RISK TO INVESTORS

For details refer to the section titled "Risk Factors" section on page 30 of the RHP.

1. Risk relating to telecommunication license and spectrum: The unified licence for providing telecom services held by Reliance Jio Infocomm Limited ("RJIL") across circles in India is due for renewal in October 2033. Further, the spectrum held by RJIL is valid for a period of 20 years with the majority of the spectrum expiring between 2041 and 2042. Any inability to maintain or renew such licences or to successfully bid for any spectrum required for our operations, could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition and results of operations.

2. Dependence on Reliance Industries Limited, Reliance Retail Limited and other Reliance Group entities: The Company and its subsidiaries have entered into various non-exclusive agreements with the Promoter, Reliance Retail Limited, a subsidiary of the Promoter and other Reliance Group entities for certain key aspects of the business. Disruption of these arrangements could significantly impact our business, financial condition and results of operations. Notes:

(1) Parent, in this table, means the Promoter.

(2) Recharge vouchers sold to Reliance Retail Limited are accounted as 'Advance against services' which is disclosed as a related party transaction under the head 'Revenue received in advance'. When Reliance Retail Limited or its distributor/ sub-distributor further sells the vouchers to our customers by way of recharge to the digital connectivity services, RJIL recognises such transfer as 'Deferred revenue' and thereafter, based on the type of tariff plan, it is accounted as operating revenues in the profit & loss account. In light of the above, revenue received in advance has not been presented as a percentage of revenue from operations.

(3) Cash Capex refers to the cash outflow towards expenditure for property, plant and equipment, spectrum and other intangible assets less proceeds from disposal of property, plant and equipment and other intangible assets.

3. Dependency on Reliance Retail Limited for distribution of prepaid connectivity services: RJIL has a master distribution agreement and a master collection agreement with RRL. RRL is the sole distributor of our pre-paid connectivity services. Our revenue from pre-paid connectivity services constituted 76.37%, 77.88%, 77.08%, 78.57% and 79.35% of our consolidated Revenue from Operations for the three months period ended June 30, 2026, June 30, 2025 and Fiscals 2026, 2025 and 2024, respectively. Any disruption in this relationship or distribution channel could adversely impact our business, financial condition and results of operations. The following table provides the details of the Revenue Received in Advance attributed to the above arrangement with RRL:

Particulars	Three months ended / As of June 30		Fiscal / As of March 31
	(in ₹ millions)
Revenue Received in Advance	292,480	271,663	1,129,351	1,023,958	890,587

4. Dependency on RJIL that contributes significantly to our Revenue from Operations, EBITDA and PAT and KPIs relating to digital connectivity services: RJIL contributed significantly to our Revenue from Operations, EBITDA and PAT in periods / Fiscals as indicated below:

Fiscals / period	RJIL's revenue from operations (in ₹ million)	% of our consolidated Revenue from Operations	RJIL's EBITDA (in ₹ million)	% of our consolidated EBITDA	RJIL's profit after tax (in ₹ million)	% of our consolidated PAT
Three months ended June 30, 2025	308,821	88.15%	173,013	95.40%	67,110	94.39%

Note: The financial information of RJIL provided above is on a standalone basis.

Any material adverse impact on the business, financial conditions or results of operations of RJIL would have a corresponding material adverse impact on our consolidated business, financial condition and results of operations. Further, while we operate as a technology platform, our key operational indicators ("KPIs") are primarily pertaining to our digital connectivity services provided by RJIL and do not reflect the technology platform specific metrics. Our competitors may perform more favourably on certain operational or financial KPIs, which could affect our competitive position. For details of comparison of the KPIs of our Company with listed peers, see "Basis for Issue Price - Comparison of KPIs with Listed Industry Peers" on page 135 of the RHP.

5. Network, Infrastructure and Service Disruption Risk: The uninterrupted performance, reliability and availability of our network, passive infrastructure, technology, products and services are critical to our operations and our ability to consistently deliver our digital services. Any disruption to our network, passive infrastructure and technology could impair our ability to ensure consistent performance and deliver uninterrupted customer experience, which could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition and results of operations, and could lead to increased churn in our customer base.
6. Risk related to Technology change: The connectivity industry is subject to rapid and continuous technological change, and our connectivity infrastructure faces the risk of technological obsolescence. If we are unable to respond to changes in technologies, including for instance, more competitive satellite-based broadband services and the evolving demands of our customers, we may face technological obsolescence, which would have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition and results of operations.
7. Risk relating to negative publicity of 'Jio' Brand: The "Jio" trademark is owned by the Promoter, and we do not control the use of this trademark by other companies in the Reliance Group. Negative publicity arising from actions outside its control, inability to protect intellectual property or infringement claims could have a material adverse impact on our reputation, business, financial condition and results of operations.
8. Dependency on a limited group of passive infrastructure service providers: We rely on a limited set of passive infrastructure service providers for our operations. For instance, of the 360,537 Network Towers used by us for our operations, 174,451 Network Towers are owned by Summit Digitel Infrastructure Limited, as of June 30, 2026. Additionally, as of June 30, 2026, we rely on Jio Digital Fibre Private Limited, for substantially all our optic fibre network requirements (approximately 98%), aside from the last mile fibre network which is owned by RJIL. Any disruption in the availability of these passive infrastructure assets could have an adverse impact on our business, financial condition and results of operations.
9. Cybersecurity, Data Privacy and Information Security Risk: Our systems, platforms, network infrastructure, and the services provided by our Promoter and third-party technology partners are exposed to cybersecurity threats, security breaches, operational disruptions, and other technology-related risks. Any such incident or disruption could impair our operations, compromise data security, increase costs, expose us to regulatory and legal liabilities, and adversely affect our business, results of operations, financial condition, and reputation.
10. Artificial Intelligence ("AI") and Machine Learning ("ML") Technologies Related Risk: We rely on AI and ML technologies across our operations, including for network automation through our proprietary JioBrain platform, customer engagement and service delivery. The deployment of AI and ML technologies across our operations may not yield the desired results. Further, reliance on AI/ML technologies may expose us to inherent risks pertaining to algorithmic bias and model errors leading to inaccurate or biased outputs, which may cause reputational harm and adversely impact our business, financial condition and results of operations.
11. Our Price/Earning (P/E) ratio based on diluted EPS for Financial Year 2026 at the upper end of the price band is 33.31 as compared to the average industry peer group P/E ratio of 22.35, as of October 13, 2026.
12. Weighted Average Return on Average Net Worth for Financial Year ended 2026, 2025 and 2024 is 9.04%. Return on Average Net Worth for the three months ended June 30, 2026, and June 30, 2025 is 2.30% and 2.31% respectively (unannualized).
13. Weighted average cost of acquisition of all Equity Shares transacted in one year, 18 months and three years preceding the date of the RHP:

Period	Weighted average cost of Acquisition (in ₹)	Cap Price is 'X' times the weighted average cost of acquisition#	Range of acquisition price per Equity Shares: lowest price - highest price (in ₹)

#As certified by D T S & Associates LLP, Chartered Accountants (FRN 142412W/W100595), by way of their certificate dated October 14, 2026, (UDIN 26136433YFEPPE7981).

Can makeup beat facial recognition? Conditions apply

Yashee
New Delhi, October 14

ACTOR RICHA Chadha recently shared a makeup tutorial on X, suggesting that protesters concerned about being filmed without their consent could use cosmetics to confuse facial recognition systems. Her suggestions included drawing additional eyes and lips, using coloured patterns on the face and concealing eyebrows. But can makeup really dodge such systems?

How facial recognition works

Broadly, facial recognition involves matching a face with one stored in the system database. Such systems do not simply compare photos pixel by pixel. They use artificial intelligence models to analyse a face and convert its visual characteristics into a numerical representation, often called a face embedding. This is compared with representations stored in a database to determine a likely match. The system learns patterns associated with identity from training data. Makeup can alter the image presented to the model, potentially changing the numerical representation enough to prevent a match. This doesn't necessarily stop the system from detecting that a face is present; it may simply fail to establish whose face it is.

DAZED & CONFUSED

- The CV Dazzle project was inspired by the Dazzle initiative used by the British during World War I, when naval ships were painted in high-contrast colours, and patterns such as stripes and geometric shapes.
- The designs were intended to confuse enemy observers, making them harder to target.

Past research

Chadha's method largely depends on drawing extra eyes and lips to confuse machines, and using colour to alter light and dark patterns of a face.

In 2010, American artist Adam Harvey's CV Dazzle project explored how unconventional makeup and hairstyles could interfere with computer vision algorithms.

Then in 2021, researchers at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev found that "software-generated makeup patterns can be used to consistently bypass state-of-the-art facial recognition," the university's website says.

The Ben-Gurion experiment used makeup patterns designed with the help of machine learning to interfere with specific facial recognition models. It did not establish that any unusual makeup, extra facial features or coloured patterns would reliably defeat surveillance systems.

Also, in both Chadha and Harvey's methods, the makeup may fool cameras, but will make the people highly conspicuous to human eyes. In the Ben-Gurion experiment, the makeup was designed to look relatively ordinary, rather than resembling elaborate camouflage.

Modern systems vary in their algorithms, camera quality, lighting conditions and identification thresholds. A technique that works under one set of conditions may fail under another.

India's laws on surveillance

Facial images and digital templates linked to identifiable people fall within the broad definition of personal data under the Digital Personal Data Protection Act, 2023. Section 17 of the law, however, exempts several obligations when data is processed for preventing, detecting, investigating or prosecuting an offence.

The Centre may also exempt notified state instrumentalities, including security forces like the Delhi Police, for reasons including state security and public order. The law does not lay down a dedicated framework for police facial recognition.

The long and rocky road to a trade deal with US

Despite convergence on the issue of overcapacity, India is worried about the concessions US wants & the uncertainty that may remain even after inking a deal

RAVI DUTTA MISHRA & ANIL SASI

PM Narendra Modi with US President Donald Trump at the G7 Summit in France in June. NYT

ON SATURDAY, Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said that India and the US would finalise their interim trade agreement framework in line with "changed circumstances". That statement appeared to indicate that negotiations for the first phase of the bilateral trade pact still have some way to go despite a framework being agreed in February.

Negotiations for the long-delayed trade deal have continued for nearly a year. This month, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said talks had reached a plateau beyond which a compromise would be difficult. This followed comments from United States Trade Representative Jamieson Greer that a trade deal was in its final stages, "but not imminent". Meanwhile, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar said on Wednesday that the two countries are continuing to engage, and that negotiations are heading towards a "landing point".

While trade negotiators have suggested that they are making progress, much of the political signalling in the interim has suggested the opposite. So how far away are both parties from a deal?

Areas of progress

There are some positives. The first relates to "overcapacity" — a situation when a sector or a country's production capacity exceeds the demand in the market. Increased supply can push down prices and affect manufacturers in other countries.

China is often accused of having overcapacity in sectors such as automobiles, electric vehicles, batteries, chemicals, semiconductors and solar panels.

The US has launched an investigation into overcapacity under Section 301 of the of the Trade Act of 1974, targeting China and 15 other economies, including India.

Last Wednesday, the US government said that India, along with 13 other countries and blocs including the European Union, Australia and Japan, has decided to take "effective actions" against structural excess capacity. The joint statement, released after the G20 trade ministers' meeting, in Milwaukee is significant on two counts.

FIRST, India's inclusion could mean that it may fall outside the Section 301 tariff net. The convergence on overcapacity comes just weeks before the US is expected to release the results of the Section 301 probe.

SECOND, tariffs on India were reduced from 12.5% (proposed earlier this year) to 10% after New Delhi issued a notification banning imports of goods produced through forced labour.

Sticking points

While the new Section 301 agreement suggests some tangible progress, the concerns in New Delhi are on two counts.

ONE, whether entering into a deal, which entails significant concessions given the Donald Trump administration's usual approach, will indeed result in any competitive tariff advantage for India over its competitors.

TWO, the US has, on various occasions, imposed fresh curbs despite having signed trade agreements. This was particularly evident in its dispute with Canada despite signing the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) during Trump's first term in 2020.

Ajay Srivastava, founder of thinktank Global Trade Research Initiative, said that while Chinese President Xi Jinping secured a tariff pause from Trump over China's Russian oil purchases, India continues to face that threat from the Lindsey O. Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026. That legislation gives Trump the power to impose up to 100% tariffs on buyers of Russian oil and gas.

"We saw this pattern in July 2025, when Washington spared China but imposed an additional 25% tariff on India for buying Russian crude. If Russian oil purchases are the issue, why does India face the tariff while China gets an exemption? The tariff threat appears aimed at forcing India to cut Russian oil purchases and sign a deeply unequal bilateral trade agreement. Washington could offer a lower rate in return for concessions, but that would give India no lasting certainty. India should not trade its energy security for temporary tariff relief or let US tariff threats dictate its national energy policy," said Srivastava.

Asked about the US-China trade truce extension, a government official had earlier told The Indian Express: "It's just (for) two months. The Chinese wanted it till the end of Trump's term. That hasn't happened. Our side has also expressed concerns to DC over the scope of the sanctions legislation."

There is considerable unease in New Delhi over the arbitrariness of the trade negotiations with Washington DC. Last year, India faced some of the highest US tariffs imposed on any country, a move the US Supreme Court later struck down.

Currently, the talks have also been complicated by the new US legislation against Russian oil.

When the US Supreme Court invalidated the reciprocal tariff regime, the February framework that had offered to reduce India's reciprocal tariff from 25% to 18% in return for concessions lost its sheen.

"While there has been considerable narrowing of differences since the February framework signing, the sticking points that remain continue to be too significant to be papered over. At this point in time, a situation of suspended animation, with somewhat lower tariffs, is perhaps a better option than getting into a deal involving significant concessions by India. There is uncertainty even after signing a deal, as multiple other countries are finding out," an official aware of the negotiations told The Indian Express.

These are China, the EU, Norway, Switzerland, Mexico, South Korea, Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Cambodia, Thailand, Vietnam, Taiwan, Bangladesh, Japan and India.

Lingering uncertainties

India and several other economies are awaiting the results of the Section 301 investigation into overcapacity. The government's stance is that India does not have structural excess manufacturing capacity in the sectors identified by the G20 presidency, and that the country's manufacturing capacity serves both domestic and global needs.

Indian exporters have said that US buyers have become cautious and are refraining from placing large orders in a single country. This is affecting low-margin products such as footwear and textiles. However, US concessions on electronics and pharmaceutical imports have so far helped India maintain its overall export levels to the US. Without those, the figures would have been more adversely tilted against India.

Goods exports to the US showed a sharp 21% jump in August to $8.3 billion compared to August last year, when India began facing 50% tariffs. Between April and August, too, India's exports jumped by over 6%, driven by electronics and engineering goods. India's electronics exports jumped 89% to $5.5 billion compared to $2.9 billion.

However, India's imports from the US, driven by energy products, are also rising sharply. In August, imports went up by 65% to $5.97 billion. This comes as India has also been making several regulatory changes to aid American companies by lowering tariffs on US bourbon whiskey and motorcycles, among several other items. New Delhi has also announced a tax holiday for data centres and opened its nuclear sector, moves that align with US commercial interests.

How govt plans to rein in prices of expensive cancer drugs

Anonna Dutt
New Delhi, October 14

THE UNION government recently decided to cap the trade margins on 110 expensive cancer medicines, including around 35 patented ones. While the list is still being finalised, officials say it will cover the branded, generic, domestically manufactured and imported versions of these drugs.

This is not the first time the government is trying such a step. A 2019 pilot had demonstrated up to 91% reduction in the MRP of 42 cancer medicines. The present step is likely to bring down the marked prices of select cancer drugs by up to 70%, say officials.

Why is this necessary?

Regulating prices is essential in a country with a rising cancer burden. Survival improves in many cases today with the use of targeted and immunotherapy drugs. Yet, the latest therapies remain out of reach for most.

A real-world study from Tata Memorial Hospital had shown that only 1.6% of the patients who need such therapies are able to access them, with cost being one of the most significant barriers. This issue of cost has also been raised in courts. The Supreme Court recently questioned the nearly tenfold markup in some cancer drugs.

