013, and a report by them in July 2015, that gave the idea concrete shape. The Union Cabinet approved the project in December 2015 and work started in September 2017. It was seen as a high-profile manifestation of India and Japan's strategic partnership under prime ministers Shinzo Abe and Narendra Modi.

But execution plans — the nitty gritty of procurement, cost estimates, statutory approval processes, construction schedules and so forth — seem to have been worked out afterwards. This was also the first time the two countries had attempted to execute a complex project together. So, it was not surprising that reality turned out to be quite different from initial assumptions.

This brings us to one of the key divergences between Indian and Japanese sides. The Japanese thought they were set to export the entire system — track, rolling stock, signalling — since they were financing the entire project on highly concessional terms.

"But India did not wish to be tied to a single, high-cost, imported solution," said the source. "The cost effectiveness, flexibility of choice and indigenisation of technology are important to the Indians, especially for the further expansion of the high-speed rail network beyond the initial project. Indians rarely buy anything without taking the proposal apart and aggressively negotiating things in line with their requirements."

Execution issues

The Cabinet approved the bullet train project in December 2015 and work started in September 2017.

But execution plans — procurement, cost estimates, approvals, construction schedules, etc. — seem to have been worked out afterwards.

"The Shinkansen, though a marvel of technology, was designed for domestic use as a comprehensive system, not for piecemeal export," this person added.

There were also drifts and delays on both sides. Japan has had four changes of administration since prime minister Abe; in India, acquisition of land and legal right of way for much of the route was thrown into uncertainty when there was a change of government in Maharashtra after elections in 2019, and this was resolved only after the next election in 2024. By then, the Japanese had decided to phase out the E5 trainset originally intended to be deployed in India.

Delays are not uncommon in such projects anywhere — Japan's Shinkansen to Hokkaido, and the UK's High Speed 2 rail are examples of similar projects that have seen substantive delays and cost overruns. The overall cost of the Indian project has nearly doubled to about Rs 2 lakh crore, compared to the initial estimated cost of Rs 1.08 lakh crore. The government is now likely to allocate a special budget to meet the cost surge.

Current situation

It seems both sides have come to an agreement on the way ahead for the project.

India awarded the signaling contract to a European-Indian joint venture in June 2025. The project will use Indian-built high speed trains (not as fast as the Shinkansen but much faster than the trains currently in service in India). And the two countries are likely to negotiate the supply of the Japanese E10 trainset when it becomes available in a few years' time. The Japanese financing package will remain in place.

This is quite a different scheme from the one that was originally intended. Under the circumstances, however, it is a pragmatic solution that benefits both countries.

According to Indian Railways officials, the government decided in 2024 to get its own bullet train and deploy an international signalling system after it became clear that Japan would not be able to provide the E10 Shinkansen trainset before 2034, as it had stopped the production of E5 trains. Officials said both sides agreed to the decisions on rolling stock and signalling, drawing on experiences from countries such as South Korea, Taiwan, China and European nations, where a similar system is being used with variations.

Railway officials said that all approvals of drawings, designs, construction schemes and quality control are carried out by Japanese experts. The Indian bullet train (B28), which can achieve a maximum operational speed of 250 kmph, is being developed by BEML in Bengaluru.

Japanese experts support India's ambition for its own bullet train, but with caveats. Masafumi Shukuri, Chairman of the Japan Transport and Tourism Research Institute and International High-Speed Rail Association, told The Indian Express that India will have to prove that it is safe to use two different types of bullet trains (B28 and E10) and their respective signalling systems in the same corridor. He emphasised the "total systems approach", a unique aspect of the Shinkansen where civil work, tracks, signalling, and rolling stock are built as one single system. "Eventually, I think, one of those systems will need to be adopted; you can't have both the systems running," said Shukuri.

There are lessons for future collaboration. "Japanese organisations need to be willing to flexibly adapt their offerings to suit the requirements of other markets," the industry source cited above said. "In case of India... the reputation of Indian counterparts for detailed planning and adherence to agreed terms is lacking... long-term reputation for trust matters a great deal too."

The debates around Legislative Councils, their functions today

Rishika Singh
New Delhi, October 23

ELECTIONS TO 28 seats across the Legislative Councils of Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Maharashtra and Karnataka were held on Friday, with results to be declared next week.

Unlike state polls, not every adult citizen can vote for Members of Legislative Councils (MLCs). Not all states have Legislative Councils, either.

What are Legislative Councils?

Just as the Indian Union has a bicameral legislature, comprising the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha, some states have a Legislative Assembly and a Legislative Council. Six states — the four mentioned earlier plus Telangana and Andhra Pradesh — have them.

Chakshu Roy, head of outreach at PRS Legislative Research, earlier wrote for The Indian Express that the colonial history traces back to the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms, which led to the formation of the Council of State at the national level in 1919. "Then the Government of India Act of 1935 set up bicameral legislatures in Indian provinces... a Legislative Council first started functioning in Bengal in 1937," he wrote.

Similar to Rajya Sabha, the Legislative Council serves as a second layer of the law-making process. The two share similarities — Bills need their approval to become law; only those aged above 30 can contest for a seat, and members are chosen for six-year terms through indirect elections. One-third of the members retire every two years.

During the Constituent Assembly debates, members disagreed about its need. Congress leader Brajeshwar Prasad argued that, "With the inauguration of the new Constitution on the basis of adult franchise, it is risky to vest all powers in the hands of the Lower House... I believe that power must be vested in the hands of those... not only literate but wise too... who have got a sense of justice... People in India are not only illiterate, but narrow-minded."

Political barometer
- Legislative Council elections are seen as a political barometer by parties, indicating support among educated groups and professionals, or their position before key elections, as in the case of UP now.
- They are not fought on party symbols, but parties still back candidates.

Others criticised the elevated position enjoyed by the Legislative Assembly. For instance, the Legislative Council cannot reject the Assembly's suggestions on a Money Bill. Roy wrote that today, whether states are to have a Council is a political issue: "For example, in Tamil Nadu, creating a Council has been a contentious issue... The AIADMK-led government in 1986 abolished the state's second chamber. Since then, DMK has made attempts to re-establish the Council."

Legislative Council elections are seen as a political barometer, indicating support among educated groups and professionals, or their position before key elections, as in the case of UP now. They are not fought on party symbols, but parties still back candidates.

How are MLCs elected?

Article 169 of the Constitution says that Parliament can pass a law to create or abolish a Legislative Council, "if the Legislative Assembly of the State passes a resolution to that effect by a majority of the total membership of the Assembly and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of the Assembly present and voting."

Article 171 says the total number of MLCs cannot be more than one-third of the total MLAs in a state, and not less than 40.

The polls are held through proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote. In general, one-third of all MLCs shall be elected by "electorates consisting of members of municipalities, district boards and such other local authorities..." Then, "One-twelfth shall be elected by electorates consisting of persons residing in the State who have been for at least three years graduates of any university" or equivalent qualifications. Those who want to vote in these seats must fill forms that require proof of qualifications. One-twelfth of the seats is to be elected by those teaching in at least a secondary school for three years in the state. The Governor also nominates some people having "special knowledge" in fields such as literature and science.

Understanding the economics of social unrest: Causes and consequences

WEEKLY ECONOMIC AND POLICY INSIGHTS USING DATA

FRANCE IS not the only country witnessing an outpouring of discontent on the streets. Be it Albania, Belgium, Italy or Portugal, a wave of social unrest appears to be sweeping across the European Union. Most of these protests are eventually turning into a broader cry about the cost of living crisis.

While the timing is often political — several countries such as France and Italy are set for national elections in 2027 — the issues are in fact economic in nature. It is often argued that growing economic inequalities in an economy lead to such social unrest. This applies to arguments that are often advanced by those who oppose immigrants as well; that is, it is argued that more immigrants rob a country's citizens of economic benefits.

Has inequality risen in France?

The most established data in this regard is from The World Inequality Report of 2026, which, in turn, provides data until 2024. The table maps the broad measure of inequality called Income Gap. The Income Gap is a ratio and it measures the average income difference between the poorest half and the richest tenth within a population. The higher the ratio, the greater the inequality.

For France, the gap has increased between 2014 and 2024, as indeed it has for Italy. But in many other peer countries, it has fallen as well; for instance in the UK, Germany and Spain. It is also relevant that while income gap has increased in France, by itself it is among the lowest among peers such as Germany. In India, for instance, the income gap is 38 and in South Africa it is 118.

What are other predictors of unrest?

Economic inequality alone cannot explain social unrest. As Philip Barrett and Sophia Chen wrote for the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in 2021: "Although inequality has crept up slowly in recent decades, it has not significantly worsened over the past decade in a way that would explain the recent surge of discontent."

So what else could one look at? IMF economists Sandile Hlatshwayo and Chris Redl have used machine learning techniques to assess the ability of more than 340 economic and social indicators to predict unrest. "A central finding is that past turmoil — both domestically and in neighboring countries — is by far the most important variable for predicting future strife. It is about 10 times as informative as the most revealing economic or social factors," they wrote. Barrett and Chen explain: "This idea has much in common with a bank run, when people rush to withdraw deposits because they see others in line. As a result, factors signaling that others are more willing to protest — such as past protests or protest in culturally similar neighboring countries — can act as coordinating signals."

Other factors that IMF researchers identified as predictive of unrest are digital access and social media penetration, suggesting that the ability to communicate and coordinate on a large scale may be key for protests.

What are its economic impacts?

So while economic factors are not irrelevant — "prices particularly of food and fuel, seem to be particularly important" — they are not necessarily the biggest predictor of social unrest. But IMF's researchers have found that economic factors play a much more prominent role when it comes to the consequences of unrest.

IMF economist Metodij Hadzi-Vaskov and colleagues have found a link between unrest and subsequent economic performance. On an average, major unrest events are followed by a one percentage point reduction in GDP, six quarters after the event (see the chart). "Unrest motivated by socio-economic factors is associated with sharper GDP contractions than unrest associated with political motives. Yet events triggered by a combination of both factors correspond to the sharpest GDP contractions," they say.

