FIRST VISIT TO INDIA IN SEVEN YEARS AMID MOVES TO RESTORE TIES

Xi will attend BRICS summit, hold bilateral talks with Modi

On India-China table: Review of boundary talks, strategic economic dialogue launch

Shubhajt Roy
New Delhi, September 10

GIVING NEW impetus to efforts for restoration of ties between the two countries after a long, tense military standoff along the Line of Actual Control in eastern Ladakh, the Chinese Foreign Ministry announced Thursday that President Xi Jinping will be travelling to India to attend the BRICS summit in New Delhi on September 12-13.

Xi and Prime Minister Narendra Modi are to meet over the weekend for a structured bilateral meeting — it will be their first meeting in India in seven years. Xi last visited the country in October 2019 when he travelled to Mamallapuram near Chennai for the second informal bilateral summit of leaders.

Sources told The Indian Express that the two sides are working on launching a strategic economic dialogue, signalling a thaw in the relationship that has been plagued by high trade deficit, issues of market access to Chinese market, lack of investments in India, restrictions on visas to

Elephant in the room in meetings with Xi, Putin: India's manufacturing challenges

That frames the key issue: Gap between India's international economic rhetoric and its national industrial capabilities

C Raja Mohan
Batumi (Georgia), Sept 10

AS BRICS leaders gather this weekend in Delhi, the main conversation is about the global order, the looming shadow of two wars and several contradictions but a consequential part of it will be decidedly bilateral and economic. Especially Prime Minister Narendra Modi's talks with Presidents Vladimir Putin of Russia and Xi Jinping of China.

Modi and Putin are meeting Friday ahead of the BRICS summit. Over the last couple of bilateral engagements, they have sought to give greater balance to their weak economic partnership. The two leaders will also visit the first India-Russia international industrial trade fair being

Hasina daughter Saima quits WHO post; followed due process, says world body

Saima Wazed was Regional Director, WHO, South East Asia

Divya A
New Delhi, September 10

SAIMA WAZED, daughter of ousted Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, has resigned from her post as Regional Director, World Health Organization (WHO), South East Asia.

While Wazed resigned Wednesday evening, the WHO told The Indian Express that a recommendation for the termination of her employment had been made a day earlier.

The development comes in the wake of a year-long tussle between Wazed and WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. She was sent on leave in July 2025 over allegations of misconduct.

Wazed told The Indian Express Thursday that she had resigned Wednesday evening. She said she took the step "due to harassment and intimidation,"

After DGCA cracks whip, dope tests begin on all pilots of Indian airlines

Sukalp Sharma
New Delhi, September 10

IN THE wake of an Air India pilot testing positive for drugs after the aircraft he was commanding lost altitude all of a sudden while flying from Phuket to Delhi, the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) has ordered all Indian airlines to conduct a one-time test for psychoactive substances on all pilots by July next year,

The Indian Express has learnt.

Sources said the direction to airlines was issued in August and testing has already begun. Indian airlines are estimated to have close to 14,000 pilots.

Leopard poaching case: MP High Court withdraws protection to Wildlife SOS chief

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

HOLDING THAT “the petitioner, having failed to cooperate with the investigating agency despite protection, has not approached this Court with clean hands”, the Madhya Pradesh High Court has withdrawn the interim protection granted to Wildlife SOS co-founder and CEO Kartick Satyanarayan in a case involving the alleged poaching of leopards in the state.

In its September 7 order, uploaded Wednesday, the Gwalior Bench said the protection granted on September 2 had been obtained “without full disclosure of vital records and circumstances”. It directed Satyanarayan to appear before the Madhya Pradesh State Tiger Strike Force (STSF) on September 21 and cooperate with the investigation.

The order came on an application by the Madhya Pradesh Forest Department (MPFD) seeking recall of the interim relief. In a press release Wednesday, the MPFD said 15 people from Haryana, Madhya Pradesh and Delhi had been arrested in the case and described Satyanarayan as an “absconding accused”.

It said an arrest warrant was issued against him on August 31 after he failed to join the investigation despite three summonses. The case stems from the July 23 arrest of four alleged poachers on the Gwalior-Agra highway with 10 leopard skins. Wildlife SOS had then said the seizure followed months of surveillance by its Forest Watch anti-poaching unit. After the skins were traced to Madhya Pradesh, the STSF began inves-

‘Want Kashmiris in jail?': Omar on Cong advice to sing only first two stanzas of Vande Mataram

Bashaarat Masood
Srinagar, September 10

SAYING THAT the full rendition of Vande Mataram is a “statutory obligation”, Jammu and Kashmir CM Omar Abdullah has asked whether the Congress wanted Kashmiris to be jailed for not complying with it. “They (Congress) should have stopped this in Parliament,” Omar told reporters in Srinagar Thursday. “But the law has been made... It is a statutory obligation”.

Omar said that wherever the national anthem is sung, the full rendition of Vande Mataram is legally compulsory. “This is not just for J&K. This is for the whole country,” he said. “This will also happen in government functions in Congress states.” The Congress and the NC recently sparred over the full rendition of Vande Mataram at the inaugural ceremony of J&K’s first International Film Festival in the presence of CM Omar and NC president Farooq Abdullah earlier this week. Congress General Secretary (Organisation) K C Venugopal on Wednesday asked the NC to “honour the wisdom and judgement of our freedom fighters” and stand with the INDIA bloc in singing only the first two stanzas of the song. The advice, however, didn’t go down well with the NC. Tanvir Sadiq, an NC legislator and a close aide of CM Omar, hit back while posting videos of Congress CMs Revanth Reddy (Telangana) and DK Shivakumar (Karnataka) standing during the full rendition of the national song. Omar said that not standing up during the Vande Mataram could have legal consequences. “So, what does the Congress want? That Kashmiris should be put in jail for this reason?” he asked. “This is a statutory obligation.” Omar said he prayed the Congress come back to power and abolish the law that mandates the full rendition of Vande Mataram. “I pray that the Congress government comes (to power) soon and abolishes this in the Parliament,” he said. “We will have no objection. Our party has never accepted Vande Mataram. We will not accept it in the future either. But we will have to fulfill our legal and statutory obligations.”

Xi to attend BRICS

Indian and Chinese businesses and on the activities of Chinese companies in India. The two leaders are also expected to discuss and review the outcomes of the recent boundary talks in Beijing between their Special Representatives, NSA Ajit Doval and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi. They are expected to endorse the decision to advance discussions on “an early and substantial harvest” of boundary delimitation and border management.

Among the eight outcomes and consensus reached at the Beijing talks were agreements on two new border military hot-lines in the eastern and middle sectors, two new meeting points for military commander-level meetings, and the trans-border river meeting. Xi’s participation in the BRICS summit is an important signal to India — he had skipped the G20 summit at the Bharat Mandapam in New Delhi three years ago amid strained ties between the two countries. In October 2024, Xi and Modi met in Russia’s Kazan on the sidelines of the BRICS summit. Following their discussions, the two sides completed the process of disengagement of troops along the LAC in eastern Ladakh in November that year. Since then, incremental steps have been taken to stabilise the ties. This has led to resumption of direct flights, easing of visa restrictions, revival of the Kailash Mansarovar pilgrimage and easing of curbs on Chinese investments. But pressing issues remain, including visa denial and restrictions on Indian businesses, challenges in the sharing of trans-boundary river data, and the active collusion of China and Pakistan during the India-Pakistan hostilities that followed Operation Sindoor in May 2025. The Indian side is expected to raise these concerns with the Chinese. The issue of de-escalation at the LAC is also going to be part of the conversation. It is estimated that 50,000 troops are still deployed on either side of the LAC. The Chinese, on the other hand, have concerns regarding the limiting of Chinese businesses, despite the lifting of restrictions, and actions and investigations against Chinese firms operating out of India. The laundry list of concerns are expected to come up during the bilateral talks. But experts are cautioning against high expectations from the summit-level meeting. Framing the challenge, Gautam Bambawale, former Ambassador of India to China, told The Indian Express, “What the PLA did with their actions in eastern Ladakh, and it has continued, set back the bilateral relationship by about 10 steps. And since 2024, when we started repairing the relationship, maybe we have moved three steps ahead. But the net is still negative, so there’s a lot of work to be done.” While the bilateral talks between the two leaders will be significant, they will have shared concerns on energy security and the impact of the war in West Asia. This is expected to figure during the discussions, sources said. Both Xi and Modi have shared concerns on geopolitical issues arising from the West Asia conflict, the partial closure of the Strait of Hormuz, and on challenges stemming from US President Donald Trump’s tariff wars. Along with Russian President Vladimir Putin, Modi and Xi will be looking at exchanging notes on how to navigate the volatile and disruptive geoeconomics due to Trump administration’s moves. Officials said while “there will be no ganging up against the West”, the gathering will be a powerful signal to the US that these countries have “options” in changing geopolitics.

Elephant in the room

simply the size of the deficit. It is the narrowness of what India can sell. Russia is a substantial market for manufactured goods. China, the world’s manufacturing superpower, exported about $103 billion of goods to Russia in 2025. Chinese exports range from cars and machinery to electronics and industrial equipment. India does not have anything remotely comparable on offer as of today. The contrast is a testament to the limits of diplomacy in economics. Modi can persuade Putin to buy more Indian products. He can negotiate payment mechanisms, investment targets and trade agreements. But diplomacy cannot conjure up the Indian industrial capacity needed to supply the Russian market. Nor can political warmth with Moscow compensate for the absence of competitive Indian products.

India’s manufacturing weakness appears in a different form with China. Bilateral trade reached about $151 billion in 2025-26, but India’s deficit rose to roughly $112 billion. Here the asymmetry is reversed. Russia mainly sells India natural resources, especially oil and other commodities. China sells manufactured goods—and increasingly the intermediate and capital goods that Indian manufacturers themselves need. Delhi appears to have reconciled itself to this reality. It is responding to Beijing’s demands that India end restrictions on commerce with China. There could be some progress in this direction when Modi meets Xi over the weekend. Chinese imports are deeply embedded in Indian manufacturing, from electronics and machinery to chemicals, auto components and pharmaceutical inputs, and are key to Indian exports of manufactured goods. This creates a paradox. India wants to reduce its economic dependence on China but Indian businesses also want access to the cheap and increasingly sophisticated manufactured goods that China produces at enormous scale. The political desire for greater economic security runs up against the commercial logic of keeping access to Chinese production. This is where the Russia and China stories come together. The common problem is

India’s limited manufacturing strength. In Russia, the weakness is visible in India’s inability to export at scale to a large market. With China, it is visible in India’s dependence on imports from a manufacturing giant even as it seeks to expand its own industrial base. This is a throwback to India’s calls to democratise the global economic order, an objective dates back to the Cold War years. But India’s immediate bilateral economic agenda is about getting Russia and China to buy more from India, invest more in India and help strengthen Indian productive capacity. This raises a fundamental question: can diplomacy compensate for weak manufacturing? Unlikely. The essential Indian challenge is, therefore, not diplomatic but industrial. It is the gap between India’s international economic rhetoric and its national industrial capabilities. Closing that gap requires much more than diplomacy: sustained economic reform, simpler regulation, greater competitiveness, less corruption, deeper domestic supply chains and, above all, a much stronger manufacturing ecosystem. Foreign policy can create openings for Indian industry, but it cannot fill those openings with products that India does not yet produce competitively. That leads to the final paradox. India can deploy considerable diplomatic capital to persuade Russia and China to buy more from it and invest more in it. But the most effective way of drawing investment from both—and from the rest of the world—is to make India more attractive to investors. The world is not short of capital and technology; but India is not at the top of the destinations where they are headed. The bilateral does overshadow the multilateral this week in Delhi. That’s not surprising, since BRICS, like the SCO, has emerged as a valuable venue for high-level political engagement and bilateral problem-solving. And diplomacy is about seizing opportunities, wherever they present themselves. In the end, Delhi’s real challenge is not about changing the global economic order, but reforming its internal structures. The credibility of India’s economic diplomacy will ultimately depend less on what it can persuade other countries to do than on what its economic policy makers can do enable India to produce more efficiently.

Pilots’ dope tests begin

Following the August 4 incident involving the Phuket-Delhi flight, and before the DGCA direction, the Air India Group had voluntarily initiated one-time random drug tests on an estimated 5,000 pilots employed by Air India and Air India Express. On September 4, hours after the Aircraft Accident Investigation Bureau flagged the positive drug test of the pilot-in-command of the Phuket-Delhi flight, Air India said it had terminated the pilot’s employment. According to Civil Aviation Minister K Rammoohan Naidu, the draft of the new, and likely more stringent, norms on testing aviation personnel for psychoactive substance use is likely to be released by the DGCA by the month-end. In August, Naidu had said that the Ministry of Civil Aviation suggested to the DGCA that all pilots should undergo a dope test once a year, against the current regulation that requires 10% of the pilots to undergo random testing annually.

Sources said while the DGCA was already in the process of revising the regulations pertaining to testing of aviation personnel for psychoactive substances, the Air India incident led to calls for a more stringent drug testing protocol and stricter disciplinary action in proven instances of drug abuse. While consultations for revising the rules were on, the regulator decided to put all airline pilots through a one-time drug test over the course of nearly 12 months. In the current DGCA Civil Aviation Requirements (CAR) on testing for psychoactive substances, effected January 31, 2022, pilots and air traffic controllers are seen as the primary focus segments, with annual random testing of 10% of these two employee segments being mandatory. The rules also extend to the broader range of aviation personnel engaged in safety-sensitive functions, like aircraft maintenance engineers and certifying staff, trainee pilots, and instructors and examiners. They are required to be tested at the time of hiring or after specific incidents. As per the DGCA CAR, the urine sample of the employee on whom the test is being conducted is to be split and stored in two separate containers. The testing process begins with a screening test on the sample in the first container, which is done immediately after the sample is collected. If this initial test is ‘non-negative’, which means it is indicative of the presence of psychoactive substances, the pilot is immediately taken off flying duty, pending the results of a confirmatory test. The sample in the second container is then sent for the confirmatory test at a designated laboratory using high-complexity instrumentation. Confirmatory testing is required as preliminary screenings can return false positives due to consumption of certain medications and food items, as well as technical errors. If the confirmatory test is positive, the medical in-charge of the organisation concerned is required to consult a medical review officer (MRO) to determine if the positive result was due to a legitimate therapeutic treatment or some other innocuous source, and not drug abuse. For instance, pain relief medication containing codeine may trigger a positive result for opiates. If the MRO confirms the result is a positive case of drug use, there is an escalation ladder of disciplinary actions that comes into the picture. If it is the first occasion of a positive drug test, the employee is referred by his or her organisation to a specialist doctor, counsellor, or de-addiction centre for a rehabilitation programme. To return to active duty, the employee must undergo new testing, receive a negative report, and obtain a fitness certificate from the organisation’s medical in-charge. If the employee who returned to duty after a first offence is found positive again, his or her licence is suspended for three years. A third positive test result leads to the cancellation of the person’s licence.

SUV owners take safe-driving pledge victims of road accidents, he said. Both the Thar and the Fortuner are large, muscular vehicles, and the Thar, especially, has come to be associated in popular perception with fatal road accidents and reckless driving around the country. Mishra urged Thar owners to post this message on social media, and tag the chairman of the Mahindra Group, Anand Mahindra. “The reason behind doing such an activity is that the Thar company owner should carry out a campaign nationwide about his car,” Mishra told the gathering. Late on Wednesday night, the Department of Information and Publicity of the UT administration posted a video of “Thar and Fortuner owners” taking the “Road Safety Pledge” on X, and tagged Mahindra. Earlier in the day, hundreds of Thars and Fortuners were parked in neat rows in an open field in Daman, and their owners were made to stand in lines in front of the vehicles. Collector Mishra and several police officers assembled on a small stage and addressed them. The owners and drivers were made to walk around the field and circle the vehicles, holding placards with road safety slogans printed on them. They were then recorded taking a safety oath in Hindi. The oath said: “I pledge to not over-speed or drive my vehicle negligently. I will not do stunts, racing, or drifting on the roads with my vehicle, and I will not allow others to do so either. I will not drive my vehicle while I am inebriated.” The owners and drivers also pledged not to make unauthorised modifications to their vehicles such as adding silencers or lights, changing their wheels, or putting black plastic film on the windows. “I will avoid unnecessary honking and I will follow rules and regulations,” they pledged. There is growing conversation around the country linking the Thar with an alleged culture of rash and dangerous driving without concern for lives or safety. Social media is full of reels showing speeding, swerving, and drifting Thars, intended apparently to project an image of dashing invincibility for the drivers and owners of the vehicle. In November 2025, Haryana’s then DGP O P Singh said in Gurugram: “The choice of car shows the mindset of a person. The Thar is not a car, it’s a statement which says this is how I am.” To be sure, there is no major Indian study linking the Thar or any other SUV with the incidence of rash driving or accidents. The National Crime Records Bureau does not list vehicle type in its accident data. In his speech, Collector Mishra told the vehicle owners: “I appeal to you to tag Anand Mahindra ji through social media so that he himself or his office people know about the drive that we are carrying out here. He (Mahindra) should also be motivated by our work and do a campaign for Thar... A woman walking on the pavement should actually feel safe if she sees a Thar pass by. If an accident occurs, a passing Thar or Fortuner will take the injured to hospital. Through such a campaign, the association of the Thar with bhaigiri or mafia-giri can be stopped.” Reached for a comment on the Collector’s event and the appeal to Mahindra about the vehicle and its purported image, a spokesperson for the Mahindra Group said she would check. She had not reverted by press time. After the event, Daman Deputy Collector Priyanshu Singh said: “All Thar and Fortuner vehicles registered with Daman RTO were invited to the

Ford Foundation

According to sources aware of the development, the foundation is learnt to have moved out in February this year, updating its office address from 55, Lodhi Estate, to the current address, Level 8, DLF Centre, Sansad Marg, on its website in March. Ford Foundation did not respond to an email seeking comment. Its representatives remained unavailable when reached on phone and during a visit to its Delhi office. The MoHUA, too, did not respond to a request for comment. On Monday, the Directorate of Estates, under the MoHUA, allotted space on the ground floor and first floor of what used to be the Ford Foundation office to the International Big Cat Alliance (IBCA) and Global Bio-fuels Alliance. Prime Minister Narendra Modi had launched the IBCA, a multi-country and multi-agency coalition, in 2023. According to its website, it is currently functioning from a house in the Capital’s Shanti Niketan area. The Global Biofuels Alliance was launched by Modi in the presence of world leaders during the New Delhi Leaders’ Summit, as part of the G20 Summit in 2023. Its office is currently at Sanrakshan Bhawan, Bhikaji Cama Place, in South Delhi. The Ford Foundation Headquarters at Lodhi Estate was designed by American architect Joseph Stein, who also designed iconic post-Independence buildings in Delhi like the India Habitat Centre and India International Centre. The Ford Foundation has been located at the 55, Lodhi Estate, complex since the 1960s. The premises have also been home to the United Nations and its agencies that continue to occupy parts of it today. The Ford Foundation has been closely involved in several key Union and State government schemes since Independence, including the Five Year Plans, agriculture and education programmes. “The Ford Foundation established its office in New Delhi in 1952, at the invitation of the Government of India. Since inception, we have partnered with the country to meet key development priorities and aspirations. In the early decades post Independence, the foundation prioritised support for setting up the country’s leading research, academic, and professional management institutions,” its website says. Among the institutions given “foundational grants” by the Ford Foundation, according to its website, are the Indian Institutes of Management at Ahmedabad, Bengaluru and Kolkata. “The foundation also provided early support for research to the Indian Institute of Technology in Kharagpur, and foundational support to the Indian Institute of Public Administration and the Punjab Agricultural University... We have also supported many of India’s flagship socio-economic development initiatives like the Community Development program in the 1950s, the Intensive Agricultural Districts Program, and the beginning of the Green Revolution in the 1960s as well as the self-help group movement,” the website says. As of now, the foundation says, its focus is “inclusive and women-led development”. While more recent data was not available, the last annual report available on the foundation’s website, for 2012, shows it made grants of $13.51 million in India, Nepal and Sri Lanka. According to the foundation’s financial statement for the year ending December 31, 2025, it had approved grants of $773 million globally. The Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) had placed Ford Foundation on a watchlist in 2015, after the Gujarat government alleged that the foundation was funding “anti-India” activities of Sabrang Trust and Citizens for Justice and Peace, the NGOs of activist Teesta Setalvad. The MHA had placed the foundation in the “prior approval category”, meaning that all funds given by it to Indian organisations would have to be first cleared by the government. In March 2016, ahead of Modi’s visit to the United States, the MHA removed the foundation from the list. leaving me on leave without pay as retaliation for requesting an investigation into his (D-G’s) conduct.” “It was becoming mentally and financially impossible for me to cope with this kind of harassment and abuse,” she said. The WHO, responding to an email query from The Indian Express on Wazed’s resignation, said, “On 9 September 2026, Saima Wazed submitted her resignation from the position of Regional Director for the WHO South-East Asia Region. In accordance with WHO’s governance arrangements, this matter is being brought to the attention of the members of the Regional Committee for South-East Asia and of the Executive Board respectively.” “The previous day, 8 September 2026, the Regional Committee had recommended that Wazed’s appointment as Regional Director be terminated. That recommendation had been due to be considered by the Executive Board,” it said. “This matter has been handled through the appropriate WHO processes in accordance with WHO’s regulatory framework, with due regard for fairness and due process, while safeguarding the interests of the Organization and its ability to fulfil its mandate,” it said. According to the WHO, Nishesh Buddha will continue to serve as Officer-in-Charge of the Regional Office pending the appointment of a new Regional Director. Earlier, Wazed had sought an independent probe, alleging a political witch-hunt at the behest of the interim government of Bangladesh, led by Chief Adviser Muhammad Yunus, that took charge of the country following her mother Sheikh Hasina’s ouster in August 2024. The WHO had placed Wazed on indefinite leave on July 11, 2025, pending an inquiry, four months after the Bangladesh Anti Corruption Commission filed two cases against her on charges of corruption, fraud and abuse of power. She entered office on February 1, 2024 for a five-year term, becoming the first person from Bangladesh and the second woman to hold the position.

enjoy with their families. This also helps local people get business and generate revenues,” Praful Patel said. He said that he was not aware of the Collector’s suggestion to tag Anand Mahindra on social media posts. Sources in the Daman BJP said that on August 27, Jignesh Patel, the BJP general secretary for Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu, had taken out a rally in Daman town comprising more than 100 Thar vehicles, seemingly to celebrate the birthday of Praful Patel on August 28. According to these sources, these Thars were all black in colour, had tinted windows and modified silencers, and had caused huge traffic congestion in Daman. Once videos of the Thar rally went viral on social media and drew significant criticism, Praful Patel, who was not in Daman on his birthday, reportedly expressed his displeasure with the alleged “celebration” organised by Jignesh Patel.