What is trade margin rationalisation?

The trade margin of a medicine is essentially the difference in the price at which it is sold to stockists (the first point of sale) and its MRP (the price at which it is sold to customers). This gap is usually quite significant, sometimes going as high as 1000% of the cost at the first point of sale.

Under trade margin rationalisation (TMR), instead of capping the price of each medicine — and its different formulations, doses and brands — the government caps the percentage markup at which the medicine can be sold in order to bring down the cost to the consumer. Very simply put, a 30% TMR would mean a medicine can carry an MRP of only Rs 100 if it was sold to the stockist for Rs 70.

Which drugs are likely to be covered?

While the the Director General of Health Services is yet to finalise a list, it is likely to include commonly used but expensive cancer medicine. "One of the considerations for selecting a medicine is that it should be expensive. This is because a 30% capping on trade margin for the cheaper drugs can disincentivise companies because it does not cover the marketing costs. Other than that, of course, the drug should be one that is approved for treatment of cancer in India and is used frequently for it," said an official from the Department of Pharmaceuticals.

How govt sets drug prices

- The government fixes prices only for 'scheduled drugs' (which are on the National List of Essential Medicines). The 'ceiling price' for such drugs is based on the average market price of the most commonly selling brands of the medicine.
- For 'non-scheduled' drugs, the only regulation is that companies cannot cannot raise MRP by over 10% a year.
- It is the second category of drugs on which trade margin rationalisation will be applicable.

How much could prices fall?

At a recent meeting of the National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority (NPPA) — the body that is responsible for regulating medicine prices — experts said that non-scheduled anti-cancer drugs carry an average trade mark-up of approximately 170%, with mark-ups going up to 700% in certain cases. At present, the annual turnover of cancer drugs is around Rs 12,500 crore. Of this, scheduled cancer drugs, whose prices are regulated, account for only around Rs 2,250 crore.

Addressing these huge markups on non-scheduled drugs, experts at the NPPA meeting said the move is expected to reduce MRP broadly in the range of 20-70%, resulting in annual savings of approximately Rs 2,500 crore.

What do experts say?

Experts and patients' rights activists say that there is still scope to game the system as there is no control over the price to stockists. "A company may sell 1,000 vials at an inflated price to the distributor and say that I will give you 500 vials free, meaning the company will be able to keep prices artificially inflated even if they abide by the 30% margin capping," said one expert familiar with the issue. They said that the capping should be based on the manufacturing cost or the cost at which the product is imported.

K M Gopakumar, co-convenor of Working Group on Access to Medicines and Treatments, said: "This is unlikely to make many of the patented cancer drugs affordable. Despite such capping in 2019, prices of cancer medicines increased. For instance, the monthly cost of ribociclib rose from Rs 58,000 in 2022 to Rs 78,000 in 2025 despite margin capping." Patented drugs face no competition and, hence, no pressure to reduce prices.

Kigali Amendment at 10: The challenge India faces as demand for cooling booms

EXPERTS EXPLAIN

DURWOOD ZAELKE & ZERIN OSHO

THE KIGALI Amendment to the Montreal Protocol turns 10 today. It agreed to phase down hydrofluorocarbons, or HFCs, which had become common refrigerants after countries moved away from chemicals — like chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) — that destroyed the ozone layer.

The amendment is expected to prevent up to 0.5°C of warming by 2100. Yet at its 10th anniversary, the world is getting hotter, demand for cooling, expectedly, is rising rapidly, and the machines that provide it can themselves add to warming.

India will confront this problem at unusual scale. What Kigali does next may therefore matter as much as what it has already achieved.

What is the Kigali Amendment?

The Montreal Protocol was agreed in 1987 to phase out CFCs and other chemicals that damage the ozone layer. Countries have since eliminated nearly 99% of the controlled ozone-depleting substances, and the layer is recovering.

Hydrofluorocarbons, or HFCs, became common substitutes in refrigeration and air-conditioning. These chemicals carry heat out of the space being cooled. If they escape, many have hundreds or thousands of times the warming impact of carbon dioxide over a century, weight for weight.

As the use of HFCs grew, the Federated States of Micronesia and Mauritius proposed bringing them under the Protocol in 2009.

Governments adopted the amendment in Kigali, Rwanda, on October 15, 2016; it entered into force in January 2019. It sets binding schedules for reducing HFC production and consumption.

How much warming could it prevent?

Full implementation could avoid about 0.3°C to 0.5°C of global warming by 2100, according to the UN-backed scientific assessment of ozone depletion. That is the difference between projected temperatures with the HFC controls and those without them. Even a fraction of a degree matters when the Paris Agreement seeks to keep warming well below 2°C and pursue a limit of 1.5°C above pre-industrial levels.

However, Kigali has yet to achieve universal participation: 175 parties had joined by early October.

Why has cooling become central to Kigali's next decade?

Cooling contributes to warming in two ways. Refrigerants can escape into the atmosphere, while the electricity used to run the equipment causes emissions wherever fossil fuels supply the power. Switching to a refrigerant with a lower warming impact addresses the first problem. A more efficient machine reduces the second.

Manufacturers changing refrigerants often need to redesign their equipment. Improving efficiency during that redesign can reduce electricity use for the lifetime of the appliance. The UN Environment Programme and the International Energy Agency estimate that combining the HFC transition with better cooling efficiency could roughly double the climate benefit.

For India, the electricity savings would be substantial. Cooling already accounts for slightly more than a tenth of annual electricity demand, according to the IEA. On hot summer nights, air-conditioners can account for as much as a third of power consumption. Under current policies, India's cooling demand is projected to more than double by 2035.

What must India do under Kigali?

India ratified the amendment in 2021 and must freeze HFC production and consumption in 2028. This caps them at an agreed baseline. The first cut, of 10% below that baseline, is due in 2032; reductions reach 85% in 2047. The limits are calculated according to the gases' warming impact. Equipment bought before the first cuts may remain in use well into the 2030s.

Who pays for the transition in developing countries?

The Montreal Protocol's Multilateral Fund helps meet the agreed additional costs of compliance. Established in 1990 and operating since 1991, it receives contributions from developed countries to help poorer countries change technologies. Its support includes converting factories and training the people who service cooling equipment.

Could a parallel approach work for other short-lived climate pollutants?

The four main short-lived climate pollutants, or SLCPs, are methane, black carbon, HFCs and tropospheric, or ground-level, ozone. Often called super pollutants, they have strong warming effects and generally remain in the atmosphere for much less time than carbon dioxide. Reducing them can therefore slow warming relatively quickly, alongside the carbon dioxide cuts needed to limit warming over the longer term.

Kigali already addresses HFCs. Other sources would need different rules. For example, In India, measures to reduce methane from cattle have to account for small farmers' incomes and food production. Black carbon, the soot produced by incomplete combustion, requires action on sources such as diesel engines and household cooking fuels.

The case for agreements covering particular sectors rests on these differences: each can set obligations suited to the sources of pollution and provide support for those who must comply.

FDI windfall as Cabinet clears 60.7% IDBI stake sale to Canada's Fairfax

Toronto-based holding company chosen as strategic buyer for Rs 52,878 crore

Siddharth Upasani
New Delhi, October 14

THE CABINET Committee on Economic Affairs Wednesday cleared the long pending disinvestment of IDBI Bank, choosing Toronto-based Fairfax Financial Holdings, backed by Indian-Canadian billionaire Prem Watsa, as the 'strategic buyer' for Rs 52,878 crore.

The sale of 60.72% stake in IDBI Bank, the largest ever Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) in India's financial sector, is expected to be completed by March 2027.

Following the CCEA nod, Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said, "It is not a disinvestment, but a restructuring. This is because the government will remain invested in IDBI Bank."

The decision Wednesday is the latest in a series of overseas investments in the country's financial sector. In June this year, Emirates NBD completed its 60% purchase in private lender RBL Bank for nearly $3 billion. And just before that, Japan's Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group (MUFG) bought 20% of non-bank lender Shriram Finance for $4.4 billion. Last year, another Japanese financial giant, Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation (SMBC), bought 24.2% of YES Bank for a little under $2 billion.

The IDBI Bank strategic restructuring also continues the government's disinvestment process, prominent ones in recent years being that of Air India and Neelachal Ispat Nigam Limited in 2022, Ferro Scrap Nigam Limited in early 2025, and Indian Medicines Pharmaceuticals Corporation Limited in May this year.

Meeting a target

The green light for Fairfax completes a process that has gone on for more than four years and ensures that the Centre's FY27 disinvestment target will be met. It is also the latest foreign investment in India's financial sector, with entities from Japan and West Asia having poured in billions of dollars over the last year or so.

Thinking of passing an order: Apex court on plea over Form 6

New Delhi, October 14

HEARING AN application on the confusion over the use of Form 6 during the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls in the Capital, the Supreme Court on Wednesday said it is "thinking of passing an order that will take care of it". The court also advanced the hearing in the Delhi SIR matter from October 30 to October 28.

The bench, headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, was hearing an application which alleged that in Delhi, voters whose names were deleted from the electoral rolls following the SIR were being asked to submit Form 6 — used to enroll new voters — for re-inclusion of their names.

The application was filed in a pending petition challenging the Delhi SIR process.

Appearing for the applicants, Advocate Prashant Bhushan told the bench, which included Justice Joymalya Bagchi: "They are asking people to fill up Form 6 which contains a declaration that they have never voted before, and if they file false declaration, they are liable to imprisonment. We are seeking direction that ECI allow them to fill up Form 8, which is for shifted voters, or create some other form."

He urged the court to list the matter for hearing on Friday.

Bharat Dynamics cites 'urgency' to justify tender; firm clears technical stage, bids Rs 56.8 cr, financial evaluation underway

Pratyush Deep
New Delhi, October 14

FOR THE first time in three years, Bharat Dynamics Ltd (BDL) has turned to a private company to supply optical sights for its missiles and it has done so raising questions of conflict of interest and propriety.

Citing "urgency," the Hyderabad-based defence PSU issued a "single tender" — without competition — for the optical sights to a company that its former Chairman and Managing Director Siddharth Mishra and his wife set up after he retired. Today, that company is 95 per cent owned by Mishra's wife Shambhavi Mishra.

In May this year, BDL issued a "single tender" to Aindri Defence Advisory Private Limited for the supply of 300 optical sights within seven months following the completion of acceptance and validation tests of five sample units supplied by the company. These five units are to be supplied within a month of BDL placing a purchase order.

THE OFFICE on the fourth floor is locked. On the second floor, an employee of another organisation said "two people come and open that office once in a while". This is what The Indian Express came across on Wednesday at the listed address of Aindri Defence Advisory Pvt Ltd on the National Small Industries Corporation (NSIC) campus in Hyderabad's Kushaiguda.

Aindri Defence Advisory was picked this year by defence PSU Bharat Dynamics Ltd (BDL) for a single tender to provide 300 optical sights for the anti-tank guided missiles it manufactures. Aindri was set up by BDL's former CMD Siddharth Mishra and his wife in May 2024 — a year after Mishra's four-year tenure at BDL ended in March 2023.

IN REMARKS reflecting Delhi's calibrated economic and diplomatic engagement with Beijing despite tensions along the frontier, Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said Wednesday that India is "working to develop the relationship with China once again, but the last word has not yet been scripted on this journey".

External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar flagged concerns over economic issues with China, underlining the "one-sided" and "tilted" trade balance.

On India's ties with the US, Jaishankar said the two countries continue to engage to iron out differences over the proposed bilateral trade deal, and negotiations are heading towards a "landing point".

If no chip self-reliance, risk of failing in future conflicts: DRDO units

EXPERTS FROM the Defence Research and Development Organisation have cautioned that if India does not achieve self-reliance in designing, manufacturing and deploying semiconductors by 2047, the target year for Viksit Bharat, the country will be at severe risk of "failing in future conflicts" which will be driven by artificial intelligence, cyber technologies and space power.

Although India produces 20 per cent of total data for the global generation of artificial intelligence, only three per cent of AI data centres are in the country. While 20 per cent of the global computer chip design workforce is in India, 90 per cent of the chip/semiconductor industry is dependent on imports.

On Tuesday, participating in a curtain raiser to the 'Semi conductors and Next-Gen chips' session at the Emerging Science, Technology and Innovation Conclave later this month, heads of several DRDO units linked to technology management, semiconductor labs, and DRDO Director General B K Das, provided an overview of India's position in the

In shift on CJP, Cong sent invite to Dipke for Rahul's high tea

New Delhi, October 14

SIGNALLING A shift in its approach towards the Cockroach Janta Party (CJP), the Congress is learnt to have made an attempt to reach out to the group's leader, Abhijeet Dipke, on Tuesday to invite him and the CJP to a high tea hosted by Leader of the Opposition in Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, for leaders of the INDIA bloc, civil society representatives and student leaders.

Most of the Congress leadership had been skeptical of the CJP, which emerged as a social media trend in May and then went on to lead the demonstration against exam paper leaks at Jantar Mantar in June-July resulting in the resignation of Dharmendra Pradhan as Education Minister.

Nevertheless, the party was keeping a close eye on the October 10 protest called by the CJP in Delhi against Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar. The massive INDIA FORMS a large part of Canada's strategy to double non-US trade over the next 10 years and diversify its trading partners, visiting Canadian Foreign Minister Anita Anand said on Wednesday. In an interview to The Indian Express, on the sidelines of the Bloomberg New Economy Forum, Anand spoke on the trajectory of India-Canada bilateral ties and the areas of cooperation.

Edited excerpts:

How do you see the progress in bilateral ties over the past one year?

There has been significant material progress. I came last October to begin the process of reviving a relationship that is so important to both countries. (External Affairs) Minister S Jaishankar and I set down a declaration of the areas in which we intend to grow the relationship — from the security dialogue at the highest levels, to technology and information systems, to food security, to trade and investment, to people-to-people ties. These are areas that have been fundamentally important in the bilateral relationship. Not to mention energy. And we will continue to work together on these items, building on that October 2025 visit, looking forward to the conclusion of a Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA) this year.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi is expected to visit Canada at the end of this year. He and Canadian PM Mark Carney have said the CEPA talks should be concluded by year-end. How confident are you that the talks will be concluded, and what are the key challenges?

A trade team from India was in Ottawa last week. Our Minister of International Trade, (Maninder) Sidhu, is in India this week with a 150-member delegation of the business community. So the work continues on negotiations at an accelerated pace, and I am sure that both trade ministers have this well in hand.

How are you trying to assuage India's concerns on pro-Khalistan elements, and how is the approach different from the previous (Justin) Trudeau government?

The security concerns that Canadians have are always top of the mind for our government. It is one of the reasons why we put in place the security dialogue at the highest levels. It is one of the reasons why we listed the Bishnoi gang as a terrorist entity under Canadian law, and why we are relying on the rule of law as being a fundamental principle on which our relationship will continue. Rule of law and domestic security are top of the mind for our government, always.

The two leaders had agreed on the uranium supply deal and pacts on critical minerals. What is the progress?

One of the key signatures of PM Carney's visit here was the signing of the uranium deal... that was indicative of the potential of the relationship on critical minerals. Certainly, we built critical minerals into the declaration last October when we signed that, Minister Jaishankar and I, and we will continue to have a dialogue about what the competitive advantages are, and how our work can complement each other. Canada led the G7 Buyers Club or Production Alliance after last year's G7 meeting, and that goal was to stabilise supply chains for critical minerals. We're very pleased that India was an outreach partner at that meeting, and we look forward to further conversations.

of India (LIC) acquiring a majority stake and becoming the promoter. Before the strategic restructuring announcement, LIC held 49.24% in IDBI Bank, while the Government held 45.48%. After the sale, LIC will hold 19% and the Government 15%.

On Wednesday, the price of IDBI Bank shares surged 9% to close at Rs 90.39 on the National Stock Exchange amid constant speculation that the bank's disinvestment would be announced any day. LIC's share price was flat at Rs 394.