• INCOME INEQUALITY ACROSS COUNTRIES

Israel to close West Bank after Palestinian gunmen kill 2 troops

Israeli army says it had prevented a "terror attack against Israeli civilians"

Associated Press
Jerusalem, October 23

TWO ISRAELI soldiers were killed in an attack in the occupied West Bank on Friday morning that also left two suspected gunmen dead, the military said, violence that is likely to heighten political tensions and security concerns ahead of Israel's parliamentary election next week.

The army said two soldiers, Staff Sgt. Ron Yonatan Roytman, 23, and Sgt. Yuval Shai Svilem, 20, were killed and three others were lightly wounded during an attack by Palestinian gunmen. The attack took place near the Yehuda Junction outside the West Bank city of Hebron.

The army said it had prevented a "terror attack against Israeli civilians" and that the two suspects, both Palestinians from Hebron, were armed with an M16 rifle and a handgun.

It said the men arrived at an Israeli military position in the morning, triggering an exchange of fire lasting approximately 20 minutes, after which the gunmen were killed by Israeli troops. The army said its forces prevented the men from advancing further where the attack could have resulted in civilian casualties.

> BENJAMIN NETANYAHU, PRIME MINISTER OF ISRAEL.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's office later said it had instructed security forces to immediately cordon off Hebron and prepare for a full closure of the West Bank, starting Friday.

During a visit to the site of the attack on Friday, the prime minister said Israel would retaliate with a sweeping anti-terror operation in the Hebron neighbourhood where the gunmen had resided.

"We will evacuate the residents, we will go house by house, we will also remove the weapons there, and all the terror infrastructure will be dealt with and destroyed," Netanyahu said.

Israeli voters will decide next Tuesday whether to grant Netanyahu yet another term in office — or usher in a new era of Israeli politics. The election comes three years after the Hamas-led attacks on Israel that triggered the war in Gaza.

Netanyahu later met with his Security Cabinet and officials from top military and security agencies in an emergency meeting, blaming Hamas for Friday's attack.

"Our brave soldiers thwarted this attack with courage and determination," he said, without elaborating on what the planned attack entailed. "I commend them for their actions and wish our wounded a speedy recovery," he added.

Earlier in the day, Israel's far-right national security minister Itamar Ben-Gvir, known for extremist views, said that the attack shows that Israel needs to restrict the Palestinians' freedom of movement in the West Bank.

He and Finance Minister Bezalel Smotrich, another far-right member of Netanyahu's Cabinet, both called for Israel's military to wrest control of the West Bank from the Palestinian Authority, though there was no evidence Friday to suggest the governing body had any ties to the gunmen.

"There is no alternative to a comprehensive military campaign in Judea and Samaria to dismantle the Palestinian Authority, collect the weapons, and eliminate the terrorists, exactly as we did in Gaza and Lebanon," Smotrich wrote on social media.

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL AMONG INJURED, GUNMAN HELD

Paris, October 23

A GUNMAN who officials suspect may have been motivated by Islamophobic hatred opened fire from a car west of Paris on Friday, killing one person and wounding four others, including a 12-year-old girl.

"The investigations are ongoing, but it is clearly a terrorist crime. It is an extremely serious act," Interior Minister Laurent Nunez told reporters from the Yvelines district west of Paris where the attack took place.

Officials said the 39-year-old suspect, who has not been named, drove through the town of Trappes, where he fired an automatic weapon at a petrol station, a medical centre and a children's playground.

Broadcaster BFM said the injured girl had been hit eight times and was in a serious condition.

"(It was) objectively a racist attack, probably Islamophobic," said Ali Rabeh, the mayor of Trappes, whose parents came from Morocco. "The people targeted today could just as easily have been my mother, my brothers or my sisters-in-law."

Police managed to arrest the man before he could injure anyone else. Video images showed his car riddled with bullets.

Police at the scene of the drive-by shooting that killed one person and wounded several others in Trappes, near Paris, on Friday. REUTERS

The shooting comes at a moment of particular tension in France, after nationwide protests turned violent last Saturday and before further demonstrations this coming weekend.

Rabeh, who is a left-wing politician, called for a collective condemnation of rhetoric that "ideologically arms those capable of carrying out such acts".

The anti-terrorism prosecutor's office, known as PNAT, said its investigation included looking at whether the shooting was racially or religiously motivated.

PNAT can take over any criminal investigation it believes meets the criteria for terrorism, including violence inspired by far-right ideas. Terrorism sentences are tougher, and counter-terrorism forces have greater investigative powers.

France to deploy 70,000 officers ahead of fresh protests today

Paris: Around 70,000 law enforcement officers will be deployed across France on Saturday while the Louvre and many other museums will be closed as authorities seek to prevent violence during planned protests.

Demonstrators plan to take to the streets again Saturday to denounce the high cost of living. Students, members of the CGT labor union and activists from the " yellow vest " movement are all set to join.

French Interior Minister Laurent Nuñez said 70,000 police officers and gendarmes would be deployed, along with helicopters, armored vehicles and water cannons. AP

7 killed, 34 injured in firing at Jordan church funeral

Karak, October 23

SEVEN PEOPLE were killed and 34 injured Friday when gunmen opened fire during a funeral at a church in Jordan's Karak governorate, the head of the country's Public Security Directorate told reporters.

Speaking at a press conference in Karak, Major General Abdallah al-Maaytah said most of those wounded in the shooting at the Hamoud Church in Karak were still receiving treatment, and that the hunt for the attackers was ongoing.

Interior Minister Mazin Al Farrayeh said the attack had been carried out by "extremists", but that it was too early to tell whether they had any links to known groups either inside or outside Jordan. There was no claim of responsibility.

A video aired on Jordan's state-owned Al-Mamlaka television station that appeared to be from a security camera mounted on the church showed three people firing at it from a sidewalk and hiding behind trees. Khaled Burqan, who was at the funeral, told Al-Mamlaka that dozens of people were present and that the gunmen opened fire on them for several minutes.

Jordan's King Abdullah visited Karak hours after the attack and said tha the perpetrators would be punished "with an iron fist".

Russia and Ukraine agree to Oleshky ceasefire brokered by Melania Trump

Washington, October 23

US FIRST lady Melania Trump has secured a ceasefire between Russia and Ukraine in the Russian-controlled city of Oleshky, which will begin next Thursday, the White House said on Friday.

The chief of staff of Russian forces, Valery Gerasimov, said on the Defence Ministry's Telegram channel Russian troops would halt fire from 4 am local time on Tuesday to allow for the humanitarian operation to start.

Residents of the southern Ukrainian city, occupied by Russian forces since February 2022, have reported a food crisis.

"Both nations agreed to temporarily stop all military action in Oleshky to allow for humanitarian aid to enter and to prepare a civilian evacuation through a designated safe passageway," a White House statement said.

US First Lady Melania Trump

Ukraine's top negotiator, David Arakhamia, said on Telegram that the humanitarian operation would start once a ceasefire was in place.

He said the accord, the result of a long process involving Melania Trump and Pope Leo, would set up a humanitarian corridor for residents to leave and allow assistance into town.

In Moscow, the Kremlin welcomed the agreement. It praised Melania Trump's role in securing the agreement and said President Donald Trump and Russian President Vladimir Putin had discussed details.

The Kremlin said earlier this week that work was under way to ease the humanitarian situation in Oleshky after Putin told the pope he was ready to cooperate on the issue. The development comes as President Trump pressures Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy to reach an agreement with Putin to end the war.

"The situation in Oleshky is dire. Oleshky is a front-line war city on the brink of disaster. The remaining population is comprised primarily of elderly residents who urgently need medical attention, medicine, food, and clean water," Melania Trump said in the statement.

The ceasefire will allow non-military teams from both countries to visit residents in their homes and coordinate transportation for those wishing to evacuate to either Russia or Ukraine.

Meghan Markle 'deeply distressed' over child abuse claims against father

London, October 23

PRINCE HARRY'S wife, Meghan, said Friday she was "deeply distressed" by allegations that a collection of child sexual abuse images had been found at her father's former home. She also revealed that a letter containing "troubling allegations" about him had been sent to London police in 2018.

Meghan, also known as the Duchess of Sussex, issued the statement after The Sun, a British tabloid newspaper, reported that her brother found the images while clearing out the home of their father, Thomas Markle Sr, in the Philippines.

Meghan, the Duchess of Sussex

"I am deeply distressed at the news that has come to light in the last 24 hours, and my thoughts are with any children who may have been harmed," Meghan said in a statement.

She also addressed the letter sent to the Metropolitan Police Service's Royal and Specialist Protection unit, which later shared its contents with her.

"It made troubling and disturbing allegations against my father and I was given assurances these were being probed. I hope it can now be understood, despite certain media publications' distortion, any distance from my father and my choice to not allow him to have contact with our children was for one reason: to protect them."

Markle Jr told the newspaper that he reported the images to police in the Philippines and contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the US.

China deploys rescue drones after Tibet earthquake kills 16

Beijing: China on Friday deployed satellites and drones to search for survivors after a magnitude 7.0 earthquake struck a mountainous region in Tibet, killing at least 16 people and injuring 76 others, authorities said.

The high-intensity shallow earthquake, which struck at a depth of below 10 km at 10.33 PM on Thursday, caused widespread devastation and heavy casualties in the remote Baqen County of the city of Nagqu in China's Tibet Autonomous Region.

So far, 12,489 residents have been evacuated, and rescue and relief operations, along with the resettlement of affected residents, are underway, state-run Xinhua news agency reported from Lhasa, the regional capital.

To assist the rescue efforts, China has deployed satellites and unmanned aerial vehicles to conduct emergency communication support and imaging of the quake-hit area, the China Aerospace Science and Technology Corporation said on Friday.

China allocated $7.5 million in emergency disaster relief funds and earmarked another 30 million yuan for recovery efforts, according to Xinhua.