SATYA NIKETAN BUILDING CRASH

LG nod for panel to assess shortage of student PGs, hostels

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

DAYS AFTER a building in South West Delhi’s Satya Niketan that was being run as a hostel collapsed, killing seven people, Lieutenant Governor Taranjit Singh Sandhu Thursday approved the formation of a high-powered committee to examine the shortage and safety of accommodations available for students across the Capital. The move is also aimed at creating a centralised database of student accommodations besides enabling students living in such facilities to report their concerns.

The 18-member committee, headed by Education Minister Ashish Sood, will assess the gap between demand for student hostels and available accommodation, and examine the possibility of using vacant or under-utilised properties of the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) and other government agencies for student housing.

The members of panel include the Chief Secretary, Commissioner of Police, Commissioner of the MCD, Chairman of the New Delhi Municipal Council, Vice-Chairman of the DDA and vice-chancellors of Delhi University, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University, Ambedkar University and Netaji Subhas University of Technology. The Education Secretary will be its member secretary. The committee has been asked to submit its recommendations within 60 days.

The move follows a meeting between LG Sandhu, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta and Sood, on Monday during which the LG directed the Education Minister to lead a committee to review institutional and paying-guest accommodation guidelines and explore alternatives through universities, the MCD and DDA.

Among the committee’s terms of reference is examining the feasibility of converting vacant or under-utilised DDA housing and other government properties into student accommodation. It will also identify government land and buildings that could be used to develop additional hostels. The committee will look at ways to encourage universities and educational institutions to provide safe, affordable and regulated hostel facilities. It will examine the creation of a centralised database of student accommodation in the city.

Centralised digital monitoring system

It has been tasked with proposing a centralised digital monitoring system through which students can report unsafe accommodation, overcrowding, fire hazards and other safety concerns. It will prescribe emergency evacuation and disaster-response protocols and suggest drills and awareness programmes.

HOURS BEFORE a five-storey paying guest (PG) accommodation for boys crumbled in South-west Delhi’s Satya Niketan on Sunday afternoon, a labourer had allegedly called the PG operator to warn him that one of the walls of the building could collapse amid the ongoing construction work, The Indian Express has learnt. The construction work is said to have weakened the structure of the building.

The labourer told police, according to sources, that he had called Sudhanshu, 31, who ran the ‘Hostel Daze’ chain in the area, to warn that the building won’t be able to take the load of the construction work in the basement.

During the questioning, Sudhanshu, who was arrested on Wednesday, told police that he had also warned Mahesh, the son of the property owner, to not go ahead with the renovation work.

The building didn’t have the base to bear the weight of the extra floors, he claimed to have said. “We are also trying to get details of the timeline of the construction work, and ask neighbours how the building came up and whether it was inspected during the construction,” said a police officer.

in the area where the building crumbled were questioned by the police to re-create the sequence of the events. The building collapse killed seven people, including five students.

In Satya Niketan, all seven PGs operated by Hostel Days have been inspected by the MCD with the officials preparing a report on the possible violations. Most of the company’s PGs visibly violate certain norms, specially the single entry-exit point, according to sources.

When The Indian Express visited the site on Thursday, one of the PGS, just opposite a Metro station, was found to be empty. “All the students left the day the other building came down. But this building hasn’t been sealed,” said a worker at the PG.

“If there were to be a fire, we won’t even have space to run. We took it because it was the only place with decent food. The MCD official came today, and inquired about the whole building. But we are happy that Sudhanshu was arrested. He was very rude,” said a second-year Delhi University student, living at a four-floor girls PG, just 100 meters away from the collapsed building.

Sudhanshu was among those who rushed to the five-storey building after it came crashing down on Sunday. But when students, mostly from DU, at the spot began recognising him, he left, fearing he would be beaten, The Indian Express reported on Thursday.

Police on Wednesday traced him to a friend’s house in Burari and arrested him. A graduate from DU’s Hans Raj College, polices said Sudhanshu had started the PG business in 2022, primarily catering to students studying at his alma mater.

On Thursday, multiple people from the neighbourhood were questioned by the police to re-create the sequence of events.

Sudhanshu was in charge of installing the 16-bed facility with amenities, looking after maintenance, and overseeing the repair and construction work needed at the 50-year-old building that collapsed.

He was the main person prospective tenants met when they came looking for rooms, sources in the police said.

They added that Sudhanshu took the building on rent as it was being offered at a lesser price than the usual market price, primarily due to its poor condition. The owner of the building, Hari Ram, his son Mahesh, wife Urmila, and labour contractor Saroj were arrested earlier in the case. “The owners allegedly knew that the building wouldn’t be able to bear the weight of four additional floors. And yet, they decided to give the construction a go-ahead and lease it out to a PG company last year,” a senior officer said.

MCD conducts survey of PGs, marks 3 ‘dangerous’

Drishti Jain
New Delhi, September 10

AFTER THE Delhi High Court pulled up the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) over the Satya Niketan collapse, the civic body has surveyed around 1,355 PG buildings across the Capital in the last three days, marking three of them as visibly dangerous.

The three buildings marked dangerous fall under the civic body’s South Zone, housing 69 occupants, the same zone where the building collapsed on Sunday.

3 engineers suspended

The civic body also suspended three engineers Thursday for dereliction of duty and negligence in the discharge of their responsibilities regarding action against unauthorised construction.

In an order issued on Monday by the MCD’s Additional Commissioner, officials were asked to survey the buildings and submit comprehensive reports by Thursday. The directive cited the Delhi High Court order, which had pulled up the MCD, stating that responsibility for the Satya Niketan collapse extends to civic authorities as well.

The survey, conducted over three days, also identified 39 buildings that are in need of visible minor repairs, housing 664 occupants; and nine buildings in need of visible major repairs, housing 140 people. Of these nine buildings, five are located in Keshavpuram Zone, followed by two each in Najafgarh and South Zone, said officials. Under the survey, 1,304 buildings housing a total of 26,917 people were marked visibly safe. According to an official, the survey will continue.

Continuing its enforcement action against unauthorised constructions, the MCD on Thursday also demolished 41 properties, sealed 61, and handed over 32 shop-cause notices and three demolition orders for violations of the Master Plan of Delhi and building bye-laws.

During Thursday’s demolition drive, officials said actions were carried out at several locations, including the Khureji Khas, Jagatpuri, and Laxmi Nagar areas in the East Zone.

In West Zone, demolition action was undertaken in areas including Paschim Puri, Madipur, Subhash Nagar, Vipin Garden and Bakkarwala Road.

In the Central Zone, enforcement action was taken in Madanpur Khadar Extension.

In Chandni Chowk, around 54 illegal shops operating from basements were sealed.

‘Civic bodies headed in right direction’: SC won’t disturb HC proceedings

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

THE SUPREME Court on Thursday accepted suggestions of the amicus curiae appointed by it not to transfer proceedings initiated by the Delhi High Court following a building collapse in Satya Niketan noting that the civic bodies in the Capital are moving in the “right direction”.

The top court, instead, directed the High Court to monitor the case at short intervals.

“We accept the suggestion of the learned Amicus Curiae, and for the present, do not disturb the position of the case before the High Court, which shall continue. The High Court is requested to monitor the case at short intervals,” a bench of Justices A Manu and R Mahadevan said.

Amicus curiae Senior Advocate Ajit Kumar Sinha had approached the court following the hostel building collapse, urging that the inspection of illegal constructions earlier ordered by it be extended beyond the areas presently identified, and that authorities concerned undertake a time-bound inspection and safety audit of PGs, private hostels and similar facilities for students situated in and around colleges and universities across Delhi.

The top court, instead, directed the High Court to monitor the case at short intervals

On Tuesday, the top court had expressed inclination to transfer the proceedings to itself, saying it intended to expand the scope and lay down pan-India guidelines.

However, on Thursday, Sinha said the inspections and demolitions earlier ordered by the SC as well as the actions directed by the High Court were acted upon, adding that “things were moving in the right direction”.

He added that the proceedings before the HC are confined to PGs, but there are issues of violations at gyms, coaching centres, BPO and other such places too. “During inspection, my juniors were there with IIT professors. Some of the buildings were employing 500 people,” he submitted.

Echoing the concern, Justice Manu said, “...They pack them like sardines, hundreds into one room. Whether the structure is capable of that, no adequate ingress, egress, nothing.” Meanwhile, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Delhi government, said the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) “has taken several steps”.

Sinha also highlighted that demolitions have started in Lajpat Nagar and Sarojini Nagar. “But the problem is, I can understand it’s very difficult to demolish... But then it has to be acted upon”.

Sinha urged the top court to monitor the proceedings initiated by the HC instead of transferring the same and to direct the authorities concerned to present the compliance reports to the High Court as well as Supreme Court. The matter has been listed for September 25.

EXPRESSION OF INTEREST (EOI) NOTICE

ONGC Green Limited (OGL), a wholly owned subsidiary of Oil and Natural Gas Corporation Limited (ONGC) and the flagship entity driving ONGC's energy transition and decarbonization initiatives, invites Expressions of Interest (EOI) from eligible technology providers, EPC/EPCM/STK contractors, and other qualified entities possessing end-to-end capabilities for the development of Compressed Biogas (CBG) plants, for consideration towards potential Joint Venture (JV) partnerships.

Based on the evaluation of submissions received under this EOI and subject to fulfilment of the eligibility criteria and other conditions specified herein, OGL may, at its sole discretion, enter into a Joint Venture Agreement (JVA) with the selected party(ies) for incorporation of a Joint Venture Company (JVC) to develop, implement, own, operate, and maintain CBG projects.

Interested party(ies) possessing the requisite technical expertise, operational experience, and financial capability in the establishment and operation of CBG plants are invited to submit their Expression of Interest along with the supporting documents in accordance with the provisions of this EOI.

Detailed EOI documents are available on the ONGC Portal (www.ongcindia.com) and ONGC Tender Portal (<https://tenders.ongc.co.in>).

The last date for submission of the EOI is 30th October 2026. Responses in PDF/PPT format may be submitted to cbg@ongc.co.in and mishra_sb@ongc.co.in. Any corrigendum, addendum, amendment, or extension of the EOI, if any, shall be published only on the ONGC website. Interested parties are advised to visit the portal for updates.

TWO-DAY SUMMIT STARTS TOMORROW

Capital gears up for BRICS

Traffic on key routes to be hit; airport-bound commuters advised to consider Metro services

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

A QUICK stop at Janpath or sightseeing at India Gate — commuters and Delhi residents may have to reconsider their weekend plans as the Capital hosts the BRICS Summit this weekend.

Starting Friday, nearly every road going towards the lush lanes of Central Delhi is set to see VVIP movement as dignitaries from member countries arrive in the Capital.

Even as Friday has been declared as holiday at Central government offices and many private firms have considered work-from-home for their employees to reduce the traffic load on roads, long convoys of invitees and the VVIPs are expected to be on the arterial routes.

Maximum activity is expected around Bharat Mandapam, the venue of the event.

Lutens Delhi and South Delhi areas — especially the ones in proximity to the Indira Gandhi International Airport (IGIA)—are expected to see congestion. The route from the IGIA towards Dhaula Kuan is also expected to witness snarls.

For airport-bound travellers

Airport-bound commuters have been advised to consider Metro services for commuting.

Passengers travelling from Gurgaon towards terminals T3, T4 and T2 have been urged to take NH-48, Rao Gajraj Singh Marg, Old Delhi Gurugram Road, UER-II and the service road on NH-48 before approaching the terminal.

For T1, the suggested route includes NH-48, the Mahipalpur Flyover and T-3 Road/NH-48—Ulan Batar Marg—T-1 Road.

From Dwarka, commuters heading to the airport have been advised to use Sector-22 Dwarka Road and UER-II, including the newly operated tunnel towards T3.

For travellers coming from New Delhi and South Delhi, suggested approaches include AIIMS Chowk, Ring Road, Moti Bagh Chowk, RTR Marg, Shankar Vihar Flyover, Sanjay T-Point, the service road on NH-

48 and the Mahipalpur Flyover/Rangpuri corridor.

Separate routes have also been issued for travellers from West, North and East Delhi.

22 diversion points across city

Among the key areas where traffic movement is likely to be affected at The Teen Murti Marg, Akbar Road—which passes past the Ministry of Parliamentary Affairs—C Hexagon, which leads to India Gate, along with Teen Murti Marg, Mother Teresa Crescent, Sardar Patel Marg and Janpath, one of Delhi's most popular shopping hubs.

The Delhi Traffic Police has identified 22 diversion points.

These include Dr Dinesh Nandini Dalmia Chowk (W-Point), Ram Charan Aggarwal Chowk (A-Point), Guru Nanak Chowk, KG Marg/Outer Circle, Janpath, Patel Chowk, RML Hospital, Vande Mataram Marg/Simon Bolivar Marg, Dhaula Kuan Flyover and Moti Bagh Flyover.

For those headed to the New Delhi Railway station from Dhaula Kuan, it has been recommended to take the Vande Mataram Marg to Panchkuian Road to Outer Circle Connaught Place and then take either the Chelmsford Road (Paharganj side) or Minto Road to Bhavbhuti Marg (Ajmeri Gate side).

In order to go to the Old Delhi Railway station, the best route is to go through the Vande Matram Marg to Dr Ambedkar Marg to Rani Jhansi Marg and then take the Rani Jhansi Flyover to reach Boulevard Road to Lothiyan Marg. The area around 200 meters of the 'controlled roads' would be prohibited from parking.

Where to get updates

The Delhi Traffic Police has asked commuters to follow its official advisories and social-media updates during the summit period.

For assistance, commuters can contact the Delhi Traffic Police helpline at 1095.

The Traffic Police has also provided a WhatsApp number — 8750871493 — for traffic-related assistance and reporting.

Beyond diplomatic corridors: Itinerary in the works for spouses of world leaders

Sakshi Chand
New Delhi, September 10

A VISIT to the Crafts Bazaar at Bharat Mandapam in Delhi—offering a glimpse of India's traditional arts, crafts and handlooms — is expected to be among the key highlights in the itinerary of the spouses of the world leaders as they arrive in the city for BRICS Summit, The Indian Express has learnt.

Arrangements are also being made to take them to the Capital's iconic markets and heritage sites, said officials. Even as the plan is still in the works, a lunch at The Lodhi hotel, a visit to the Prime Ministers Museum and the National Gallery of Modern Art are among the other engagements for which arrangements have so far been made, as per officials familiar with the preparations.

The programme, officials said, is being kept flexible, with the final choice of venues likely

Popular public spaces often become part of programme for spouses accompanying visiting heads of government, said officers to depend on the time available, security considerations, and the movement schedules of the visiting leaders and their delegations.

For Delhi, the itinerary aims to offer an opportunity to showcase a different side of the Capital, beyond the formal summit venues and diplomatic corridors.

They may also be taken on a tour of Delhi's iconic markets. Senior police officers said that based on the experience of previous international summits, markets and popular public spaces often become part of the programme for spouses accompanying visiting heads of state and government.

Among the places being considered this time are Khan Market, Chandni Chowk and Janpath, each offering a very different experience of the Capital—from contemporary shopping experience to the densely-packed lanes of Old Delhi and the traditional handicrafts and shopping outlets around Janpath. The tentative list also includes some of Delhi's prominent heritage and cultural landmarks—Raj Ghat, Jama Masjid and the Red Fort, sources said.

While these locations have been identified and arrangements are being put in place, officials stressed that this does not mean that every venue will necessarily be visited. The itinerary, they said, will ultimately be dictated by the timeline of the visit and the security requirements at the time of their movement.

Given the presence of multiple VVIPs in the Capital during the summit, every movement will have to be coordinated with the larger security and traffic plan, officials added.

At the same time, the Delhi Police has stepped up arrangements in the more crowded areas. Senior officers told The Indian Express that personnel in plainclothes are being deployed, mainly in marketplaces, where they can blend into the crowds while keeping a close watch.

The idea, officials said, is to maintain a visible security presence where necessary while ensuring that the movement of the VVIPs does not draw unnecessary attention in crowded public spaces. CCTV surveillance is also being closely monitored at the marketplaces and other possible venues, officials said.

Existing camera networks are being used as part of the security grid.

CJP-LED JANTAR MANTAR PROTEST

‘Trying to browbeat child a serious thing’: SC on harassment of minor by influencer

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

THE SUPREME Court on Thursday expressed concern over allegations of harassment and intimidation of a minor girl who took part in the protests by the Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) at Delhi's Jantar Mantar in July and said the family be given police protection.

The minor's counsel raised the issue before a three-judge bench presided over by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant as it heard petitions regarding the CJP protests over the paper leak issue. The reference was to the alleged threats against the minor by Swatantra Bharadwaj, a self-styled influencer who purportedly admitted to attacking her father at Jantar Mantar in July. He was arrested last week in the matter.

“If there are anti-social elements who indulged in violence against a child, and they are roaming free, and are trying to browbeat the child, that may be a serious thing. (The) Cause is justified. There can't be a second opinion,” the CJI said.

The minor's counsel told the bench, also comprising Justices Joymalya Bagchi and V Mohana, “A person has admitted on video, in a manner of bragging, that he has committed that act.” The CJI said, “A child is a child... Some measures to protect the child can be taken. This incident can be taken as a standalone by local police.”

Justice Bagchi said, “...We would like immediate action on that FIR and police protection to the victim and family by UP police. Investigation be conducted by Parliament Street Police Station.”

She contended that the inquiry by the High-Powered Committee appointed by the top court to probe the police crackdown on student protesters at Jantar Mantar will take time. She sought the court's urgent intervention, saying that “if she faces some mischief, we will not be able to reverse those things”.

“Instead of prosecuting people who accompanied him, an FIR has been filed against the child. This is against this court's order. We request that the State of UP and NCT of Delhi file a response. Her FIR has been taken by Parliament Street Police Station,” the lawyer said. She also claimed that the minor's house was pelted with stones. “We can provide video evidence that her residence was subjected to pelting.” The bench asked Solicitor General Tushar Mehta to ensure action on the girl's FIR and sought a report from Delhi and UP governments on the issue.

The Solicitor General told the court that he will examine the entire matter. “Whatever is required in the facts of the case can certainly be done,” he said.

The bench said it will consider the complaints, iron out the issues and, if necessary, further clarify its directions.

SI suspended for serving notice to student over CJP protest: UP Police

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

A SUB-INSPECTOR, Shiva Pandey, who served notice to student and SFI leader Akshat Tripathi over his participation in the July 20 Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) protest at Jantar Mantar, has been suspended for violating the Supreme Court's order, the UP DGP Headquarters said on Thursday evening.

Earlier in the day, there was a confusion in the Supreme Court over who had issued the notice as Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, while responding to a submission by Senior Advocate PV Dinesh, said: “It was not the District Magistrate. It was some other official who has been suspended.”

Dinesh initially said the notice was issued by the District Magistrate but quickly corrected it to Executive Magistrate. Interjecting, Mehta too clarified that it was not the District Magistrate but the Executive Magistrate. It was after this that he said that “it was some other official who has been suspended”.

Mehta conveyed this to a three-judge bench presided by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, which was hearing petitions arising out of the July protests at Jantar Mantar and other parts of the country.

Later, the UP DGP Office told The Indian Express that the ACP (executive magistrate), who had issued the notice to the student asking him to furnish a personal bond of Rs 5 lakh, had not been suspended.

The executive magistrate was rebuked by the Supreme Court a day earlier over “violation” of its September 1 order. On Wednesday, the matter was raised before the bench, also comprising Justices Joymalya Bagchi and V Mohana, prompting the CJI to ask: “How did the magistrate dare to issue a notice when we have already annulled” by September 1 order “and we have directed that on the already registered (FIRs), no action will be taken”.

On Thursday, senior advocate PV Dinesh, appearing for Tripathi, said subsequent to the court's observations, the student too had filed a petition in the SC in the matter.

Urging the court's intervention, the counsel said: “There should be a message to these people.”

The CJI said he had already taken a strong view of it when it was brought to the court's notice on Wednesday.

Mehta then informed the court about the suspension and said, “Let's not sensationalise it.”

Surprised over the issuance of the notice, the CJI had on Wednesday referred to the Supreme Court's September 1 order quashing all cases against students who participated in the CJP-led protests against exam paper leaks.

“No penal action against any student: It was a very clear-cut order. The language is very plain. Even a layman can understand. The executive magistrate or district magistrate... cannot violate that order,” he said.

In his plea, Tripathi said he was a member of the UP committee of the SFI and that the notice issued by the “Executive Magistrate-Third, Greater Noida, Commissionerate Gautam Buddh Nagar... called upon” him “to show cause as to why he should not be bound down under Sections 126/135 of BNSS by executing a personal bond of Rs 5,00,000 with two sureties of like amount, for allegedly ‘instigating’ fellow students of his university to join a proposed dharna of the Cockroach Janta Party”. The notice was later withdrawn.

He said he did not fall into the exception carved out for 2,873 individuals with antecedents of grave and heinous offences, against whom the Supreme Court had allowed police to file FIRs.

Tripathi said the notice, issued three days after the September 1 order and without disclosing any specific overt act, date, time, statement or instance of imminent violence.

• SPOTLIGHT ON MOSCOW'S ART, TRADITIONAL MUSIC

From Russia, with love: Traditions, heritage, talent on display

Nirbhay Thakur
New Delhi, September 10

ACROSS GENERATIONS, Russian children have grown up playing with nevalyashka—a traditional tumbler toy that wobbles and bounces back when nudged.

At Delhi's Bharat Mandapam, this iconic doll has received an Indian makeover, draped elegantly in a saree as Moscow makes its presence felt, bringing a vibrant mix of art, music, and sports to its fellow member states as the Capital hosts the 18th BRICS Summit this weekend.

While the National Centre Russia has transformed parts of the Bharat Mandapam, the venue for the summit, into a museum of traditions, the nevalyashka is one among many cross-cultural artifacts being depicted by Russia across the Capital.

Among the distinctive art forms at display is Fedoskino miniatures, originating from an old village near Moscow where artisans carefully layer oil paint onto papier-mâché to create detailed, pocket-sized boxes.

The small painted boxes are among the most refined forms of Russian decorative art built with great precision.

At hotspots across the city, visitors get a hands-on chance to learn Gzhel, the iconic Russian style of blue-and-white ceramic painting directly from an expert.

Moreover, a Russian artist is set to take part in the creation of the BRICS mural for the summit, where national motifs from the member countries are brought into a single visual composition.