Fairfax's winning bid was Rs 81 per share, higher than the Rs 70.38 on the last trading day before the invitation of 'best offer bids' on May 18.

Once the deal is completed, the proceeds of Rs 52,878 crore will help the Centre meet its disinvestment target of Rs 80,000 crore for 2026-27 as a whole. According to the latest data from the Department of Investment and Public Asset Management (DIPAM), the Centre has so far raised Rs 55,757 crore.

The share purchase agreement signed by Fairfax is for three years from the completion of the deal. This means Fairfax, as the new promoter of IDBI Bank, must retain the name of the bank for that period of time. Moreover, the capital invested by Fairfax must be locked in for five years.

Sources said IDBI Bank employees have nothing to worry about since the bank is a going concern. Further, a separate fund has been created for the pension of former employees. IDBI Bank officers and the employees union have opposed the sale of the bank, saying the price is too low.

This will not be Fairfax's first foray into the Indian banking sector as it currently owns, through its subsidiary FIH Mauritius Investments Ltd, 40% of Kerala's Thrissur-based CSB Bank. But since the same promoter can't own two banks, Fairfax has to, within two years, either merge CSB Bank and IDBI Bank or exit CSB Bank.

Shares of CSB Bank also jumped 4.3% Wednesday to settle at Rs 321.30.

Fairfax must reduce its stake in IDBI Bank to 26% over a period of 15 years, although the exact details of the glide path for the stake reduction will be between Fairfax and the Reserve Bank of India (RBI). For now, Fairfax must go through the central bank's compliance process.

The LIC must reduce its 19% stake in IDBI Bank to 15% within two years of the deal's completion.

The Ministry of Finance, in a statement, said, "The CCEA has also delegated powers to the Alternative Mechanism to undertake minority stake sales of the GoI residual shareholding (15% of the total shareholding of the IDBI Bank Ltd.) through the open market in accordance with the standard operating procedure. The LIC will be free to manage its residual shareholding in accordance with its internal procedures while ensuring compliance with the directions of its regulators."

Optical sights in anti-tank missiles

Optical sights form a critical component of Anti-Tank Guided Missile (ATGM) systems, enabling operators to detect, identify and track targets. These sights receive infrared radiation from missiles, convert the inputs into electrical signals and transmit them to coordinator units on the ground. An optical sight in this context typically comprises lenses, an eyepiece, a sighting reticle and a housing with protective components, mostly manufactured in India. Bharat Dynamics Ltd's portfolio includes Konkurs-M, a mechanised infantry ATGM manufactured under licence from a Russian company. In 2022, the PSU signed a Rs 3,131.82-crore contract with the Indian Army for the manufacture and supply of Konkurs-M, which can be fired from a specialised infantry combat vehicle or a ground launcher.

evaluation stage, according to the Government e-Marketplace portal. It has quoted a price of Rs 56.8 crore for the tender, and financial evaluation of its bid is underway.

A "single tender" is a non-competitive route in which only one vendor is invited to bid. Norms allow it only when just one supplier can meet the requirement, or when the need is urgent. This tender also requires the supplier to provide technical support for at least 15 years for maintenance, repair and overhaul of the sights.

Optical sights are a critical part of the aiming and target-acquisition system of an anti-tank guided missile. The operator uses the sight to locate and track the target and to align the missile with it.

Company records show that Aindri Defence Advisory was incorporated in May 2024 by Siddharth Mishra and his wife. Each held 50 per cent. Mishra retired from BDL in March 2023 after four years as its CMD. He was a director and shareholder of the company from its incorporation until January 2025. He left when he was appointed Member (Technical) at the National Company Law Tribunal, Kolkata. Shambhavi now holds 95 per cent and is a director. The other director, Kaushiki Nandan Vatsyayana, holds the remaining 5 per cent. Mishra and Shambhavi did not respond to text messages or calls from The Indian Express seeking comment. The company did not respond to questions emailed to the address provided in its filings with the Registrar of Companies. Vatsyayana said he could not share information about the BDL tender. BDL did not reply to queries from this newspaper.

The 2026 tender marks a major commercial shift. BDL bought the same type of optical sights in 2024 and 2025, but both purchases were competitive and limited to the public sector. The 2024 tender was open only to Central Public Sector Enterprises (CPSEs). The 2025 tender was open to CPSEs and Defence Public Sector Undertakings. Data from the GeM portal shows that India Optel Limited, a Mini Ratna PSU under the Ministry of Defence, won both.

The 2026 tender drops both competition and the public-sector restriction. It is addressed only to Aindri Defence Advisory, making this the first time in the three years of these procurements that the order may go to a private firm.

BDL cites urgency as its reason for choosing this route: "The competent authority in the Ministry or Department has certified that the demand is urgent, and any additional expenditure involved by not procuring through advertised tender enquiry is justified in view of urgency. The Ministry or Department has placed on record the nature of the urgency and reasons why the procurement could not be anticipated," the tender states. The reasons, however, are not spelled out.

The shift also shows how the tenders treat Micro and Small Enterprises (MSEs). The 2024 and 2025 tenders were formally exempted from the MSE purchase preference through approvals from the competent authority. The 2026 tender applies it. Under the preference, eligible MSEs and original equipment manufacturers quoting within 15 per cent of the lowest price (L1) can be offered the chance to match L1. If they do, they can win up to 25 per cent of the order quantity.

Significant progress in bilateral ties: Anand

The issue of visas, and access to destinations like Canada for education and job opportunities, is important for India. How does Canada position itself towards Indians who want to live, work or study there?

The people-to-people ties between India and Canada are strong. Students form one facet of that broader relationship, but part of the drivers of this relationship being renewed is the people-to-people ties and students are included in that. Universities across our country are partnering with India, Indian universities and firms... We have Canadian universities that have a presence and are seeking a greater presence in India, and we are fully supportive of that. In terms of the broader visa question, of course that rests with the Minister of Immigration, but I will say that we very much value the educational connection between our two countries.

From your experiences about India, what do you think has changed in the country over the years?

India is an economic powerhouse, a $4 trillion-dollar economy, sixth-largest economy in the world, and as we double non-US trade over the next 10 years, as we diversify our trading partners, India is a large part of that strategy.

In Davos earlier this year, PM Carney talked about rules-based order in the world. Both India and Canada are facing challenges from their neighbours — the US and China. How do India and Canada cooperate in maintaining the rules-based order in the face of these challenges?

Going back to the Davos speech, essentially, what PM Carney was saying is that the traditional set of rules upon which the global economy and the broader international order were founded have dissipated, have disappeared, and as middle powers, we can stand by and watch, or we can take a leading role in forming the new international order, which is being developed as we speak. Canada feels that it has a role to play internationally, bringing other middle powers together on issues that relate to national sovereignty and resilience, whether it is Arctic security, maritime security, Ukraine, information systems and information technology, those are issues that strategically matter for individual countries. There are also issues on which countries can cooperate in order to further their strategic autonomy.

On the war in Ukraine, India has initiated a proposal for a partial ceasefire in the Black Sea area, keeping in mind food security. How do you see this evolution of India from being an advocate for peace to actually taking some steps?

Canada is very keen to play a role as well as in ensuring that we bring parties to the table. I've spoken with Minister Jaishankar about the Black Sea ceasefire proposal, have spoken with Ukrainian Foreign Minister Andrii Sybiha, and have been trying to ensure that Canada supports this process as much as possible. The stability of supply chains in agriculture and agri-food is of fundamental importance, including in the Black Sea. When you think about Ukraine's dominance in agriculture, in wheat farming, the rest of the world needs those exports to continue.

The situation in the Strait of Hormuz has put pressure on energy security. How can India and Canada cooperate to reduce this energy insecurity?

Fundamentally, we need to continue to support the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea and the concept of freely navigable waterways. In addition, we need to call out and condemn the Iranian retaliatory attacks in and around the Strait of Hormuz, and finally, we need to ensure that we're working with Gulf countries to support them. Their economic welfare and livelihood is deeply connected with a navigable Strait of Hormuz, and so Canada, as an energy superpower, will continue to do whatever we can in that respect. At the beginning of the war, we put forward 23.6 million barrels of oil in order to stabilise energy supplies, and we'll continue to do this type of work in support of a freely navigable Strait of Hormuz and the supply chains that are negatively affected.

PM Carney is being talked about as a possible chief guest for the Republic Day celebrations next year. How do you see this development, especially from where the relationship was three years ago.

January 26 is a very important date for the Republic of India. I know that PM Carney is looking forward to welcoming PM Modi in Canada in December. In terms of his schedule after that, those decisions are with his office. But I know that the two leaders spoke yesterday. Their relationship is strong, and it is an honour to be able to have this conversation with you on behalf of our country.

Inside ex-CMD firm: No assets, locked office in Hyderabad

The office space itself, measuring 1,050 square feet, was leased in April 2026, documents filed with the Registrar of Companies (RoC) show. In June, the registered address shifted to Kushaiguda from the location listed at the time of incorporation: a flat in Patel's Mani Residency, Yapral Medchal Malkajgiri, Jawahar Nagar, Hyderabad.

The Jawahar Nagar flat is listed as the address of both Mishra and Shambhavi, too, in RoC records. The Indian Express reached the flat and found it was vacant. A guard at the residential complex's entry gate said "renovation work is being done".

It was not just the company's address that shifted. Records show its shareholding pattern changed, too, shortly before Mishra's appointment as Member (Technical) at the Kolkata bench of the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT). Till January 2025, Mishra and Shambhavi held 50 per cent each of the company's shares. Subsequently, Mishra transferred his shareholding to his wife and another individual identified as Kaushiki Nandan Vatsyayana. Shambhavi currently holds 95 per cent and Vatsyayana five per cent.

Ties to other BDL-linked firms

The company's balance sheet for much of the same period tells a separate story. According to the last available balance sheet for 2024-25, the company's revenue stood at Rs 44.43 lakh with a profit of Rs 2.89 lakh. All of it has been shown as revenue from services provided. The company has listed no property, manufacturing plant or other assets.

The balance sheet shows receivables totalling Rs 7.16 lakh from two other companies, Premier Explosives Ltd (Rs 2.36 lakh) and Tonbo Imaging India Pvt Ltd (Rs 4.80 lakh), indicating business transactions with the two firms.

Premier Explosives's annual report for 2019-20 shows that it received orders from BDL for supplying solid propellants, or fuel mixtures, for missiles such as Akash and Astra. Incidentally, Mishra took charge as BDL CMD in March 2019, according to BDL's annual report for 2019-20.

Company sources in Tonbo Imaging India said BDL was a client but denied any connection with the PSU's latest tender for optical sights. The sources also confirmed that Aindri had provided consultancy services to Tonbo for "around 12 months", without specifying the period.

Aindri Defence Advisory and Premier Explosives did not respond to requests for comment from The Indian Express. Arvind Lakshmikumar, Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Tonbo Imaging India, said in an emailed response that the company cannot comment on any business relationship beyond what is in the public domain.

From engineering to defence

Mishra's own career runs deep in defence. His nearly four-decade career spanned the Indian Navy and programmes related to atomic energy, space and missile development. Commissioned into the Navy's electrical branch in 1985, he took premature retirement in 2016, while serving as a Commodore, and later served at central PSU Electronics Corporation of India Ltd as General Manager (Defence) till 2019.

Mishra received his early education in UP's Gorakhpur. His academic qualifications include a BTech in Electrical Engineering, an MSc in Defence Studies and a Master of Management Science.

He is also an alumnus of the Naval College of Engineering in Lonavala.

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 14

THE SUPREME Court on Thursday is set to hear Rahul Gandhi vs Election Commission of India, the lead writ petition filed by INDIA bloc leaders, challenging the alleged "unilateral and arbitrary exercise of the collective powers" of the poll agency in conducting the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls.

A bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, Justices Joymalya Bagchi and V Mohana will hear the plea along with the other batch of petitions relating to the protests against CEC Gyanesh Kumar.

The petition alleges that the CEC exercised the Commission's collective powers without the knowledge, approval or concurrence of the other Election Commissioners. It also points to the absence of a recorded decision of the Commission authorising the nationwide SIR, and alleges that the statutory Form 6 was modified without amending the applicable Rules.

The petitioners further raise concerns over what they describe as the "centralised and opaque functioning" of the ECINET and ERONET electoral-roll databases. They allege large-scale exclusion of electors without adequate notice, hearing, or an effective mechanism for restoration.

The petition asks the court to constitute an independent committee headed by a retired Supreme Court judge, assisted by technical experts and other citizens of eminence, to conduct within a fixed time an independent audit of the deletions and modifications made during the SIR.

The petitioners further seek a direction to the EC to publish, booth-wise, the names of all electors deleted during the exercise, along with reasons for each deletion and a breakdown by gender and age. Additionally, they have sought an interim direction suspending the ongoing SIR across the States, pending adjudication of the issues raised in the petition.

Form 6

The CJI noted that the main petition was fixed for hearing on October 30 and said the court would advance it to October 28 and take up this application too.

As Bhushan pointed out that October 30 is the last date for filing claims and objections under the SIR, the bench sought to reassure him that it would pass orders to address the situation.

"We are thinking of passing an order that will take care of it," the CJI said.

The petition and the application have been filed by activists Anjali Bhardwaj and Amrita Johri.

The main petition says the EC failed to adequately disclose the names of electors issued notices during the SIR in Delhi, and the specific reasons for these notices.

On September 22, the SC had observed that the notices seemed to have been issued "mechanically" to "doubtful" voters, and asked the EC to see if some additional filters needed to be put in place to further refine the process.

Meanwhile, the court is set to take up on Thursday a clutch of petitions challenging the restrictions placed in and around the Capital on October 10 in the wake of protests by the CJP against Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar.

world in the semiconductor sector.

The experts said while India cannot aspire to be a leader across the semiconductor ecosystem by the 2047 deadline, the country must strive for leadership in some domains in the ecosystem to be taken seriously as a global strategic power.

Dr Anesh Sharma, Director of DRDO's Solid State Physics Lab, said, "We should try to be a leader in some domain so that if we have something powerful to give to some other country, they will also listen to us. So, it's some kind of a give and take, otherwise today we do not have any expertise in terms of fabrication or materials or products in the semiconductor part."

While the US dominates the sector with advanced chip design capabilities, automation, system architectures and intellectual property rights, the manufacturing foundries are in Taiwan and South Korea, while Japan, Europe and the Netherlands have critical infrastructure for production of wafers, chemicals and other production aspects. He said China has maturity in node fabrication (the dimensions used in the fabrication of semiconductor devices).

Sharma said India should strive to be relevant in the semiconductor sector by 2047, aiming for leadership in manufacturing of two nanometer chips, 3D structures with at least two foundries that are among the top 10 in the world "so we can contribute at least 20% in the very high, top niche kind of technology". "These technologies are denied, we do not get them from other countries. We need to focus on these technologies so that we have strategic relevance in the future for the country's requirements," he said.

"The vision we have for the semiconductor mission now is not only fabrication. When we talk about the total ecosystem, we need to start independence from the materials itself. If the materials for these technologies are still coming from outside, we will not be able to get technology independence," Sharma said.

Among futuristic domains identified by DRDO for India to establish early intellectual property leadership "because these are the domains in which we have started already" are quantum computing and photonic integrated circuits and neuromorphic computing, he said.

Dr Anupam Sharma, DRDO DG for Technology Management, said, "...Without significant research advancements, India will be unable to fight or win future technological conflicts," he said.

Goyal

changes in political thinking in the two countries.

The two ministers were responding to questions during different panel discussions at the Bloomberg New Economy Forum in New Delhi.

On China, Goyal said, "We are open to all countries around the world as long as we get a fair deal, as long as we ensure a continuity in the engagement, and as long as the geopolitical situation does not deteriorate. I think we had some concerns in the past. We are working to develop relations with China once again, but the last word has not yet been scripted on this journey."

Jaishankar said, "We also have very major economic issues with China. If you look today at the trade balance, it is completely tilted (towards China)... The tilt is extremely one-sided, and in many sectors where we have done well with the rest of the world, we have not had market access. We have not had a successful business operation for that sector in China."