More than 330 houses collapsed or were damaged in the quake, and the extent of the damage is being assessed, according to earlier reports. PTI

Govt passes Bill to ban social media for children

GREECE'S PARLIAMENT approved a bill Friday that bans the use of social media platforms for children under 15 amid growing concerns over their impact on the health and safety of minors. The ban comes into force on January 1, 2027. Greek PM Kyriakos Mitsotakis said social media platforms have 2-1/2 months to devise a way to verify users' ages and protect their privacy. Greece is among seven EU countries seeking an age verification solution with the European Commission. REUTERS

• COMPLEX SOFTWARE OFTEN HIDES UNEXPECTED BUGS, AND FINDING VULNERABILITIES AND DEVELOPING EXPLOITS ONCE TOOK WEEKS OR MONTHS OF SKILLED WORK, SAY EXPERTS

AI can find software flaws in hours; fixing them before hackers strike is the challenge

Raphael Satter & A J Vicens
Washington, October 23

ADVANCES IN artificial intelligence have uncovered a stream of new software vulnerabilities that are almost certain to trigger more disruption along the lines of the outages that percolated across global government websites this week, according to seven cybersecurity professionals who spoke to Reuters.

AI helped drive a doubling of the number of digital flaws discovered year-on-year, according to research due to be published in the coming days by VulnCheck, a Massachusetts-based threat intelligence firm.

Matthew Prince, the chief executive of the digital infrastructure firm Cloudflare, told Reuters he was aware of "a bunch of additional severe vulnerabilities that are present in other pieces of critical software" and predicted busy months ahead as AI surfaced long-hidden weaknesses in the fabric of the internet.

"I think we're going to have a couple years where every single week it's going to feel like the sky is falling," Prince said.

The outages that spread across government sites in Europe and elsewhere beginning on Wednesday happened after the discovery of weaknesses in PHP, a venerable programming language that powers a huge swath of the internet.

Operators have been rushing to fix their software in anticipation of mass exploitation and, because some felt they could not patch before hackers jumped in, a subset simply yanked their sites offline until they could make them safe.

VulnCheck researcher Patrick Garrity said the scramble to fix PHP came during an already busy week in cybersecurity.

The week also brought disclosures of vulnerabilities PHP alternative Node.js and streaming program Plex, breaches tied to AI gateway LiteLLM and development platform Railway, and the revelation that the Indian certificate authority eMudhra had used an extraordinarily flimsy cryptographic key that potentially put users across the internet at risk.

Models can find one bug after another by subjecting codebases to round-the-clock scrutiny and can turn exploits in hours. REUTERS

"If we just saw four or five things like this, I would expect we're going to see a lot more," Garrity said. "I think there's going to be more fire drills for anything that's internet exposed."

The codebases that run modern programs are sprawling and mistakes, or "bugs," that open up potential avenues for exploitation often crop up in unexpected places. Previously, finding bugs required a baseline level of skill, and taking advantage of those bugs to build digital lockpicks – called "exploits" – could be expected to take weeks or months of work by an experienced professional.

That would in the past have provided defenders a little breathing room to fix bugs and gently roll out software updates.

AI has effectively thrown those assumptions out the window. Models can find one bug after another by subjecting codebases to round-the-clock scrutiny, and can turn around exploits in hours.

Shane Fry, the chief technology officer of Virginia-based RunSafe Security, said the demonstrated performance of AI models over the past few months had effectively laid to rest any doubts over whether they would change the industry.

"What's fundamentally, and unquestionably, changing is the timescale for not only finding vulnerabilities, but how quickly adversaries can weaponize them," Fry said.

While all the experts Reuters spoke to agreed defenders' timelines were getting shorter, they were split on whether AI would lead to a hacker free-for-all.

Daniel Stenberg, the lead developer of the file transfer tool curl, argued the vulnerabilities found by AI models tended to be exotic bugs that were difficult for rogue actors to take advantage of. Ramy Rahman, a senior principal solutions engineer at cybersecurity company ArmorCode, said "more disclosed vulnerabilities do not automatically mean more successful attacks."

The confrontation might be scary, he said, but leaving the monsters to lurk quietly behind closed doors was far worse.

"The reality is, we're going to get a lot of this stuff cleaned up," he said. Reuters

Parsi bodies support Tata Trusts amid power struggle

Mumbai: The power struggle over Tata Sons has taken a new turn, with leading Parsi organisations backing Tata Trusts and the Tata family, warning that "any subversion" of the Tata Group's "unique altruistic character" could have "serious repercussions" for India's global image.

In a letter to Prime Minister Narendra Modi dated October 7, six Parsi and Zoroastrian organisations have sought to frame the controversy as a matter of national interest, arguing that any move undermining the Tata Group's distinctive character could damage an institution whose contribution to India extends well beyond business.

The letter, signed on behalf of the Bombay Parsi Punchayet, the Federation of Parsi Zoroastrian Anjumans of India, the Federation of Zoroastrian Associations of North America, the Zoroastrian Trust Funds of Europe, the Global Council of Zoroastrians Trust and the World Zoroastrian Chamber of Commerce, expresses solidarity with Tata Trusts and the Tata family, including Noel Tata. ENS

TATA SONS BOARD HAS FAVOURED LISTING, BUT TRUSTS LED BE NOEL TATA IS AGAINST IT

Tata Sons may have to go for listing, hints RBI chief

George Mathew
Mumbai, October 23

HINTING THAT Tata Sons may have to go for listing on the stock exchanges, Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor Sanjay Malhotra on Friday said non-banking finance companies (NBFCs) or core investment companies (CICs) like Tata Sons and others are required to be registered with the RBI because of the risks involved, including systemic risks.

"And if it is in the upper layer (of the NBFC category), then it is required to list," he said.

The RBI had recently classified Tata Sons as a CIC within the NBFC-Upper layer framework. These NBFCs and CICs are required to go for listing as per the RBI norms.

Any entity falling within the RBI's definition of an NBFC or a CIC must be registered with the central bank if it has direct or indirect access to public funds, he said while speaking at the NDTV World Summit in New Delhi.

"They sit on top of group companies where they leverage funds... they can leverage funds, they do leverage funds, and they use the balance sheets of the group companies to return those funds," Malhotra said.

The RBI has recently classified Tata Sons as a core investment company under the NBFC-Upper layer framework. REUTERS

"So, the funds of the public, whether through banks, corporate bonds or other means, are at risk when these CICs engage in this kind of activity. It is for these reasons that CICs, which are a type of NBFCs, are required to be registered," he said.

"Only in cases where a CIC does not have access, directly or indirectly, to public funds do we allow them not to register," Malhotra said.

The RBI had recently rejected the proposal of Tata Sons for de-registration as a CIC and asked the company to comply with the guidelines. At the September 17 board meeting of Tata Sons, directors decided to go ahead with listing of the company, as directed by the RBI, despite opposition from Tata Trusts chairman Noel Tata.

Tata Trusts have been arguing for keeping the company unlisted. On September 28, Tata Trusts sent a proposal to the Tata Sons board for the merger of Tata Electronics Systems Solutions Pvt Ltd (TESS) and Tata Consulting Engineers (TCE) with Tata Sons Pvt Ltd (TSPL).

The move, if approved and implemented, would fundamentally alter the structure and nature of Tata Sons and could take it outside the regulatory framework that triggered the RBI's listing directive.

The power struggle between the Tata Sons board and Tata Trusts on the issue of listing has intensified with trustees Venu Srinivasan, who is also on the board of Tata Sons, and Vijay Singh filing complaints with the Charity Commissioner.

Meanwhile, Malhotra said India's economic growth remained broad-based, backed by resilient high-frequency indicators, while reiterating that price stability remained the central bank's primary objective. He also said the RBI's aim in the foreign exchange market was to prevent disruption and disorderly conditions, without targeting any particular level of the rupee.

'Middle powers like India are stitching trade ties to dodge US-China fallout'

EXPRESS interview

JEAN-PIERRE LANDAU
PROFESSOR, DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS AT SCIENCES PO (PARIS)

A SPATE of trade deals and economic partnerships stitched by middle powers such as India, Canada, and the European Union (EU) are signs that they are preparing for the fallout of economic ties between the two of the world's largest economies — the US and China, said Jean-Pierre Landau, a Professor in the Department of Economics at Sciences Po (Paris), in an interview with Arav Shah and Ravi Dutta Mishra. Amid worries of a looming debt crisis, Landau said the US debt is still very safe compared to the others, but part of that safety rests on the expectation that the institutions will be respected. However, aggressive measures taken by the US are aggravating the debt problem, he said on the sidelines of the Kautilya Economic Conclave earlier this month. Edited excerpts:

The US-China conflict is going beyond a trade war. What is your take on how the middle powers, such as India, are navigating this power struggle?

The concept of middle power is a very interesting and challenging one. The way we see things moving clearly is a sort of organised attempt (by middle powers) to keep trade relationships stable, unimpaired by too many protectionist measures, by signing free trade agreements and cooperative economic agreements. The EU, Canada, and India are very active in this area. So, they are all trying to keep a network of trade relationships protected from the US and China. Up until now, it has managed very well. This being said, we're still very much in a vulnerable situation. We are not immune to a possible financial shock coming from either the debt markets, the private credit markets, or the stock market. We have the G20, we have BRICS, but they don't have the kind of operational mechanism for financial and monetary cooperation that would be necessary if we have financial troubles coming in.

I would say India is in a special position because of its size and plays an important role in the emerging world. I would say Europe is a beacon of monetary stability. It has a very credible monetary regime and a very credible central bank. So, these are the pillars on which we might want to build.

What is your sense of the looming debt crisis? The US has become more aggressive in its efforts to bridge its trade deficit due to rising debt.