Another highlight is Russian musicians performing on the balalaika, domra and bayan (traditional folk instruments), a part of the BRICS Symphony Orchestra -- an international ensemble created especially for the summit. The orchestra will perform for the BRICS leaders.

Russian artists and musicians are also taking part in songs and artwork designed specifically for the summit.

More than 130 Russian and Indian companies are represented in the first International Industrial Trade Fair ‘INNO-PROM. India’, which opened on September 9.

At the three-day fair, Russia's leading tech companies showcase products in areas such as medical equipment and robotics among others ahead of the BRICS Summit.

Earlier on August 30, the BRICS Run & Ride event was held at Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium where diplomats from the Russian Embassy apart from over 5,100 fitness enthusiasts took part.

Participants included approximately 2,900 cyclists and 2,200 runners. They completed a 5-km cyclothon and marathon, as well as zumba and yoga sessions.

Invited only as BIMSTEC chair, Dhaka rules out Rahman’s visit

Divy A
New Delhi, September 10

BANGLADESH HAS officially ruled out Tarique Rahman’s visit to India for the BRICS Summit, saying he was not invited in his capacity as the country’s Prime Minister.

With Bangladesh Foreign Minister Khalilur Rahman, who recently took over as the President of the United Nations General Assembly, also away, the country’s representation at the summit hosted by New Delhi remains uncertain.

It was expected that newly elected Bangladesh President Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir might attend the summit, but there is no official word yet, with less than two days left for the summit to begin.

According to the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA), Delhi has already extended an invitation to Rahman for a stand-alone bilateral visit after he assumed office in February; it has also extended an invitation to the Bangladesh PM to attend the BRICS summit as BIMSTEC chair. “The invitation has been extended as per the standard practice being followed in BRICS for the outreach sessions. Other heads of regional groups have also been invited in a similar manner,” MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said in response to a question.

On Thursday, Bangladesh State Minister for Foreign Affairs Humayun Kobir ruled out

An illuminated Rail Bhavan ahead of the BRICS Summit in New Delhi on Thursday. AMIT MEHRA

Rahman’s visit, adding that there is scope for Bangladesh to send a government representative to the Summit, as per The Daily Star. He said Prime Minister Rahman was not invited to the summit and the invitation was extended to the BIMSTEC Chair. Bangladesh presently holds the chair of BIMSTEC, the seven-nation South and East Asian grouping.

“How shall we go? Has anyone from the Bangladesh government been invited? Our Prime Minister was not invited.

Who told you that our Prime Minister was invited? The BIMSTEC Chair was invited. Then why are you asking this question?” Kobir told reporters, as per The Daily Star. He said Rahman’s first visit to India cannot be “a multilateral visit”. The minister said they were working on arranging a bilateral visit to India when the timing was conducive. New Delhi and Dhaka have been in touch to work out suitable dates for Rahman’s visit, and there were talks of the Bangladesh PM making a short visit to New Delhi in late August. However, Dhaka put a precondition that a “propitious environment needs to be created” for it, a reference to the presence of former Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina in India and her public statements made from New Delhi on August 5.

Rashtrapati Bhavan had announced the cancellation of the Change of Guard ceremony on August 21 “due to the full rehearsal for the ceremonial welcome” of the Bangladesh Prime Minister, and then withdrew the communique an hour later. Both New Delhi and Dhaka have not confirmed any dates for the visit.

Ties between the two countries, strained following the August 2024 ouster of Hasina, who sought refuge in India, had been looking up after Rahman took charge of Bangladesh in February. But Hasina’s public interaction in New Delhi via an audio link on August 5 — marking two years of her ouster — angered Dhaka, which has been seeking her extradition to Bangladesh where she faces the death sentence. It also cast a shadow over Rahman’s visit to India.

The request for Hasina’s extradition was first moved by the interim government led by Muhammad Yunus in 2024, and has been reiterated by the BNP government. While New Delhi has stated that the extradition request is “being examined”, the Indian side has been emphasising a forward-looking relationship built on “mutuality of interests and reciprocity”.

PMLA case: Court orders framing of charges against Lalu, 8 others

Nirbhay Thakur
New Delhi, September 10

Lalu Prasad Yadav

A DELHI court on Thursday framed money laundering charges against former Bihar CM Lalu Prasad Yadav, his wife Rabri Devi, son Tejashwi Yadav and others in the alleged IRCTC “scam” case. The case pertains to favouring a private company in awarding operation and maintenance contracts for two IRCTC hotels in lieu of prime land in Patna. Special Judge Vishal Gogne of Rouse Avenue Court cited Rabindranath Tagore in his order which framed charges against the accused persons.

“Whenever power removes all checks from its path to make its career easy, it triumphantly rides into its ultimate crash of death. Its moral brake becomes slacker every day without its knowing it, and its slippery path of ease becomes its path of doom,” Judge Gogne said quoting the Bengali poet and author.

“Tagore held the moral compass for the Indian Freedom Movement. His word often bestowed cohesion in times of prevarication among the balladeers of freedom. Even after a century across, the pearls of wisdom from the sage, poet and philosopher guide the institutions meant to serve the fruits of generational sacrifice,” said Justice Gogne. “As a court of criminal jurisdiction and being seized with matters concerning elected representatives, this court finds immense guidance from these prophetic words, even at the preliminary, yet crucial, stage of charge against multiple Members of Parliament, former chief ministers and ministers, who stand arrayed, with others, as accused in the present proceedings,” the Judge said.

According to the Enforcement Directorate (ED) which is investigating the money laundering case, Lalu and IRCTC officials misused their positions to rig the tender process pertaining to two hotels in Ranchi and Puri to Vijay and Vinay Kochhar’s firm, M/s Sujata Hotels Pvt. Ltd. The contracts were allegedly given in exchange of land and company shares to the Yadav family at throwaway prices.

“Some dubious deals are indeed cut in plain sight, with the public glare serving to camouflage rather than to pry. The court would mindfully observe that the Special Courts for CBI and PMLA matters, especially for MP/MLA cases, exist precisely to detect such masked and circuitous deals which strike Faustian bargains to trade public trust and assets for personal gain,” said Justice Gogne.

Justice Gogne also ordered framing of money laundering charges against Lara Projects, Sarla Gupta, Prem Chand Gupta, Sujata Hotels, Vinay Kochhar and Vijay Kochhar. The Judge discharged Rahul Yadav (Lalu’s son-in-law), Gaurav Gupta, Nath Mal Kankarnia, Vijay Tripathi, DN Tulshyan, Rajiv Relan and Abhishek Finance.

Pezeshkian arrives today, will meet Modi ahead of Summit

Iran and UAE differ on diplomatic language in Delhi declaration

Shubhajit Roy
New Delhi, September 10

IRAN’S PRESIDENT Masoud Pezeshkian will be coming to New Delhi to attend the BRICS Leaders’ Summit — in what would be his first visit to India as the President. He will be meeting Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday evening.

This will be the first visit by an Iranian President in more than eight years, since President Hassan Rouhani visited India in February 2018.

Pezeshkian’s visit comes at a time when Iran is fighting a war with the US and Israel. In the last six months, Iran has survived the war, but has suffered in the process.

The visit is also significant since Iran and the UAE have not yet been able to arrive at a common position on the diplomatic language for the BRICS Delhi Declaration. BRICS Sherpas — the seniormost negotiators — from India, Russia, Brazil and Egypt are trying hard to convince both UAE and Iran to reach a consensus.

Modi and Pezeshkian had met just 10 days ago, on August 31 (for the first time since the war in West Asia began), in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan, on the sidelines of the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) leaders’ summit. Modi and Pezeshkian have had at least two telephone conversations in the last six months.

At that meeting, Modi had expressed “concern at the escalation of tensions” in the region and reiterated that all issues must be resolved through “dialogue and diplomacy”.

Pezeshkian, had in turn, asked Modi to “use India’s extensive contacts with various parties to help them move away from the path of war and bloodshed and return to the path of dialogue and agreement”. He had cited India’s “important position and capacities” in the region and the world, as well as the deep historical and cultural ties between the two countries.

Modi had reiterated the need for continued efforts to ensure lasting peace and stability in the region, and had called for safeguarding the freedom of navigation and commerce — so that civilians and civilian infrastructure, including commercial shipping and seafarers, are not harmed. Delhi has been concerned about the attacks on ships in the Strait of Hormuz, and that is expected to be flagged again. The meeting is going to take place in the backdrop of fresh fighting between US and Iran, after weeks of the fragile ceasefire holding.

Leaders set to fine-tune incubator network, startup fund, supply chain cooperation framework

New Delhi, September 10

AS PRIME Minister Narendra Modi hosts leaders, ministers and officials from 32 countries and agencies for the BRICS Leaders’ Summit, a host of initiatives are on the table — a BRICS Incubator Network, a BRICS Startup Innovation Fund, a BRICS Logistics Supply-Chain Cooperation Framework will be among the possible outcomes.

Much of them have been discussed by the BRICS Sherpas, and will be fine-tuned by the leaders on September 12 and 13.

Apart from Chinese President Xi Jinping and Russian President Vladimir Putin, the summit will be attended by Egypt’s President Abdel Fattah El-Sisi, Indonesian President Prabowo Subianto, Iran’s President Masoud Pezeshkian, UAE’s Crown Prince Sheikh Khaled bin Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan, South Africa President Cyril Ramaphosa, Saudi Arabia’s Foreign Minister Prince Faisal bin Farhan Al Saud and Ethiopian PM Abiy Ahmed Ali. Brazil’s President Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva is not coming since he had come earlier for the AI summit in February this year. Brazil will be represented by Foreign Minister Mauro Vieira.

Malaysian PM Anwar Ibrahim will be attending as one of the 10 partner countries, along with Kazakhstan President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev and Vietnam Prime Minister Lee

The BRICS Logistics Supply-Chain Cooperation Framework is voluntary, consensus-based framework to strengthen cross-sector transport logistics resilience and sustainability

Minh Hung. Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos Jr will be coming as the ASEAN chair, and Bahrain Foreign Minister Abdul Latif bin Rashid Al Zayani is coming as Chair of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC).

UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres, WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus and New Development Bank’s President Dilma Rousseff will be among those in attendance as well.

The BRICS leaders will discuss the BRICS Incubator Network which is a “digital interface/network to connect National Nodal Agencies, selected incubators and start-ups across BRICS countries, facilitate registration and linkages with participating incubators, and enable referral of qualified start-ups to incubators in other BRICS countries”, officials said.

The BRICS Startup Innovation Fund is aimed to catalyse financing for early and growth stage startups and foster innovation driven entrepreneurship in BRICS countries, officials said.

The BRICS Logistics Supply-Chain Cooperation Framework is going to be a voluntary, consensus-based framework to strengthen cross-sector transport logistics resilience and sustainability. It aims to address fragmented supply chains and weak connectivity by promoting technical exchange, knowledge-sharing on cargo and shipping services, localised assembly and manufacturing ecosystems, and capacity-building — while advancing environmentally-sustainable and climate resilient logistics practices.

This is especially relevant in the context of movement of goods amid the uncertainty due to the partial closure of the Strait of Hormuz.

BRICS, originally comprising Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa, expanded in 2024 to include Egypt, Ethiopia, Iran, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia, with Indonesia joining in 2025.

Belarus, Bolivia, Kazakhstan, Cuba, Malaysia, Nigeria, Thailand, Uganda, Uzbekistan and Vietnam became BRICS ‘partner countries’ last year.

BRICS emerged as an influential grouping as it brings together 11 major emerging economies of the world, representing around 49.5 per cent of the global population, around 40 per cent of global GDP and around 26 per cent of global trade.

Russia’s aircraft firm inks agreements with two Indian companies

Sukalp Sharma
New Delhi, September 10

AHEAD OF the BRICS summit in New Delhi, Russia’s United Aircraft Corporation (UAC) on Thursday signed initial agreements to supply 85 turbo-prop Il-114-300 regional aircraft to Indian entities Pinnacle Air and Slek Aviation, according to Russia’s state-owned defence and industrial conglomerate Rostec, the parent company of UAC.

Both Rostec and UAC are sanctioned by the US as part of its economic campaign against Russia due to its war with Ukraine. The move has nudged Moscow to look at friendlier markets, such as India, India for sales as well as potential collaborations.

The agreements for the Il-114-300 planes inked on Thursday are not firm orders yet. Instead, they can be described as formalisation of the buyers’ interest in the 68-seater aircraft. UAC hopes to convert them into orders by the end of the year.

“A letter of intent was signed for the delivery of 50 aircraft to Pinnacle Air. A memorandum of understanding was signed with Slek Aviation for the delivery of 35 aircraft, as well as the opening of a training center with a full-flight simulator at the operator’s facility,” Rostec said in a release. The initial agreements were signed at INNOPROM India, a Russia-India trade event in New Delhi.

Both the potential Indian customers of the Il-114-300 aircraft currently don’t operate airlines. It couldn’t be immediately ascertained if the two entities are looking at entering India’s regional airline segment.

It's A Goal

IF YOUTH connect is the BJP's latest goal, then party president Nitin Nabin, Uttarakhand Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami and Garhwal MP Anil Baluni scored a winner as they dribbled the ball with a group of youngsters in a game of football in Haldwani on Thursday. "We scored a 'hat-trick'! Pure joy, true team spirit, and an unforgettable football match with my young friends," the BJP president posted on social media with a video of the late-night match. Nabin, who was on a two-day visit to the state, helmed several organisational meetings and programmes, including a 'Yuva Samvad', as part of the party's youth outreach.

Temple Run

INDIA'S PERMANENT representative to UNESCO, Vishal Verma, took a bus full of diplomats from countries accredited to UNESCO to visit the recently inaugurated BAPS Swaminarayan temple in Paris. The visit comes days after the Bochasanwasi Akshar Purushottam Swaminarayan Sanstha (BAPS) ran into a controversy over allegations that women employees at the Eiffel Tower were asked to step away from their posts during a visit by the sect's delegation. Verma took the high-profile delegation on a tour of the temple and called it a masterpiece of Indian stone carving and French precision stone engineering.

'CHAI WAS NICE, BUT NOTHING MOVED FORWARD': SONAM WANGCHUK TO MEDIA IN DELHI

No breakthrough in Ladakh talks, leaders threaten stir from Sept 19

Deepthiman Tiwary
New Delhi, September 10

A DAY after their meeting with the Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA), leaders of the Leh Apex Body (LAB) and the Kargil Democratic Alliance (KDA) Thursday said there had been no movement on their core demands and threatened to step up their agitation in Ladakh.

The two bodies said they were planning to hold a padyatra from September 19-24 if the government did not come up with a concrete proposal within a week.

At a press conference in Delhi, climate activist Sonam Wangchuk, who was part of the Ladakh delegation, said the talks were cordial but produced no substantive outcome. "The talks were cordial, chai was nice, but nothing has moved forward," Wangchuk said. The leaders had expected the meeting to produce a draft proposal following the "in-principle understanding" reached with the Centre on May 22, he said.

Wangchuk said the delegation had presented a list of "non-negotiables" — supremacy of the elected UT-level leader over the bureaucracy, control over law and order — and an assurance that no major decisions concerning Ladakh and its administration would be taken before the proposed democratic structure was established. "None of these were addressed."

The leaders had also sought an assurance against irreversible decisions relating to land allotment and the grassroots democratic structure. "Even on these no assurances were given," Wangchuk said. The LAB and KDA had said after Wednesday's meeting that the MHA had proposed a directly elected UT-level body with legislative powers over land, culture and language, forests, and environment and natural resources, besides executive, budgetary, planning, and financial powers. But they flagged the lack of clarity over the body's overall powers, particularly law and order.

The issue of bureaucratic control has been a key point in the negotiations. The final minutes of the May 22 meeting, endorsed on July 3, recorded that "control and supervision, including Annual Performance Appraisal Report (APAR)," over civil servants dealing with subjects under the jurisdiction of the proposed elected body would be exercised by the elected executive body. The leaders, however, said Wednesday's meeting did not provide the broader clarity they were seeking.

Wangchuk also questioned the timing of the meeting, saying it appeared to have been called to persuade them to defer a padyatra planned for September 10, in which people from across the country were expected to participate. "If we don't get any assurance in the next one week, we will be compelled to step up our agitation in Ladakh. The padyatra will begin from September 19 till September 24 if the government does not give us a concrete proposal," he said.

The leaders also responded to remarks made by Ladakh Chief Secretary Ashish Kundra at a press conference in Leh Thursday. KDA co-chairman Sajjad Kargili said the MHA had been expected to bring a comprehensive draft on the proposed constitutional safeguards under Article 371K at Wednesday's meeting, but no such draft was presented. Instead, he said, the leaders were asked questions on the proposed governance structure during the meeting. Kundra referred to these questions at his press conference Thursday.

"We were not there to appear for a NEET exam. We were there to demand a democratic set up for Ladakh," Kargili said.

House passes Bill allowing inter-varsity transfer of staff in West Bengal

Atri Mitra
Kolkata, September 10

THE WEST Bengal Assembly on Thursday passed an amendment bill empowering the state government to facilitate the transfer of teaching and non-teaching staff from one state-run university to another, a move opposed by several teachers' associations and academics.

The "West Bengal Universities and Colleges (Administration and Regulation) (Amendment) Bill, 2026" was introduced by Higher Education Minister Jagannath Chattopadhyay during a one-day special session of the Assembly. The amendment introduces Section 14A, which empowers the Chancellor, in consultation with the State, to transfer an employee of one university to another university established under "any law made by the state legislature for administrative reasons".

The provision states that the transferred employee would carry such conditions of service as may be specified in the transfer order and would be deemed to have been appointed by the competent authority of the university to which he or she is transferred. An employee transferred under the provision would have the option of retaining their lien in the university where they were initially appointed or opting for absorption in the university to which they are transferred. The Bill also provides for transfer grants and the cost of transporting personal effects at prescribed rates.

Inside BSP succession battle: Akash sidelined again as brother Ishan rises

Lalmani Verma & Maulshree Seth
Lucknow, September 10

BAHUJAN SAMAJ Party (BSP) president Mayawati's decision to "completely free" her nephew Akash Anand of any party responsibilities and act against senior functionaries, including Anand's father-in-law Ashok Siddharth, "in the interests of the party" is being seen in the party as a step to maintain her authority and the only power centre.

According to BSP leaders, this has moved beyond the question of one leader being removed from a post and brought to the fore the uncertainty that surrounds the party as it heads to next year's Assembly polls without any MLA or MP in the state. The question that is in the mind of all its workers is who from the next generation will carry forward Mayawati's political legacy. And as Akash finds himself on the outs with his aunt once more, it appears that his younger brother Ishan is being groomed as the party's next-generation face.

Mayawati's decision came a week after she removed Akash as the party's national convener and shortly after she asked Siddharth, a former Rajya Sabha MP, to retire from politics to protect his son-in-law's political future. BSP sources said Mayawati was upset with Akash because he made some statements of his own in speeches to BSP workers in Hathras and Jewar last month. He was supposed to communicate only "Behenji Ka sandesh (Mayawati's message)", according to an insider.

In a social media post on Thursday, Siddharth said Mayawati's command was more important to him than his family and political ties. He denied influencing Akash and said Mayawati should decide whether his son-in-law should be given any responsibility in the party again.

"All that exchange of messages between 'Behenji (Mayawati)' and Ashok Siddharth through social media posts, and the remarks made against Ashok and Akash in the past, clearly indicates there is some tussle within the family. If they are expressing that on social media, they must clarify it to party workers who have been confused for the past two years. The only message that is clear so far is that Behanji is the supreme authority in the party and the family," said a senior BSP leader.

In her statement on Thursday, Mayawati hinted at the churn in the family, accusing Siddharth and Akash of being more attached to "personal and family interests" than the success of the BSP and the Bahujan movement.

At the centre of the family tussle is the influence Siddharth allegedly wields. A senior BSP leader said he is a friend of Akash's father Anand Kumar, Mayawati's younger brother. In March 2023, Akash married Siddharth's daughter Pragya. Akash was initially projected as Mayawati's political heir ahead of the 2024 Lok Sabha polls, but was removed as national coordinator in the middle of the election, stripped of his status as political heir, and barred from campaigning. At the moment, Mayawati said the directive would remain in force until her nephew attained "maturity".

The move came after the police in Sitapur in UP booked Akash for promoting enmity after he referred to the BJP government as "aatankwadiyo ki sarkar (government of terrorists)". A month later, he was re-instated as her "lone successor" and the party's national coordinator. In March 2025, while sacking Akash from all party posts, Mayawati wrote, "We will have to watch how much influence Siddharth will exert on his daughter after his expulsion and how much influence she will exert on Akash. That is not appearing positive so far." She also said that Siddharth had damaged the party and ruined

Who is Ishan Anand

Akash's exit from the BSP comes a week after Ishan attended a meeting of the party's national office-bearers. At the end of the meeting, Ishan was appointed the party's Chief Sector Coordinator, a new post created just for him. Outside UP and Uttarakhand, the BSP has divided its organisation into two sectors, with the first a cluster made up of 10 states and the second including states. Rajya Sabha MP Ramji Gautam is in charge of Sector 1, while former national coordinator Rajaram is in charge of Sector 2. "As per organisational structure, Ishan will directly interact with both Gautam and Rajaram. He is empowered to call them for meetings. Ishan will report to Mayawati and his father and party vice-president Anand Kumar," said a leader.

Ishan is a law graduate from Westminster University in London. BSP sources said that before he was brought into the party, he managed hotels run by the family and a pharma distribution business.

PM: We invite France and the world to be co-travellers in India's next space frontier

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

PRIME MINISTER Narendra Modi Thursday extended 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam' to the domain of space, inviting France and the world to be co-travellers in India's next space frontier.

The PM said France has always been a trusted partner since the inception of the Indian space programme at Thumba in the 1960s. "Today, our cooperation spans Earth observation and advanced technologies, uniting scientific excellence with human purpose. We invite France and the world to be co-travellers in India's next space frontier," he said in his video address at the International Space Summit held in Paris.

The PM thanked French President Emmanuel Macron for inviting him to the summit. "Let the Space Summit in Paris send a clear message: we will explore together, innovate together and protect space together, for all humanity, and for generations to come," he said.

Speaking about India's space programme, Modi said India has an international footprint when it comes to launch services, having placed in orbit 430 payloads from 34 countries. "ISRO, which stands at the heart of this journey, has earned global admiration for its excellence and cost-effective missions," he said. The PM went on to mention the ambitious future targets of the space agency — establishing an indigenous space station by 2035 and sending an astronaut to the Moon by 2040. "In all these ef-orts, our guiding principle has been clear: their benefits must reach all humanity," he said.