"We do believe today that we are not getting a level playing field in China in the manner in which we have given a level playing field to them," he said.

Ties between India and China have been strained for the last six years due to the military standoff along the Line of Actual Control. But the two countries have been making efforts to repair ties following the rapprochement in the last two years and also because of the economic imperatives due to US tariffs. PM Narendra Modi and President Xi Jinping met on the sidelines of the BRICS summit in New Delhi last month.

On India-US ties, Jaishankar said the core fundamentals of the bilateral strategic partnership remain unchanged.

On Tuesday, responding to a question on the trade negotiations, he said, "I think we are waiting on a few things. I wouldn't be comfortable spilling the beans in public."

He said Goyal and the US Trade Representative (USTR) and other officials have been engaged in talks to move forward on the bilateral trade pact.

"When countries negotiate with an economy like the United States, obviously one part of it is what you work out between yourselves and the US, and one part of it is how do you fare vis-a-vis competitive economies. And that part of it is not entirely clear because not everybody has worked out a deal. I think people, the trade ministers, USTR there, and our Commerce and Industry Minister are working on that. They are ironing it out. My sense is that this is an issue which is heading towards a landing point," he said.

Jaishankar also outlined Washington's new approach on economic engagement. "The US has a fundamentally different approach to the use of tariffs. But even that is a symptom of something else. The US is determined to re-industrialise and to reset the terms of access to its economy," he said. "That's what the whole tariff debate is about. And the two are connected: access to the American economy and the re-industrialisation of America. Therefore, what is happening is every significant economy is getting into a negotiation with the United States on this issue. We are not alone in this. In our case, we are pretty far advanced in that process of negotiation."

Jaishankar also said that the US is revising the terms of its alliances and treaty relationships, and that the sentiment is most strongly being felt in Europe, and to some extent, in some countries in East Asia. "We have many issues we are working on with the United States, but we don't have an issue of the terms of alliance because we are not officially an ally. We are a country which has a strong strategic partnership with the US, but a strategic partnership is a partnership. It's not an alliance," he said.

"In our case, for the last 20-odd years, we have worked out what we felt were convergences, overlaps, shared common interests with the US, and we had agreed that we would pursue that. I don't think that has fundamentally changed," he said.

Goyal said the India-US bilateral relationship goes beyond trade and encompasses defence, technology, critical minerals and people-to-people ties. "Of course, it is already very good. I don't see any problem as we speak. And to my mind, the relationship with the US that India enjoys is very substantive, very consequential for the world, being two large democracies."

"It's not only about trade... They are our largest trading partner and, I think, will continue to be in the years to come. And by and large, I don't see any problem in any agreements also with the US," he said. "It's about trade, it's about defence partnership, it's our technology partnership, it's our critical minerals partnership, it's our people-to-people engagement," he said.

"The US and India have a very, very consequential relationship and it's only going to get better irrespective of changes in political thinking, whether in India or in the US. The relationship draws its strength from our economic imperatives, from our political imperatives, from our security imperatives. So it's a very safe relationship. I don't think the rest of the world needs to worry about it," Goyal said.

Congress

security lockdown and police crackdown — an estimated 7,000 people were detained across the city — ensured the protest could not take place the way it was planned. The Congress's assessment was that the CJP could not mobilise a huge number of people, unlike the earlier Jantar Mantar protests in June-July.

The first signal of a shift in the Congress approach came from Gandhi himself on Monday when he, while addressing a press conference, said "all protests (against the CEC) are part of just one protest".

"There are no parallel protests, there is one protest... We do not care who you are, which formation you come from... If you are protecting the Constitution, as we are... we are with you, we will support you, we will help you, we will protect you. And, we expect the same from you. This is an expression of our love for the Indian people," Gandhi said before leading a massive street protest.

The CJP stayed away from the INDIA bloc march to the top court Monday. The assessment of the Congress leadership was that Monday's protest was a success in terms of mobilisation.

On Tuesday morning, the Congress decided to reach out to the CJP and invite its leaders to the high tea hosted by Gandhi. Sources said the Congress urged lawyer-activist Prashant Bhushan to play the role of intermediary and reach out to Dipke.

Sources close to Bhushan said a request from the Congress to reach out had indeed come, but Dipke was in Maharashtra and senior CJP leaders including Ashutosh Ranka, Saurav Das and Ajinkya Shinde were in police custody for staging a flash protest at Jantar Mantar.

Sources in Congress, however, claimed contact was made but Dipke was not enthusiastic.

On Wednesday, Gandhi condemned the arrest of CJP leaders, sending out yet another signal. "Waving the Tricolour at Jantar Mantar in a peaceful protest is not a crime. Jailing youth for it is an act of cowardice... Different banners, one cause. All protests are one: citizens demanding their constitutional rights. Jantar Mantar belongs to the people of India. We will reclaim it," he posted on X.

"Thank you, LoP @RahulGandhi sir, for speaking out against the illegal arrest of @AshutoshRanka & @Saurav-Dassss," Dipke replied.

In a video message posted on social media, Dipke asked "those who love the Tricolour" to gather at Central Park in Delhi's Connaught Place at 5 pm Friday (October 16). He appealed to them to carry the national flag, and called for "Tiranga marches" in other cities as well.

Delhi Cabinet gives Rs 1,000-crore boost to industrial development

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 14

THE DELHI Cabinet on Tuesday approved the Delhi Industrial Policy 2026, a 10-year roadmap aimed at attracting investment, modernising existing industries and generating employment through a focus on clean, technology-driven and knowledge-based sectors, the government said.

According to officials, the policy provides for an allocation of Rs 1,000 crore for the Mukhyamantri Udyamshree Yojana from 2026-27 to 2030-31, to promote industrial development and create employment opportunities. The government has identified 10 priority sectors, including information technology, Global Capability Centres (GCCs), data centres, healthcare, research and development, urban logistics, circular economy, precision manufacturing, skill development and technological modernisation of micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs).

Chief Minister Rekha Gupta, in a statement on Wednesday, said the policy seeks to position Delhi as a hub for advanced technology, specialised services and modern manufacturing while encouraging investment in non-polluting, high-value industries.

Under the policy, businesses will be eligible for sector-specific incentives covering capital investment, office rentals, recruitment, research, certification, technological upgrades, energy conservation and skill development. The government has also proposed higher incentive ceilings for women-led enterprises across priority sectors.

In the IT and digital services sector, eligible businesses will receive incentives of up to Rs 10 crore for digital infrastructure investment, with the ceiling rising to Rs 12 crore for women-led enterprises. The policy also provides rental assistance, support for bandwidth and cloud services, and incentives for new recruitment.

For Global Capability Centres, the investment incentive ceiling has been set at Rs 50 crore, and Rs 60 crore for women-led enterprises. The sector will also receive assistance for research and development, certification and workspace development. Data centres, meanwhile, will be eligible for incentives on capital investment, water-efficient cooling systems and data security-related expenditure.

The healthcare sector will get incentives of up to Rs 10 crore for eligible capital investments. Hospitals with 1,000 or more beds are eligible for assistance of up to Rs 100 crore. The policy also provides support for healthcare certifications and the recruitment of specialist doctors.

For MSMEs, the government has proposed incentives of up to Rs 5 crore for technological modernisation, with the limit increased to Rs 7 crore for women-led enterprises. Additional assistance will be available for improving energy efficiency, installing rooftop solar systems and supporting apprentices.

The policy also seeks to encourage recycling, organic waste processing and e-waste management, while promoting precision manufacturing and industry-linked skill development.

To facilitate investment, Invest Delhi will function as a dedicated agency and single point of contact for investors, guiding them through site selection, approvals, incentive disbursal and grievance redressal. The process will be supported by the Delhi Udyog Mitra Portal, with the government aiming to make clearances simpler, faster and more transparent.

The policy also envisages the redevelopment of industrial areas and modernisation of existing industrial units. The government plans to leverage Delhi's corporate headquarters, educational institutions, research centres, skilled workforce and proximity to major markets to strengthen its industrial ecosystem.

Gupta said the policy would help create a more investment-friendly environment, expand opportunities for young people and women, and steer Delhi towards a cleaner, more modern and knowledge-based industrial economy over the next decade.

Soon, special SIR camps in Gautam Buddha Nagar

Drishti Jain
Noida, October 14

SPECIAL SUMMARY Revision Camps will be held in Gautam Buddha Nagar on October 17 and 24, with a special focus on eligible voters who have been left out after the final electoral roll was published on April 10 following a Special Intensive Revision exercise in Uttar Pradesh.

This follows a direction from the state's Chief Electoral Officer that such camps be conducted. Booth Level Officers (BLO) have to be present at each polling booth from 10 am to 4pm on both the days.

On Wednesday, election officers in the district met supervisors, asking them to immediately coordinate with the BLO's in their respective areas and inform them that new voters now being added to the electoral roll under special circumstances are no longer required to provide information related to the SIR.

This comes amidst an ongoing row over the alleged irregularities in the SIR exercise involving deletion of over the 13 crore names from the draft rolls in 30 states and Union Territories. An investigative report, published by T*he Indian Express* on September 23, pointed to an internal rift within the Election Commission.

The camps will be held on October 17 and 24. The final electoral roll for Uttar Pradesh was published on April 10. FILE

This newspaper also reported that the Election Commission directed the 20 states and Union Territories where the exercise had concluded to run a "special drive" to enrol voters "left out" of the rolls.

While 2.05 crore names were struck off following the 166-day SIR exercise in UP, roughly 3.6 lakh from Gautam Buddha Nagar did not make it to the final electoral roll, while the draft had 4.4 lakh voters removed.

"A sufficient number of Form-6s will be available for new voter registrations, and applicants must attach their latest photograph, date of birth, and proof of address with the form," said an officer.

The officer added that the focus will also be on first-time voters, and that all Indian citizens born before January 1, 2009, and aged 18 years and above, should be included on a priority basis. The focus will also be on women, while physical verification of voters aged 80, and details of third-gender citizens will be recorded or appropriately marked.

"Whenever a person fills out Form 6, it is added to the local BLO's cart on the app," a BLO said on Wednesday.

CJP acting like AAP's 'B party': CM

Alok Singh
New Delhi, October 14

CM Rekha Gupta questioned why Cockroach Janta Party is not protesting against the drug menace in Punjab. She also accused AAP, Congress and other Opposition parties of troubling, calling them 'dharna kings'

DELHI CHIEF Minister Rekha Gupta Wednesday accused the Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) of acting as the "B party" of the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP), questioning why its members had not gone to Punjab amid concerns over the drug menace in the state.

She also accused the AAP, Congress and other Opposition parties of troubling Delhi through protests and sit-ins, calling them "dharna kings" who are unable to see a bright future for themselves in politics.

Gupta said the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls was not being conducted for the first time in the country. "Delhi witnessed an SIR in 2002. There was a Congress government at the Centre at the time. Yet, was Congress able to win even a single seat in Delhi after 2015? Was SIR the reason for that? The public has completely rejected Congress, and that is the reason for these parties' resentment," she said.

Gupta was addressing a press conference alongside Cabinet Ministers Parvesh Sahib Singh and Ashish Sood to mark Prime Minister Narendra Modi completing 25 years in public life.

She also questioned the AAP over its opposition to the SIR, saying the party had not raised objections when it came to power in Delhi following the previous revision exercise but had now resorted to protests after losing public support.

"Why isn't your focus on Punjab? Just yesterday, a murder took place in the state. Drug rackets are operating there. Why is the CJP not going there? The CJP is working as AAP's B party and pursuing only its agenda," Gupta said.

She also accused the Congress of claiming a sense of entitlement over political developments in the country. "SIR is also taking place in states such as Tamil Nadu and Kerala, where you have governments. You remember SIR only where your parties have failed to form the government," she said.

"These parties are troubling the nation, misleading the public, and creating difficulties for the entire country to serve their political agenda.

"Today, Delhi has suffered losses worth crores of rupees. Traders and the general public are facing immense hardship because of their sit-ins," the Chief Minister said.

Meanwhile, Gupta thanked Prime Minister Modi for extending support to Delhi over the years and for ensuring the implementation of Central government schemes aimed at the welfare of the people of the national capital.

Sophiya Mathew
New Delhi, October 14

A dharna by the college staff association members entered its 22nd day on Wednesday.

ESCALATING A nearly month-long protest, the Hindu College Staff Association (HCSA) has accused the college administration of violating the 20% cap on supernumerary seats in Sports and Extra-Curricular Activities (ECA) admissions, bypassing the elected Staff Council and setting up parallel committees to weaken internal accountability.

Addressing mediapersons on Wednesday, HCSA president Dr Ratan Lal criticised the administration for taking disciplinary action against faculty members and issuing them show-cause notices.

Directing his remarks at the administration, he said, "You committed the wrong, and when we raised the issue, you claim it brought disrepute. No, Hindu College is a public institution funded by taxpayers and open to public scrutiny... raising our voice against irregularity and injustice is our constitutional right."

Staff Council secretary Prof Chandrachur Singh alleged that administrative decisions were taken bypassing elected bodies.

"Staff Council in colleges is a statutory body, a legislative body, and the administration and academic governance of the college run through the framework created by the university... The Staff Council has been bypassed for years. In the last 10 years, barely five-six meetings have been held. Emergency meetings are called with emergency agendas and pushed through under the pretext of urgency," he said.

Commerce Professor Dr Poonam Saji said, "Today is our 22nd day of the dharna... I want to speak on two issues: caste and gender insensitivity... We are seeing caste and gender insensitivity in a college ranked number one in NIRF (National Institutional Ranking Framework)... Hearing the issues shared by students made us question if this is the true state of a top-ranked institution."

Ratan Lal alleged that corporate influence on campus had increased, with buildings and staff rooms being named after corporate entities. "Years later, new generations will think this is a corporate-named entity. This will not stand. Hindu College is a public institution, and attempts to privatise it must be resisted," he said.

Responding to the allegations of admission irregularities, Principal Anju Srivastava had said that admissions were handled centrally by DU.

Speaking to The Indian Express, Srivastava said DU determines students' eligibility, college allocation, and subject preferences. Applications were processed through Central Admission Committee and approved by the Principal before students paid fees, leaving the Principal with no direct discretionary role in admission.

According to officials, DU has attributed the excess allocation of supernumerary seats in popular courses to an inadvertent programming error in its central admission algorithm.

The protest has received support from political leaders, including Rajya Sabha MP Prof Manoj Jha and Lok Sabha MP Sudhakar Singh, who visited the campus earlier this month.

Also, HCSA representatives have briefed leaders of the Parliamentary Committee on the Welfare of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, Faggan Singh Kulaste and P Wilson, about the administrative conduct.

In 3 weeks, over 77k households enrol for rooftop solar scheme

Devansh Mittal
New Delhi, October 14

MORE THAN 77,000 households have registered for Delhi's rooftop solar scheme since its launch over three weeks ago, officials said on Wednesday, crossing one-third of the government's target to install 2.3 lakh solar power units in the city by March 31 next year.

This marks a significant increase in interest in rooftop solar installations in the Capital, which had only witnessed 29,718 solar connections installed by BSES and Tata Power – with a combined capacity of 472 Mwp (Megawatt-peak) – before the scheme was launched.

Since September 21, 77,614 applications have been received on the portal. The highest number of registrations, 27,197, came from areas served by BSES Yamuna Power Limited (BYPL), which covers East and Central Delhi.

Tata Power Delhi Distribution Ltd, which serves North and Northwest Delhi, received 26,788 applications, while BSES Rajdhani Power Ltd, covering South and West Delhi, recorded 23,925 registrations.

Power Minister Ashish Sood said the response, particularly in rural areas and unauthorised colonies, showed growing interest in rooftop solar installations.

Das, Ranka in Tihar; Dipke calls CP gathering tomorrow

Urges people to arrive at 5 pm, says 'waving Tiranga not a crime'

COCKROACH JANTA Party (CJP) founder Abhijeet Dipke on Wednesday gave a call for people to assemble at Connaught Place to demonstrate that "waving a Tiranga is not a crime".