On debt, I think the causality may be the reverse of the one you have described. I don't think the US is becoming aggressive because they have a debt problem. I think the fact that they're becoming aggressive is creating a debt problem. It has led people to question the commitment of the US to the stability of its institutions. I mean, you see the president challenging the independence of the central bank. The US debt is still very safe compared to the others, but part of that safety rests on the expectation that the institutions will be respected, the stability will be ensured by the government, and if there are doubts, they come from the actions of the authorities themselves.

AI-related investments are driving global trade, but there are fears of a bubble.

High stock market valuation is a concern. There are three concerns. The second concern is circular financing. So, big chip makers are financing their clients and creating sales for themselves out of their own loans. That may have limits. Since it is a totally new technology which is extremely capital intensive, the ability of this model to generate the cash flow which will justify the valuation and the debt accumulation is definitely a question mark. So, in my view, it's not so much a question of a bubble, and if there's a bubble, a pure stock market bubble, we can absorb it. But the question is the viability of the whole financial structure and growth which is taking place in that sector.

India resilient to global shocks: RBI Bulletin

ENS Economic Bureau
New Delhi, October 23

INDIA'S ECONOMY has remained resilient to global shocks, supported by robust domestic demand, sustained manufacturing and services activity and improving exports, but rising inflation and geopolitical uncertainties pose key risks to the outlook, according to the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) October Bulletin.

The article on the "State of the Economy" noted that the International Monetary Fund (IMF) raised its growth projection for India for 2026-27 by 60 basis points to 7%, citing stronger-than-expected economic momentum, resilient domestic demand and robust services activity.

"The Indian economy has withstood the shocks well," it said, pointing to the continued strength of high-frequency indicators despite uncertainties.

Inflation, however, has emerged as a key concern for policymakers. Consumer price index (CPI)-based inflation rose to 5.5% in September, driven by broad-based increases in food, fuel and core components. Core inflation, excluding food and fuel, edged up to 4.3%, while the measure excluding precious metals increased to 3.2%.

"In October so far (till 19th), high-frequency data suggest broad-based increase in food prices," it said.

Against this backdrop, the Monetary Policy Committee raised the policy repo rate by 25 basis points to 5.5% and shifted its stance from neutral to calibrated tightening, the article said, citing elevated inflation expectations and early signs of inflation becoming more widespread.

The West Asia conflict, now in its eighth month, has kept energy prices elevated and constrained supply chains. Strengthening El Niño conditions and uncertainty over global trade policies have added to inflation risks. Higher sovereign bond yields and tighter financial conditions have also triggered portfolio outflows from emerging market economies.

On the external front, merchandise exports recorded double-digit growth for the sixth consecutive month, helping narrow the trade deficit in September from a year earlier. Services exports remained strong, while foreign direct investment (FDI), external commercial borrowings (ECB) and remittance flows strengthened in August.

"Navigating this environment, the Indian economy has been anchored by solid macroeconomic fundamentals and policy interventions to cushion downside risks," the article said.

It added that RBI measures to curb speculative activity in the foreign exchange market, along with strong inflows (of $133 billion) under the FCNR(B) swap window, supported foreign exchange reserves.

As of October 16, reserves covered 10.6 months of goods imports, providing a buffer against external shocks. FE

FSDC discusses ways to boost investment

New Delhi: Financial Stability and Development Council (FSDC), headed by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, on Friday deliberated on strengthening the domestic investment ecosystem, enhancing capital flows and deepening financial sector reforms.

Sitharaman urged the Council to hold its meetings at more frequent, predefined intervals in light of rising geopolitical headwinds and global uncertainty, an official release said. The FSDC, comprising key financial regulators, is the apex government body driving financial stability, sector growth, and inter-regulatory coordination. PTI

Labour survey changes planned to gauge gig, unpaid house work

Siddharth Upasani
New Delhi, October 23

THE MINISTRY of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) plans to make changes to its Periodic Labour Force Survey (PLFS) to better represent gig workers and understand the amount of unpaid household work done and whether it is out of choice.

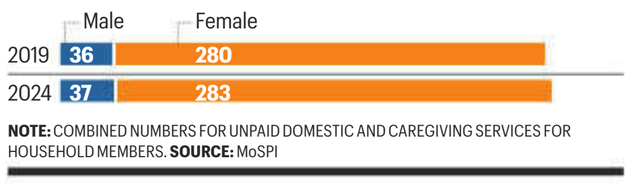

Feedback on the proposed changes, which are to come into effect from January, has been invited by November 7.

As part of the revamp, households will be asked whether any member worked with a digital platform such as Ola, Uber, Zomato, Amazon, and Urban Company over the last 365 days.

It will also be asked what goods or services they provide, whether they work for multiple platforms, what prompted them to take up platform work, and the major challenges they face.

Data on digital platform workers — a subset of gig workers — is being collected on a trial basis since January 2026. A 2022 NITI Aayog report estimated the number of gig and platform workers will rise to 2.35 crore by 2029-30.

• MINUTES SPENT PER DAY ON UNPAID DOMESTIC, CAREGIVING WORK

NOTE: COMBINED NUMBERS FOR UNPAID DOMESTIC AND CAREGIVING SERVICES FOR HOUSEHOLD MEMBERS. SOURCE: MoSPI

MoSPI also plans to ask household members if the things they make and the work they do are for their own consumption or for selling to others. These include fetching water, cooking, cleaning, feeding and taking care of children, and helping elders, among others.

More interestingly, household members will be asked if they actively sought work for pay or profit in the previous 30 days, whether they want to do such work at present, and the main reason why they have not looked for such work.

One of the options that can be used to answer the last question include family and household responsibilities.

The Indian Express had reported last year in September that experts had asked MoSPI to find out through its Time Use Survey if the unpaid work performed by women in taking care of their children and elders is because they want to do it or they feel it is their responsibility.

Since MoSPI does not conduct the Time Use Survey every year, the PLFS is being used to find out the same.

The 2024 Time Use Survey showed that females above the age of 6 spent more than four-and-a-half hours per day on average on unpaid domestic and caregiving services. For males, it was 37 minutes.

Infosys cuts forecast as AI spending hits N America growth

Bengaluru: Infosys cut its annual revenue growth forecast on Friday as weakness in its key North American market deepened, underscoring how AI is disrupting the traditional IT services industry.

The news sent US-listed shares of India's No. 2 IT firm down 7.5% in premarket trading. The $315 billion-worth IT sector has been grappling with disruption from AI as clients seek productivity gains, push for lower prices and redirect spending toward AI-related projects.

While the technology is creating new revenue opportunities, it is also pressuring the traditional outsourcing model by linking fees increasingly to outcomes and productivity rather than billable hours.

Infosys cut its FY27 revenue growth forecast to 1%-2% from 1.5%-3%, while most analysts had expected it to trim only the upper end of the range to 2.5%. This "indicates that demand hasn't picked up in the North America market as tech spend moves towards AI players," said Gaurav Vasu, founder of market intelligence firm UnearthInsight. REUTERS

The IMPORTANCE of Being Earnest

CLAYFACE
★★★½
DIRECTOR: James Watkins
CAST: Tom Rhys Harries, Naomi Ackie, Eddie Marsan, Max Minghella, David Dencik, Joshua James

Shalini Langer

IN ITS rebooted form, the DC Universe has been doing some interesting things — tinkering with the format of Superman to give it a different tone, giving a kickass Supergirl who holds her own, and now making the first standalone feature film on a minor character from the Batman comics, Clayface.

It's a surprisingly winsome outing, with the origin story of the antihero staying close to the dingy, shabby, forgotten parts of Gotham City, and from all that, creating a character you are rooting for till the end. The script was originally written by Mike Flanagan — who is having a moment with his Carrie TV series — with Hossein Amini (Drive) stepping in later.

If their decision to keep it simple, with no grand superhero-like flourishes, serves the film well, the credit also goes to Tom Rhys Harries in the titular role of Matt Hagen / Clayface, whose sharp, rugged face is handsomely craggly and feels disarmingly innocent. He switches modes as required of his character, but an essential earnestness remains about him of a boy who has risen from the worst part of town to Oscar's glitzy heights.

It is when Matt is at this peak of his not-long film career, and in the middle of the Academy Awards campaign, that he flirts with disaster. He ignores the warnings of his friend Corey (Joshua James) to go to bed with Mia (Joana Ribeiro), who is the girlfriend of mafia boss Szabo (David Dencik). The morning after, Szabo teaches him a lesson by cutting up his face.

Matt soon loses his film roles and his Oscar, his agent and managers, all his money to surgeries and fighting Szabo in court, and even his reputation as old stories are dug up to paint him as a sexual assaulter etc. Meanwhile, he keeps getting chased and clicked on the streets by anyone with a camera phone.

Enter Caitlyn (Naomie Ackie), a scientist looking for funding for her breakthrough nanocell-repair technology. These nanocells, injected into the body, act as stem cells which seek out and repair damaged tissue. Caitlyn does not have clearance for human trials yet, but Matt feels he has no time to waste.

And so it starts, with Caitlyn's reassurance that "A.I." has the nanocells under control, not surprisingly, turning out to be a matter more of human wish.

Director James Watkins serves up the horrors well, as the cells start manifesting in unexpected ways in unexpected situations, and Matt discovers powers of self-healing (including blood he has spilled flying back into his body), and even later, when Matt is in control of what or whom he will change into.

The scene of Matt using a scissor within the cramped toilet of an airplane, seeing heavy turbulence, to try and cut the skin flap that has suddenly grown over his eyes is difficult to look at, as is another instance when a surgeon tries to repair Matt's sliced nose. The first few people who have crossed him and against whom Matt has his revenge are reluctant killings and, for that reason, unexpectedly imaginative.

Clayface tends to drag in the three-quarters when the cycle becomes almost a repeat — of Matt killing, repenting, being soothed by Caitlyn, and developing (who would have known?) feelings for her. Ackie is easy to like, her Caitlyn having none of the detachment of a scientist and all the warmth of a person. As Caitlyn's cop fiance John, Max Minghella is superfluous and, horribly, outfoxed.