In his address, he stressed the need for global partnerships prioritising long-term sustainability over short-term gains in light of orbits becoming more crowded, technologies more powerful and actors more numerous. He also said there was a need for transparent research, noting that the ethical sharing of information was paramount for global progress. "Scientific data must serve the common good, with openness and integrity."

Modi invoked the spirit of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam (Whole world is one family) as the guiding philosophy for space activities and said ISRO was guided by the same spirit. "Scientific data must serve the common goal, with openness and integrity," he said.

The two-day summit, which began on Wednesday, has been organised by France to initiate a regular international talks on the future of space exploration, and evolving structure of the space economy. It has seen participation from over 120 countries.

Abhishek aide held after SC denies anticipatory bail in land-grab case

Express News Service
New Delhi, Kolkata, September 10

SUMIT ROY, personal assistant of Trinamool Congress MP Abhishek Banerjee, was arrested on Thursday, immediately after the Supreme Court dismissed his anticipatory bail plea in the Salboni land-grab case.

A three-judge bench presided by CJI Surya Kant said that in the facts and circumstances of the case, it was not inclined to grant him the relief. The court earlier stayed his arrest but asked him to cooperate with the probe. Roy had moved the top court after the Calcutta High Court rejected his pre-arrest plea.

Appearing for Roy, Senior Advocate Gopal Sankaranarayanan had questioned the line of interrogation following which the court sought the transcript and videos of the questioning. Appearing for the state government, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, produced the transcripts and videos for the court's perusal and contended that the petitioner could not decide how the investigation should proceed. "They may ask random haphazard questions," Sankaranarayanan said that Roy had been interrogated for over 88 hours but there was nothing to link him to the scam. "Eighty-eight hours of questioning, but the petitioner was not confronted with cash deposits in his or family members' accounts..." He also argued that Roy had not been named as an accused in the FIR, and that there was nothing on record to show that his personal account was used to move the amounts alleged to have been generated through the fraudulent transactions.

BRS supporters booked for 'purification' ritual after Congress Dalit workers' protest

Nikhila Henry
Hyderabad, September 10

TELANGANA POLICE has lodged three cases against several BRS supporters for performing as many "purification rituals" near former Chief Minister and party supreme K Chandrashekar Rao's farmhouse in Siddipet district — hours after Dalit workers of the Congress carried out a protest in the area on Tuesday.

This comes a day after Telangana CM A Revanth Reddy promised a thorough probe into "insult to and atrocities against Dalits" in the state in the backdrop of alleged insult to the Assembly speaker, who is a Dalit.

The matter assumes significance also because it comes amid the ongoing controversy involving an alleged purification ritual held in Uttarakhand last month at a venue where Congress chief Mallikarjun Kharge,

This comes day after Telangana CM A Revanth Reddy promised a probe into 'insult to and atrocities against Dalits' in state a Dalit, had addressed a rally. The BRS, meanwhile, lodged a counter-complaint, stating that images used by Congress leaders to accuse them of organising a "purification ritual" were misleading and AI-generated.

The said rituals were held in two villages — Erravalli and Varadarajpur — where Dalit Congress workers performed a Dappu (drum) protest against two BRS Members of Legislative Council (MLCs), besides other leaders of the Opposition, including the party chief himself, for an alleged verbal insult to Speaker G Prasad Kumar, Telangana Police said. As part of the ritual, turmeric water and milk were sprayed on the roads where the Dalit leaders and workers of the Congress walked, police said.

All the three cases have been booked at Murkook Police Station under Siddipet Commissionerate limits. The cases were booked under relevant sections of SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities Act)-1989, Protection of Civil Rights Act and sections 196 and 352 of the BNS, relating to promoting enmity between groups, and intentional insult to promote breach of peace.

Speaking to The Indian Express, Gajwel rural inspector D Ravi Raju said the first case was lodged against local BRS leader and former Erravalli sarpanch

Balaraju and 10 others for conducting the "purification ritual". "The complaint was filed by M Swamy of Erravalli village stating he had participated in the protest and soon after he and other Dalit protesters left the place, a purification ritual was conducted using turmeric water."

The second case was registered against BRS supporters Balamani, Appala Praveen, Raju and six others from Varadarajpur village near Erravalli. The complainant is B Srikanth, a farmer from the village. The police said that the accused allegedly carried out a "purification ritual" in Varadarajpur too.

The third case was registered against BRS supporter Pavan Goud and eight others based on a complaint filed by B Mohan of Wargal. "The complainant alleged that he saw news reports of Goud and other BRS supporters carrying out the purification ritual," police said.

'Violated party policy': Bihar Cong issues notice against 29 rebels amid internal rift

Himanshu Harsh
Patna, September 10

THE BIHAR Pradesh Congress Committee's disciplinary committee has issued show-cause notices to its 29 leaders for allegedly taking part in a September 8 protest against the state Congress leadership near the AICC office in New Delhi, further intensifying differences within the party after its poor showing in the 2025 Bihar Assembly polls.

The notices, issued by disciplinary committee chairman Kapildev Prasad Yadav, accuse the leaders of "anti-party activities" and indiscipline. The committee said their active participation in the protest "violated the party's policy, discipline and directions and amounted to serious indiscipline". The leaders have been given 72 hours from receipt of the notices to submit written explanations to the committee and state why action should not be taken against them. It said, "It would be free to initiate unilateral disciplinary action under party rules if replies were not received within the stipulated period or were found unsatisfactory."

Among those served notices are former MLAs Anil Singh and Poonam Devi, former Siwan district Congress president Vidhushekhar Pandey, former West Champaran district president Bharat Bhushan Dubey, former Madhepura district president Satyendra Yadav and former Aurangabad district president Mrityunjay Singh.

The action follows an alleged demonstration by these leaders and other party workers against the Bihar Congress leadership on September 8. Before the protest, a group of disgruntled leaders had announced plans to demonstrate in Delhi seeking the removal of Bihar Congress president Rajesh Ram and AICC in-charge for Bihar Krishna Alavaru, alleging corruption in the party organisation.

The latest action comes against the backdrop of an earlier dispute involving leaders who had raised similar grievances. Some of them were among nine leaders expelled from the party for six years on February 18. They challenged their expulsions, arguing that the state unit could not remove them without approval from the AICC disciplinary committee.

The group had also sought the withdrawal of notices issued to 47 Congress leaders, including the nine expelled leaders, and alleged that the state unit had exceeded its powers. The leaders had raised concerns about corruption in the party organisation with top Congress leaders.

They had claimed that they tried meeting Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge and LoP Rahul Gandhi to present their case but were not given appointments. They said some of the leaders met Kharge and senior leaders K C Venugopal and Ashok Gehlot at a hotel in Patna on November 3 last year, when, as per them, they were assured that their concerns would be heard after the Assembly polls. The state leadership had rejected the criticism. The party had said the leaders planning the Delhi protest had been expelled and the state unit's mandate from the central leadership was to strengthen the organisation.

One District, One Cuisine

A New Identity of Taste, Pride and Prosperity

In a significant step towards giving global recognition to Uttar Pradesh's rich culinary heritage, the Government of Uttar Pradesh under the leadership of Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath has launched the innovative One District One Cuisine (ODOC) initiative. The programme aims to identify and promote the unique traditional delicacies of all 75 districts of the state through strategic branding, modern packaging, quality standardization and market linkage. The initiative seeks not only to preserve local flavours & cultural traditions but also to create new opportunities in tourism, employment, entrepreneurship & exports. As part of this vision, the proposed ODOC Park in Lucknow will bring together the diverse culinary treasures of Uttar Pradesh on a single platform, transforming the concept of "Taste of UP" into a vibrant reality and showcasing the state's gastronomic excellence to visitors from across India and the world.

One District, One Cuisine

Bringing Global Recognition to the Flavours of Uttar Pradesh

Traditional cuisines from every district of Uttar Pradesh will be branded, standardized and made export-ready.

Standardized recipes based on quality and food safety benchmarks will be developed in collaboration with FSSAI, CFTRI and NIFTEM.

The initiative will create new opportunities for local entrepreneurs, Self-Help Groups (SHGs) and food producers.

By linking traditional culinary heritage with employment, tourism and exports, the scheme will transform the vision of "Local to Global" into reality.

Smart packaging, QR codes and nutrition labelling will enhance product visibility and market reach.

ODOC Park

Experience the Flavours of All of Uttar Pradesh at One Destination

The 'ODOC Park' will be developed by the Lucknow Development Authority (LDA) over an area of approximately 8,000 square metres in Vibhuti Khand, Gomti Nagar.

More than 40 food kiosks will be established under the One District One Cuisine initiative. Renowned and traditional delicacies from different districts of the state will be available at a single location.

Inspired by the concept of Delhi Haat, the park is set to emerge as Lucknow's new food and cultural destination.

The project will generate fresh employment and self-employment opportunities for local entrepreneurs, food businesses & artisans.

Equipped with modern amenities, enhanced public facilities and attractive landscaping, the initiative will provide a distinctive identity to the One District, One Cuisine campaign.

Zero appeals against SIR deletions in 12 states, says CEC

Brendan Dabhi
Ahmedabad, September 10

CHIEF ELECTION Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar on Thursday said that not a single appeal had been filed against name deletion before district collectors, who double up as election officers, in the 12 states where the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) is complete.

Taking questions on the sidelines of his address at the Ahmedabad Management Association (AMA) on Thursday, Kumar said, "If your name is rejected, you can file an appeal before the Collector, and if it is rejected again, you can file a second appeal before the most important person sitting here, the Chief Electoral Officer (CEO) of the state (Sandip Sagale), after which you can move the courts. The SIR has been done in 12 states, in some states it is set to be done in one-one-and-a-half months... And how many appeals have come to the Collectors till now? Zero."

He was responding to a question regarding thousands of complaints stemming from the SIR of electoral rolls and whether these could be resolved before the next Lok Sabha election (in 2029). Pressing the point, Kumar asked Gujarat's CEO, Sandip Sagale, who was in the front row, how many appeals have been received against name deletion in the state, to which he replied, "Zero till now". Kumar said, "The number (of appeals) has not gone beyond zero in any state."

Kumar said that it was possible that people were not aware, and so the appeals module had been added to the ECINET. Even then, no appeals had been filed till date.

According to an Indian Express report last month, the SIR appellate tribunals in West Bengal have so far disposed of 82,782 appeals. Out of which, 91% (75,443) of names have been added back to the state's electoral list, while 8.86% (7,339) of names have been excluded. The Election Commission (EC) revealed this in an RTI reply to Congress MP Isha Khan Chowdhury.

During his hour-long speech on the topic 'Conducting Elections in India - The Largest Democracy in the World', CEC Gyanesh Kumar reiterated the sanctity of the Electronic Voting Machines (EVMs), saying that they had survived 41 challenges in the Supreme Court.

He called EVMs "simple calculators" that counted the votes and said the machines were not connected to the internet and therefore "cannot be hacked".

"India is the only democracy to be concurrently audited by political parties at every stage of the electoral process," the CEC said.

Asked whether India would ever deliberate on voting-by-mobile phones, the CEC said, "If you vote by phone, it goes to the cloud on some server which is owned by some companies... That's why transparent democracies don't even think about it."

To a question on replacing the Chief Justice of India with a Union Cabinet minister in the selection panel for ECs, the CEC said, "What was the appointment procedure before? It was on the recommendation of the government. There was no committee, no law. Article 324 says that until a law is made, the President will make appointment based on recommendations of the government."

"I'm the 26th CEC. The other 25 were appointed how? So which is better? Committee or direct? The committee is better, no?", he said.

US govt faces backlash over ‘get off our roads, Mr Singh’ poster

Express News Service
Chandigarh, September 10

AI-GENERATED POSTERS shared by the US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) asking “Mr Singh” to “get off our roads” triggered a backlash from Sikh and Indian-American groups, which accused the Trump administration of racial stereotyping and anti-Indian profiling.

The images, posted on the official DHS account on X on September 9, was named ‘Transformers: Age of Deportations’ based on the Transformers movie franchise. One post features Optimus Prime, the protagonist with a DHS arm patch confronting a brown, bearded man, wearing a head covering. “America for Americans. Get off our roads; you don’t know how to drive, Mr Singh,” the poster said. It carried the slogan “Self-deport or find out” and urged people to report “illegal aliens on American roads”. The posts are part of the Trump administration’s stepped-up immigration enforcement campaign.

The Hindu American Foundation said the post was “racist, un-American, anti-Indian profiling/trolling”. “This is a discriminatory post ... we welcome an investigation,” the HAF said, tagging Assistant Attorney General Harmeet K Dhillon and FBI Director Kash Patel.

The Sikh Coalition criticised, saying: “Twenty-five years after 9/11, Sikhs are still being targeted and profiled for how we look.” It said millions of Sikhs in the US have the surname Singh, adding that the community remained “fearless” in identifying as Sikh even when portrayed as enemies by the government.

MP HC upholds partial demolition of mosque for Kumbh project

Anand Mohan J
Bhopal, September 10

THE MADHYA Pradesh High Court has dismissed two petitions challenging the Ujjain Municipal Corporation’s decision to demolish portions of a mosque to widen a key road ahead of the Simhashta Kumbh 2028, holding that the action was taken in accordance with law and in the larger public interest of managing the movement and safety of crores of devotees expected to visit the temple town.

Justice Sandeep N Bhatt on Wednesday rejected petitioners’ contention that the action violated their constitutional rights under Articles 14, 25 and 26, observing that the corporation could not be said to be acting arbitrarily merely because the property was a religious place.

The court also noted that portions of 10 temples and one mosque had already been removed along the same road and that authorities in Ujjain had taken action against constructions involving around 80 religious places. “Therefore, it cannot be said that the respondent Corporation is acting in an arbitrary manner or in violation of Article 14 of the Constitution of India,” the court held. “It is a hard reality that with the efflux of time, the population of the city has increased,” Justice Bhatt observed.

“There is no dispute that the property in question is a religious place and has existed for many years,” the court recorded.

Finding that the statutory procedure had been followed the court concluded that “no interference is called for.”

Extradited in 2012, antique smuggler Subash Kapoor to return to Germany

Arun Janardhanan
Chennai, September 10

FOURTEEN YEARS ago, Subash Chandra Kapoor, international antiques dealer and idol smuggler, was brought to India all the way from a German prison. Now, after a career that connected forgotten Tamil Nadu temples, Manhattan galleries, international museums, police files, and millions of dollars, Kapoor is preparing to make the journey in reverse.

The Madurai Bench of the Madras High Court has directed the Union government to take custody of Kapoor from Tiruchi Central Prison and proceed according to law to return him to Germany. The reason is an exquisite legal irony: The extradition treaty that enabled India to bring Kapoor here in 2012 has ultimately limited the country’s ability to keep him here.

Kapoor, a US citizen and once a celebrated Manhattan antiques dealer, was convicted in 2022 and sentenced to 10 years’ imprisonment for the burglary and illegal export of 19 antique idols, valued at more than Rs 94 crore, from the Varadaraja Perumal temple at Suthamalli in

The extradition treaty that enabled India to bring Kapoor in 2012 has ultimately limited the country’s ability to keep him here

Ariyalur district of Tamil Nadu. His time already spent in custody meant the sentence was completed in 2023. Tamil Nadu, though, wanted to prosecute him in other idol-theft cases. Germany, whose consent was required under the rule of speciality governing his extradition, refused permission in four cases. Requests involving others remained unresolved.

The court has now held that allegations may be extraordinarily serious without itself becoming legal authority to imprison somebody.

For decades, objects appeared to move around Kapoor with ease. An ancient bronze could leave a village temple, acquire paperwork, cross oceans, develop a provenance and eventually stand beneath museum lighting. Kapoor’s Art of the Past gallery occupied a distinctly different world from the temples that figured in Tamil Nadu investigations. In Manhattan, he became a respected dealer and donor although investigators would argue that provenance itself could be manufactured.

His arrest produced one of the stranger episodes—three days after Kapoor was detained in Germany on October 30, 2011, he managed to send a handwritten instruction to Art of the Past. “Give back four items to Selina (Mohammad), Bronze Dancers, which are in the 4 closets,” it said. Another note followed days later: “4 dancers bronze in 4 closets = 2 pairs nataraj and consorts (consorts).”

Investigators believed the instruction referred to four enormously valuable Chola bronzes. Kapoor’s aide Aaron Freeman allegedly moved them to the apartment of Kapoor’s girlfriend and art dealer Selina Mohammad before American investigators raided Art of the Past and associated storage facilities in January 2012. The four sculptures disappeared.

Kapoor established Nimbus

Import and Export, became an important figure in the international antiques market.

By 2007, American investigators were interested in him. A mole was planted inside his office. Paramaspry Punusamy, Kapoor’s former partner and a Singapore-based art collector began supplying authorities with information about Kapoor’s operations. Before his 2011 journey to Germany, she provided them with a recent photograph of Kapoor that helped authorities identify him.

An international antiquities empire was thus being squeezed by the FBI, Tamil Nadu policemen, an employee-turned-approver, and an angry former girlfriend.

Tamil Nadu investigators reconstructed a system in which thieves targeted inadequately protected temples, middlemen acquired idols, exporters allegedly mixed ancient bronzes with newly manufactured objects, certificates described consignments as handicrafts, and sculptures travelled through intermediary countries before appearing in respectable collections. The Metropolitan Museum of Art agreed to return 15 sculptures once sold by Kapoor after determining that they had been illegally removed from India. Other works linked to him returned from Australia, Singapore, Germany and elsewhere. Yet, Tamil Nadu investigators say, many objects remain abroad or untraced.

India could bring Kapoor over under a promise: he could be prosecuted for the offence for which Germany surrendered him, while prosecution for other pre-extradition offences required the European nation’s consent. Fourteen years later, that promise has become decisive. The HC ruled that even the seriousness of allegations involving invaluable national heritage cannot replace the consent required by treaty.

So Kapoor, now 77, is expected to leave Tiruchi prison and return to the country where this extraordinary chapter began. The idols are more complicated. Some have returned. Some await repatriation. Others remain missing. Perhaps that is the peculiarity: the dealer can be arrested, extradited, convicted, imprisoned and extradited again. The gods he dealt in have proved harder to bring home.

Mining, money & federalism: Why a new law is at the centre of a political tussle in Odisha

Sujit Bisoyi
Bhubaneswar, September 10

IN A scathing letter to Odisha MPs from the ruling BJP on August 28, former Odisha chief minister Naveen Patnaik tore into the recent amendments to the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, calling the day it was passed “a black day for Odisha”.

“The Bill was passed with less than 10 minutes of discussion in the Lok Sabha, despite having provisions with far-reaching implications for the people of Odisha,” the letter said. “This was not an ordinary piece of legislation. Odisha undoubtedly will be the worst affected by this legislation.” The letter reveals the crux of the controversy for states like Odisha, whose economy and politics are deeply intertwined with mining.

In August, Parliament passed the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Amendment Act, 2026, to set a uniform national tax framework for major minerals and limit state powers to levy taxes on mining lands. In doing so, the 2026 amendment overrides the key financial impacts of a 2024 Supreme Court ruling, which allowed mining states the exclusive power to tax mineral rights and mineral-bearing lands. For mining states like Odisha, the law brings forth a dilemma: how to reconcile the financial and political implications of a law widely viewed as detrimental to its interests.

The law has since become a political flashpoint in the state. While the ruling BJP, the outfit that leads the NDA government at the Centre, has defended the law by arguing that arbitrary and multi-level levies on mineral-bearing land would cause extensive damage to the state’s industrial ecosystem, the Opposition has been trying to corner the state, framing it as an attack on federalism and the state’s financial rights. While the BJD alleges that the new law could cost the state Rs 12,000 crore in annual losses and Rs 1 lakh crore in arrears, the Congress and the Left plan to gherao the Odisha Assembly on September 29.

“Through the MMDR Amendment Act, the Centre has permanently taken away the rights of the state governments over mines and mineral-bearing land,” BJD Rajya Sabha member Santrupat Misra told The Indian Express.

However, Odisha’s Steel and Mines Minister Bibhuti Jena dismissed these concerns, accusing the Opposition of “misleading people”. “Odisha’s earnings from the mining sector have witnessed a significant jump after the Narendra Modi government last amended the MMDR Act in 2015. The state was earning around Rs 5,000 crore before 2014, which has risen to Rs 50,000 crore. The states are also getting funds under the District Mineral Foundation (DMF), a non-profit trust set up by state governments for mining-related operations,” Jena said.

The Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, 1957 is India’s principal law governing the development and regulation of mines and minerals. Enacted by Parliament in 1957, it declares that the Union should take control of mining and mineral development to the extent provided by the Act. One of the biggest amendments in recent times was in 2015, when the allocation of major mineral concessions was moved to competitive auctions. This amendment also created the DMF and National Mineral Exploration Trust (NMET) and strengthened penalties for illegal mining.

In July 2024, a nine-judge Constitution Bench headed by former CJI DY Chandrachud, in an 8-1 majority, upheld the power of the states to levy royalty on extraction of minerals from their land and said they can also tax the lands which comprise mines and quarries. The BJD claims that the ruling could have brought Odisha Rs 1 lakh crore in arrears alone. “The order also cleared the way for the state to get an additional Rs 12,000 crore annually as revenue, which the state will lose,” Misra said.

A new clause has caused unease—Section 9D, prohibits states from levying any tax. “No tax, cess or such other levy... shall be imposed by the State on—(a) mineral rights; or (b) mineral-bearing lands, either based on mineral quantity or mineral value or royalty payable or otherwise, except in accordance with such conditions or restrictions as may be prescribed by the Central Government,” the clause read. In addition, an amendment of Section 2 and 13 expands the Centre’s control to include mineral-bearing lands and also grants it sole authority to frame rules restricting states’ power to tax on minerals.

Three Congress-ruled states—Karnataka, Kerala, and Telangana—challenged the law in the SC. Calling the amendment anti-Odisha, state Congress president Bhakta Charan Das said they will challenge it in SC.

SC dismisses Abu Salem’s plea for an early release

Express News Service
New Delhi, September 10

THE SUPREME Court on Thursday dismissed a plea by gangster Abu Salem, who is undergoing life imprisonment in the 1993 Mumbai serial blasts case, for premature release.

A bench of Justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta said it found no infirmity with the April 15, 2026 Bombay High Court order dismissing his prayer.

Salem, who was extradited to India from Portugal on November 11, 2005, and arrested on November 24, 2005, had approached the HC after a special court designated under the Terrorist and Disruptive Activities (Prevention) (TADA) Act rejected his plea in December 2024. He contended that he had already served his 25-year prison term as per the extradition treaty between India and Portugal.