Earlier in the day, a special executive magistrate had sent CJP leaders Saurav Das and Ashutosh Ranka to Tihar Jail after they, along with their colleague Ajinkya Shinde, were placed under preventive arrest. The three men were part of a group of 14 CJP members who had allegedly breached security and entered the Jantar Mantar protest site on Tuesday morning, and managed to raise the Tricolour before they were overpowered and detained by police.

In a video message posted on social media on Wednesday evening, Dipke appealed to all "patriots and those who love the Tricolour" to gather at Central Park in CP at 5 pm on Friday (October 16). He asked them to carry the national flag with them, and called for "Tiranga marches" in other cities as well.

"Those who cannot come to Delhi should organise a Tiranga March in their cities and tell these dictators that our Tricolour is our pride and that waving it is not a crime," Dipke said.

He added that he too might be arrested and sent to jail after the assembly on Friday, but that would not deter him.

Delhi Police said no permission had been sought for the assembly at Central Park. With prohibitory orders under Section 163 of the BNSS in force, chances of the CJP securing permission for the gathering appeared slim.

On Monday, police had denotified the Jantar Mantar area as a protest site and named three alternative locations where protesters could gather.

Dipke, Ranka, and Das had been detained earlier on October 10 after they arrived in Delhi from Mumbai for the CJP's planned march to Jantar Mantar that day.

They were released on personal bonds of Rs 50,000 each, with the condition that they would not engage in breach of peace for a year. Dipke had subsequently flown to his home in Maharashtra following a bereavement in his family.

Police officers said Wednesday that Ranka and Das had made repeated attempts to disturb public peace and violate the law by entering the denotified protest area without permission.

The group of 14 had allegedly reached Jantar Mantar using the narrow lane behind the JD(U) office, and climbed over a locked iron gate. They had allegedly surveyed the area on Monday night to identify a way into the heavily barricaded and guarded site.

"On October 13, Saurav Das, Ashutosh Ranka, Ajinkya Shinde and 11 other members of CJP reached Jantar Mantar, which has been denotified as designated protest site, by trespassing through private premises," police said in a statement.

They allegedly jostled with officers who tried to stop them, obstructing police personnel in their duties. Two separate cases were registered against the CJP group. Sections of disobedience of an order given by a public servant, house trespass, and criminal conspiracy, were invoked against them.

"In view of their alleged repeated attempts to disturb public peace and violate the law, Ashutosh Ranka, Saurav Das and Ajinkya Shinde were arrested under the relevant preventive provisions of law. Their alleged attempts to instigate others through social media to engage in similar unlawful activities were also taken into consideration," police said.

Das, Ranka, and Sinde were produced before the magistrate's court at Mandir Marg, which sent Ranka and Das to five days' judicial custody "for repeated violations of law and serious apprehension that if released on bail, they will again violate the law and instigate others," police said.

Shinde was released on a bail bond of Rs 5,000 and on the condition that for one year, he would not participate in any activity that would breach peace.

THE THREE NEW PROTEST SITES

Overgrown grass, ongoing Ramlila events and fear of loss of livelihood raise questions about Delhi's three new protest sites after Jantar Mantar was denotified. MISHAL MUSSADDIQUE reports.

Three Ramlila events are at present underway at CBD ground full of waste and debris. GAJENDRA YADAV

CBD GROUND: WASTE PILES & RAMLILA BOOKINGS

Tall grass and bushes cover large stretches of CBD Ground in Shahdara, with piles of waste lying along its edges. At another end, preparations for Ramlila events are underway, raising questions about the ground's readiness to host protests.

This is one of the three alternative sites – the others are Burari Ground and Ramlila Maidan – alloted by the Delhi Police after Jantar Mantar was denotified as a designated protest site in the city.

An official of Shanghai Tunnelling Project Engineering Co, a third party company that worked for the National Capital Region Transport Corporation (NCRTC), said the ground — located around 12 km from Jantar Mantar — was clean and well-maintained when the corporation handed it over to the Delhi Development Authority (DDA).

"The lack of maintenance by the DDA has made the area like this," the official said, pointing to the overgrowth and waste. The official warned that protests and police barricades could disrupt traffic in this commercial area, inconveniencing residents and commuters.

An organiser said three Ramlila events were underway at the ground, drawing nearly 5,000 people daily. "The venue is booked until next month. It is unlikely that protests could be held there during this period," he added.

Malls, wedding halls and a village nearby could add to congestion if large numbers of protesters arrived, he further said.

At Ramlila Maidan, the next available dates for booking this year is between December 29 and 31. GAJENDRA YADAV

RAMLILA MAIDAN: FEAR OF LOSS OF LIVELIHOOD

A fleet of buses carrying Rapid Action Force personnel was parked at Ramlila Maidan, while a large Ramlila venue with colourful stages, stalls and a ferris wheel stood across from it.

The ground is around 4 km from Jantar Mantar, making it the closest of the three alternative sites.

Sitting on a chair opposite the venue, Om Bhansal, a contractor who has worked in the area for 20 years, said, " Before Jantar Mantar, this was where everyone gathered. The ground had hosted several major agitations, including the 1975 rally against Indira Gandhi, Anna Hazare's anti-corruption movement, the anti-CAA protests and the farmers' protest."

"So, residents and shopkeepers are used to the protests. It's nothing new," he added.

Gyan Singh, a rickshaw driver who has worked in the area for 15 years, was less sanguine. "We don't get many rides as it is. If protests begin here, the roads will be closed, and we won't be able to make a living," he said.

While the ground has a long history of hosting protests, road closures and diversions could affect people whose livelihoods depend on daily traffic, said local residents.

When asked, MCD officials said the ground was next available for booking this year between December 29 and 31.

BURARI GROUND: 'WILL PEOPLE TRAVEL SO FAR?'

Much of the area was fenced, while the only small blue gate visible was surrounded by construction debris and mounds of sand.

Inside, the athletic track appeared worn out, with stagnant water in several places. Discarded Ganesh idols lay at one end. Despite the ground's size, everyday activities were concentrated in a small section.

Near the ground, people are seen practising riding scooters and motorcycles and children playing cricket.

Keshar, who is from Nepal and has lived in the area for 20 years, said the ground was vast but she feared protests could disrupt movement of local residents and her driving lessons.

Niteesh Kumar and Nithin, residents of Burari village who jog at the ground twice daily, said, "We run in the morning and the evening. This ground is big enough to hold a protest and also for people to come here to rest and play or run like us.

"But the main question is: Who is going to come and see? Who will travel this far from the city to hold a protest or witness one?" he asked.

'IMPOSED CURBS ON POLICE INSTRUCTIONS'

DMRC offers SC 'unconditional apology' after contempt notice

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 14

STATING THAT restrictions were imposed on entry and exit at Metro stations on October 10 during protests by the CJP on the instructions of the Delhi Police, the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) told the Supreme Court Wednesday that there was no blanket shutdown and tendered its "unconditional apology" on a contempt notice issued by the top court.

In an affidavit, DMRC Chairperson D Thara said the corporation had complied with the SC's October 9 order "in letter and spirit". On October 9, the SC had directed the Centre to ensure there was no "complete prohibition" on the movement of Metro and other trains coming to Delhi on October 10, saying authorities could not bring everything to a halt.

Maintaining that entry exit restrictions were placed in some stations "pursuant to the assessment of the law enforcement agencies and in accordance with their directions", DMRC said on Wednesday that there was "no curtailment or cancellation of Metro train services" and no reduction in the total number of train trips. A total of 271 trains operated, completing all 4,157 scheduled trips on October 10, it added.

After the October 9 order, which followed petitions challenging the closure of entry and exit gates at 57 Metro stations, the number of affected stations was reduced to 45, the affidavit said. On the Delhi Police's instructions, all these stations were opened by 10 pm on October 10, it added.

The DMRC said this continued until it received another communication from the police on October 12 directing the closure of entry and exit at six stations between 6 am and 4 pm. The restrictions were later extended until 5 pm, it added.

It stated that entry and exit regulations were restricted to only 45 out of the 303 stations, accounting for only 15% of the entire network. "Over 85% of the network (258 stations) remained fully operational, accessible, and functional for commuters."

The DMRC said that 14 key interchange stations continued to provide uninterrupted interchange facilities. It further said that "this reduction may be attributed to the protest, which appears to have prompted a large number of commuters to refrain from travelling and, consequently, from undertaking their usual daily activities..."

It said the "allegation of a complete, blanket shutdown is demonstrably refuted by the petitioner's own admissions in the contempt petition". The affidavit said that passenger movement at sensitive stations such as GTB Nagar and Vishwavidyalaya was regulated rather than completely stopped.

On October 11, the court said the petitioners had made out a prima facie case of contempt and sought a response from the DMRC.

Sohini Ghosh
New Delhi, October 14

DELHI POLICE'S decision to denotify Jantar Mantar as a designated protest site was on Wednesday challenged before the Supreme Court as well as the Delhi High Court.

Both pleas challenge the October 12 notification, through which the Delhi Police denotified Jantar Mantar and designated three alternative protest sites – Burari Ground, Ramlila Ground and CBD Ground.

Before the Delhi HC, Indian Youth Congress (IYC) president Uday Bhanu Chib filed an application challenging the notification in an existing petition against the police's refusal to allow the IYC to protest at Jantar Mantar over alleged irregularities in the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls.

In his original petition, Chib had challenged the broader practice of denying permission to protest at designated sites, arguing that such restrictions were disproportionate and that the police should exercise their powers narrowly, subject to reasonable restrictions.

When the petition came up for hearing Tuesday, the Delhi Police argued that it had become infructuous since Jantar Mantar was no longer a designated protest site. Chib's counsel, senior advocate Siddharth Luthra, termed the move "subterfuge", pointing out that the denotification had come hours after the police sought a deferment of the hearing on October 12.

On October 13, the Delhi Police had told HC that it had denotified Jantar Mantar and identified alternative protest sites in compliance with the SC's October 9 order. The SC had recorded that "suitable alternative sites" for protests "needed to be identified and designated". However, the October 12 notification cited recommendations made by a committee under the Union Ministry of Home Affairs as the basis for the change in venues, without referring to any apex court order.

Meanwhile, advocate Swaty Singh Malik filed a petition in SC, seeking to set aside the October 12 notification. One of the grounds she raised was that the alternative venues are paid grounds, unlike Jantar Mantar. The plea argued that denotifying Jantar Mantar goes against the SC's 2018 ruling in Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan case, which upheld the right to protest at the site subject to regulation.

Pragynesh
New Delhi, October 14

A WOMAN journalist who had accused a Delhi Police officer of alleged sexual harassment and manhandling during a protest on October 3 has now been booked on charges of caste-based discrimination against the same officer. Two other journalists, who also accused the officer, have been booked.

According to police, the case was lodged against the journalists based on Assistant Commissioner of Police (ACP) Vivek Bhagat's complaint.

As per the FIR, Bhagat was deployed at Buta Singh roundabout on October 3 during a protest called by AISA's Neha, demanding the removal of CEC Gyanesh Kumar.

Bhagat, in his complaint, alleged that at about 2.30 pm, a journalist, while pointing out his nameplate, identified his caste, and made caste-based derogatory remarks against him and his appointment as ACP. Bhagat claimed he belongs to the SC community.

In the FIR, he alleged that on the same day, the same journalist alleged sexual assault by him in the crowd, and she, along with five six others, ambushed him. He claimed that later on, multiple posts were made by CJP leaders Abhijeet Dipke, Ashutosh Ranka, Saurav Das and Ratna Singh, labelling him as a sexual predator.

The FIR, registered under the SC/ST Act and sections of obstruction to justice and criminal defamation, names the three journalists as accused.

The Delhi Police has transferred the complaints to the Crime Branch. One of the complainants had alleged that Bhagat touched her inappropriately while she was covering the police action.

Officers had said statements of the women have been recorded and that CCTV footage will be examined.

DCP Neha Yadav had earlier said the protesters were informed about the imposition of Section 163 of BNSS in New Delhi area, under which public gatherings of five or more people are prohibited. She said police personnel on Saturday acted only after the protesters, who were directed to leave the spot, refused to do so.

Earlier this month, the Delhi government had withheld a temporary posting given to Bhagat. The government said Bhagat had requested that he not be given the charge of Additional Deputy Commissioner of Police until the allegations are probed.

GALLERIST FOR WHOM ART WAS ALWAYS FIRST ABOUT THE ARTIST

Peter Nagy, Nature Morte founder who championed Indian contemporary art, dies

Trisha Mukherjee & Anusree KC
New Delhi, October 14

ART COLLECTOR and gallerist Renu Modi fondly recalled a habit that Peter Nagy had: "If he liked a work, he would always come find me and tell me that it's looking lovely."

In a trade that sees fierce rivalry, that small act of grace set him apart, said Modi, founder-director of Delhi's Gallery Espace.

American artist and gallerist Peter Nagy passed away on October 13 after a prolonged illness, Nature Morte, the gallery he founded in Delhi in 1997, said in a statement. Nagy was 67.

"He lived exactly as he chose: fearlessly, irreverently, and wildly free. He had no patience for convention for its own sake and endless patience for ideas, for artists and for the people he loved," the statement said.

Nagy put art before the market — he saw art as a conceptual tool to comment on its own commodification during the art market boom of the 1980s in the US. And when he turned gallerist at the age of 22 by co-founding the original Gallery Nature Morte in New York City's East Village in 1982 with fellow artist Alan Belcher, he continued to put the artist first.

Disillusionment with New York's commercialised art scene prompted Nagy to move to India in 1992. He led a minimalist life, making a livelihood by selling his own paintings.

In 1997, he re-established Nature Morte in Delhi, initially as a roving project with pop-up exhibitions at the India Habitat Centre, and eventually finding a permanent home in Neeti Bagh in 2003.

{ PETER NAGY 1959-2026 }

"He chose to move to India because of the language and because of the artists that he had met in his journeys here and how he had fallen in love with it," Aparajita Jain, who joined Nagy as co-director of Nature Morte in 2013, said.

Under his leadership, Nature Morte, which completed 30 years last month with a new space in Gulmohar Park, represented some of the biggest names in contemporary Indian art, including Subodh Gupta, Bharti Kher, Jitish Kallat, Reena Saini Kallat, Vibha Galhotra, and Sagarika Sundaram. Nature Morte also became the first Indian gallery to be accepted in Art Basel, the largest art fair in the world.

During the Covid-19 pandemic, the gallery moved from Neeti Bagh to Dhan Mill compound in Chhatarpur — a space it gave up earlier this year — with an additional smaller gallery-cum-office in Vasant Vihar.

Together with Jain, he expanded the gallery's footprint with a new space in Mumbai, invested in public art through the Jaipur Sculpture Park, and introduced Indian audiences to renowned international artists, including Alicja Kwade, Jeppe Hein, Richard Long and, most recently, the celebrated Chinese artist Ai Wei Wei.

"Peter Nagy was the first to encourage practices that challenged conventional ideas of what art could be in India," Roshini Vadehra, director of Vadehra Art Gallery, said. "His conviction in the artists he believed in, and his willingness to follow his own instincts, helped shape some of the most significant contemporary art practices here."

Artist Jitish Kallat described Nagy as "a remarkable bridge between the American art world and the emerging contemporary art scene in India in the 1990s".

Honouring Nagy's contribution and wishes, Nature Morte said it would not close in mourning.

"To him, an exhibition was never about the gallery... He believed an artist's moment should never be put on hold, and that the truest way to honour a life given to art is to keep showing it," the gallery said.

CSR Beyond Compliance

With effective planning, transparent implementation & equitable fund allocation, CSR initiatives can deliver greater sustainable impact.

CORPORATE Social Responsibility in India has evolved well beyond voluntary corporate philanthropy. With the introduction of Section 135 of the Companies Act, 2013, India became one of the first countries to establish a statutory framework for corporate social responsibility. Today, it is a significant source of development financing in health, education, livelihoods, sanitation, environmental sustainability and rural development.