But Clayface picks up again towards the end as Matt, whose acting was once thought to be so versatile as no one could tell the real him, now really becomes a person he struggles to identify with. At one level, the story is also a comment on how hate and anger can literally consume and change a person.

Of course, this may be as good as it gets for Clayface, before it is simply yet more putty to be moulded and fit into DC's world.

WRITTEN AND directed by Karthik Subbaraj, the film stars Keerthy Suresh in the titular character, while Sananth and Rishikanth play the lead roles. It follows two inseparable friends whose lives are transformed by the arrival of a girl. The film, which received mixed reviews, explores transgender experiences, queer love and gender identity, challenging rigid social norms and conventional masculinity in rural Tamil Nadu.

ALAKA SAHANI

SUMO DIDI
DIRECTOR: Jayant Rohatgi
CAST: Shriyam Bhagnani, Chaitanya Sharma, Anubha Fatehpuria, Nitesh Pandey
STREAMING ON: ZEE5

Alaka Sahani

THE FILM opens with a moment of triumph, with Hetal Dave (Shriyam Bhagnani), India's first professional female sumo wrestler, beating her opponent at an international competition. The narrative then takes us back to her school days, when she is ridiculed for her weight. Her appearance leaves her mother anxious, who is eager to get her married.

Hoping to channel her anger at being judged for her appearance, Hetal's father enrols her in a judo class. It works. She goes on to become the state champion. A chance encounter with Japanese sumo wrestler Taoshi gives her a new purpose.

Training under a local physiotherapist and friend (Chaitanya Sharma), she initially relies on rudimentary methods. Her efforts pay off when she wins a bout at a sumo championship in Taiwan, which opens the film.

The journey after becomes tougher. But here, the film could have been more gripping. The narrative could have used more dramatic tension to show the setbacks testing her resolve and what keeps her going.

Though the film is based on the life of sumo wrestler Hetal Dave, her story has been fictionalised to make it more engaging. Mumbai, where Dave grew up, gives way to Kolkata as the protagonist's hometown. Screenwriters Nikhil Sachan, Akash Chawla and Arunava Joy Sengupta devote considerable time to capture Hetal's training and her struggles to find a sponsor. Yet, these challenges do not always translate on screen.

The principal cast keeps the story moving, but Bhagnani does the heavy-lifting. She lends the character a quiet determination that helps the film overcome some of its dramatic shortcomings.

The film's messaging on women empowerment, as well-intentioned as it is, often feels spelt out. Nonetheless, Sumo Didi makes for a compelling case for body positivity.

GAJAB RAAT
DIRECTOR: Ritesh Shah, Neeraj Pandey
CAST: Manoj Bajpayee, Divya Dutta, Akshay Oberoi, Saqib Saleem, Aditi Sandhya Sharma, Nushrratt Bharuccha
STREAMING ON: Netflix

Shubhra Gupta

ANOTHER OF those iss raat ki subah nahin sagas, featuring bent cops, greedy politicians, gun-toting hoods, and sundry others chasing a common target, the best thing about Gajab Raat is its lead actor.

Manoj Bajpayee, unerringly playing a very efficient but very corrupt cop whose conscience is not completely dead, kept me watching even when the pace slackened.

A film whose level of interest depends entirely on how pacy it is has no business losing track of time, but given that it goes over two hours, what else could we have expected. After losing no time in getting everything kickstarted, with a grievously injured girl (Aditi Sandhya Sharma) sliding out of a moving car in the middle of Connaught Place, followed by a rapid if reluctant response from an investigating officer (Bajpayee) and his team, a whole host of shady characters target the victim who is left fighting for her life.

Initially, the melee is racy enough. A CBI officer (Akshay Oberoi) threatens to take over the case from the cop. A representative of a woman's organisation wants to dog his footsteps. Another officer (Saqib Saleem) shows up with a different version. Who's the girl? Is she a Russian mobster's mole? Or is she a journalist on the trail of a story that will damage reputations — a strong female politician (Divya Dutta) as well as her associate (Sunit Tandon) are in the mix — across the board.

In these kinds of flicks, you aren't really looking for grim realism. What you do want is colourful characters and zing, but after a point, it begins to meander and explain. The film was originally called Ghooskhor Pandat, but with the thin-skinned creatures we have become, there was huge uproar. Haww, how can such worthy beings be bribe-takers? Gajab Raat is a generic alternative: once the edge has fallen off, so does the film.

The only one who keeps going, regardless, is Nushrratt Bharuccha's lady of the night, whose flirty exchanges with Bajpayee's cop made me smile. But my favourite bits from the film have to be Bajpayee going, "Sir, sir, sir, sir," putting his low-life superiors in their place, elevating himself to the status of a hero who is on the take, but who will never be taken over.

UDTA TEER
DIRECTOR: Aakash Kaushik
CAST: Ayushmann Khurrana, Sara Ali Khan, Suhail Nayyar, Mukul Dev, Gulshan Grover, Ram Kapoor, Rahul Bose, Raghubir Yadav, Brijendra Kala, Parul Gulati

Shubhra Gupta

AN AMNESIAC Pakistani spy on an Indian mission that goes massively wrong seems like a cracker of an idea. Especially when it's being fronted by Ayushmann Khurrana, who has the ability to be serious and droll both, without getting all heavy about it.

It's too bad that the film forgets the memo, just like its hero, because it never quite knows whether it wants to be a comedy or a tragedy, getting all twisted out of shape trying to figure left, right, both, and where-do-I-go-from-here?

There's no confusion in the way it begins. An operation in Kashmir, with a crack Indian anti-terrorist team all set to smoke out dreaded terrorist Azhar Masood (Mukul Dev), goes bust when he escapes across the border. A crestfallen Vikrant (Khurrana) is let off the hook by his boss (Smita Tambe), but his colleague (Suhail Nayyar) grows ever suspicious: is there more going on than meets the eye? Who is Bilal Ahmed? Is the Pakistani infiltrator hiding in plain sight?

There's much to enjoy here. Or at least that's what we are promised, as the Pakistani establishment, all gung-ho about their man on the inside, toplined by Gulshan Grover and Ram Kapoor spouting uss-paar-waali-Punjabi, gobbles biryani and korma. As Masood who is constantly swiping right on 'Hinder' with its multiple 'hoors', Dev is a hoot. And an ensemble which includes Rahul Bose as a top Indian spy chief, Brijendra Kala as a compromised babu, and Raghubir Yadav as a canny bearded maulana, should have had no difficulty in providing the laughs.

But the fun-and-games, which start at full-tilt, dry down quickly. Operation Sindoor comes up for air a few times, which feels like a thrust-in mention of a real-life event in a fictional film, which in turn suddenly remembers to invent a job for its leading lady (Sara Ali Khan) in a 'defence ministry', where she goes about discovering 'top-secret files' when not romancing her spouse.

All clear so far? No? Never mind. Because this film is neither fish nor fowl, neither Gadar nor Pathaan but a tedious mix of spoof and sentiment which gets into its stride only sporadically.

A Monster of a Misfire

HOPE ★★★
CAST: Hwang Jung-min, Zo In-sung, Hoyeon, Lee Sang-hee, Michael Fassbender

Shalini Langer

AT 160 minutes, this film is double the length it should have been. At one-and-a-half monsters, it had just the right number, before becoming greedy.

Writer-director Na Hong-jin, whose films combining horror and thrills have had both commercial and critical success, overplays his hand here. So much so that even charismatic actor couple Michael Fassbender and Alicia Vikander have to make do with crumbs, hidden under make-up and prosthetics.

Hope begins very promisingly, as Beom Seok (Hwang Jung-min), police chief of the town on which the film is named, is called by his cousin Sung Ki (Zo In-sung) to investigate the sudden appearance of a dead and badly mutilated bull in the middle of a lane, amidst fields. Sung Ki has gathered his "boys", that is other men with a lot of time and dubiously procured guns on their hands like him, anticipating that what they are looking at is a monster that will need hunting.

They joke about a "tiger" that comes to these parts once every few years, down from Siberia and crossing North Korea, across mines. Beom soon realises his leg is being pulled, though Na Hong-jin clearly establishes with this brief discussion that the area is near the demilitarised zone that separates the two Koreas, with billboards across town talking of "aliens" and "invaders".

As Sung Ki with his group ventures into the forest, Beom heads to the town to warn residents to keep inside and stay safe. But, by the time he has arrived, it is already too late. In what are the film's best moments, the creature, still unseen, looms just behind a building, or inside a space ripped apart and filled with bodies, growling and sending things flying into the sky. Beom must gather his wits and overcome his jitters to press on, to catch the monster.

His deputy, Sung Ae (Hoyeon, of Squid Game fame), is more spunky and makes quite an entrance, stepping off a police car right in the monster's way. She also deals it the first blow. This is also when we get the first close look at the monster, who seems crazed and disoriented, racing across streets and into things, leaving destruction in its wake — just like the people chasing it at times, but also different.

Hope is the best in these parts, in both building suspense, maintaining it, revealing the monster in a great sequence and astonishing us with the horrors that can be achieved in the streets and wreckage of a tiny town, and in how fast a thing can gallop on all fours. Till then, even Na Hong-jin's attempts at humour land, like when Beom accidentally shoots someone and the stranger with him keeps reminding him of that. Or, how Beom keeps getting surprised at how many guns are around the town, with ordinary men and women — and even his own deputy. However, after a point, the jokes are laboured and cruel, the characters too chatty, the killing too flippant, the chase too gratuitous — even if once in a while Na Hong-jin stuns with the forest sequences.

A scientist lands to study the monster, and in a long scene, uses a chain saw to cut it open. However, she is never consulted again as the killing spree continues, and even after a discovery is made that demands a pause.

It's clear that Na Hong-jin is aiming for a sequel. The end seems to have been devised just so to keep that opening available. But, like all that follows before it, there is little attempt to explain how we got here.

Pratika's ton, Charani's 4/23 help India rout Zimbabwe

Press Trust of India
Vadodara, October 23

PRATIKA RAWAL slammed her third 50-overs century after Shree Charani recorded career-best figures of 4/23 as India thrashed Zimbabwe by nine wickets in the opening women's ODI of their three-match series here on Friday.