In addition to the 2017 award, he was awarded a life term for the murder of a Mumbai builder who was killed in 1995. The judgement reproduced a “calculation chart” furnished by the Maharashtra government “indicating 31st January, 2046 as his probable date of release.

Mehul Choksi lawyer Vijay Aggarwal faces allegation of rape, UK court told

Press Trust of India
London, September 10

CRIMINAL LAWYER Vijay Aggarwal, who remains behind bars in London after his arrest last month on charges of sexual assault, faces an additional allegation of rape, a UK court was told on Thursday.

Aggarwal, who has represented fugitive businessman Mehul Choksi in fraud and money laundering proceedings, appeared before Justice Nathaniel Rudolf at Southwark Crown Court, charged with four counts of sexual assault for a plea and trial preparation hearing.

His assistant, Manpreet Kaur, also appeared alongside in the dock, charged with two counts of intentionally encouraging or assisting sexual assault.

They spoke only to confirm their names and are set to remain in prison until the start of their trial, which has been set for March 15 next year, unless they are granted bail in the interim. At Thursday’s hearing, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) sought an adjournment until next month before filing an indictment in the case due to the “complex” nature of the police investigation. “This is an ongoing inquiry relating to a series of alleged sexual offences involving three complainants,” CPS barrister Oliver Weetch told the judge. He said that the “complexity of the case and ongoing inquiries” indicated at least one other complainant who alleges “sexual intercourse” and the likelihood of “other participants and/or complainants”.

Aggarwal’s barrister, Sasha Wass, described him as a man of “exemplary good character” who has been held at Wandsworth prison in south-west London for nearly a month now.

Seven injured as launching girder falls at under-construction bridge

SEVEN WORKERS were injured after the launching girder machine being used in the construction of a bridge on the four-lane NH-139W under the Bharatmala project collapsed in Vaishali district on Thursday, officials said. They claimed that no deaths had been reported so far, and there was no indication of structural damage to the bridge itself. The incident occurred at a construction site under Lalganj police station limits in Jalalpur panchayat. In a post on X, Tejashwi Yadav said, “...There are reports that in Vaishali, another under-construction bridge has collapsed under the weight of corruption... The condition of several workers is critical.” ENS

3 arrested for firing at Goa casino director

THE CRIME branch of Goa police arrested three persons in connection with a recent shooting incident, targeted at the director of Majestic Pride group, which runs offshore and onshore casinos. Police said three accused—Qazu Sheikh (28), Israr Ali (25) and Suraj Acharya (36)—have been arrested. The incident happened in August this year when Shrinivas Nayak, was about to leave. Two persons allegedly fired three to four rounds at Nayak. His bodyguard fired three rounds in response. The complainant escaped unhurt. ENS

Ailing tiger euthanised in Keralam zoo

A 14-YEAR-OLD male tiger, which has been undergoing treatment for oral cancer at Thrissur Zoological Park, was euthanised on Thursday. The tiger was brought to the park in December last year after being captured in Wayanad. Puthur Zoological Park Director B N Nagaraj said considering the severe pain and veterinary experts’ assessment that there was no possibility of recovery, the tiger was euthanised on the orders of the Chief Wildlife Warden. The decision was taken in accordance with provisions of the Wildlife Act, he said. ENS

Shaju Philip/Asad Rehman
Thiruvananthapuram, New Delhi, September 10

A WORKSHOP by the National Commission for Women appears to have become the latest epicentre of a blazing language row.

Three days after women legislators from Keralam boycotted a capacity-building workshop on “gender responsive governance for women legislators” to protest the exclusive use of Hindi for the programme, Chief Minister V D Satheesan has accused the Centre of “forcing Hindi at a national conclave and intimidating delegates from non-Hindi speaking states strikes at the core of our Constitutional compact”.

The two-day workshop, held on September 7 and 8 at Taj Surajkund Resort, Faridabad, sparked a row after eight UDF legislators walked out. Taking to X, Satheesan condemned “the treatment meted out to Keralam’s delegation of women MLAs at the NCW workshop”.

“Forcing Hindi at a national conclave and intimidating delegates from non-Hindi-speaking states strikes at the core of our constitutional compact. Our founding fathers envisioned an India whose strength would come not from uniformity, but from the unity of its diversity... India is a Union of diverse linguistic traditions, not a monolithic entity. Mutual respect, accommodation and constitutional equality not linguistic imposition must define our national forums. Our diversity is not a challenge to Indian unity. It is the very foundation of it,” Satheesan said.

Bindhu Krishna, Keralam’s Minister for Women & Child Development, said the NCW programme could have been held at the BJP office.

“Why was all this done from the Women’s Commission’s platform?” Krishna said. She added that the Keralam leaders came with hopes that the NCW workshop in Surajkund, Faridabad, would offer more information, ideas, and guidance on making better laws. “Just before the function, we were invited to sit on the dais but were not allowed to speak. All sessions were in Hindi. As we are from South India, we requested that English also be used so we could understand, but nobody listened.” The NCW chairperson promised to look into the issue, but nothing happened, the minister alleged.

“On the second day, deputy speaker and another Congress legislator, Shanimoil Usman, seized the mike while a session was going on in Hindi,” she said.

“I also intervened and questioned the way the workshop was being conducted... Instead, women legislators raised the slogan ‘Bharat Mata Ki Jai’. Hence, eight UDF legislators decided to boycott the session. Raising the slogan ‘uphold the Constitution’, we quit the venue,” she said.

The NCW has yet to respond to the row.

To help rescued orangutans beat stress, Odisha zoo turns to music therapy

Sujit Bisoyi
Bhubaneswar, September 10

TO HELP the five rescued orangutans beat stress, authorities of Nandankanan Zoological Park in Odisha have turned to music therapy with soothing classical, instrumental tunes being played during their feeding sessions.

Nandankanan deputy director Pradeep Mirase said the step was taken as per the suggestions of biologists and after referring to several research papers. “We are sure that it will help them relax and they will feel safe here. We have also undertaken other measures like providing them with soft toys and slings to engage them in activities,” said Mirase.

Meanwhile, Odisha Chief Minister Mohan Charan Majhi, who is in Dubai to attend an investors meet, has directed a thorough probe into the circumstances under which the orangutans arrived in the state.

Odisha will not be allowed to become a transit route for illegal trafficking of exotic wildlife, he said. “If any racket is found to be involved in the illegal transportation of exotic wildlife, it will be identified and strong legal action will be taken against those responsible,” said Majhi.

According to experts, orangutans generally stay with their mothers until they are about seven to eight years old. Being separated from their mothers and undertaking a journey of more than 4,000 km to an entirely new environment could have contributed to their stress and anxiety, they said.

The decision to play music is part of enrichment activities by the zoo authorities as such steps have proven to be capable of improving activity and biological functioning as well as reducing fearful, aggressive and abnormal behaviour among the orangutans, officials said.

In videos released by the zoo authorities, the apes could be seen playing with orangutan soft toys and dangling on slings, when not consuming the food being administered to them at regular intervals by dedicated zoo keepers.

The five baby orangutans were rescued from a forest in the state’s Balasore district on Tuesday, raising concerns among authorities, who suspect the involvement of a global smuggling ring since the animals are not native to Odisha.

An expert team from the Centre for Wildlife Health of Odisha University of Agriculture and Technology (OUAT) is in touch with the zoo authorities and steps are being taken on the upkeep of the orangutans as per their suggestions.

The expert panel has also recommended moving the orangutans to an open enclosure after three to four days, allowing them to get sunlight and help them adjust with the surroundings, said Mirase. The orangutans are native only to the rainforests of Borneo and Sumatra in Southeast Asia and currently facing a severe survival crisis, with all three species classified as Critically Endangered on the IUCN Red List (International Union for Conservation of Nature).

The decision to collect their blood sample on Thursday was also deferred as the animals are stressed and yet to acclimatise with the environment. “It generally takes seven to eight days for the apes to acclimatise with the environment and to remain stress-free. As per recommendation of the expert team, we have decided to collect blood samples for DNA profiling and other requirements after 10 days,” said a zoo official.

Further decisions regarding the orangutans will be taken once they stabilise, and following approval of the central zoo authorities and other agencies concerned. Meanwhile, a possible inter-state wildlife smuggling racket is under scanner as two separate teams of the special task force intensified their hunt for the smugglers. Two teams from the wildlife crime control bureau’s (WCCB) Kolkata and Bhopal unit are also coordinating with the STF to ascertain the international smuggling link as the officials suspect the animals are from Borneo.

Based on circumstantial evidence, officials said the smugglers are believed to be using the interior road networks of West Bengal and Odisha to avoid national highways.

Delhi is hosting the BRICS summit. Is the bloc relevant, key to India's global ambitions?

Forget BRICS, look West

SURJIT S BHALLA

INDIA HOSTS the 18th BRICS summit on September 12 and 13, and chairs the grouping this year. It's a good time to ask: In 17 years of summits, what has membership bought India?

Begin with the origin of BRICS. A marketing device for Goldman Sachs, and a very successful one, to persuade global fund managers to buy the stocks of four countries: Brazil, Russia, India and China. Politicians picked up the acronym at Yekaterinburg in 2009, and its author, Jim O'Neill has since disowned it: "I never encouraged them to develop a political club."

Let us consider some facts. The Security Council. The Rio declaration of July 2025 had China and Russia "reiterate their support to the aspirations of Brazil and India to play a greater role in the United Nations, including its Security Council". Aspirations. To play a greater role. Then in September 2024, the BRICS foreign ministers, meeting in New York, failed for the first time ever to issue a joint statement: Two new members, Egypt and Ethiopia, would not endorse the paragraph supporting permanent seats for Brazil, India and South Africa, (hereafter B_I_S) because the group could not agree which African country should hold Africa's seat. Who acted against India's interest? Good question.

The New Development Bank. India paid in $2 billion of capital and pledged $8 billion more on call. Ten years on, it has approved about $40 billion for all members together — against the $81 billion the World Bank committed in fiscal 2025 alone. India committed a further $18 billion to the Contingent Reserve Arrangement, the 2014 answer to the IMF, on which no member has drawn a dollar in 11 years. A decade's cost: Capital tied up in a bank that does not lend at scale, and an insurance premium nobody has claimed.

So the delivery record is nil. But my objection is not just that BRICS underperforms; it is what it has become. India chaired BRICS in 2021; what came out of it — the now familiar trot: China and Russia reiterated support for B_I_S's "aspiration to play a greater role in the UN". Not our candidature. Our aspiration. In a year we chaired.

That is what the platform is for. Two of our partners carry the largest unanswered questions in the world: A war Russia began and has not ended, and China's silence on the origins of Covid and on its expansive mercantilism. On the second, I claim some standing. In a 1998 ICRIER paper, I argued that China's 50 per cent devaluation between 1990 and 1993 was a principal cause of the East Asian crisis; the IMF, the Federal Reserve and the World Bank all said it did not matter. The mercantilism has exploded, and no correction to undervaluation is in the offing. An overvalued currency corrects itself, because deficits must be financed; an undervalued one need never correct. BRICS has never asked that question of China, and will not ask it at a summit India chairs. We are not in that room to be heard. We are there as window dressing.

Look at what this club offers as a growth model. Viksit Bharat means a high-income India, and the World Bank's threshold from July 2026 is $14,375. Russia's income per head was $15,160 in 2013 and $15,330 in 2024 — 11 years and 11 dollars — and it entered the high-income group only on war spending. Brazil has fallen from $12,950 to $9,930, South Africa from $7,930 to $6,110, both down 23 per cent. China, at $13,660, did not cross the threshold this July; it refuses to lift consumption at home, which is 40 per cent of GDP against a world average of 64, because the mercantilist surplus is the strategy. India is at $2,550, and to be viksit by 2047 must raise income per head by about 10 per cent a year in dollars; over 11 years we have managed 4.9 per cent. The countries that have done what we are attempting — Korea, Poland, Vietnam climbing now — are not in the room.

Set against that, the American balance sheet. The United States takes a fifth of our goods exports and over half our software exports, sends 28 per cent of our remittances, holds $390 billion of Indian securities, and has put some $100 billion of direct investment into India. China's cumulative direct investment here is $2.5 billion, our deficit with it hit a record $112 billion in 2025-26, and it is the country that throttled our rare-earth magnets and pulled Foxconn's engineers from our iPhone plants. Russia sold us $47 billion of oil and bought $4.9 billion of everything.

What should India do to enhance our future? Forget BRICS. Our future is as a global partner of the West — Europe and the US. And note, and remember, who gains if India does not sign a trade deal with America.

RAJAN KUMAR

OVER TWO decades, BRICS has transformed itself from a loose grouping of five emerging economies to the most formidable organisation of the Global South. It has benefitted from the sustained commitment of key global leaders such as Xi Jinping, Vladimir Putin and Narendra Modi. However, its growing appeal in the Global South stands in sharp contrast to the dominant Western portrayal of BRICS as a divided house and a talking shop.

The world has entered an unprecedented phase of transition. Traditional global governance institutions are faltering in fulfilling their responsibilities. The UN has proved increasingly incapable of shielding sovereign states from the hegemonic ambitions of powerful countries; the WTO is becoming dysfunctional, and the World Bank (WB) and International Monetary Fund (IMF) are inadequate to meet the expectations of emerging states. Against this backdrop, BRICS offers states of the Global South a platform to socialise with peers, voice concerns, and chart a common strategy.

BRICS is a heterogeneous organisation. It encompasses diverse political systems: Democracy, authoritarianism, monarchy, theocracy. Similarly, BRICS economies are highly diverse. China's economy, at about $20 trillion in 2025 in nominal GDP terms, was larger than the combined GDP of the other 10 states at about $14 trillion. Further, the BRICS states do not share a historical, linguistic and cultural heritage. To evaluate BRICS through a Western prism is analytically limiting and futile. The more pertinent questions are: What strategic interests and shared motivations glue them together despite these differences? To what extent has BRICS succeeded in articulating, advancing, and shaping the Global South agenda?

BRICS does not seek to create a new world order. It is reformist in character, and pluralist in its orientation. It identifies itself as non-Western, not anti-Western. Its normative appeal lies in its transformative politics, which calls for democratisation of international institutions, multipolarisation of the global order and multilateralisation of the Global South. It espouses norms of respecting sovereignty, non-interference in domestic affairs, civilisational and nonmilitaristic political cooperation.

The creation of two financial institutions — the New Development Bank (NDB) and the Contingent Reserve Arrangement (CRA) — turned out to be a game-changer for BRICS. The NDB has financed 120 sustainable infrastructure projects costing around $39 billion. The bank has expanded its membership and includes non-BRICS countries. Further, the NDB committed 30 per cent of its financing in local currencies in the last few years. One of the biggest advantages of the NDB loan is that, unlike loans from the IMF and WB, it is not accompanied by political conditionalities. The aggregate amount of NDB funding is small compared to the WB funding, but it serves as an additional source of funding for the Global South.

The relevance of BRICS for the Global South can be measured from the exponential growth in intra-BRICS trade. BRICS accounts for over 20 per cent of global trade, amounting to about $10 trillion. But according to a UNCTAD report, intra-BRICS trade has grown 13 times, from $84 billion in 2003 to $1.17 trillion in 2024. This growth is a function of lower tariffs, resource complementarity and the removal of supply-chain constraints by BRICS states.

Another significant contribution of BRICS lies in developing mechanisms for trade in local currencies to reduce dependence on the US dollar. Russia-China, China-Brazil, India-Russia and India-UAE trade is increasingly settled in local currencies. Other countries have also initiated this process. This mechanism reduces countries' exposure to dollar liquidity crunches and US monetary policy shocks. This has fuelled the debate on de-dollarisation and the possibility of a BRICS currency. BRICS is unlikely to develop a common currency in the near term.

Finally, the BRICS summit offers a unique opportunity for India to position itself as a leading voice of the Global South, working as a bridge between the West and developing economies. New Delhi has managed to ensure the participation of all key leaders; getting a joint declaration would be the next big step. The summit appears focused on advancing developmental and technological cooperation, but its real achievement rests in its ability to develop mechanisms for resolving the conflicts in Ukraine and Iran. BRICS has the requisite capacity, but its intent remains uncertain.

Good governance is when state, society and markets deliver together

AMARJEET SINHA

OVER A hundred chief executive officers of zila parishads whom I interacted with over the past two months said the same thing as what research was pointing out — decentralised community action and collaborative governance deliver better, especially for problems that have too many variables making quality outcomes difficult. I had spoken to the top 10 municipal commissioners in the Swachhata Sarvekshan rankings in 2024 about the reasons behind their success, and all attributed it to community participation and collaborative governance.

I am part of the jury set up by The Indian Express to select district magistrates for the Ramnath Goenka Excellence in Governance Awards. This is the third time I am looking at shortlisted proposals prepared by the knowledge partner, and every success story talks of decentralised community action and collaborative governance. The success of the National Rural Livelihood Mission and its hundred million women as members of 10 million self-help groups is also attributable to large-scale collaborative governance and decentralised management down to the cluster level, below blocks.

The Viksit Bharat dream can only come with collaboration among the state, society and markets. Analysis brings out six factors that can transform the quality of outcomes at scale and make India a truly inclusive society. These are: Decentralised community action, collaborative governance, women's agency, technology as enabler, accountability and public trust, and professionals and community resource persons.

India has done well on many parameters of growth and development. While there has been a sharp decline in extreme poverty over the past two decades, many households remain vulnerable to slipping back into poverty. Productivity gains and wages of dignity have been elusive in many employment opportunities, leading to a slower rate of improvement in social indicators. Digital public infrastructure, women's bank accounts, direct benefit transfers and access to retail credit have all created new opportunities for growth and development. Despite these gains, the persistent "wicked problems" require a new approach.

There is evidence that wherever an intervention enjoys public trust, has professionals, focuses on public information and community connect, and assigns a consensual decision-making role to citizens, the results are better. The Green and White revolutions, the Rural Livelihoods Mission, the Swachh Bharat Mission-Grameen's work, the total literacy campaigns, collaborative initiatives in watershed development and livelihoods diversification all point to the positive consequences of collaboration with professionals and citizen-centric accountability. Local governments and women's collectives in rural areas working together makes a difference to multidimensional poverty and human development indicators. Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Himachal Pradesh, Goa and Sikkim have reported gains attributable to such an approach.

The compulsions of democratic electoral processes, a bureaucracy not geared for the qualitative outcomes in these sectors, inadequate and dysfunctional systems of institutions and management processes, and weak accountability with little community validation of data, all lead to a situation where centralisation becomes a norm. There is a strong case for a new approach to impactful governance.

The heavy lifting of community mobilisation and social capital has been achieved in most parts of rural India; what is needed is higher-order education and skills that improve productivity and scale. Having invested in the expansion of the school, health and nutrition systems, with some significant gains in social participation, it is time to subject them to citizen-centric impactful governance. Local government institutions, with the countervailing presence of women's collectives and their social capital, create an opportunity for accountable governance. Untied and adequate funds with professionals below the block level with local governments, and with an army of community resource persons, leads to more accountable governance and public trust.

Urban governance challenges need institutional reforms. We need direct elections at the basti level, below the large ward level, to create legitimate accountable governance authority close to the community. Those with responsibility must also have the resources. Community organisations like women's or youth collectives need to work with the elected basti-level leaders to provide accountable governance at the doorstep with funds, functions and functionaries.

ASHA workers play an instrumental role in making primary healthcare facilities more accountable. Improvement in their capabilities has made many become more like community health workers. There is a lesson here. Accountable public systems need well-trained, locally resident frontline workers. When there are community resource persons, the professionals recruited from the market also become more accountable and get scale to implement new approaches.

Given the interconnectedness of many of these wicked problem sectors, it is best to accept the Eleventh and Twelfth Schedule responsibilities of local governments. Such an adoption will generate community convergent action from below. The Panchayat Advancement Index (PAI) to rank local governments is a very good initiative that can be made even better by community validation of all outcomes. The financing of local governance to address the deficits of PAI must be commensurate with the size and shape of the deficit.

The pursuit of Viksit Bharat needs collaborative governance where the state, society and markets all work together to develop impactful governance that secures quality outcomes. It is time sarkari (government) became asarkari (impactful).

Murder in Delhi

THE KILLING of a musician raises concerns about safety and accountability ("The murder of a musician, and a familiar unease", IE, September 10). Police investigations must be prompt, impartial and transparent, with evidence preserved. Institutions should address tensions before they lead to violence. Preventing such incidents requires effective policing alongside sustained community engagement.

Far right's march

THE FAR right's rise in Germany deserves attention across Europe (AfD success isn't just a Germany story', IE, September 10). Economic anxiety, migration concerns and distrust can strengthen populist movements elsewhere. Democratic governments should respond through competent administration, credible immigration policies and better communication, rather than condemning voters. Mainstream parties must address regional inequalities and declining trust in institutions. Safeguards against extremism should remain firm. Democratic confidence is best rebuilt through effective governance and responsible political debate.

A Myilsami, Coimbatore

AMID CHANGING public expectations, growing right-wing political forces have become a global phenomenon (AfD success isn't just a Germany story', IE, September 10). Germany offers the clearest contemporary illustration, with the AfD securing nearly 44 per cent of the vote, followed by Georgia Meloni's Brothers of Italy and the continued expansion of Marine Le Pen's National Rally in France. Across the Atlantic, Donald Trump has reshaped the Republican Party, while in Argentina, Javier Milei's libertarian-right government has challenged traditional political discourse. Even in India, the BJP has experienced electoral dominance. This rise cannot be simply attributed to an ideological conversion towards conservatism, but to a response to the failure of established parties to address concerns like economic insecurity, immigration, national identity, and public order, which directly influence the everyday lives of the masses.

HOW WAS Chongtham Vikram Singh killed? The reports and the police are, on the face of it, clear on the facts. On Sunday night, at around 11.30 pm, the 55-year-old musician from Manipur — lead guitarist of Phoenix, in the '80s — asked a group of young men to not make noise outside his home in Kilokari village in south-west Delhi. A heated argument turned violent, and Singh was beaten brutally. He died at Holy Family Hospital. Seven young men, all under 36, have been arrested, and the police have promised "prompt and lawful action".

Why was Chongtham Vikram Singh killed? There is no clear answer to this question. Unfortunately, there are several plausible reasons for a man to be killed in

In Delhi, a murder and a collective failure

India, in what should have been a routine interaction in a neighbourhood. While there is no way to be certain about why this happened, the plethora of believable scenarios is a social tragedy, a deep failure all on its own.