The importance of CSR is reflected not only in the quantum of money spent but also in how effectively these resources address social and developmental needs. The statutory framework requires eligible companies to spend at least 2% of their average net profits of the preceding three financial years on CSR activities. It also provides for institutional mechanisms such as a CSR Committee, CSR policy, monitoring and mandatory impact assessments of CSR activities. These frameworks place responsibility on companies not only to meet the prescribed expenditure requirement, but also to demonstrate transparency and accountability in how CSR resources are planned and utilised.

Growth in CSR Spending

The scale of CSR in India has expanded substantially over the past decade. According to the data reported by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, companies recorded CSR expenditure of approximately ?34,909 crore in FY 2023-24, compared with ?10,065 crore in FY 2014-15 highlighting significant channelisation of resources towards social transformation.

The expenditure supported interventions across sectors including education, healthcare, environmental sustainability, livelihood enhancement and rural development. In FY 2024-25, education accounted for approximately Rs.13,877 crore and healthcare for Rs.8,531 crore. Environmental sustainability received around Rs.3,397 crore, while livelihood enhancement projects accounted for approximately Rs.2,548 crore. Rural development projects received around Rs.2,477 crore. Although there has been a considerable growth in CSR spending, expenditure cannot be a measure of tangible social impact. The long-term sustainability of interventions is equally important.

Where is PSU CSR being spent?

PSU CSR brings a distinctive value to India's development landscape because of the scale, geographical reach and institutional presence of public enterprises. Their operations often extend into rural, tribal and resource-rich regions, allowing them to direct resources towards communities that may have limited access to other forms of corporate philanthropy.

The Public Enterprises Survey 2024-25 reports that 183 eligible CPSEs incurred CSR expenditure of Rs.6,437 crore during FY 2024-25, an increase of about 31% over the previous year's Rs.4,915 crore. The leading contributors in FY 2024-25 included ONGC (?929 crore). Indian Oil Corporation, NTPC, Power Grid Corporation of India and Bharat Petroleum Corporation.

CPSEs CSR spending rose 31% to Rs.6,437 crore in FY 2024-25, with major contributions from ONGC, Indian Oil, NTPC and others. The focus remained on healthcare, sanitation, education and skill development, with 60% of allocations directed towards thematic programmes

In light of the DPE's 2018 advisory, CPSEs adopt a theme-based approach, directing 60% of CSR allocations towards thematic programmes with a preference for aspirational districts. In 2024-25, a substantial share of PSU CSR Expenditure was directed towards health, poverty, healthcare, and sanitation, followed by education and skill development, among other sectors.

CSR Beyond Compliance

The Prevailing Challenges

Despite the growth in CSR expenditure, several challenges remain. One persistent challenge is the tendency to undertake projects without adequate planning and needs assessment. When interventions are designed primarily around available funds, organisational priorities, or short implementation timelines, they may not adequately respond to the needs of the communities they are intended to serve.

A related concern is the prevalence of last-minute interventions, particularly towards the end of the financial year. This can result in rushed project selection, limited due diligence of implementing partners, inadequate community consultation and a focus on utilising allocated funds within the stipulated period rather than developing sustainable interventions.

CSR resources can become concentrated in urban areas or locations that are more accessible to companies and implementing organisations, while communities in remote rural, tribal and underserved areas may get neglected. According to the Developmental Intelligence Unit's 2025 report, a large share of the total CSR spending in FY 2022-23 was concentrated in Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, Delhi and Gujarat. However, aspirational districts received less than 20% of the total CSR pool. The Development Intelligence Unit (DIU) reports that many of HURL's CSR interventions on strengthening the local community. What measurable outcomes has HURL observed from these initiatives, and how does the company assess whether such projects are creating sustained improvements in community well-being?

HURL has undertaken CSR interventions across key areas of community development, including Health & Nutrition, Water & Sanitation, Education, Vocational Training & Livelihood, Women Empowerment, Environment and Rural Development, etc. These initiatives are designed to address local needs and contribute to the overall socio-economic well-being of communities around HURL's plant locations. The outcomes of these interventions are assessed through measurable indicators such as the number of beneficiaries covered, access to essential services and facilities, participation in education and skill development programmes, livelihood opportunities created, women beneficiaries supported, and improvement in community infrastructure. HURL also monitors project implementation through periodic progress reports, field visits, beneficiary feedback and review of project outcomes to assess the sustained impact of its CSR initiatives.

Health Category: Project SWASTHYA SATHI, SEHAT SATHI, AAROGYA MITRA, POSHAN, SWASTYHA KIRAN, PICU, Open GYM

Education and Skill Development: Project, AASHIYANA, PRAYAS and SAKSHAM

Environment and Rural Development: Project HARYALI and SURYA KIRAN

"CSR, for HURL, is not just about giving back, it is about creating lasting change. Our endeavour is to empower communities with better health, skills, livelihoods and opportunities, so that every intervention becomes a step towards a more resilient, self-reliant and sustainable future." - Dr. Siba Prasad Mohanty, Managing Director, HURL

How is HURL aligning its vocational training initiatives with local employment opportunities and emerging industry requirements, particularly for young people from nearby communities?

HURL is aligning its vocational training initiatives with local employment opportunities and emerging industry requirements to create sustainable livelihood opportunities for youth and women from nearby communities. Under Project SAKSHAM, HURL has provided vocational training to more than 3,000 underprivileged youth and women across its operating locations, with several programmes currently ongoing.

The courses include training in areas such as the plastic industry and other NSQF-aligned trades, selected based on community needs, local employment potential and industry demand. Along with training, placement support is also being provided, with candidates getting employment opportunities. The focus is to equip local youth with practical, job-oriented skills that can translate into sustainable livelihoods.

How does the company identify the most pressing needs of communities around its plant locations, and how are these priorities translated into its CSR programmes?

HURL maintains regular dialogue with local stakeholders, district authorities, community representatives and implementation partners to understand the key needs and challenges of communities around its plant locations. The feedback and ground-level inputs gathered through these interactions help HURL identify and prioritise areas where its CSR interventions can make a meaningful difference.

These identified priorities are then translated into need-based CSR programmes in areas such as healthcare, education, skill development, livelihood and community infrastructure, ensuring that HURL's CSR interventions remain locally relevant and focused on addressing genuine community needs.

As HURL expands its operations and community outreach, how is the company ensuring that its CSR programmes go beyond one-time interventions towards sustainable, community-led development with greater local participation?

HURL believes that CSR should go beyond one-time interventions and create sustainable, long-term impact for communities. Our focus is therefore on developing programmes that build local capacity, address identified needs and continue to deliver benefits beyond the project period.

We engage with local stakeholders, district administration, community representatives and implementation partners to ensure that interventions are need-based and locally relevant. Through regular monitoring, beneficiary feedback and outcome assessment, HURL seeks to strengthen its programmes and promote greater community participation and ownership. Our aim is to move from one-time assistance towards sustainable solutions that create lasting social value.

Source: Compiled from Public Enterprises Survey 2024-25

these districts are located in Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh, Bihar, Odisha, Madhya Pradesh and the Northeast. This raises questions about whether the distribution of CSR investments adequately reflects the distribution of developmental needs.

Way Forward

To make CSR funding effective, companies should place greater emphasis on preparatory work before expenditure is committed. Companies need to invest adequate time in identifying where resources are required, what interventions are appropriate, who is competent enough to implement them and how progress and impact will be assessed. Needs and impact assessment should not be viewed only as a compliance requirement. Third-party assessment should be conducted for every CSR intervention, enabling companies to understand what is working, identify gaps, and make course corrections.

A paradigm shift is required from short term, standalone projects to integrated, long term development programmes with clearly defined outcomes for an overall upliftment of the community. The work of the JM Financial Foundation in Jamui, Bihar, provides an illustrative example of this approach. Its interventions extend into a region with relatively low CSR penetration and adopt a multi-sectoral strategy spanning health, agriculture, education and livelihoods. By addressing interconnected development needs through sustained engagement, such programmes have contributed to meaningful and lasting improvements in community well-being in Jamui.

Overall, CSR groups can play a greater role in addressing regional disparities by prioritising Aspirational Districts and other underserved rural, tribal and remote areas. The funding need not be concentrated only in areas that are geographically convenient or closer to corporate headquarters and operations. A more needs-based approach can help direct the resources to appropriate communities. This can help CSR evolve from a compliance obligation to an accountable instrument of social development.

Effective CSR requires more than meeting spending targets. Careful planning, community participation and long-term interventions are essential to creating lasting social impact

Mumbai, Jamnagar on Rubio's itinerary for India

Shubhajit Roy
New Delhi, October 14

US SECRETARY of State Marco Rubio will visit India next week — between 20 and 22, as per sources — and is expected to visit Mumbai and Jamnagar during his stay here.

"The Secretary will travel to India for his second official visit this year," US State Department spokesperson said, announcing his October 17-22 travel, which also includes a stop in Samarkand, Uzbekistan

Rubio "will meet with senior government officials to strengthen the US-India strategic partnership, exchange views on regional and global dynamics, and discuss prospects for enhanced energy cooperation," the US State Department said.

Marco Rubio will be in India from October 20-22

The US Secretary of State will also meet with business leaders to promote opportunities for commercial investment and economic cooperation."

Rubio's last visit to Delhi was in May this year for the Quad foreign ministers' meeting. The upcoming visit assumes greater significance given that it is the first since US President Donald Trump signed the Russia sanctions Bill, which empowers the US to levy tariffs up to 100 per cent on Moscow's energy buyers — India being one of them.

In September last week, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar had conveyed India's economic and strategic concerns to Rubio on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly in New York.

India has said that it "remains firmly committed to ensuring energy security for its 1.4 billion people" and warned of "potential implications" for "the bilateral relationship" with the US. The development comes at a time when Delhi and Washington are trying to firm up a bilateral trade deal after months of negotiations.

PM Modi is expected to travel to the US to attend the G20 leaders summit in December. The US will host the 21st G20 Leaders' Summit on December 14-15 in Florida.

As per the US State Department spokesperson, Rubio is expected to participate in the C5+1 Ministerial in Uzbekistan to highlight how strategic cooperation through this diplomatic platform promotes a more peaceful and prosperous future for the United States and the countries of Central Asia.

He will also participate in bilateral engagements with senior officials from all C5 countries — Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and the Kyrgyz Republic.

PM discusses trade, energy, tech with Canada minister

Shubhajit Roy
New Delhi, October 14

PRIME MINISTER Narendra Modi met visiting Canada's Foreign Minister Anita Anand on Wednesday and said that India is committed to building a "constructive and forward-looking strategic partnership" with Canada that delivers "tangible benefits" to the people of both countries.

The meeting took place ahead of Prime Minister Modi's expected visit to Canada in December this year, and the two sides are working to conclude the trade pact, the Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA). He spoke to Canadian PM Mark Carney on Tuesday.

In a post on X, Modi said, "Pleased to meet Canadian Foreign Minister Anita Anand. We had a productive discussion on further strengthening India-Canada ties in trade, technology, security, energy, education and people-to-people exchanges."

"India is committed to building a constructive and forward-looking strategic partnership with Canada that delivers tangible benefits to the people of both countries," he posted.

During the meeting, Modi emphasised the importance of sustaining the momentum in bilateral engagement and translating it into tangible outcomes, including through early conclusion of negotiations on a Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA), a statement from the PMO said.

"They also exchanged views on regional and global developments of mutual interest," it said. Earlier in the day, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar met Anand and said that they "reviewed progress in our ties across trade & investment, education, energy, defence and people-to-people exchanges. Also exchanged views on key regional and global developments."

"Guided by our leadership and sustained engagement across government and industry, we are advancing our Strategic Partnership," it said.

Anand said, "Exactly one year ago in New Delhi, I met with my Indian counterpart @DrSJaishankar to establish a Joint Roadmap for Canada–India relations. Returning today, I am encouraged by how far we have come — from advancing trade negotiations to expanding cooperation on energy, innovation and security. The significance of this relationship lies in what our two countries can achieve together."

"At a time when the international order is undergoing profound change, closer engagement between Canada and India offers an opportunity to shape our future prosperity and contribute to a free, open and prosperous Indo-Pacific," it said.

According to the Canadian High Commission in Delhi, "Minister Anand and Minister Jaishankar discussed the positive momentum in the renewed Canada-India Strategic Partnership, underpinned by sustained high-level engagement between the two countries over the last year.

It also said the ministers welcomed the recent bilateral security dialogue held in India at the National Security Advisor level, where senior officials from both countries reviewed progress in bilateral security and law enforcement cooperation and committed to sustained engagement on security issues of mutual interest.

"The ministers also welcomed efforts to advance negotiations for a comprehensive economic partnership agreement and highlighted the Team Canada Trade Mission led by International Trade Minister Maninder Sidhu as a tangible example of growing economic partnership and expansion of bilateral trade," it said.

"The ministers welcomed upcoming high-level engagements between the two countries to further deepen bilateral ties and agreed to remain in close contact," it said.

DELHI CONFIDENTIAL

'Chilli Mango'

THE SUPREME Court on Wednesday heard a public interest litigation seeking its sober intervention against the sale of fruit-flavoured alcohol in tetra packs. Vipin Nair, counsel for Community Against Drunken Driving, told the bench about a "chilli mango vodka" label with images of real fruit that could mislead consumers. A bench headed by Justice Vikram Nath issued notice and also roped in Solicitor General Tushar Mehta's office to defend the Centre on regulating such sales. The petitioners seemed to be in high spirits, hoping that Mehta, a teetotaller, would anyway be on their side.

Praise, Patience

DIRECTOR GENERAL of the Central Reserve Police Force, Gyanendra Pratap Singh, has sent broadcast messages to the personnel of the force on October 10 and 11, congratulating those on general duty and Rapid Action Force units for their conduct during duty across Delhi, and told them that the same patience and forbearance must continue in the days ahead. After facing criticism in July over the use of pellet guns against Jantar Mantar protesters, Singh had told the troops to act fearlessly and assured them he would take responsibility for their actions, it is learnt.

'No truth in Mamata's attack claims': Kolkata Police Commissioner

Sweety Kumari
Kolkata, October 14

KOLKATA POLICE Commissioner Ajay Kumar Nand on Wednesday dismissed allegations that former West Bengal chief minister Mamata Banerjee was attacked with a knife outside her Kalighat residence on Tuesday, stating that the complaint had "no substance or truth".

The incident allegedly occurred on Tuesday evening as Banerjee stepped out of her Kalighat home to inaugurate the Durga Puja of Kalighat Milan Sangha.

According to eyewitness accounts and initial reports, an individual approached Banerjee as she emerged and verbally abused her and tried to attack her, the TMC had alleged. Security personnel and locals detained the woman at the scene, it was alleged.

A complaint was lodged by Mamata-faction TMC MP Dola Sen. However, after an initial probe, the police commissioner stated, "This is not an attack. She went there to meet her, but it appeared otherwise to the supporters." Nand added that both the woman and her father were acquainted with Banerjee for a long time.

Police had earlier identified the detained individual as 38-year-old Anusuya Saha, of New Alipore.

Sujit Bisoyi
Bhubaneswar, October 14

NEWLY APPOINTED Odisha Governor Braj Mohan Ram's remarks — that he will work to get more votes for the BJP – following his appointment to the constitutional post have stirred a row in the state, with the opposition Biju Janata Dal and Congress on Wednesday raising questions about his impartiality.

Ram, a Dalit leader and a former BJP MP from Jharkhand, was appointed as Odisha Governor on Monday. Speaking to a news agency in Ranchi, Ram said he would work to further activate the BJP's Scheduled Caste (SC) morcha and make efforts to get more votes for the party. The BJP is in power in the state.

"I will see what's the situation there (in Odisha) after assuming charge and I will also activate the SC morcha of the BJP there as well. We also have organisation there (in Odisha)...I will work to activate it and ensure more votes for the BJP," Braj Mohan told PTI in Ranchi on Tuesday.

Ram also thanked Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah for appointing a grassroots leader like him to the post.