After Charani's exploits helped India bowl out Zimbabwe for a mere 197 on a batting haven, Pratika made the most of her promotion to the opening slot, smacking an unbeaten 100 not out to anchor the chase. India went over the line making 200/1 in 27.1 overs, with their regular opening pair of skipper Smriti Mandhana (32) and vice-captain Shafali Verma (64 not out) also cashing in on the opportunity.

Pratika's unbeaten hundred included 15 fours as the right-hander scored at a strike rate of over 100, well above her career strike rate. Pratika displayed her rich arsenal of strokes, especially along the ground, without taking any unwarranted risks. "(I try to) keep things simple. First thing is to accept that injuries and breaks are part of the game, so no use stressing over it. I do have a good support system," Pratika, adjudged the player of the match, said.

On a benign batting track and against a bowling attack which didn't pose any particular threat, India got off the blocks quickly and were soon scoring almost 10 runs an over.

But against the run of play, Mandhana's wicket fell when she found Beloved Biza at long-on off Olinder Chare in the 16th over, having added 94 for the first wicket. Shafali, who dropped down to number three, continued to blaze her way to another big score, clobbering four sixes and five fours to make 64 not out off 33 balls.

Earlier, Charani stifled the Zimbabwe batters with her career-best figures as the visitors could only manage 197 all-out despite Biza's gritty 62.

Charani broke the back of Zimbabwe's resolve with wickets at key intervals and ensured the visitors did not make the most of a batting-friendly wicket here in Kotambi. "(India bowling coach) Avi sir (Avishkar Salvi) has told me to just give revs on the ball and just think about yourself and what you can do and bowl to your strengths," Charani said.

BRIEF SCORES: Zimbabwe 197 all out in 49.5 overs (Beloved Biza 62; Shree Charani 4/23) lost to India 200 for 1 in 27.1 overs (Pratika Rawal 100 not out, Shafali Verma 64 not out) by 9 wickets

Axar's slipping control leaves India with a T20 dilemma

All-rounder's fading precision in pace, length and angles has become a growing concern

Sandip G
New Delhi, October 23

In 17 T20Is since the World Cup, Axar Patel has conceded 9.1 runs an over, a spike from his earlier economy rate of 7.7. ANI

AN ODD six or two doesn't bother Axar Patel. "Kabhi kabhi yeh hota T20I mein (This happens sometimes in T20Is). Even your best balls could be hit for six. You try not to repeat the same mistake and bounce back," he once told this newspaper. Had he brooded over the sixes struck off his bowling, he wouldn't have built the imposing career he has. Yet some sixes sting. Bowlers fall apart, begin to question themselves, and become unrecognisable.

It took just one violent swipe from Finn Allen for Axar to turn into a different man. Allen backed away a fraction from the stumps and bludgeoned the full ball outside off-stump over long-off. It was a staple Axar ball, one most batsmen would have nudged for a single. But he was a yard slower than he had thought, and Allen had adequate time to process his options. Axar blew his cheeks in anguish.

This is the crux of Axar's T20 smarts: landing the ball on the precise spot he wants, at the exact pace and angle he chooses. Behind his recent travails is the slow waning of the virtue that made him India's foremost white-ball spinner. Not every ball does what the bowler wants, but Axar's deliveries are disobeying him more often.

The margins are fine: a yard shorter, an inch fuller, the angle a trifle wider. For a bowler who has built his game around fine margins and subtleties, and not a stack of variations, even minor aberrations can be damning in the most punishing format of all for bowlers.

Since the World Cup, his numbers paint a disturbing picture. In 17 T20Is, he has conceded 9.1 runs an over, a substantial spike from his earlier economy rate of 7.7. Take out the Asian Games and the one-off Japan match, where his economy rate was 5.28, and his ability to strangle batsmen has diminished across conditions. England's batsmen scored at 11.14 an over against him in England; West Indies' at 12.21; Allen and company at 12.75. Some of the decks were horribly flat, but choking batsmen irrespective of conditions was his calling card.

Change in speed

The stats are not the cruellest portrait. It is that he can no longer produce what he habitually did. Take pace modulation. He was always on the quicker side, consistently in the 95-100 kmh band. But often he would reduce the speed without any discernible reduction in arm-speed.

The change in speed is more discernible these days, especially when he tries to bowl faster than his normal range. At Hagley Oval he often stretched the speed gun to 102-103 kmh. In doing so he went utterly flat, and the arm-speed at release was quicker.

It was as though he just wanted to complete his over as fast as he could. Allen, and then Glenn Phillips, treated him like a military medium pacer: stand firm in the crease and swing through the line.

When he tried to slow down, he became too slow and the ball lost its bite. Phillips had ample time to sashay down the surface and thump him past the sight-screen. He doesn't beat batsmen in flight or drop in this format; he tosses it up, and a batsman of Phillips' calibre will not miss that. When he tried to pull his length back, he at times went too short. He went wider off the crease to exaggerate the angle from around the stumps.

He was so masterful at manipulating angles that the ball would still land on middle and off, bringing leg before wicket into play. Here, a few veered down the leg-side, and some slipped out of his palm and flew as full tosses. In a nutshell, he is now exactly the bowler he doesn't want to be: one who cannot land the ball where he wants, at the pace and angle he envisions. Allen's wicket brought relief, and suggested there could still be several games left in him. The under-cut ball gripped the surface, stopped on him, and held its line to induce a miscue. There was the double-wicket maiden against West Indies in Lucknow as well. Such instances have been rare since the World Cup.

He was never the most prolific wicket-taker. He was the enforcer who tied an end up, piled on the dot balls and built pressure. When he is not pulling the chain on runs, India are left with neither a wicket-taking aggressor nor a run-traffic controller.

Kuldeep Yadav and Varun Chakaravarthy are the two extreme alternatives in the eleven. Both are proven wicket-takers who can influence the game with a spell, but their inclusion weakens India's batting depth. Axar, though, hasn't quite starred with the bat down the order. Apart from his 63 against Sri Lanka three years ago, most of his utility knocks have come in the middle order. Naman Dhir cannot yet be trusted with four overs. There are alternatives outside the squad, such as Washington Sundar and Krunal Pandya.

More pertinently, it could just be a passing phase every cricketer endures. He is too valuable and proven a player to be discarded like a stale curry leaf. But in the immediate context of the series, the selectors have a tough riddle to solve: whether to stick or twist with Axar, a firm pillar of successive T20 World Cup-winning squads, but now shaking dangerously.

• ISHAN OUT, DOOR OPENS FOR VAIBHAV?

ISHAN KISHAN has been ruled out of India's second T20I against New Zealand, the BCCI said on Friday. The board said that Kishan has suffered a "low grade right adductor strain". Kishan's injury was the chief reason why India shuffled their batting order during the first T20I, with Tilak Varma walking in at No.3 position which the former usually occupies.

KISHAN'S INJURY possibly opens the door for Vaibhav Sooryavanshi to find a place in the eleven for the second T20I. Shreyas Iyer had said that the 15-year-old, who has usually played as an opener, will have to wait for his chances due to the rich vein of form that Abhishek Sharma and Sanju Samson, are in.

Ishan Kishan has a 'low grade adductor strain', BCCI said. ANI

WICKETKEEPER-BATTER Kumar Kushagra, meanwhile, was on Friday added to the squad as a cover for Kishan. Kushagra was a part of the India A squad which will take on New Zealand A in their three-match unofficial Test series starting on Saturday in Lincoln.

Sindhu makes second Super 750 semis of 2026, to meet Hina Akechi in Paris

Mumbai, October 23

PV Sindhu recorded an easy 21-13, 21-14 victory over Taiwanese Chiu Pin Chan. She will face Hina Akechi next. BWF/BADMINTON PHOTO

THERE IS no getting around An Se-young if PV Sindhu has to win her first-ever French Open Super 750 crown. But while she aims for her second big title after Japan this year, she will first need to get past World No.22 Japanese Hina Akechi.

Playing World No 24 Chiu Pin Chan in the quarterfinals, Sindhu, now ranked 11, led from start to finish against the 27-year-old, finishing with a 21-13, 21-14 win in 39 minutes.

Sindhu has one title, three semifinals and six quarterfinals this season - including four at Super 750 level or above.

This week in Paris, Supanida Katethong gave her an almighty scare, chomping into an 11-point lead and threatening an ouster in Round 1. Sindhu, who's trying to qualify for the year-end World Tour Finals, has learnt from the experience. It has shown in her last two matches where she has been extra alert.

On Friday, she didn't allow the Taiwanese a look-in.

"I learnt my lesson in the first round. I was leading and then let her come into the match. Yesterday and today, when I was leading I didn't take it easy and kept fighting until the match was over, because you never know," Sundhu would tell BWF. "I was patient and kept going even though I was losing some points. Thinking to myself it's OK."

Coach Irwansyah is tasked with getting Sindhu battle-ready. "Sometimes your coach can make you calm down, tell you your mistakes, what you need to do. Sitting there, he also might feel the pressure but more than him, I feel it. He's always there to calm me down, tell me to relax. Saying it's OK. Focus on the next point," she explains the dynamic.

In France, her best showing had been a semifinal many seasons ago. "It would be wonderful to win here. Long time back, I played one semis at the French Open. But really hoping this time, I can convert that into a win. Of course, it's not over yet. I need to go back, recover and come back stronger."

Having played innumerable semis and finals, the 31-year-old was asked how she approached those big days.

"Mentally and physically, you need to be strong. With big athletes, you need to be patient for long rallies. Strategise accordingly. We've been on the circuit for a long time. Strategy does matter. Analyse what they are doing, what needs to be done. I need to be prepared from my side. Every match is important from the first round, first point - no matter what the ranking," she explains.