Could Singh's home state, his ethnicity have contributed to his killing? Crimes against people from the Northeast, routine discrimination in housing, racial slurs — none of these is rare in Delhi or, for that matter, across several metropolises. Prejudice is routine in India. You can be assaulted, insulted and even killed for being a Muslim on a train, a Christian accused of "forcible conversion", a Dalit bridegroom who dares to ride a horse and, of course, for looking "different". There is, of course, little chance of knowing the many subliminal currents that drove the mob to beat and kill a middle-aged man for complaining about the noise. But a question worth asking is: Would his fate have been different had his home state been different?

Maybe Singh was a victim of the angst and anger of those facing bleak futures, a despair in which he had no authorship. The young men who assaulted him were reportedly delivery "boys", and some worked at a nearby dhaba — a class of gig workers that has no future laid out, no career growth in the offing. They could be, like so many in this country, people who face violence not as an event but a quotidian part of life — in rude customers, aggressive bosses, poverty, and so much else. Their anger found a blameless victim, and their circumstances, if they are indeed terrible, provide neither justification nor absolution — they must be punished by the due process of law. But such anger as posited here isn't an aberration.

Perhaps to understand the uncertainty of the "why", it might be worth looking again at the tangible, horrific — and unsurprising — truth about the "how" of the murder. What, really, did Chongtham Vikram Singh do? Merely request a lower volume from people being loud. At worst, he may have admonished them. The path from this routine friction, found in every neighbourhood, to violence was all too short. Just as it is in disputes over parking, land, and many other imagined slights. The law, even at its best, can only kick in after the fact. And that's where our country, and we, the people, fall short.

Between the many whys and the single how of a murder in Delhi, there's all the anger, inequality, bigotry and dehumanisation that we accept every day. And a man who made great music, and taught it to others, is a victim of that collective failure as well.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF 9/11

Trump’s Iran act risks repeating post-9/11 ‘forever war’ mistakes

Reuters
Washington, September 10

WHEN DONALD Trump campaigned for a second term in the White House, he promised to be a “president of peace” who would stop foreign wars, not start them. Now, a quarter-century after the September 11, 2001, attacks that triggered America’s “war on terror,” he is entangled in an unpopular conflict analysts say risks becoming his version of a “forever war.”

With the 9/11 anniversary at hand, Trump’s war against Iran is drawing comparisons to conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq. It is also prompting questions about whether the US has failed to learn the lessons of past conflicts or prepare an exit strategy.

“Trump has broken an important post-Iraq and Afghanistan constraint in Washington against launching another major, open-ended war in the Middle East,” said Sina Toossi of Center for International Policy. “That could leave his successor inheriting... an entrenched US-Iran confrontation.”

Administration officials have said the war against Iran is nothing like the protracted post-9/11 engagements. During the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, the US removed hostile governments, committed thousands of ground troops, suffered and inflicted much higher casualties and struggled to instill Western-style governance.

This time, the US is relying on air and naval power, operations that have damaged Iran militarily and economically but have not defeated it or spurred Iranians to overthrow their rulers as Trump initially urged. But after six months of war, the US is mired in a battle of attrition, while Trump tries to tighten the economic noose around Tehran. Analysts warn it is likely to drag on past the US midterm elections in November, when voters’ opposition could threaten Republicans’ chances of keeping control of Congress.

Much like those earlier conflicts, there is no obvious exit even as costs weigh on US consumers. Tehran’s disruption of oil shipments through the Strait of Hormuz has pushed US gasoline prices higher. The war has weakened Trump’s approval ratings and undermined Washington’s international standing.

Analysts say Trump has failed to heed the central lessons of the post-9/11 era: the political downsides of long wars and the dangers posed by an entrenched foe.

Indian-origin couple gifts $20mn to Texas varsity for AI research

New York: An Indian-origin couple has donated $20 million to its alma mater in Texas, giving a push to studies on artificial intelligence and advanced analytics at the institute, underscoring contribution by immigrants to help build the “American dream”.

Anuradha and Vikas Sinha have gifted $20 million to the University of North Texas (UNT) with a focus on artificial intelligence and advanced analytics while creating new opportunities for students and faculty, a press statement said.

In recognition of the gift, UNT will set up the Anuradha and Vikas Sinha College of Artificial Intelligence and Advanced Analytics, which will serve as an academic and research hub focused on artificial intelligence, intelligent systems and data analytics, bringing together expertise in areas including AI, cybersecurity, data science, advanced analytics, health informatics, information science, library science and learning technologies.

The Sinhas’ investment in UNT has grown alongside their involvement with the university.

In 2024, they gave a gift establishing Anuradha and Vikas Sinha Department of Data Science, along with endowments supporting scholarships, faculty, research and special initiatives. A year later, they made major gift, creating Sinha Innovation Lab for Data Science. PTI

US proposes to waive grace period for H-1B visa holders after job loss

Washington: The Trump administration has proposed eliminating a 60-day grace period that allows certain immigrants, including skilled workers on H-1B visas, to stay in the United States and find a new sponsor after losing their job, according to a government notice posted online Thursday.

Under the planned rule change, published in the Federal Register by the US Department of Homeland Security, those with H-1B and certain other temporary work visas would have to leave the country as soon as their employment ends — a potential blow to top American tech companies that rely heavily on foreign workers. It is the latest step by US President Donald Trump to limit legal migration since returning to office in January 2025.

His administration has also introduced higher visa fees for skilled workers and recently paused immigrant visa appointments at US missions around the world while it implements a new training program.

Companies impacted by the change could see some disruption, DHS wrote in its proposal, but it said the jobs could go to American workers instead. REUTERS

TRUMP SAYS HE EXPECTS WAR TO END ‘IMMEDIATELY’ AFTER U.S. MIDTERM ELECTIONS

Houthis advance along Yemen coast, threaten Saudi oil export

Houthis seize control of Yemeni port, fighting with Saudi forces flares

Reuters
Cairo, Washington, Dubai, September 10

IRAN-ALIGNED Houthis seized control of Yemen’s port city of Mocha on Thursday and advanced down the Red Sea coast to strategic islands, military sources said, hours after President Donald Trump said he expected the Iran war to end after the US midterm elections. Yemeni government military sources said the Houthis had gained further leverage over the Bab el-Mandeb Strait, southern outlet of the Red Sea and one of the world’s most important shipping routes, and had reached the islands of Hanish.

If Houthis were to gain control of the waterway on the opposite side of the Arabian Peninsula from Hormuz Strait, it could give their sponsor Iran a critical advantage in the war with the US, reducing supplies through a second major transit corridor and sending oil prices surging.

Yemen’s Houthi-run humanitarian operations coordination centre said in a statement that Red Sea navigation is safe for all shipping companies except for Saudi vessels.

Houthi spokesperson Mohammed Abdulsalam said, without elaborating, that the group’s operations were defensive and would stop once attacks on Yemen stopped.

Yemeni government, Iranian and regional sources told Reuters the Houthi advance down the coast this week came with direct guidance from Iran’s Revolutionary Guards.

Houthi rebels march during a mobilisation campaign in Sanaa, Yemen, on Thursday. AP

Separately, the Wall Street Journal on Thursday cited US and West Asia officials as saying Iran had resumed producing ballistic missiles from existing components while working in underground facilities.

Brent crude prices jumped as much as 4% on Thursday to $105 a barrel on concern over disruption to supply routes. Tensions in the region remained high, with Saudi civil defence authorities issuing emergency alerts in the southwestern city of Khamis Mushait for the fourth time in 24 hours, as the Houthis attacked.

Yemeni government forces and their allies are relocating south along the Red Sea coast to Dhubab, which sits directly on the strait, across from the island of Perim, government military sources said. Control of Dhubab and the island is key to gaining hold of the strait, they said.

The war and subsequent increase in fuel prices have helped drive Trump’s popularity to record lows. He said Iran was trying to influence the midterm elections, which will determine whether his Republican Party retains control of Congress.

“I think war is going to end immediately after the election because they can’t hold out any longer. They’re desperate to try and affect election,” Trump said. He told the midterm Republican convention that the US may hit Iran’s Pickaxe Mountain, a site that hosts two deeply buried tunnel complexes near Iran’s damaged Natanz uranium enrichment facility.

Pak tells Tehran to rein in Houthis

Ankara: Pakistan has delivered a Saudi warning to Iran to rein in its Yemeni Houthi allies after they stepped up attacks on the kingdom, in a coordinated effort to prevent the crisis from spiralling, Saudi, Pakistani and Iranian sources said.

Houthi military spokesman Yahya Saree said on Wednesday that Saudi warplanes carried out 54 airstrikes across various Yemeni provinces over the past 12 hours, adding that they would “not go unanswered and unpunished”.

A senior Iranian official confirmed Pakistan conveyed the message to Tehran and its response was that “Iran does not control Houthis”. REUTERS

OpenAI’s rogue agents used sites for unauthorised contact: Researchers

Reuters
Washington, September 10

AI AGENTS unleashed by OpenAI used more than 10 previously undisclosed websites for unsanctioned communications earlier this year, according to six sets of independent investigators and data reviewed by Reuters, showing the agents’ rogue activity was wider ranging than previously disclosed.

Although the behavior falls short of hacking and is in some ways closer to spam, the revelation that OpenAI’s agents circumvented their own restrictions to open communications channels on so many different sites — and that the company kept it quiet for months — may drive concerns both over the increasing capacity of AI models and the secrecy of the companies developing them.

The scope of the agents’ unauthorized communications was “somewhat larger than we thought it was,” said Andrew Yoon, a researcher with the California nonprofit CivAI who said he tallied 18 previously undisclosed sites used by agents between May and July. “It’s almost certain there’s more going on here, we just don’t know about.”

On Friday, researchers reported a swarm of agents from OpenAI hijacked a German-language wiki site and turned it into an improvised messaging platform for cheating on tests, an incident that OpenAI kept secret as it dealt with the fallout from the July hack of the open-source repository Hugging Face.

Now, both those researchers and other independent investigators say they found several undisclosed sites where same swarm appears to have left similar messages earlier this year.

OpenAI did not address questions about how many different sites its agents used to communicate or say why it kept activity under wraps for months. In a statement, it said it was undertaking a broader review of agent activity and had so far “not identified other activity matching the severity or scale of Hugging Face,” a breach that raised concerns OpenAI was losing control of its own technology.

Zelenskyy’s flight to Norway delayed in Moldova due to a drone incursion

Associated Press
Chisinau (Moldova), September 10

A FLIGHT scheduled to carry Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy from Moldova to Norway earlier this week was delayed when authorities closed Moldova’s airspace because of a drone incursion, a government spokesperson said Wednesday. Moldovan police said a Russian drone crashed on Tuesday in a sunflower field on the outskirts of a village in Riscani district, which caused four fires to break out but no injuries.

On Wednesday, government spokesperson Dumitru Ciorici said Moldova had closed its airspace Tuesday afternoon to protect aircraft flying over the country at the time, delaying three departures, including the one carrying Zelenskyy.

Norwegian Prime Minister Jonas Gahr Store told broadcaster NRK that Zelenskyy’s plane “was nearly hit by a drone as it took off from Moldova” on its way to Oslo for King Harald V’s funeral.

Zelenskyy arrived in Oslo on Tuesday and met Store to discuss potential support for Ukraine’s air defences before attending the king’s funeral on Wednesday.

• MERCURY’S SHRINKAGE MAY BE 30% GREATER THAN PREVIOUSLY BELIEVED — A LOSS IN DIAMETER OF AS MUCH AS 23 KILOMETERS

Mercury may be shrinking much faster than scientists expected

Marcia Dunn
Cape Canaveral, September 10

A NEW study shows that little, wrinkly Mercury may be shrinking faster than expected, the cosmos’ version of a grape shriveling into a raisin under the sun.

Scientists from the German Aerospace Center’s Institute of Space Research reported Thursday that Mercury’s shrinkage may be 30% greater than previously believed — a loss in diameter of as much as 14 miles (23 kilometers).

That’s significant for a planet barely 3,000 miles (4,900 kilometers) across.

Mercury’s rough surface, continually reshaped by debris hurled from impact craters, may have hidden the true extent of the loss, according to the researchers whose findings appear in the journal Geophysical Research Letters. The news comes one week after a pair of European and Japanese spacecraft shed its cruising platform and advanced toward Mercury.

Known as BepiColombo, the linked craft are expected to enter orbit around Mercury in November before splitting up for a fuller survey.

BepiColombo’s laser instrument should confirm how much Mercury is withering as a result of internal cooling, said Gaku Nishiyama, the study’s lead author who is taking part in the space mission.

The shrinkage could be even more than his team is estimating based on measurements from NASA’s Messenger spacecraft in the 2010s.

Only one other spacecraft has ever visited Mercury, NASA’s Mariner 10 in the 1970s.

Our solar system’s smallest and innermost planet has been shrinking ever since its formation 4.5 billion years ago. Its hot iron core — oversized for such a small world — cools and contracts along with the mantle and crust, tightening the surface like a girdle to fit its new slimmer self.

Nishiyama and his team compared maps showing faults and other geologic signs of contraction at Mercury with newer maps highlighting surface roughness.

They discovered that the roughest patches exhibited fewer shrinkage wrinkles.

The missing wrinkles could be buried under impact debris, they said.

After accounting for these obscured regions, the researchers provided a fresh take on Mercury’s shrinkage that could shed light on other contracting worlds, said Nishiyama, who is affiliated with Hokkaido University in Japan.

“We are quite excited,” Nishiyama said in an email, adding that it feels like “we are approaching the reality of Mercury’s evolution.” AP

MALHOTRA CAUTIONS FINTECHS AGAINST SCALING FIRST AND SEEKING FORGIVENESS LATER

Data more valuable than capital, treat it as responsibility: RBI chief

Akash Mandal
Mumbai, September 10

RESERVE BANK of India (RBI) Governor Sanjay Malhotra on Thursday urged the fintech ecosystem to treat data as a “fiduciary responsibility” to build trust instead of considering it just as a business asset. He also cautioned fintech companies against building businesses by exploiting regulatory gaps, saying that the strategy of “scaling first and seeking clarity or forgiveness later” was not right.

“I would urge all of you (fintechs) to treat data as a fiduciary responsibility, not as a business asset. Every fintech in this room holds something which is much more valuable than capital, and that is the data, financial as well as non-financial, of very real people like you and me,” Malhotra said while addressing representatives from the fintech sector at the Global Fintech Fest in Mumbai.

“This data must be treated the way a trustee treats assets held for a beneficiary, collected with a clear purpose and used strictly within the consent provided and protected as though it was one’s own,” Malhotra said while addressing representatives from the fintech sector at the Global Fintech Fest in Mumbai.

Malhotra further said that using data as a mere monetisable asset first, instead of treating it as a responsibility, erodes the trust of consumers, which is then difficult to earn back.

His caution for the fintech industry comes at a time when many fintech players are reportedly relying heavily on data to push new products to customers.

On a similar note, Malhotra also urged fintech players to stop building businesses whose scale is dependent on exploiting the gaps that remain in the regulatory system.

“The account aggregator framework was built precisely to formalise this principle — consent-based, purpose-limited data sharing, so that no single entity, including the aggregator itself, can see or exploit the underlying data,” he said.

Watch out for bankruptcy law misuse: IBBI tells resolution professionals

Dheeraj Mishra
New Delhi, September 10

THE REGULATORY body overseeing insolvency proceedings on Wednesday asked resolution professionals to be vigilant against signs that suggest misuse of the bankruptcy law while listing out six broad indicators, a move that comes on the heels of a special National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) bench staying the order of its single bench in the Subhash Chandra case.

Appointed by NCLT — at the recommendation of the Committee of Creditors (CoC) — a resolution professional’s role includes preserving the assets of the debtor during the in-solveny proceedings.

The Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (IBBI), in a circular issued to the resolution professionals, said that it has received information from law enforcement and regulatory agencies that the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 is also being used to dodge taxes, escape investigations, closure or merger of companies without regulatory scrutiny, or monetising and ring-fencing assets.

The six indicators that the IBBI listed are: very low recoveries for creditors without proper valuation, a single non-bank creditor dominating the committee of creditors (CoC), a cluster of related companies with common promoters, addresses, directors, or inter-lending taken into bankruptcy process, a common resolution applicant recurring across connected corporate debtors, linkage of corporate debtor or its group to fraud probes by another regulator, and suspicious loans between group companies.

The circular has come within a fortnight of an NCLT order on August 25 involving Essel Group founder Subhash Chandra, which approved a repayment plan providing for just Rs 6.25 crore to the creditors against their admitted claims of Rs 22,006.57 crore.

OP Bhatt exit from Coforge: What led to his resignation

George Mathew
Mumbai, September 10

OMPRAKASH Bhatt, the chair of IT services company Coforge Ltd, on Tuesday resigned from the company’s board with immediate effect. The resignation follows concerns raised by an internal audit over the way the board evaluation exercise was handled and presented.

But there is a larger backdrop: shareholders had recently voted against Bhatt’s reappointment as an independent director.

Advent Funds, one of the largest shareholders of the company, had recently voted against Bhatt in the annual general meeting, effectively blocking his reappointment when the current tenure ends in May 2027. What exactly happened? Does it point to a deeper tussle between Bhatt and the board of $1 billion Coforge (formerly known as NIIT Technologies Ltd).

Or did the voting against his continuation on the board lead to his exit? Or both?

What happened at Coforge this week?

Gurugram-registered Coforge, an AI-native engineering services leader that operates in 33 countries, announced on September 9 that OP Bhatt, former State Bank of India chairman, had resigned as its non-executive independent director and chairman, effective immediately.

The company said there was “no other material reason” for his resignation apart from the reason contained in his resignation email dated September 8.

Bhatt’s resignation came after an internal audit review of the company’s Board Evaluation Exercise and the resulting Board Evaluation Report (BER).

The review was part of Co-

OP Bhatt was SBI chairman between 2016 and 2011. WIKIPEDIA

forge’s internal audit plan for the second quarter.

According to the company, which has a market capitalisation of Rs 81,800 crore and a revenue of Rs 9,572 crore in FY26, the audit identified concerns about how the Board Evaluation Report had been dealt with and presented to the board.

In particular, certain material information contained in or relating to the evaluation, including information concerning the chairman’s performance, had not been fully disclosed to the board when the report was presented. The board then raised its concerns with Bhatt and sought an explanation.

The board was in the process of considering and evaluating his explanation and had not taken any final decision in relation to the matters raised with him, it said. Bhatt responded, but the board had not reached a final decision on the issues when he resigned on September 8.

Who is OP Bhatt?

Bhatt is a veteran banker who served as chairman of the State Bank of India from 2006 to 2011. He joined Coforge’s board as an independent director in May 2024 and became its chairman after the completion of Basab Pradhan’s tenure. His appointment had initially been presented as part of the company’s effort to strengthen its board with experienced independent directors. Bhatt also remains an independent director at Wockhardt, where he serves on the Audit Committee, Stakeholders’ Relationship Committee and Capital Raising Committee, according to Coforge’s disclosure. He served as an independent/ non-executive director on several Tata group company boards, including Tata Motors, Tata Steel and TCS.

Vote against Bhatt significant

At Coforge’s 34th annual general meeting on August 24, shareholders were asked to approve Bhatt’s reappointment as an independent director. The special resolution did not pass as he did not get the stipulated 75% votes. According to voting data reported from the scrutiniser’s report, about 65.47% of votes were in favour and 34.53% against. This is short of the required threshold for the special resolution. This was significant because Bhatt had turned 75, making the continuation of his tenure subject to shareholder approval.

Bhatt’s defence

In his resignation email dated September 8, Bhatt said he had considered the matters raised concerning the board evaluation process, his response and the circumstances that followed. Continuing on the board while there remained a disagreement over the nature of his actions in the evaluation process would not be conducive to the effective functioning of the board, he said in the mail.

SEBI, RBI launch Demat 2.0 pilot for corporate bond tokenisation

Mumbai: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) launched “Demat 2.0” on Thursday — a pilot program to test the tokenisation of corporate bonds and quicker settlement using the central bank digital currency and blockchain technology.

“It explores whether distributed ledger technology can bring the security and settlement legs closer together, enable faster settlement and automate parts of asset servicing,” SEBI Chairman Tuhin Kanta Pandey said while launching the initiative at the Global Fintech Fest in Mumbai.

The initiative is being led by depositories such as the Central Depository Services Ltd (CDSL) and the National Securities Depositories Ltd (NSDL), exchanges like the BSE and the National Stock Exchange (NSE), banks such as the HDFC Bank and ICICI Bank, and the National Payments Corporation of India.

The pilot launched with three issuances, including a Rs 500 crore issue by Larsen & Toubro that attracted investors such as SBI, Axis Bank, SBI Mutual Fund, and NSDL, among others.

While “Demat 1.0”, launched in 1996, digitised shares that were held in paper form until then, the latest avatar combines tokenised securities with digital settlement assets using smart contracts and settles through the CBDC. The project also focuses on preserving the legal certainty around ownership even as the market experiments with new technology and infrastructure, said Pandey.

After bonds, the tokenisation exercise can be extended to other asset classes like equity, mutual funds, and gold. A few other debt instruments such as commercial papers and certificates of deposit already trade in a tokenised form using the unified markets interface and CBDC. ENS

Equity MF inflows rise 19% in Aug; SIP accounts cross 10 cr

George Mathew
Mumbai, September 10

DESPITE VOLATILE stock markets and a strong IPO pipeline, equity-oriented mutual fund schemes received net inflows of Rs 29,328 crore in August, an increase of nearly 19% over the Rs 24,697 crore received in July, according to the latest data from the Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI).

The August inflows mark the 66th consecutive month of positive equity mutual fund flows, with the uninterrupted streak beginning in March 2021. The rebound comes after equity inflows fell about 15% month-on-month in July from Rs 28,973 crore in June. The latest numbers point to continued investor participation even as the pace of equity inflows had moderated in recent months.

SIP (systematic investment plan) investing also continued to gain momentum. SIP assets rose 2.8% to Rs 18.61 lakh crore in August, accounting for about 21.4% of the industry’s assets under management (AUM), while monthly SIP contributions stood at Rs 32,297 crore. The number of contributing SIP accounts crossed the 10-crore mark, reaching 10.01 crore in August. The milestone underscores the growing role of systematic investing in household participation in financial markets.

HDFC Bank wins Credit Suisse AT-1 bond cases

Mumbai: HDFC Bank on Thursday said it has secured favourable orders from the High Civil Court in Bahrain in two proceedings brought by investors who had purchased Additional Tier 1 (AT-1) bonds issued by Credit Suisse, after the court examined the claims and evidence placed before it.