"The party recognized the hard work of a common worker like me... Despite not being given ticket, I have sincerely and honestly worked for the organisation... Now a days it happens when a candidate is denied ticket, he/she switches party.. I was denied ticket three times but I remained with the party and helped the BJP candidates to win," he added.

Braj Mohan said to remain with the organisation or with the government is equal for him. Nearly 17 per cent of Odisha's population belongs to the scheduled caste (SC) category.

BJD Rajya Sabha member Santrupt Misra said the remarks indicate the Governor's priorities are clear.

"Whatever his inclination towards constitutional duties may be, such brilliant clarity on his own political perspective is remarkable! Democracy's new definition – prioritising party interests while holding a constitutional post! Truly admirable!" Misra posted on X. "We need exactly such honest and transparent systems! If more Governors like this are appointed, there's no doubt that our democracy will certainly be strengthened!"

Kathmandu, October 14

NEPAL'S PARLIAMENTARY Hearing Committee on Wednesday endorsed the names of proposed ambassadors to 10 countries, including India, according to an official.

The Committee approved Nischal Nath Pandey as the proposed ambassador to India, Kalyan Raj Sharma to China and Chiranjung Thapa to the US, Parliament Secretariat spokesperson Ekram Giri said.

The panel also endorsed the nominees for the UK, Germany, Israel, Oman, South Korea, Spain and Sri Lanka.

The development comes after the Cabinet recommended 13 names for ambassadors to various countries on September 18. The names will now be sent to the respective countries to obtain their agreement before the nominees are formally appointed as Nepal's ambassadors.

Professional courses fee can't be changed midstream: SC

New Delhi: Underlining the need for certainty in fee structures, the Supreme Court on Wednesday ruled that fee payable for professional education through self-financing Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) cannot be changed midstream.

A bench of Justices P S Narasimha and Alok Aradhe said, "The regulatory regime for fixation of fees, as contemplated in the decisions of this Court, AICTE Regulations, National Education Policy, 2020, coupled with principles of certainty, necessitates the relevant authorities to notify fee payable for the entire course before a student takes admission. There must be certainty about the fee liability; variation in the fee payable during the subsistence of the course is permissible only in exceptional instances such as unforeseen increase in the expenditure." Protesting students are India's voice, don't stop them: Rahul

New Delhi, October 14

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi with student protesters during a press conference in New Delhi on Wednesday. TASHI TOBGYAL

LOK SABHA Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday asked Prime Minister Narendra Modi not to stand in the way of protesting students — the "voice of India".

He also reiterated action against all — from the Prime Minister to the police Constable — who acted against students during the recent protests demanding Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar's resignation over alleged irregularities in the SIR exercise.

Rahul made the remarks while he was joined by a group of students, including those from Congress's students wing NSUI, who were injured during the protests.

In a subtle warning to the police personnel, Rahul said: "I also want to tell the police with love that I have asked every student to make videos... as evidence and send them to us. When this entire episode ends, we will get justice and punish those who have beaten up our students, from top to bottom — from Narendra Modi, Amit Shah, Gyanesh Kumar to all the constables."

Some of the students present also spoke about the "inhuman" treatment meted out to them by police personnel during their detention and how they were beaten up.

Some of the student leaders claimed that they sustained injuries as the police personnel hit them even in their private parts and abused them to "teach them a lesson" for taking part in protests.

Rahul also told the students not to worry as the Congress will stand behind them, describing them as the party's "shers" and "shernis" (lions and lionesses).

Introducing a female student, Rahul said, "She was beaten up, but she is not afraid. There is no hatred in her heart."

"Amit ji, please see carefully, they are all together. No one is a Muslim, Hindu, no caste, no gender... They are all together. This is Hindustan," he said.

"This is one voice, that of India, and you are standing before this protest and voice. The Prime Minister is standing before this voice. Amit Shah is standing before this voice. I suggest to the PM that he should not stand before this voice. No one can stand before them," said Rahul.

Later, in a post in Hindi on X, Rahul said, "The day is coming when those who seek to silence the voice of our democracy will face the wrath of law. Be it Narendra Modi, Amit Shah, Gyanesh Kumar, or a common Constable...I want every student and youngster who has endured police brutality or unlawful detention to keep a complete record of it — videos or photos — these will be essential."

"Peaceful protest is your right. We will not allow anyone to snatch it away," he wrote.

Karnataka: SC raps EC for failing to trace 2023 vote count video

New Delhi, October 14

THE SUPREME Court on Wednesday took stern exception to the Election Commission's stand that the video recording of the counting of votes in the 2023 Assembly elections in Karnataka's Sringeri constituency could not be traced in the latter's records.

"Whatever there is, produce by the next date of hearing... Otherwise we will have to draw adverse inference against you. We will not accept these kinds of lame excuses," a bench of Justices Sanjay Kumar and Sanjeev Sachdeva told the Election Commission's counsel.

The bench was hearing an appeal by Congress candidate T D Rajegowda, who had won the election in 2023 by a margin of just 201 votes.

BJP candidate D N Jeevaraj challenged this before the High Court, which, on April 6, ordered a recount of postal ballot votes and re-verification of 279 rejected postal ballots.

Following the recount, Jeevaraj was declared winner on May 3, 2026.

The Congress candidate then approached the SC contending that that the High Court had only ordered the re-verification of 279 rejected postal ballots, but the returning officer illegally reconsidered more postal ballots, which had gone to Jeevaraj.

The court stayed the effect of the recounting and directed that Rajegowda will continue to remain MLA till the matter is decided.

On Wednesday, the bench told the ECI counsel that the Congress MLA wanted to see the observer's report as well as the video recordings of the 2023 vote counting and the recent recounting.

The counsel appearing for ECI, however, said it was unable to find the video of the 2023 counting.

To this, the visibly annoyed bench said, "How can the Election Commission of India (ECI) say that it has lost its record? Your whole purpose is to hold an election, and you need to have a document... There is no custody of records."

The court fixed the matter for hearing next on February 15, 2027.

Express News Service
New Delhi, October 14

LOK SABHA Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday evening reached India Gate to join a sit-in by the parents of Ankita Bhandari, a 19-year-old Uttarakhand woman who was murdered in September 2022.

Rahul was accompanied by Congress MPs Priyanka Gandhi Vadra, Pawan Khera, and other party leaders. Sources said Rahul's office was approached by the victim woman's family after former MP Dushyant Gautam was appointed as Governor of Sikkim on Monday.

In a statement, Rahul said: "Sat down with the family of Ankita Bhandari at India Gate, who were protesting against the appointment of Dushyant Kumar Gautam as Governor of Sikkim."

In a video posted by the Congress party's official X handle, Ankita's father appealed to the President of India to put on hold the appointment of Dushyant Gautam as Governor of Sikkim since the CBI is yet to conclude its probe into his daughter's murder.

The family has alleged that an unidentified VIP was involved in the circumstances leading to Ankita's murder and has named Gautam in its allegations. Gautam has denied any involvement and has initiated defamation proceedings against those accusing him.

Ankita was a receptionist at a resort in Rishikesh and was killed on September 18, 2022, by its manager Pulkit Arya, the son of former BJP leader Vinod Arya, barely 20 days after she took up the job. Her body was found in a canal six days later. The state police's Special Investigation Team (SIT) found that she was being forced to provide sexual services and was killed when she refused to obey.

The protest marks a fresh escalation in a case where three men have already been convicted of her murder.

The main accused, Pulkit Arya, was convicted of murder, sexual harassment, disappearance of evidence, and offences under the provisions of the Immoral Trafficking Act.

In Trump-Putin deal, a message for Europe, India

LESS THAN a month after the Lindsey O Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026 was signed into law by US President Donald Trump, he has struck a deal with Russian President Vladimir Putin to release Russian diesel supplies into global markets. The late senator Lindsey Graham's bill was meant to impose new sanctions and tariffs on countries that buy Russian oil and gas, choking off the revenue that funds the Kremlin's war in Ukraine. Trump's deal does the opposite. It will directly bankroll that war and undermine the international sanctions against Russia already in place. Ostensibly, the President wants to bring diesel prices down "for Americans and, indeed, the World", as he put it in a social media post. But the real motive may not be hard to decipher. Poll after poll shows the Republican Party trailing the Democrats, and with midterm elections less than three weeks away, the likely goal is to placate American voters. The plan may not work. Energy analysts largely agree that the 36 million barrels of Russian diesel covered by the deal won't bring down prices significantly, and many Republicans are pushing back. Trump has also made Ukraine's position more difficult by demanding that Kyiv suspend strikes on Russian oil refineries, a move that would weaken its leverage.

From Trump administration officials such as Scott Bessent and Peter Navarro to the US President himself, India has been at the receiving end of Washington's moral posturing over Russian energy imports. India was not only targeted by the Lindsey Graham Act, but also hit with an additional tariff penalty in August 2025 that prompted Indian refiners to reduce their purchases of Russian crude. Of course, energy security matters to the US. But it matters just as much to India. New Delhi should ask that its energy needs and costs be judged by the same standards as Washington's. Throughout the war, India has maintained that its energy purchases are guided by national interest and the needs of its people. It has also put forward its own proposal to end the war and remained in constant contact with both sides in pursuit of a negotiated settlement.

India is not the only country caught in this web of contradictions. Europe, too, has been left scrambling for a coordinated response. Treasury Secretary Bessent said that the EU has given Russia more money than it has given Ukraine, owing to Europe's dependence on Russian energy. The episode, along with previous summits and offers of investments, also shows that Trump continues to be open to a rapprochement with Putin. For Europe, the lesson is clear: It must strengthen its defence capabilities and reduce its dependence on Russia for hydrocarbons and on the US for security.

Livelihood scheme for women deserves better

THE CENTRE'S decision to let its flagship urban livelihoods scheme lapse without a successor is injudicious and perplexing. This is particularly so given the positive impact that the Deendayal Antyodaya Yojana-National Urban Livelihoods Mission (DAY-NULM) has had on the social and financial empowerment of women. Since its launch in 2014, the scheme has helped create 10.02 lakh self-help groups (SHGs), covering more than one crore women across cities. To risk leaving these beneficiaries adrift for want of continued support would be to betray the promise contained in slogans about women-led development invoked by parties across the spectrum.

Significantly, concerns over funding and the policy vacuum created by the end of NULM in October 2024, cut across party lines. Of the five states that have flagged the issue — Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh and Tripura — only the first two are Opposition-ruled. All five have sought funding to ensure continued support to SHGs and prevent disruption to their access to institutional credit and bank linkages. Addressing these concerns is critical to the larger goals of poverty alleviation and support to women's entrepreneurship. There is ample evidence of SHGs' capacity to advance women's social and economic empowerment — by improving access to credit and skills, building financial literacy and leadership, and increasing self-confidence and mobility. The impact of initiatives such as Didi ki Rasoi and Bank Sakhis under Bihar's JEEViKA scheme shows how such programmes can put money in women's hands while shifting them from dependent household roles to decision-makers. Kerala's Kudumbashree offers an even more expansive model, evolving from credit groups into a network involved in community kitchens, waste collection and training SHGs in other states.

States, too, must do their part. They have found resources for cash-transfer schemes; they must prioritise programmes for women that build enduring economic capacity. SHGs are institutions through which women acquire skills, networks, and a greater say in households and communities. To ensure these gains are sustained, efforts must be directed towards ensuring access to training, mentorship and institutional support. Going forward, it is not enough to expand SHG numbers — investment must also be made in the human resources, infrastructure, credit linkages and market networks that allow them to thrive.

Immortality lessons from Jonathan the tortoise

ACHILLES, KNOWN to be fleet of foot, can never catch up to a tortoise as long as the slow-moving reptile has a head start. For, in every moment that Achilles moves, so does the tortoise. Zeno's 5th-century BCE paradox, like Aesop's fable about the hare and the tortoise a hundred years later, is a nice tale, easily resolved by simple observation, and the fact that motion is not the property of a single, static instant. But a look at Jonathan — the 180-kg giant tortoise who recently turned 194 years old — shows that on a long enough timeline, speed doesn't matter all that much.

In many ways, Jonathan has an ideal and idyllic life. He is the star attraction on the island of St Helena, where he spends much of the day lolling around on the grounds of the governor's mansion. A living heritage site, Jonathan is well fed and watered, and his health is monitored closely. While he shows some signs of ageing, his appetite — for sustenance and procreation — is intact. His hearing is also reportedly pretty good. In the race of life, he has clearly beaten both Achilles and the apocryphal hare.

Jonathan's longevity, though, is coming at a price. Aware of its own mortality, the Homo sapiens is, as always, looking for the fountain of youth. The giant tortoise is being poked and prodded, his DNA studied for clues that could help people live longer and better. Perhaps the frantic search for ways to cheat time misses the point of Jonathan's long life: Take it easy, take it slow.

Citizens' march to defend right to vote sends a message to all institutions

THAROORTHINK
BY SHASHI THAROOR

WHEN TENS of thousands of citizens, Opposition leaders, students, and civil society advocates marched shoulder to shoulder toward the Supreme Court (SC) this Monday, the sight was nothing short of historic. Against a backdrop of police barricades, an excessive deployment of uniformed security personnel aimed at enforcing compliance (but mercifully restrained), and public transit suspensions at six Metro stations, ordinary Indians marched to protect the heartbeat of our republic: The right to vote. Monday's march was not merely a political demonstration; it was a resounding triumph for Indian democracy, proving that when the fundamental architecture of our constitutional rights is threatened, the spirit of our people remains unyielding.

For weeks, I have emphasised a stark truth across my columns, television appearances and public forums: The core issue today is that over 130 million Indian citizens have been arbitrarily deprived of their right to vote and choose their political representatives — with possibly more deletions to follow. To put that figure into perspective, 130 million people is larger than the entire population of Japan, Germany, or the United Kingdom. Stripping that many people of their franchise is not a mere administrative oversight by the Election Commission of India (ECI); it is an existential crisis for a democratic constitutional republic. Franchise is the foundational bridge connecting the individual citizen to the state. When that bridge is broken for over 130 million citizens, popular sovereignty is shattered.

Let me be clear: I am not against cleaning the voter rolls of duplicate, deceased, or ineligible names that genuinely shouldn't be there. Maintaining an accurate electoral roll is a basic requirement of good administration. However, the fundamental legal and constitutional principle of "innocent until proven guilty" must apply to voting rights just as it does to our justice system. You cannot unilaterally deregister citizens and then place the burden on them to prove their eligibility. It should be the other way around; the onus must remain on the state to prove ineligibility through due process before any citizen's name is removed.

How did India's globally admired electoral democracy arrive at this perilous brink? The crisis stems from the hasty implementation of modified rules, a bizarre algorithmic identification of "logical discrepancies" that make no allowance for past clerical errors and typing mistakes, an arbitrary selection of the 2002 electoral register as definitive, an illegal modification of Form 6 and mass filings of Form 7, coupled with an opaque, centralised new software architecture that has systematically crippled local electoral governance.

Under the law, Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) in local communities served as the vital custodians of voter eligibility. Anchored in ground-level realities, EROs were empowered to exercise due diligence, verify residency, and ensure that no legitimate voter was unfairly disenfranchised. But this decentralised system of safeguards was overridden by algorithms and centralised directives, effectively stripping EROs of their authority. As The Indian Express revealed from Goa, decisions that determine whether a citizen retains voting rights are now rendered by centrally administered software, insulated from local scrutiny, the ERO's judgement and natural justice. The new rules and procedures violate the spirit of the Representation of the People Act by allowing mass deletions without rigorous, individual-level notice or ground verification.