Sindhu has copped enough losses at the hands of lower-ranked opponents to know nothing can be taken for granted. That they all hold weapons that are aimed at a mark on her back. Supanida put her through a proper wringer when she came back from 19-8 down and tapped her on the shoulder.

Her opponent in the semis doesn't hold massive weapons. But with a chance to get into her second Super 750 final of the year, Sindhu will stay suitably wary of the Japanese who won the Syed Modi tournament last year and has two semis at Masters events this year, and has taken out two Top 10s this week.

Ashmita loses

Ashmita Chaliha learnt the hard way that the Japanese hunt in packs. She might've beaten World No.2 Akane Yamaguchi, but Nozomi Okuhara was lying in wait to beat her 10-21, 21-17, 16-21. The weariness from the Yamaguchi win clearly showed in the Indian's slower movement on Friday.

At 16-16 in the decider, the former world champion pushed a gear that's not yet installed in the Chaliha system. Okuhara raced to take the next five points, edging Ashmita out with the sort of rallies that force a fade-out of ideas due to their technical sharpness.

Okuhara plays An on Saturday.

Ojaswini, 13, becomes second-youngest to make Ladies European Tour cut

Tushar Bhaduri
New Delhi, October 23

OJASWINI SARASWAT, 13, made the cut at the Hero Women's Indian Open on Friday. She is the youngest player to do so at the tournament, and the second-youngest to make a cut at any Ladies European Tour event, after Thailand's Ariya Jutanugarn. The Tour said the previous Indian Open record belonged to Aditi Ashok, who was 14 in 2012.

Saraswat will play the weekend rounds at the DLF Golf & Country Club in Gurgaon, in her first event against professionals. She is an amateur.

It did not look likely after an opening round of seven-over 79. "She was playing with some of her idols, Pranavi Urs, Aditi Ashok, Vani Kapoor and Avani Prashanth among Indians, and Shannon Tan among the international contingent, which brought a degree of anxiety into her game," her father Om told The Indian Express after the second round.

"After that, we told her to play her game freely as she had nothing to lose. Her mentor Harmeet Kahlon, an Arjuna awardee who was her first coach before moving to Canada, also boosted her morale."

Saraswat felt she needed a level-par second round to make the weekend. She shot a three-under 69, with birdies on her last three holes, and is tied 26th after two days. "Even after the first round, I believed that I could make the cut," she said. "Now, my aim is to finish at least in the top 10. If I play over the next two days like I did today, I think I can do it."

13-year-old Ojaswini Saraswat shot 69 on Friday. EXPRESS

She was not sure she would play at all. The Women's Golf Association of India updated its rankings on September 29, and Saraswat entered the top four of the amateur standings. That sealed her spot. "When we got the invite, we initially thought it was to watch the event as we had been doing for the last three years," Om said.

It was also her first time at the DLF course, which Gary Player designed.

> "I got clubs designed for 7-8-year-olds and cut them so that Ojaswini could use them."

> OJASWINI'S FATHER, ON HOW HE OVERCAME THE CHALLENGE TO FIND THE RIGHT EQUIPMENT

Her mother was pregnant when the golf range opposite their home in Mohali was coming up.

"We decided that we will encourage our child to play golf," Om said. "She started when she was four and quickly developed an interest in the sport. That was crucial because you can't force a child to take up a sport."

Equipment for a four-year-old was hard to find. Om, who runs a construction business, had a fix. "I got clubs designed for 7-8-year-olds and cut them so that Ojaswini could use them."

Learning on the job

Neither parent had played the game. "We have learnt on the job about yardages, clubs and the scoring in the sport."

She finished runner-up at the 2024 US Kids World Championship at Pinehurst and won a silver medal at the US Kids European Championship. Sponsors such as Callaway and Roundglass followed. The training costs money.

"She attends online classes from coaches in the US and Thailand, where a 20-minute session could cost around Rs 6,000. A weekly class from both can set us back by about Rs 50,000 a month," said Om, who shares his time between Mohali and Jaipur.

Golf takes most of her time, and she does not attend school. "She's busy playing tournaments all over the place and her mother accompanies her. She hasn't gone to school for three years but takes tuitions whenever she's home. Fortunately, she's good at academics and regularly scores 90 per cent in her exams."

The family is in no hurry for her to turn professional. "We want her to stay amateur for at least another two years. Playing for big amounts of money in strong fields under great pressure demands a level of mental toughness that comes only with age," Om said.

Asked about her ultimate ambition, she said: "I want to represent India at the Olympics, and not just represent, but win." She is a self-described Rory McIlroy fan.

Anahat takes down another Egyptian, enters maiden PSA Gold-level semifinal

Bhuvan Gupta
New Delhi, October 23

ANOTHER DAY, another Egyptian ousted. Anahat Singh, having dismissed the legendary Nour El Sherbini in straight games the previous day, packed off world No.14 Salma Hany in five games to march into the Silicon Valley Open semi-finals. She became the first Indian woman to make the last four of a PSA Gold-level tournament since Joshna Chinappa in 2019.

Anahat bounced back from two games to one down before prevailing 4-11, 11-8, 4-11, 11-2, 11-5 over Hany at Redwood City, California. "I've never played her before, and I didn't know what to expect coming on to the court. I have watched her play so many times, and she is so experienced on the PSA Tour," Anahat said after winning in 42 minutes.

"Especially after winning yesterday (against El Sherbini), I know that if I'm playing well I had a chance against whoever I played. I wanted to come in with that mindset," said the reigning world junior champion.

The teenager added that she was a bit tired coming into the match "because of the emotions" after winning yesterday. "I just didn't want to let go of the momentum today, I wanted to give it my all and I'm happy to get one step further in the tournament," said the Delhi girl, who had won an unprecedented singles silver at the Asian Games.

Topsy-turvy match

Describing the topsy-turvy match, Anahat said losing the first game 4-11 was not ideal but she wanted to claw her way back regardless of the result. "It was a pretty bad start but I just wanted to find a way for me to make my way back into the match and give it a fight; whether it's a win or a loss, I didn't want to let it go too easily."

She gave it her all in the second game and levelled the tie, but sixth seed Hany came back roaring. "We kept winning a game alternately so it was quite a roller-coaster, but I am happy I got through it," Anahat added.

The 18-year-old was erratic in the first game. A string of unforced errors at 4-6 saw her conceding five straight points to Hany, with tin after tin off the backhand. The emotions from the previous match were perhaps still fresh.

Anahat Singh (R) entered the semis of Silicon Valley Open. PSA

She course-corrected beautifully in Game 2, pushing Hany deeper into the back corners and opening up the front corners for attacking. Anahat earned four match balls and the Egyptian rallied to save two of them before clipping the top of the tin from her backhand. The giant-killer had drawn level. Hany was not to be subdued. She added more power to her strokes, hurrying Anahat all through the third game. The teen tried to stay on the offence but it just didn't come off. Her returns were either botched or loose enough for the 30-year-old to dispatch. Hany was back on top.

A lesser player might have wilted at this stage. Not Anahat. With the sixth seed hitting the ball harder, she did not recede to retrieving; she doubled down on attacking. Camping in the front of court again, she unleashed more drop shots and shorter returns. Hany was in all sorts of trouble as Anahat became near-invincible in Game 4, conceding just two points.

Anahat is the first unseeded player to enter the semis of the Silicon Valley Open in nine years. Despite the resilient win, India head coach Harinder Singh, who has travelled with Anahat for the tournament, had "mixed feelings" about her performance.

"I'm glad that she won and made the semis, beating a former top-10 player. She's (Hany) still very high in PSA rankings and has experience of more than a decade," Harinder told The Indian Express.

But overall performance-wise, he felt Anahat could have played better. "She's still learning. And obviously after such a high emotional-energy win in her quarters, sometimes it gets a little difficult to come back to the same stage. (I mean) in terms of managing your emotional energy, staying in the same high psychological and physical state. But she learned through the match, before the match, during the match and after the match about all things she could have done better by herself."

Shooter-turned-thrower Haney wins javelin gold with new WR

21-year-old Haryana native also won a bronze in the discus throw

Nitin Sharma
Chandigarh, October 23

HANEY ONCE trained at a range in a school owned by double Olympic bronze medallist shooter Manu Bhaker's family. This was when he was a para shooter. But at the senior level, the T37 for those with cerebral palsy wasn't part of the shooting programme. He looked for another sport, and on the advice of the Paralympic Committee of India, he took up javelin. At the Para Asian Games on Friday, 21-year-old Haney won the gold medal in the men's javelin throw final (F37/38) with a new world record throw of 60.49 metres. Earlier this week, he also finished third in the men's discus throw (F37) with 57.04m.

"I wanted to try a sport and enrolled in shooting at the school in our village, Goria. Manu didi would also train at her family-run school. I practiced shooting from 2017 to 2020. I was fourth in para nationals a couple of times before I discontinued shooting as the sport was not in senior para events at the international level. Having won the javelin throw title with a new world record along with a bronze medal in discus throw means that I am also returning with two medals from Asian Games, like Manu didi did from the Paris Olympics. Hopefully, I will meet her soon and show her my medals," Haney told The Indian Express from Nagoya.

Incidentally, he and Manu shared the stage when they were honored at the Universal School in Goria two years ago. He recalls getting a picture with her.

With his shooting dreams over, Haney approached three-time Para Asian Games fourth-place finisher Sunil Phogat, who is a coach at the Rajiv Gandhi Stadium in Rohtak. The first thing Phogat did was to get Haney stronger on the left side, where his mobility is limited.

"When Haney first came to me, I made him throw the javelin, despite having less movement on the left. Even then, he threw 20 metres. But I understood we have to get him stronger as the left leg as well as left arm plays a role in the block before the javelin is thrown. Thera-band and medicine ball exercises. Once we did that, we eventually practiced only the three-step throw for one year. We had to get his body balance right for the throw from a full run-up," the coach said.

Three years ago, at the Hangzhou Para Asian Games, Haney won the javelin title with 55.97 metres. On Friday, Haney first bettered the world record mark of 57.81m set by China's Dong Xia in 2008 with his fifth throw of 59.72m.