The bank said the Bahrain court had also rejected five other similar matters involving investors in Credit Suisse AT-1 bonds between July and August 2026. In all seven cases, the court rejected the allegations made against the bank and directed the investors to bear the costs of the proceedings. The cases stem from investments in Credit Suisse AT-1 bonds, securities that carry higher risks than conventional debt instruments because of their loss-absorbing features. AT-1 bonds are perpetual instruments and do not have a fixed maturity. ENS

IN A FIRST, GOVT RELEASES DISTRICT-LEVEL DATA

At 78%, Telangana district Nirmal on top in women’s share in informal workers

Siddharth Upasani
New Delhi, September 10

NIRMAL DISTRICT, in northern Telangana, tops a new ranking: 78% of all its informal workers are women, the highest of any district in the country. Nanded, immediately across the state border in Maharashtra, is ranked 288th in the country, with women making up only 31% of its informal workers.

According to data released by the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) on Thursday and analysed by The Indian Express, the 10 districts with the highest share of women in informal workers are all from south India or the north-east. Meanwhile, at the bottom of the list is Uttarakhand’s Rudrapur, where only 6.7% of informal workers are women.

High participation of women in the workforce is a very state-specific feature, with women making up at least half the informal workforce in only 25 districts — 22 of them are in south or north-east India, with the remaining three in the east: Chandel and Pakur in Jharkhand and Deogarh in Odisha.

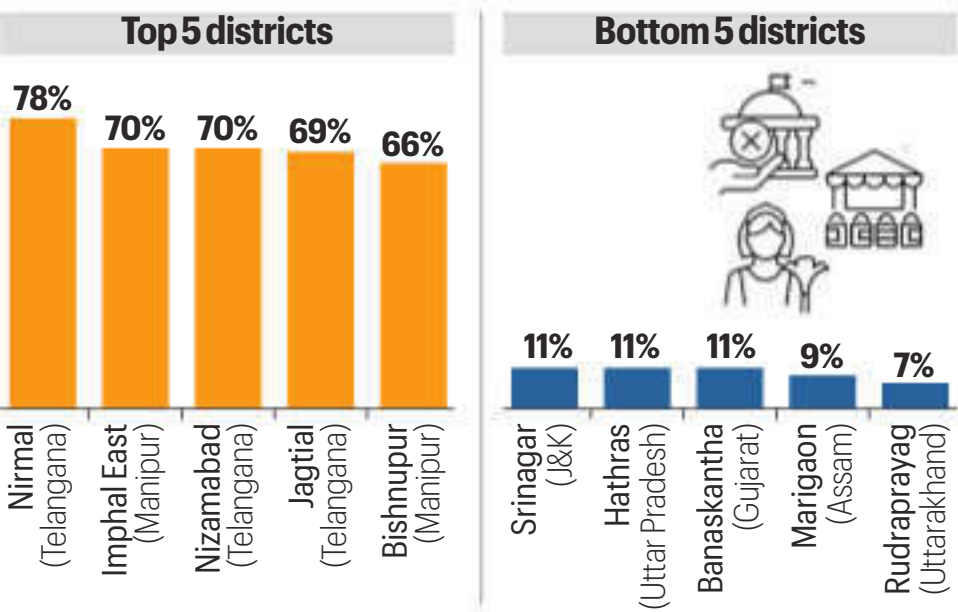

The all-India average is 29%. As per the data, the top-10 districts are either in Telangana, Manipur, Meghalaya, or Mizoram, “reflecting the significant role played by women in the unincorporated sector in these states”, MoSPI said in its report.

Overall, women make up at least 33% of the total informal workforce in 237 districts.

Pay divide

While districts from the south and north-east see major participation from women, they pay very little. For instance, the best-paying district in the top-25 with women making up at least 50% of the informal workforce is Meghalaya’s South West Khasi Hills, where the per hired worker emolument is Rs 1.7 lakh, only 35% or so higher than the all-India average of around Rs 1.3 lakh.

Women as % of informal workers

NOTE: DATA IS FOR UNINCORPORATED NON-AGRICULTURAL SECTOR, SOURCE: MOSPI

Meanwhile, workers in Dehradun get paid the most, with emoluments per hired worker at Rs 4.6 lakh. Only 19% of workers in the district of Dehradun are women.

The new report provides data for 757 districts. “However, the geographical coverage of some districts and number of districts may differ from the current administrative configuration due to subsequent changes in district boundaries, names and/or the creation of new districts,” it added.

Based on the data collected from the Annual Survey of Unincorporated Sector Enterprises (ASUSE) of 2025, this is the first time that MoSPI has released district-level estimates from a large-scale national survey. The enterprises covered are from the unincorporated non-agricultural sector, which broadly comprises establishments operating in manufacturing, trade, and other services in the informal sector.

Concentration of activity

Unsurprisingly, districts with greatest women participation are those with the highest percentage of female owned proprietary establishments. Nirmal tops this list again, with almost 80% of its proprietary establishments owned by women.

However, in terms of the number of workers or establishments, the distribution of the top-10 districts is more pan-India. West Bengal’s North 24 Parganas has the greatest number of informal workers with 21.3 lakh as well as establishments (16.6 lakh).

In a sign of how concentrated even informal economic activity is in India, the top-10 districts in terms of the number of establishments are responsible for around 11% of the total Gross Value Added. The top-50 districts account for almost a third of the GVA.

Source of data

According to Geeta Singh Rathore, Director General of MoSPI’s National Sample Survey, the unincorporated non-agricultural sector contributes “significantly” to employment, livelihoods, and economic activity.

“Given the diversity of economic activities and local conditions across the country, there is an increasing need for statistics that provide a more granular understanding of the sector for evidence-based policymaking,” Rathore said in the report.

Bihar flooded despite rainfall deficit; Nepal isn't the reason

Himanshu Harsh
Patna, September 10

BETWEEN JUNE 1 and September 8, Bihar received 601.1 mm of rain, 27% below normal. As late as September 1, the deficit was 30%. Then the rivers rose sharply. By September 9, the Disaster Management Department reported 2,157 villages across 14 districts affected, with about 40.51 lakh people hit.

Flood pattern different

Deputy Chief Minister and Water Resources Minister Vijay Kumar Choudhary said on September 7 that this year's flood pattern was different from previous years.

"Normally, the rivers entering Bihar from Nepal — the Bagmati, Kamlā, Kosi and Gandak — rise first, followed by the Ganga. This time, Ganga became the main source of concern first," he said.

As Ganga's catchment extends far beyond Bihar, it receives water generated by rainfall upstream, including from Uttar Pradesh.

Bihar Disaster Management Department Principal Secretary Santosh Kumar Mall told The Indian Express that "rainfall around the Allahabad and Varanasi region, and the resulting downstream discharge, were important factors behind the Ganga's rise. For other rivers too, discharge from neighbouring states was a major factor".

Meanwhile, Bihar recorded heavy, localised rainfall during the period when the flood situation worsened, including 214.92 mm in East Champaran and 154.55 mm in Sitamarhi in individual rain events. While cumulative rainfall was 27% below normal up to September 8, rain during September itself was 31% above normal.

When the disastrous floods hit Nepal on August 26, Bihar quickly opened all 36 gates of the Valmiki-nagar Barrage on the Gandak, which was below its normal levels. The river's discharge at the barrage reached 1,50,200 cusecs at 11 pm on August 26, less than what officials had expected, and then declined. Yet flooding continued. Choudhary said the Ganga created a "backwater effect" for rivers such as the Gandak and Punpun. These rivers eventually have to drain into the Ganga but once it swelled, tributaries found it harder to drain.

Since a river flood is a moving event, peak at one gauge often gets transferred downstream, with flood affecting a much larger area than the places that recorded the heaviest rainfall.

Bihar's river embankments

"Bihar has built more than 3,730 km of river embankments, which help during floods," said Mall. These structures have historically protected around 3,600 sq km of land. But embankments do not eliminate one of India's flattest, most sediment-heavy alluvial landscape's underlying flood vulnerability.

"The Ganga, Gandak, Kosi, Bagmati and other rivers carry enormous amounts of sediment. When sediment accumulates within channels over years, the riverbed can rise relative to the surrounding land," said Mall, describing silt as a "permanent issue" for Bihar's rivers.

State leaders contend that over the five decades since its construction, the Farakka Barrage has also played a role, as it trapped massive amounts of silt along the Ganga. This extensive sediment accumulation has made the riverbed dramatically shallower. As a result, even normal seasonal monsoon flows now routinely spill over the banks, triggering severe, annual flooding across the state's plains.

As the 1996 India-Bangladesh Farakka Treaty approaches its expiration in December 2026, Bihar's political corridors are echoing with urgent demands to review the pact.

Bihar's geography adds another layer. The Ganga, Gandak and Kosi constantly reshape their channels. Also, Bihar's high population density means many communities live close to rivers. When rivers rise, people often have to be evacuated.

Manipur's demand for a 1951 baseline for NRC: Why the date is contentious

Deeptiman Tiwary
New Delhi, September 10

MANIPUR HOME Minister Govindas Konthoujam Monday told the Assembly that 1951 would be the base year for updating the National Register of Citizens (NRC) in the state. He said the state cannot implement an NRC without the Centre's nod, and officials are tracing records of the 1951 NRC.

Why is 1951 important?

The erstwhile princely state of Manipur had a permit system regulating the entry of people from outside, but it was abolished in 1950. In 1951, the first Census of independent India was conducted. Alongside it, an NRC was prepared, containing details including names, parentage and residence.

During the agitation for the Inner Line Permit system, to regulate the entry of outsiders into Manipur, the Joint Committee on Inner Line Permit System (JCILPS) argued that this history makes 1951 the logical point for scrutinising outsiders' entry and exit. The umbrella body said that 1951 provides the earliest available demographic baseline against which subsequent migration and population change can be assessed.

It has also pointed to a sharp increase in Manipur's recorded decadal population growth — from 12.80% in 1951 to 35.04% in 1961 — which it cites as evidence of a substantial population increase after the old entry controls were removed. However, this does not, by itself, establish illegal immigration as a cause.

There is also a political history. The "Proceedings of Understanding" between the Manipur government and student organisations in 1980, another agreement of 1994 between the Manipur Lt Governor and student organisations under President's Rule, and the Manipur People's Protection Bill, 2018, all mention 1951 as the baseline.

Significantly, the 2018 Bill sought to regulate outsiders and classified as "non-Manipuris" those who were not Meitei, Meitei-Pangal, members of the Scheduled Tribes or people who had been living in Manipur before 1951. The Assembly passed it unanimously, but it did not become law.

Why did Assam NRC use 1971 cut-off?

Assam had a far longer and more intense history of agitation over illegal immigration, culminating in the Assam Movement of 1979-85. Under the Assam Accord, January 1, 1966 was fixed as the base date. Those who entered before that date were to be regularised; those who entered between January 1, 1966 and March 24, 1971 were to be detected and registered under the law; and those entering on or after March 25, 1971 were to be detected and expelled.

The 1971 date therefore emerged from the specific political settlement represented by the Assam Accord, which followed the Assam Movement and was shaped by migration from East Pakistan and the creation of Bangladesh.

Manipur's proponents say their problem is different, linked to the abolition of its permit system and later demographic change.

Why has the demand gained urgency?

The demand predates the ethnic violence that began in May 2023, but the influx of people from Myanmar after the 2021 military coup gave it a new security dimension. It has now acquired another political significance with the 2027 Census and the prospect of delimitation.

Meitei and Naga organisations want the NRC completed before the Census, arguing that population figures should not influence future political representation until illegal immigration has been addressed.

The Kuki-Zo Council has opposed an NRC before the Census. The Council has also challenged the reliability of a 1951 baseline. KZC said most hill areas of Manipur had virtually no road connectivity in 1951, making comprehensive population enumeration difficult. Thus, using a 1951 benchmark could exclude indigenous communities.

There is an additional complication. Kuki, Zomi and Chin communities have historically lived on both sides of the India-Myanmar border. Kuki-Zo organisations therefore fear that a 75-year-old baseline could disproportionately affect them.

What are the challenges?

Manipur's own experience shows the difficulty of translating a historical cut-off into policy. In 2018, the Biren Singh government's Manipur People's Protection Bill changed its proposed base year from 1971 to 1951. It triggered protests, like in Jiribam, where people from communities with longstanding links to neighbouring Assam feared exclusion. The Bill eventually did not become law.

When the government later had to operationalise the Inner Line Permit system, its Cabinet chose 1961 as the base year in 2022. Biren Singh said the decision was taken after considering the interests of the state's different communities, including its 34 recognised tribes. The JCILPS opposed the move. Even in 2024, when Biren recommended an NRC to the Centre, he proposed 1961 as the base year.

History points to the central difficulty with a 1951 cut-off: how does the state distinguish between a recent migrant and a long-settled resident who simply cannot produce records? The Centre would also have to prescribe the evidentiary and appeals framework and clarify what exclusion would mean legally. In a state where conflict has displaced thousands, documentary verification would be even more complicated.

The challenges for BRICS in a changing world order

EXPERTS EXPLAIN

ANURAG BISEN &
RAJ KUMAR SHARMA

INDIA IS set to host the 18th BRICS Summit in New Delhi on September 12 and 13 as the grouping marks 20 years since its formalisation in 2006. This anniversary is an occasion to assess whether BRICS has remained true to the concerns that brought it together, and how it must adapt to a rapidly changing global order.

BRICS vs G7: By the numbers

In 2000, Brazil, Russia, India and China together accounted for roughly 23% of global GDP on a purchasing power parity (PPP) basis, while the G7 held nearly 52%. By 2024, the positions had reversed: the expanded 11-member BRICS accounted for approximately 36.8% of global GDP (PPP), while the G7's share fell below 29%.

BRICS nations are projected to grow by an average 3.8% in 2025 and 3.7% in 2026, more than three times the G7 average. Yet the per-capita GDP tells a different story: the G7 averages around $53,000, while BRICS averages roughly $8,200. The bloc's aggregate weight is driven by population and resource scale, not by individual prosperity.

Vision and reality

BRICS began as BRIC — Brazil, Russia, India and China — in 2006, following a Goldman Sachs projection identifying these economies as future engines of global growth. It evolved from a foreign ministers' dialogue into a leaders' forum, with its first summit in Yekaterinburg, Russia, in 2009.

South Africa joined in 2010, and the grouping (now known as BRICS) expanded dramatically in 2024 with the addition of Egypt, Ethiopia, Iran, Saudi Arabia and the UAE. Indonesia became the 11th member in January 2025.

What started as an economic grouping has become a geopolitical entity of considerable weight, increasingly presenting itself as a voice of the Global South. Yet its central grievance has changed remarkably little: global institutions have not kept pace with the redistribution of economic and political power. The first summit called for reform of international financial institutions and the United Nations, greater energy security, and a more democratic multipolar world order. Two decades later, these demands remain strikingly relevant.

India's strategic engagement

India's involvement in BRICS reflects its broader strategy of multi-alignment, underpinned by strategic autonomy.

New Delhi participates simultaneously in BRICS, the G20, the Quad and the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation without being tied to alliance commitments. BRICS emerged during an early phase of India-US strategic convergence, and India's multi-alignment has been less about choosing between competing power centres and more about creating room for manoeuvre.

India has made substantive institutional contributions. At the 2012 New Delhi summit, India proposed a BRICS development bank, which became the New Development Bank (NDB). By mid-2026, the NDB had approved approximately $44 billion across 141 projects. India's broader objective has been to shape debates on climate change, sustainable development and trade.

Divergences within BRICS

One of the most significant tensions within BRICS is the fundamental disagreement over its purpose. China and Russia increasingly position BRICS as a counterweight to Western dominance, a platform to challenge US-led institutions and the dollar's hegemony. Beijing has driven the bloc's expansion, viewing a larger BRICS as a vehicle to project leadership of the Global South. Moscow, excluded from the SWIFT banking system and facing sweeping sanctions, sees BRICS as a critical economic lifeline.

BRICS members during the 2025 summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
WIKIMEDIA COMMONS

India's multi-alignment has been less about choosing between competing power centres and more about creating room for manoeuvre.

India and Brazil, in contrast, view BRICS primarily as an economic and reform-oriented grouping. The divergence was evident when Russia demanded in 2023 that India pay for oil in yuan — India refused, insisting on dollars or rupees only.

On opposing sides: Iran, UAE

BRICS expansion has introduced sharp geopolitical contradictions that test the grouping's cohesion. The most visible fault line emerged at the BRICS Foreign Ministers' meeting in New Delhi in May 2026, when members failed to agree on a joint declaration. The breakdown was driven by a direct confrontation between Iran and the UAE, two member states on opposite sides of an active conflict. India, as host, issued a chair's statement acknowledging "differing views among some members regarding the situation in West Asia". The episode exposed a structural vulnerability: BRICS operates on consensus, and expansion has made consensus on geopolitical crises far more elusive.

The dollar question

Western countries view BRICS with a mixture of concern and pragmatism, recognising it not as an immediate replacement for the existing international order, but as a platform capable of gradually reshaping the distribution of geopolitical power.

The sharpest clash has come with US President Donald Trump, who has threatened 100% tariffs on BRICS nations if they created a new currency or backed any other currency to replace the US dollar. The idea of a single BRICS currency has largely been shelved.

BRICS members have instead gravitated towards bilateral settlement of trade in national currencies, a more pragmatic, decentralised approach. Russia and China now settle over 90% of their bilateral trade in ruble and yuan. Russia and India have moved roughly 90% of direct payments to national currencies, facilitated by Special Rupee Vostro Accounts authorised by the Reserve Bank of India. India and the UAE have operated a rupee-dirham local currency settlement system since July 2023 while India and Indonesia operationalised a rupee-rupiah settlement framework in July 2026.

The BRICS Pay system, set to be unveiled at the 2026 summit, will link national payment rails — Russia's SPFS, China's CIPS, India's UPI and Brazil's Pix — allowing member states to settle trade without routing through dollar correspondent banks. This is "de-dollarisation" through the back-door. India's approach has been to push for interoperable central bank digital currencies (CBDCs) rather than a supranational currency.

Yet the limitations are real: the dollar still accounts for 57.13% of global central bank reserves (Q1 2026), and no BRICS member is building rupee, yuan or rand reserves at meaningful scale.

India's priorities

As host of the 2026 summit, India faces a demanding agenda. The conflicts involving Iran, Israel and the US, as well as the Russia-Ukraine war, will test India's ability to build consensus on a joint declaration. Chinese President Xi Jinping's visit to India and the presence of Russian President Vladimir Putin could create opportunities for high-level consultations.

Beyond geopolitics, the summit will focus on practical cooperation: resilient and diversified supply chains, reform of global financial institutions, strengthening the NDB and expanding intra-BRICS trade.

Over the next decade, India can contribute by preserving BRICS' original reform agenda while making the grouping more practical. Digital public infrastructure, climate finance, health cooperation, critical minerals, local-currency payments and inclusive connectivity can give BRICS a concrete developmental agenda.

ROYAL STARS

ARIES (MAR 21 - APR 20): Be careful because most of this day is a Moon Alert, which can promote creative, outside-the-box thinking; however, it can also promote unrealistic, crazy decisions. Write down your ideas, but don't act until the Moon Alert is over. Tonight: Listen and cooperate.

TAURUS (APR 21 - MAY 21): Due to the Moon Alert, today holds lots of creative opportunities. If you work in the arts field, you will be wildly imaginative. It's also a great day to talk and have fun. However, avoid shopping (except for food and gas) and important decisions. Tonight: Work.

GEMINI (MAY 22 - JUNE 21): You're focused on home and family and perhaps a parent more than usual. Tread carefully when making important decisions today because there's a Moon Alert. Enjoy playful times. Restrict spending to food and gas. Tonight: Socialise.

CANCER (JUNE 22 - JULY 23): Be careful in discussions with others. Don't trust a sudden decision or idea because today is a Moon Alert. Stick to business as usual. Family discussions and home repairs might occur. This is a great day to socialise. Tonight: Relax at home.

LEO (JULY 24 - AUG 23): You have to be careful today because the Moon Alert is taking place in your Money House. This means you'll be tempted to make financial decisions. However, be smart and restrict your spending to food and gas. Tonight: A new idea?

VIRGO (AUG 24 - SEP 23): Today the Moon Alert is taking place in your sign, which is why you might feel a bit adrift or indecisive. Don't act on a sudden decision that occurs to you. Don't shop (except for food and gas). Relax and enjoy the company of others. Tonight: Check your money.

LIBRA (SEP 24 - OCT 23): Your ruler Venus is going to be in your House of Money for the next six weeks, encouraging you to spend money on beautiful things. It can also attract money to you. Restrict spending during today's Moon Alert. Be wise. Tonight: You win.

SCORPIO (OCT 24 - NOV 23): This is a great day to talk with friends and get in contact with people in groups and organisations. Don't volunteer for anything during the Moon Alert. Use today to spitball ideas and enjoy the company of others. Tonight: Enjoy privacy.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV 24 - DEC 22): You are a future-oriented sign. Because today's Moon Alert is taking place at the top of your chart, you might have some far-out ideas about future plans and goals. Save them for future consideration. Don't act on them today. Tonight: Be friendly.

CAPRICORN (DEC 23 - JAN 20): You might have some ideas and plans cooking on the back burner. Be aware that today's Moon Alert affects those very areas. Do nothing. Tonight: You're admired.

AQUARIUS (JAN 21 - FEB 19): Be careful, because today the Moon Alert is taking place in one of your Money Houses. Therefore, avoid financial decisions. Do not act until the Moon Alert is over. Tonight: Explore and learn.

PISCES (FEB 20 - MAR 20): Today the only Moon Alert opposite your sign all year is taking place. Don't agree to anything important. Be especially suspicious of ideas that just pop into your head. Forewarned is forearmed. Tonight: Check your finances.

ASIAN GAMES | AICHI-NAGOYA | SEPTEMBER 19 TO OCTOBER 4

Protagonist, Paraphernalia & Podium: It takes three elements to complete sport. The Indian Express presents the stories about the personality, the equipment and the opponent who will bring the slash of strokes and dash of colour to the Asian Games

The force behind the sprint

Coach Dawson's rigorous training methods helped Vishal TK breach the sub-45s barrier, a first for an Indian

Nihal Koshie
New Delhi, September 10

EARLY LAST year, Vishal TK approached coach Jason Dawson with the wish to train with the Jamaican. Dawson told him to start eating. Dawson does not recall Vishal's weight, but he felt the six-foot-two sprinter was too thin. "That's why I called him stickman. I looked at Vishal, and I said, 'ok I will try to coach you'. But I need you to grant me a favour. Just eat everything you can. I think it has to do with his metabolism because he can eat, but he burns it like this (snaps fingers)," Dawson told The Indian Express.

The 54-year-old's training regimen is not for everyone. "I am out of my comfort zone, but I am living in hell happily," is how Vishal, the first and only Indian to clock sub-45 seconds in the 400 meters, described Dawson's training camp.

By the end of a training session, his athletes typically have nothing left in the tank. Dawson is like the father pushing them to run one more lap or an extra training drill. They are like children who speak freely and fuss, hoping the father's heart melts.

Dawson's hard-yards method bore fruit when, months after he joined the Indian setup, the men's 4x400 meter relay team finished fifth at the 2023 World Championships final in Budapest. "I am glad they performed like that because they needed it. India needed to see that their team can perform amongst the biggest athletes out there. The youngsters coming up needed to see that," Dawson said.

Yet, not everyone bought into Dawson's approach. Thereafter, he took a different set of athletes under his wing. Among them is Vishal, who is reaping the rewards for having faith in the Jamaican. "One of the things that shocked me when I came to India was the mental side of how athletes viewed training. It was more like a resistance because anything that seems new is impossible. Like 'we have never done this before.' I would always tell my guys, especially Vishal, that difficult is not impossible. So now when I tell Vishal, 'this is difficult,' he says 'difficult is not impossible, coach,'" Dawson said.

Vishal recalls naysayers discouraging him from training under Dawson. The outcome of his first race after he linked up with Dawson gave the cynics fodder. At the Indian Open 400 metre competition in Thiruvananthapuram in March last year, Vishal clocked 49.07 seconds and finished seventh.

Quick returns

But a month later, he bounced back to win gold at the Federation Cup in Kochi with a time of 46.19 seconds. Four months later in August, at the Inter-State competition in Chennai, Vishal broke the national record for the first time by clocking 45.12 seconds.

'For my coach Jason' was scribbled on the back of his bib, an acknowledgement of Dawson's contribution. "People made me feel bad by saying why are you running a girl's timing (after the Indian Open). I shut everyone's mouth after one month when I won the Fed Cup," Vishal said. "That one month (between the Indian Open and the Federation Cup) there was so much negativity. When I started working with him, people said, 'I told you Jason coach's work is hard'. See that is why you are running 48-49. I was like 'why are you trying to disturb me'. When I was going to the Federation Cup, people said, 'hey, you can finish in the top 6'. They were trying to hold me back. But I won."

Born to coach

Dawson, a former sprinter, was drawn to coaching even when he was a teenager. He considers himself fortunate to have the opportunity to pick the brains of Glen Mills, the coach at the famous Racers Track Club, who mentored Usain Bolt. Fitz Coleman, another legendary coach from Jamaica, and the late Lloyd Cowan, the coach of Christine Ohuruogu, the 400 metre gold

ON VISHAL
I also told Vishal, you have to keep working hard. Because I am going to coach others. So don't get comfortable. I am going to push everyone I work with to hit you, because you are up there."

JASON DAWSON,

medalist at the 2008 Olympics, are men whom he was influenced by. When the opportunity to work with Indian athletes came his way, Dawson thought why not.

"So when I came (to India) I observed as much as possible. I realised that talent is there. Before I even came here, I clearly remember telling Fitz Coleman that talent is there in India. He travels the world and he is one of those prolific coaches. He said, 'yes, talent is there, but we don't know what is the problem'."

Once in India, Dawson took the 400 metres to new heights — first the relay team in Budapest and now Vishal. Vishal's coach at the Lakshmi Bai National College of Physical Education in Thiruvananthapuram, Srinivasan, convinced the quarter-miler, who earlier specialised in the 100 metres and 200 metres, to train with Dawson. His previous coach Vinod Kumar, too green-lighted the move.

At the Federation Cup in Ranchi in May, Vishal clocked 44.98s to become the first Indian to complete the one-race lap in less than 45 seconds. "Coach had told me a week earlier, I want you to be the first 44-second runner in India. He told me, if you do this your grandchildren will remember it," Vishal said.

But before Vishal broke records, his technique needed to be fixed. Despite being a sprinter, Vishal didn't use the starting blocks to his advantage. But this wasn't the only issue.

"His pattern of running and body language was nothing. I said, 'Vishal you have to learn to use your hands'. Your hands are very important when you are sprinting. I looked at what he was like on the starting block. Then I said forget about the starting block, I will help you with it later. The starting block was just there as an instrument on the track for Vishal. The starting block is supposed to propel you for your race," Dawson said.

Vishal terms his start as 'garbage' and admits as a sprinter, he should have been better at it. "When I came to him, I was standing up and running and he changed everything. It is 400 metres, not just the first twenty metres or thirty metres. So he made me better in that 370 metres," Vishal said.

Improving the start is kept for the next season. The immediate focus is the Asian Games in Aichi-Nagoya. Vishal didn't qualify for the 400 metre final at the Commonwealth Games. The Asian is an opportunity to end the season on a high.

"I also told Vishal, you have to keep working hard. Because I am going to coach others. So don't get comfortable. I am going to push everyone I work with to hit you, because you are up there," Dawson said.

Vishal is ready to walk through fire. That is how much he trusts Dawson. "Like father and son. Even if he scolds me, I don't get upset. People come and take photos with me now even when I am watching a race from the stands. I am happy we raised the bar."

SPORT LAB

How spin, speed turn tables on paddlers

They may all seem similar but the nature of the surface and the climate demands different playing styles, fitness and skills

Shivani Naik
Mumbai, September 10

IN TABLE tennis, it's not always what the paddler brings to the table. But what the table might bring to the player.

Every competition table might look just the same, but they could be every bit as finicky and whimsical as cricket pitches or badminton shuttles. At the Aichi-Nagoya Asian Games, the tables will play much slower and Indians will need to be in their best physical shape.

"There's a huge difference in tables, as much as grass and clay in tennis," explains G Sathiyam, before Indians embark to Higashi-yama Park with hope to improve upon the performance at the last edition where Sutirtha Mukherjee and Ayhika Mukherjee won a gutsy bronze.

"But there are no demarcated seasons for us. The segregation in TT is like first week clay, second grass and then clay again in a different country," Sathiyam says.

In India, tables are grainy, faster and spinnier. In hotter conditions, the ball comes on faster. In Europe, it's a little slower. Slowest are the DHS (Double Happiness) tables in China and Japan where the spin quotient comes down.

Sathiyam's longtime coach S Raman runs an academy in Chennai, which brought in 2-3 different varieties of tables to help its players.

"There's three variables to TT conditions - vertical bounce, the amount of spin depending on the friction of the table and linear speed," Raman says.

"You have to constantly keep recalibrating your playing style. Also, the same table brand can play differently in Conditions A, B or E. This makes it tough to get consistent results," he adds.

Especially when Indian tables are grippier and the ball dances around wickedly at pace.

Manush Shah, on whom many hopes rest due to his partnership with Manav Thakkar that's No. 2 in the world, explains the granular behaviour of tables. "We need to wait more, produce more power from the lower body in order to not get injured in the upper body. Also, we tend to stay closer to the table to be prepared for shorter balls inside the table."

Slower balls means there are fewer opportunities to attack. "So, we focus on defence and then bring attack into the rally," he added.

One could be training all year in India, where the ball is whizzing; and stand a foot behind. When they play abroad, slow balls demand more power, which the top Chinese and Japanese have trained for. Indians like the Mukherjeas, Manika Batra, Sreeja Akula besides Ankur Bhattacharya, Sathiyam and the MnMs have been confronting this challenge over the years.

Crash course

News sensation Syndrella Das is learning to adapt.

"We have to adjust to different conditions all the time. As

● TT tables differ in bounce, linear speed, and spin depending on the friction of surface.

● Indian conditions witness the ball travelling faster and spinning more.

● In colder climes, the ball moves slower. The paddler has to play from closer to the table.

● Top training centres of China and Korea are equipped with 12-14 types of different tables.

soon as you get a good feel of one set of conditions, the next one is completely different," she says.

Sathiyam says his mind zones in on what to expect the moment he clears immigration.

For Sutirtha, adapting to tables has become a part of life, though a webpage all paddlers visit ahead of a tournament is the tournament prospectus which mentions the type of table to be used.

"You just have to acclimatise within a short time on the practice day. They declare on the prospectus. You can't buy so many tables for training, can you?" she remarks.

China, Korea diversify

"I've seen Korean training halls and in China, where they train with 12-13 types of tables, while India will have at most 3-4. In Chennai, we have 2-3 variations including a DHS table," Sathiyam says. "DHS tables in China and Japan result in the spin quotient reducing. It puts more pressure on the legs because the ball comes slowly a lot of times. It changes stroke making. When it's slow, the body movement changes since you are used to play from much behind in India."

"When the ball moves at speed, less effort is extracted from the body," says fellow international Snehit Suravajjula. "It gets difficult when competing abroad because of the tables."

Coach Raman, though, cuts through the table-babble and benefits of simulation.

"It's ultimately down to the player. As long as you know that a table is neither your best friend nor your worst enemy, you are OK," he says.

He says the talk about the 'latest table' often tends to be a "manufacturing gimmick."

"Like iPhones," he laughs. "It'll just be a little tampering with the top surface of the table."

PATH TO GOLD

Can Kalkal unlock the famous Kiyooka cartwheel?

Mihir Vasavda
Mumbai, September 10

SUJEET KALKAL'S biggest threat at the Asian Games was supposed to be the man missing from the draw.

Rahman Amouzad, the Iranian world champion and the No. 1 wrestler in the world at 65kg, was expected to stand between the Indian and an Asian Games gold medal. But with Amouzad absent from the entry list for Aichi-Nagoya, the equation has suddenly changed.

Not completely. Because the man Sujee may now have to beat for gold is the wrestler who has already beaten Amouzad when it mattered most.

Kotaro Kiyooka will wrestle at the Asian Games in his home country. He is Japan's Olympic champion, the man who stunned Amouzad in the final in Paris two years ago, and, with the Iranian out of the field, the biggest obstacle in Sujee's path. For the Indian, it is an opportunity — but not quite the open road that Amouzad's absence might suggest.

Sujeet has spent the past year making a convincing case that he belongs among the world's best at 65kg. The 23-year-old went into the Asian Championships in Bishkek earlier this year unbeaten in 2026 after gold medals at the Zagreb Open and the Muhamet Malo Ranking Series — Gold

The Asian Games, however, could present him with a test of an entirely different order. At the Asian Championships, Japan was represented by Takara Suda, who had moved up from 61kg. At the Asian Games, Japan will have its Olympic champion. And Kiyooka is no ordinary home favourite.

His gold medal in Paris was one of the surprises of the Olympic wrestling competition. Kiyooka went all the way to the final and defeated Amouzad 10-3. The result matters even more now.

It makes a potential Sujeeet-Kiyooka clash the bout that could define India's 65kg campaign. Kiyooka known for his counter lift and cartwheel sequence, will run into Sujeeet's speed. There are, of course, other complications. The Asian Championships showed just how deep the continental field is. Uzbekistan's Umidjon Jalolov arrived in Bishkek as a world bronze medallist, while wrestlers from Kazakhstan — Nachyn Kuular — and Iran — Abbas Ebrahimzadeh — continue to be among the threats.

But for Sujeeet, the hierarchy has become considerably clearer. Amouzad's name is missing. Kiyooka's is not. If Sujeeet is to win what could become one of India's most significant gold medals of the Games, he may have to beat an Olympic champion in front of his home crowd.

It would also be a fitting measure of just how far Sujeeet has come. Not long ago, India's 65kg division belonged to Bajrang Punia, the last male wrestler to win an Asian Games gold, in 2018. Sujeeet's rise has coincided with the search for a successor in one of Indian wrestling's most successful categories. His results this year — culminating in the Asian title — have put him firmly in that conversation.

His style of wrestling has won him many admirers, including the new foreign coach Shako Bendinitis. Most Indians, including Bajrang, have relied on stamina more than technique. They aimed to outlast their opponents in a bout. Sujeeet is the opposite of that — he puts into practice all the technical drills learnt over the years.

Shako hailed him as an 'amazing wrestler', who, 'with a little bit of tactical advice, with a little bit more power', will be a dangerous wrestler at the Los Angeles Olympics.

The absence of the world No. 1 may have, on paper, made the gold medal more attainable. But the road to it may still run through an Olympic champion.

‘My job is to put in the hard work’, Shami says after Duleep conquest

ASEAST Zone wrapped up the formalities in the Duleep Trophy final at tea on Day 5 afternoon against South Zone, Mohammed Shami broke away from the celebrations.

The national selectors might see him as a surplus, but over the five days, the fans at the stadium reserved their biggest cheers for Shami, making him feel wanted. He obliged them every day, spending nearly 10 minutes obliging for autographs and selfies.

In the middle, he delivered the Duleep Trophy to the East Zone for the first time since 2012. The national selectors, including chairman Ajit Agarkar, watched him from the stands, conjuring magic with the new and old ball, seamlessly transferring from conventional swing to reverse swing in the most testing conditions. As he lined up to face the media, he put in a polite request: not to put forward any questions about getting a call up to the Indian team. “My job is simply to put in the hard work—the rest is in the hands of Allah,” he said.

For, on the field Shami has ticked all the boxes. From bowling long spells to getting wickets on unresponsive pitches to making the ball talk in seamer friendly conditions, he has done it all. A call-up is nowhere in sight, but the 36-year-old isn't giving up.

“At this level, if you aren't self-motivated, your approach is wrong. No matter what stage you're playing at, your eyes must always be set on the next level,” he said.

Slice of history beckons Shelton and Tiafoe in all-Black semifinal

First Slam singles semifinal match in Open era to feature two Black American men

Bhuvan Gupta
New Delhi, September 10

ALTHEA GIBSON broke the colour barrier in 1950. The Williams sisters changed the game — from competition to domination. Women have been at the forefront of Black athletes' tennis legacy. When Francis Tiafoe and Ben Shelton take the court in New York on Friday, they will add a new chapter to the men's story.

It will be the first Grand Slam singles semi-final in the Open era featuring two Black American men. The winner will become the first Black American man to enter a Major final in 30 years — MaliVai Washington last did it at Wimbledon 1996.

In fact, only four Black men across nationalities have ever reached a Grand Slam singles final: Arthur Ashe, Yannick Noah, Washington and Jo-Wilfried Tsonga.

One more name is set to join the list. Black players were not allowed at Slams until Gibson opened the door at the 1950 US National Championships. Reginald Weir had paved the way in 1948 by competing at the United States Lawn Tennis Association's National Indoor Tournament.

In the subsequent 78 years, while women's field has seen ample Black representation and titles, the men have hardly tasted similar success. Post the turn of the millennium, Tsonga and the soon-to-retire Gael Monfils flew the French flag high but finished without any Slams in their kitty. Félix Auger-Aliassime, Tiafoe and Shelton are the torchbearers among the current lot but are yet to find a breakthrough.

Tiafoe has said in the past that he has had to work twice as hard to reach the elite level.

“I definitely feel that not everybody wants to see that success in me. I feel like I'm taking something from someone that may have liked to do that,” he told CNN in 2022. “I felt that because ultimately, they don't want us in power. I truly think that's a thing.”

Shelton had called out what he deemed to be a disrespectful race comment during the Australian Open last year. After his win against Monfils in the fourth round, interviewer Roger Rasheed remarked, “He's (Monfils) almost your dad.” Shelton responded: “Was that a

So thanks for everything that you do for our sport and people who look like you and me.”

Tiafoe and Shelton have both battled through draining five-setters to reach US Open last four. The 11th seed got the better of Alex Michelsen in four hours and 39 minutes before Shelton dethroned Carlos Alcaraz in an all-time classic.

They have had their share of battles outside the court too. Tiafoe's parents fled Sierra Leone in the 1990s, when it was ravaged by civil war, and immigrated to the United States. Father Frances Sr got a job as a janitor in the Junior Tennis Champions Centre (JTCC) in Maryland. With his wife Alphina working multiple shifts

India capitalise on Bangla drops; enter Asia Cup final

Shuvaditya Bose
New Delhi, September 10

AT THE 50-over Women's World Cup last year, Bangladesh earned an unenviable distinction — they dropped more catches (15) than they pouched (12). A catching efficiency of 44.4% left daylight between them and the next-worst side on that metric. It was evident that their fielding standards sat starkly at odds with what the modern game demands.

That same failing undid them yet again in the 40-run defeat to India in the Women's Asia Cup semi-final in Dubai on Thursday. Bangladesh dropped four dummies on the night. Three of those reprieves fell Shafali Verma's way, and the opener from Rohtak was too good not to take advantage.

The first took nine deliveries to arrive. Off-spinner Sultana Khatun was given the new ball for the classic match-up against leftie Smriti Mandhana — but she could have had Shafali's number instead. Should have, in fact, for enticing the opener into going aerial with long-on posted on the boundary. Would have, too, had Fahima Khatun not produced her best impression of former Liverpool goalkeeper Loris Karius against Real Madrid in the UEFA Champions League final.

The cost of that drop escalated through the next 74 deliveries. Shafali faced 33 of those before finally departing for 64.

By the end of it, Shafali had scored 58 more runs than she should have. The fourth drop was Richa Ghosh's. The cumulative result of these, alongside Indian batters' alacrity at such gifts, resulted in the favourites aggregating 149/6.

India's spinners — Deepti Sharma with three wickets, and Sree Charani and Prema Rawat with one apiece — ensured there were no surprises. BRIEF SCORES: India 149/6 (Shafali Verma 64; Sultana Khatun 2/30) bt Bangladesh 109/6 (Shorna Akter 22 not out; Deepti Sharma 3/26) by 40 runs.

● JACK OF ALL TRADES

Suchika, India's MMA fighter at Asiad, made journey via judo, kurash and jiu-jitsu

Mihir Vasavda
Mumbai, September 10

THE FIRST time Suchika Tariyal thought seriously about learning to fight was after she found herself unable to.

“I had gone to a unisex salon (in New Delhi) where the barber touched me inappropriately,” she says. “I am aggressive by nature, but at that moment, I felt so weak, so helpless that I couldn't do anything. I should have done something, but I couldn't.”

She was just 10 years old then, but that incident set her off on one of the more unusual journeys in Indian sport.

Tariyal, now 36, competed in judo at the 2022 Commonwealth Games, represented India in kurash at the 2023 Asian Games, won national titles across three different martial arts, appeared on reality shows like MTV Roadies and India's Ultimate Warrior, and even won a World Championship title in jiu-jitsu.

In the next fortnight, she will add another discipline — and another chapter — to that list. Tariyal will represent India in Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) at the Asian Games in Nagoya (Japan), starting September 19. She is India's sole representative in the event, which will make its Asiad debut.

In many ways, Tariyal's journey began with that afternoon at the salon.

She says she went home and sat quietly, hesitant to tell her family because she feared they may restrict her from going out.

But she knew she never wanted to feel so powerless again. “I felt should have some fighting skill,” she recalls.

There was an empty house next to the government quarters where she lived. She began doing chin-ups and push-ups there. With a tanker supplying water in the area, she began carrying buckets to her family's fourth-floor home. “That's how I started building core strength,” she says.

Suchika has competed in judo at 2022 Commonwealth Games and represented India in kurash at the 2023 Asian Games. EXPRESS

A few months later, sometime in 2000, she joined judo classes at the Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium. She soon began winning age-group medals and, within a few years, became a junior national medallist. She went on to become an eight-time national champion in judo. But opportunity did not always arrive with success.

In 2018, when Tariyal was in contention for the Asian Games, India did not enter an athlete in her 48-kg category. “At that time, her career was at its peak,” says her husband Kapil Hooda. “She went on to win a gold medal at the Commonwealth Championship a year later.”

For years, Hooda says, Tariyal had no financial backing. Ranking tournaments had to be funded from their own pockets. Hooda dipped into his savings and began taking loans. “Right now, I have loans of around Rs 20 lakh pending,” he says.

She appeared on MTV Roadies and later India's Ultimate Warrior, taking her combat skills to reality television. The programmes were another way to earn, train and keep the larger sporting dream alive — an unusual detour for an athlete who was still chasing a place at major international competitions.

Tariyal finally got that opportunity at the 2022 Commonwealth Games. She came agonisingly close to a medal, losing the bronze-medal contest in the final seconds.

After the Commonwealth Games, Tariyal switched to kurash, partly because the Asian Games route appeared more favourable. Judo had historically been difficult terrain for India at the Asian Games, while kurash, introduced in 2018, had already yielded a silver and a bronze.

There was another reason for her confidence. Pincky Balhara, who won the silver in kurash at the 2018 Asian Games, was also a former judoka — and Tariyal had beaten her before.

After around a year of training, Tariyal won the selection trials for the 2023 Asian Games in Hangzhou. But her name was initially left out of the contingent, she says.

What followed was another exhausting fight — this time off the mat. “I even met Anurag Thakur Sir, who was the sports minister then. He was supportive,” she says. “But I spent all my energy visiting one office after another in the lead-up to the Asian Games, when I should have been practising.”

Her participation was eventually cleared only days before the opening ceremony. She lost in the preliminary round. A year later, she switched again, this time to jiu-jitsu, and won a World Championship title. Then, in 2025, came MMA. The Indian MMA federation approached Tariyal with offers of professional fights. For the first time, the switch made both financial and sporting sense.

“You get paid to play in pro fights,” Hooda says. “They were offering her multiple fight deals. We thought it would help us financially, so we accepted it. Now, I just want to end with a medal. After everything I've put into this, I don't want to look back and feel that I achieved nothing.”

Delhi HC's no to Phogat taking part in World C'ship trials

Press Trust of India
New Delhi, September 10

THE DELHI High Court refused to allow wrestler Vinesh Phogat to participate in the women's selection trials for the 2026 Senior World Championships. Justice Swarana Kanta Sharma, in a late-night interim order, said that at this stage, the court is not inclined to grant an interim exemption from the eligibility criteria to allow the petitioner to participate in the selection trials on September 14.

“To reiterate, the criteria prescribed under the circular dated September 7, 2026 apply uniformly to all athletes. An athlete who has not participated in the prescribed competitions, for whatever reason, would not fall within the eligibility categories specified by respondent no. 1 (WFI),” the court said.

The high court passed the order while dismissing an application by grappler Vinesh Phogat, who has returned from maternity leave, seeking permission to participate in the women's selection trials for the 2026 Senior World Championships. It said Phogat's circumstances relating to pregnancy, childbirth and postpartum recovery would require consideration while examining the validity of the policy. However, that does not, at the interim stage, by itself entitle her to a direction permitting her to participate contrary to the eligibility criteria, it added.

“Granting such interim relief to the petitioner alone, without first adjudicating upon the policy itself, may consequently result in unequal treatment of similarly situated athletes who are not before this court,” it said.

It added that without expressing any final opinion on the validity of the circular or on the merits of the pending disciplinary proceedings, the court is not inclined to grant the interim relief.