He then bettered the record in the final throw with 60.49m. His coach talks about what helped Haney rewrite the record books. "During the attack position, his left foot is angled and that means his body stays a bit low. But then we worked on adding strength with short training sessions. His ankle and knee takes the load and that helps him in the lift. We also worked on his wrist as well as how to push the body up during the cross-power position and improve his speed during the run-up," Phogat said.

Discus dreams

At the Los Angeles Paralympics, Haney will have to compete in discus throw as his javelin category is not part of the programme. Earlier this week, he won the bronze and last year, he had narrowly missed the medal in the discus throw final in the World Para Athletics Championships in Delhi. Haney was in third position with a throw of 51.22 m before Japan's Yamato Shimbo registered a personal best throw of 54.50m to deny Haney the medal.

Phogat talks about how Haney has been improving in the discus throw. "We decided to train him in the discus in 2024. But then he faced the same problem of having less strength in the left foot. During rotation, there is pressure on the ball of the left foot. So we had short practice sessions to strengthen those muscles. And once we could make that balance, his throwing improved. We have two years to improve further and have a shot at the LA Paralympics medal," Phogat said.

With a rented rifle, Mona shoots WR score to win gold in 50m 3P

Nitin Sharma
Chandigarh, October 23

DAYS AFTER winning the 10m air rifle gold, Mona Agarwal added another in the 50 metre 3-position final with a world record score of 357.5. When she decided to try her hand at the 50m 3P three years ago, Jaipur-based Mona had to travel 30 kilometres to the closest range for training. She rode a scooty and carried a rented 50m rifle.

"When I decided to train in the 50m rifle, the 50m range was 30km away from my home. I rented a 50m rifle and carried it while riding. I trained three times a week apart from practicing 10m air rifle at the range near my home. Only four months ago, I got my own 50m rifle. But that too had an equipment error. I was competing with a rented rifle here today," Mona told The Indian Express.

Balancing act

The 39-year-old mother of two had only competed four times in the 50m 3P discipline at the international level, including a 13th place finish at the Paris Paralympics.

Training for both events meant that Agarwal had to find the right balance. "While the shots were reduced to 60 shots, kneeling, prone as well as standing positions meant that my upper body faced a lot of stress. I would be in pain for 2-3 days after training in the 50m 3P. But then I had to find the balance between 50M 3P and the 10m air rifle training. I hired a personal strength trainer for posture stability for kneeling and prone positions, and once we achieved that, my scores improved in standing too. It helped in the 10m air rifle training too," Mona, who had contracted polio at nine months, said.

In qualification, Agarwal shot 192 in the kneeling position before shooting 190 in prone and 186 in standing. In the final, Agarwal was placed fourth with a score of 101.4 after the kneeling series, before she climbed to the second spot with a cumulative score of 203.5 after the prone series (102.1 points). Agarwal shot the first standing series of 103.8 to be placed at the top with 307.3 and maintained the spot in the single-shot elimination series. National coach Jeevan Rai said she had put in a lot of work and it had paid dividends.

"The qualification was in windy conditions. Mona's strength has been standing and she showed that in the final. But the good scores in kneeling as well prone meant that she was never out of contention. We worked on her back position as well as shoulder position in standing and posture alignment in kneeling," Rai said.

Rai also reflected on how Agarwal needed to achieve the balance of training for the two events to win twin medals in the LA Paralympics. "Now that her body has been taking the load of training in both the events for 1-2 years, this medal will add to her confidence a lot. Normally, we practice 400 shots in air rifle and 600-700 shots per week in 50m rifle every week and there will be some more work in the balance as well posture," added.

Asiad champion Sujeet will target the biggest title of his career. UWW

Express News Service
Mumbai, October 23

SUJEET KALKAL will headline India's 30-member squad at the World Wrestling Championships in Astana, Kazakhstan, where the 23-year-old will look to extend his 23-match unbeaten run and win his first senior world title.

Regining Asian Games champion and 2024 Paris Olympics medallist Aman Sehrawat won't travel this time as he has decided to focus on the Olympic qualification cycle that will begin next year.

The championships begin on Saturday with Greco-Roman wrestling before moving to women's wrestling and then men's freestyle, with Sujeet scheduled to compete in the 65kg category on October 29, with medal rounds on October 30.

India have entered 10 wrestlers each in men's freestyle, women's wrestling and Greco-Roman, with the contingent featuring several Asian Games medallists.

The Greco-Roman campaign will be led by Nitesh Siwach and Sunil Kumar. Nitesh won silver in the 97kg category at the Asian Games in Nagoya-Aichi, ending India's 64-year wait for an Asian Games silver in the discipline.

Sunil's bronze in the 87kg category made him the first Indian Greco-Roman wrestler to win two Asian Games medals.

India, however, will be without several prominent names. Olympic bronze medallist Aman Sehrawat, who won Asian Games gold, has skipped the Worlds to focus on his fitness. Two-time World Championships bronze medallist Antim Panghal and Asian Games bronze medallist Deepak Punia will also miss the competition.

Much of India's attention will eventually turn to Sujeet, whose recent form has made him one of the leading contenders in a fiercely competitive 65kg field. He last lost to Iran's Rahman Amouzad 5-6 in the quarterfinals of last year's World Championships in Zagreb. Amouzad went on to win the title, but Sujeet accounted for five of the six points the Iranian conceded throughout the tournament.

Tough category

Sujeet has since won 23 consecutive matches, including 18 this year. His titles include the Muhamet Malo tournament in Tirana, the Zagreb Open, the Asian Championships and the U23 World Championships.

He capped that run at the Asian Games earlier this month, beating reigning Olympic champion Kotaro Kiyooka of Japan in the semifinals before recovering from a 9-2 deficit to defeat Tajikistan's Abdulmazhid Kudiev 10-9 in the final. The challenge in Astana will be to sustain that intensity through a demanding draw. Amouzad will look to defend his title, while former world champion Abasgadzhi Magomedov of Russia, Japan's 2025 Asian champion Kaisei Tanabe, Bulgaria's Shamil Mamedov, and American U20 world champion Bowen Bassett are among the other contenders.

For Sujeet, the championships offer a chance to turn an exceptional run into a senior world title and settle the unfinished business from his narrow defeat to Amouzad last year.

India's last medal in the 65 kg category came when Bajrang Punia won the bronze medal in 2022 edition with Sushil Kumar being only gold medallist in 2010 edition.

Yashaswini turned it around: Harmeet on medal that ended mixed doubles drought

Bhuvan Gupta
New Delhi, October 23

MEN'S TEAM, women's team, men's doubles, women's doubles — India had earned medals in all these categories at the Asian Table Tennis Championships in the last five years. A mixed doubles podium had eluded the nation since 1954.

On Friday, Syndrela Das-Payas Jain lost in the quarterfinals; Yashaswini Ghorpade-Harmeet Desai were four points away from defeat against South Korea's Ganghyeon Park and Daeun Lee. It looked like the barren streak would stretch another edition.

That is when Yashaswini stepped up, however. "Down two games and trailing 1-7 in Game 4, I could see the match slipping away. But Yashaswini turned it around," Harmeet tells The Indian Express. "Her receive of serves became more aggressive. She took her chances. As a result, we got many quick points."

Harmeet was playing in an aggressive vein from the start. Yashaswini's change in tack increased his confidence too. "We complemented each other. The receiving made the difference," the 33-year-old explained.

The duo salvaged the set and brought the match back on level terms at 2-2. The Korean pair succumbed to pressure in the decider. India was guaranteed its first mixed doubles medal at the tournament in 72 years.

Yashaswini-Harmeet edged out Park-Lee 11-6, 8-11, 8-11, 11-9, 11-9 in 42 minutes. "It's a really big win for us. Beating such a good pair from Korea, which is really strong in mixed doubles, is massive," Harmeet says. Though the senior pro realises the medal's significance, he was not aware of the 72-year podium-less streak going into the match. Nor was his partner. They were "just playing the match".

They began superbly. "We dominated the first game and thought there was a good chance to beat the Korean pair. But then we missed a couple of crucial points in the second and third sets to cede the advantage," Harmeet said.

Yashaswini came up clutch from there, and Harmeet's practice of blocking and counter-attacking came in handy. "In men's doubles, it is a different story as our strategy is to start with attack. But here in mixed doubles, defence is key."

Harmeet elaborates on the technical aspect: "Yashaswini has long pimples (racquet rubber), so I need to respond to attacks from opponents and then counter-attack. I had to improve my blocking, which wasn't that good till a couple of years ago. I used to play close to the table, but have moved to mid-distance now."

The strategy rewarded him with a new medal in the cabinet. Harmeet had already won medals in men's team and men's doubles at the Asian Championships. Mixed doubles was missing. "I am really happy that I could win a medal at this stage of my career. I hope to build on this in the lead-up to the Olympics."

The campaign ended with a loss, however, as Yashaswini-Harmeet went down 9-11, 9-11, 8-11 to Japan's world No.9 pairing of Miwa Harimoto and Sora Matsushima to finish with bronze. "We tried to go in with full confidence against the Japanese. We didn't get much time after the quarterfinal to prepare, to look at our opponents and strategise accordingly," Harmeet said.

"They are one of the best players in the world. In the second set we were leading 9-8 (against them), and the scenario could have been different had we taken that set. It is important to get first or second set against such a strong pair."

Nevertheless, Harmeet is happy with their showing. "We put up a very good show against formidable pair. We have learnt a lot. It gave us the confidence that we can beat top players." The medal follows Diya Chitale and Manush Shah's bronze at the Aichi-Nagoya Asian Games. Harmeet hopes the back-to-back podiums in mixed doubles raises the sport's profile in the country. "(Hopefully) perspective of people will change as Indian TT is getting medals regularly now. We have been getting medals consistently at the Asian level in the last 5-6 years. We need to better the colour of medals, yes. But we have been putting our best foot forward in showing the world that we are there now."