> The current Chief Election Commissioner has fundamentally lost the confidence of the primary opposition parties. In the interests of accountability for the maladministration of the SIR, he must resign

This iniquitous exercise must be suspended immediately. A robust democracy cannot endure on the promise of periodic elections alone; its basic strength rests entirely upon a transparent, competitive, and accessible electoral system. Of the 82,000-plus deleted voters whose appeals were heard in Bengal, 91 per cent were found to have been wrongly deleted; but lakhs more appeals are pending and those waiting to be heard were disenfranchised. This erosion becomes existential: When the electoral process is compromised and executive convenience is prioritised over constitutional rights, the democratic framework collapses. When the state systematically deletes voters from the rolls and then undermines the public's right to peaceful popular protest, it cuts off the vital channels through which citizens express their collective will. This is why we must fiercely defend an electoral ecosystem where every eligible citizen's vote is secured and autonomous institutions like the ECI act as impartial guardians of the public rather than handmaidens of the ruling apparatus.

The Opposition mobilisation called for clarity, urgency, and unwavering commitment to constitutional principles. The SIR must be suspended to halt further disenfranchisement; the irrational and legally questionable rules and procedures under modified Forms 6 and 7 must be repealed; the software architecture rewritten so that EROs regain their rightful, statutory role as the ultimate authority on voter eligibility; and a transparent audit undertaken to restore every disenfranchised citizen to the voter rolls. The ECI must reaffirm the core democratic principle that voter eligibility is presumed; the burden of proof must lie on the authorities to justify any removal rather than forcing citizens to re-prove their citizenship and residency. And the SC should review the entire process.

Restoring procedural integrity is only half the battle; institutions require trusted leadership. An electoral umpire must be above suspicion, yet the current Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) has fundamentally lost the confidence of the primary opposition parties. In the interests of accountability for the maladministration of the SIR, he must resign. A compromised CEC who no longer commands trust across the political spectrum cannot credibly preside over the world's largest election system. Once a verified, inclusive electoral roll is in place, and the election process is demonstrably free, fair, and impartially conducted, all parties will honour the results.

Monday's march demonstrated that the conscience of the nation is wide awake. When thousands walked the streets of the Capital, carrying copies of the Constitution and demanding their fundamental rights, they sent an unmistakable message to every institution in the country: Democracy is not a gift bestowed by government decree; it is a right of the people. Until it is restored, the peaceful struggle for our constitutional rights will continue.

DEEPANSHU MOHAN

THE INTERNATIONAL Monetary Fund in its most recent forecast raised India's GDP growth rate to 7 per cent for 2026-27, up from 6.4 per cent in July, suggesting "stronger than expected momentum" for a country that has anchored resilient domestic demand and services-driven sectoral growth. The RBI, too, has pushed India's growth prospects to 7.1 per cent this year while also increasing short-term interest rates amid rising inflation.

This comes against the backdrop of recent quarterly growth data, where the economy was highlighted to be growing at 7.8 per cent in the April-to-June quarter. These appear to be impressive numbers for an emerging market economy (EME).

India's macroeconomic fundamentals so far have withstood a series of shocks, accentuated by the West Asian crisis, which has imposed serious supply-side concerns and imported inflationary risks. Adding to this is a growing, unsustainable pile of accumulated debt and (high) borrowed capital cost for most developing and developed countries, which have fiscally strained (and drained) nations leaving too much in the hands of monetary policy.

India's macro-position in this global climate of chaos appears stable for now, despite a volatile rupee, but doesn't insulate it. Brewing uncertainty may well continue in a geopolitical climate of crisis, creating chaos in financial markets triggered by changing pricing of US bond yield rates, a fragile dollar valuation, and a hyper AI-investment fuelled stock-market bubble, all of which are increasing capital flight risks from EMEs (and other countries), including India.

For India's economy, now entering its most consequential growth quarter fuelled by the demand of the festive season, a few pointers need closer monitoring.

The key macro challenges are clear: Manage inflation, address structural issues behind high unemployment and exacerbating inequality, and make sufficient interventions to allow cheaper capital to flow across sectors for productive growth.

Yet while a growth rate number is suggestive of macro-production activity, it never really tells the full story. One needs to pay attention to the context in which that economic growth happens; its granular diffusion in actual well-being amongst the citizenry (across different groups and classes); the share of productive investment creating good jobs, and the actual share of household demand, all of which is critical, in the evolution of the statistical framework putting the headline number in perspective.

> While a growth rate number is suggestive of macro-production activity, it never really tells the full story. One needs to pay attention to the context in which that economic growth happens

For India, there are other underlying concerns "hidden" in the IMF's forecast number. Despite the expansion of the economy in a relative sense, informality in India across sectors continues to widen, whereby more workers, especially those migrating from rural to urban areas, are finding less "good" job opportunities in the organised space, and/or are otherwise choosing to remain out of it due to poor wages, high living costs, and more difficult working conditions.

This is where India's growth and its subsequent development story, despite what quarterly data indicate, merits an intersectional approach. An intersectional growth validation, as an economic mechanism, needs to be established in the formal interpretation of a heterogeneously placed economic landscape, answering questions around who participates in and benefits from higher "real" growth versus who doesn't.

After all, the increasing volume of resentment expressed against the state, heard quite clearly in youth-driven street protests, shows another reality. This is where the government must realise that it should shift the focus from GDP numbers and economic projections to a prosperity-driven process of growth.

India's growth and its development trajectory also needs better, more decentralised policy coordination with states, and a deeper state-market interaction to avoid monopolistic control across sectors.

Don't let the koffee go cold on us, KJo

SHALINI LANGER

BACK IN the 1980s, two blockbuster films set teen hearts aflutter. Even then, we realised that Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak's love story, against the backdrop of gun-toting generational rivalries, was unlikely to be our kismet. But there was Maine Pyar Kiya, and surely, it was not difficult to land a boy-man rich enough to live in a mansion and to find a kabootar that delivered love letters. So convinced was I that Salman Khan and Bhagyashree were sworn to lifelong bliss that I refused to believe it when a cousin explained the meaning of a Stardust article saying there was "no love lost between them". It was the summer holidays and there was plenty of time to debate things such as this.

It would take 20 more years for "things such as this" to claim their space as national pleasure, to be enjoyed collectively at prime time in living rooms. That was when Karan Johar slid into our couches with Koffee With Karan, changing the celebrity talk show in India forever, altering our equation with Bollywood and never left. As Karan preened and prodded, nudged-nudged and winked-winked (had we ever seen that on Indian TV before), the stars became somehow more human (in all their bitchiness) and more astral (in the lives they led). There was no doubting the producer-director-talk show host's sense of, as they now say, the vibe.

Who to pair: SRK and Kajol were obvious, but also Deepika Padukone and Sonam Kapoor having a go at a certain ex; Ranveer Singh and Ranbir Kapoor, sharing too much on- and off-screen. Long after an episode, its tremors kept setting off minor quakes.

How to take on what was thrown at him: People thought Karan was too elitist? Bring on Rakhi Sawant. He had favourite actors? Give space to Kangana Ranaut. He was gay? He was comfortable enough to take jibes about it. So he was a dad through surrogate children? Yes, just like the other parents who came to his couch, with whom he discussed his children, and often his mother.

How to laugh at oneself: In his biggest achievement, Karan led the way in this. If the conversations appeared often like friends having a good time at a party, this was the main reason: The guests were neither too venerated nor too vulnerable. Giving just two comparisons, talk show host Tabassum was too kind, and Simi Garewal an intimidating alabaster figure with an accent.

If the latter seasons seemed to lack the zing, it was hardly Karan's fault. Not only is the new Bollywood devoid of real stars, they seem to come newly minted from a common PR machine, saying the same things, and never the "wrong" things. Is that why Karan's gossipy tone, a breath of fresh air in its frankness, steered too much, too tactlessly towards the bedroom in some episodes?

Now, Karan has one more chance to reset. He has said his ninth season is "most definitely" his last. Not on our account, please. We wouldn't be the same without Bollywood and, even if you admit it grudgingly, Bollywood wouldn't be the same without KJo. As they say in a Karan Johar film: "Tussi na jao."

> As Karan preened and prodded, nudged-nudged and winked-winked (had we ever seen that on Indian television before), the stars became somehow more human (in all their bitchiness) and more astral (in the lives they led)

PM for immediate global moratorium on nuclear tests
Reagan renews invitation to Gorbachov
No arms deal discussed with Weinberger

PM calls for nuclear moratorium

PRIME MINISTER Rajiv Gandhi called for an immediate global moratorium involving all nuclear weapon states. Speaking at a banquet hosted in his honour by Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke, he said the unilateral Soviet moratorium was now more than a year old. Sharing the Indian PM's concern, Hawke said major powers alone were not arbiters of the world's destiny and that others also had a constructive role to play.

No arms deal discussed

INDIA SCRUPULOUSLY avoided discussing any military deals or production of weapons systems with the US defence team. The talks were mainly confined to the transfer of technology in wide-ranging items, with India insisting on early absorption of technology offered. There was no discussion of the offer the US Defence Secretary, Caspar Weinberger, had made on his arrival in New Delhi.

Reagan wants talks to resume

THE US PRESIDENT, Ronald Reagan, has said that he has renewed the invitation to the Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev, to visit the US and resume arms control talks they left off in Iceland. President Reagan, however, said there was no indication by Gorbachev as to when or whether he plans to travel to the United States, "as we agreed to last year in Geneva".

Gorbachev warns the West

SOVIET LEADER Mikhail Gorbachev warned the West that his country had "everything to answer any challenge". In an address to the nation in a country-wide television broadcast, he made this observation in reference to Western notions about the Soviet Union not being able to withstand the pressures of the arms race economically.

SUMIT AGARWAL AND SHASHWAT ALOK

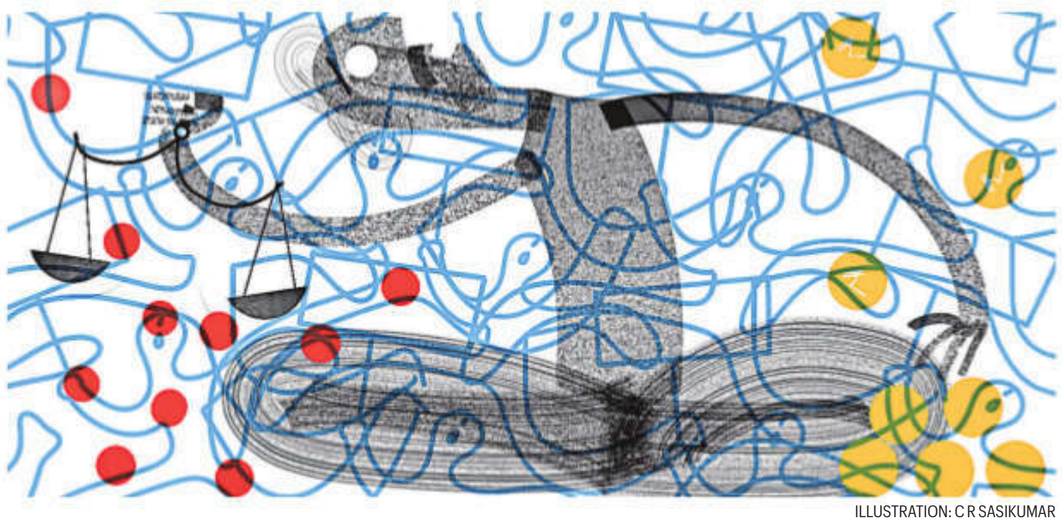

ILLUSTRATION: C R SASIKUMAR

PEACEFUL PROTEST is a democratic right and can secure remedies for serious institutional failures. Its justification depends on the merits of the grievance, the response of the authorities, and the costs of the tactics employed. When disruption becomes a bargaining instrument, however, its costs may fall on citizens who had no say in the decision to disrupt daily life, and most heavily on the poor.

The protests in Delhi on October 10 by the Cockroach Janta Party and INDIA bloc parties illustrate the problem. Ahead of the protests, the Delhi Metro shut down 45 stations and traders' associations advised closures in several places. The president of the Khan Market Traders Association put the loss from a day's closure at Rs 1 lakh to 1.5 lakh per shop, with rent and salaries due regardless. Traders in Chandni Chowk pointed out that festival stock is bought on credit or bank loans. Navratri began the next day.

When a road or a market is shut, it imposes a negative externality. The ordinary commuter, the shopkeeper, the daily-wage worker, and the patient bear much of the cost. As the private cost of disruption to its organisers is lower than its social cost, more of it may be supplied than is socially efficient. Thousands of bystanders cannot negotiate with an organiser, and the organiser is rarely held liable for damages. These costs fall disproportionately on poorer households.

In December 2020, ASSOCHAM put out a rough estimate of the loss from the farmers' agitation at Rs 3,000 to 3,500 crore per day for Punjab, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, and Jammu and Kashmir. Lost turnover overstates lost output because some purchases are deferred to another day or another shop. But Ahsan and Iqbal find that multi-day political strikes in Bangladesh reduced the likelihood of a firm making an export shipment by 6.3 percentage points. Some shipments can be rescheduled, but countries with higher levels of political disruption face a comparative disadvantage as foreign buyers seek stable markets.

The political problem is larger than any single protest. In every democracy, a large share of voters supports the side that lost. In the 2024 Lok Sabha election, the NDA won 43.8 per cent of the vote and the INDIA bloc 41.5 per cent — more than 26 crore votes for the opposition alliance alone. The parties representing these voters have cadres, funds and networks to sustain collective action. If disruption becomes an accepted instrument of bargaining, the losing side of every election holds a standing option to impose costs on the economy until it obtains concessions it could not win in Parliament.

Economists call this a hold-up. A party that can impose costs on others can extract terms with no relation to the merits of its claim. Governments anticipating unrest tilt policy towards the groups most able to mobilise. Policy follows the capacity to disrupt rather than the merits of competing claims.

An examination paper leak illustrates why the merits of a grievance matter. Students who have spent years preparing for a competitive examination have a legitimate reason to protest if leaked papers undermine fair selection. Where authorities fail to investigate or provide a credible remedy, collective action can help secure accountability and restore confidence in the examination system. Those benefits can justify some disruption, provided the tactics remain proportionate and protect essential access. The economic argument is not that every protest must be costless; it is that its expected public benefits must be weighed against the costs imposed on others.

Street mobilisation can be a tool to demand accountability, but cannot confer a mandate to govern. Those who seek to govern in the Constitution's name must seek the people's approval at the ballot box

Students have a stronger agenda to put before their government. How will it prepare young people for jobs that artificial intelligence may transform or displace? How will education, retraining, and support for displaced workers keep pace? How will climate policy protect livelihoods and encourage investment that creates productive employment? Political attention and the government's capacity to respond are scarce resources: Mobilisation around one issue can crowd out work on another.

Two objections deserve a direct answer. The first is that disruption built Indian democracy. Indeed, the freedom movement relied on hartals and civil disobedience. That movement confronted a colonial government that Indians could not vote out. Even then, Gandhi suspended the non-cooperation movement in February 1922, after the violence at Chauri Chaura.

The second is that some grievances concern the electoral process itself, as the current dispute over the revision of voter rolls does. Allegations of "vote theft" are serious, but their seriousness makes evidence more necessary, not less. The electoral record poses an awkward question for those who portray the system as an instrument to guarantee BJP victories. In 2019, the BJP won 303 Lok Sabha seats, and Narendra Modi won Varanasi by 4,79,505 votes. In 2024, the BJP fell to 240 seats, losing its own parliamentary majority, while Modi's margin narrowed to 1,52,513 votes. His party lost 63 seats, and his personal victory margin shrank by more than two-thirds. These results do not establish that every electoral roll is error-free or rule out specific instances of wrongdoing. They do, however, demand an explanation from those advancing a sweeping claim that the electoral machinery is rigged to secure the ruling party's dominance.

The proper forums for testing such claims are the courts, the Election Commission, and Parliament. If those institutions fail, the case for protest grows stronger. The case remains one for peaceful protest. A blockade only measures which side can impose a higher cost on third parties; it does not establish that votes were stolen.

Albert Hirschman's distinction between exit and voice explains why protest can be valuable when citizens cannot readily leave an institution and ordinary channels of representation fail. A collective voice can bring neglected grievances to public attention and prompt corrective action. Protesters should, however, be careful not to mistake their visibility for evidence that they speak for the majority. Equally, governments cannot count silence as approval. Citizens who stay away may support a grievance, reject a tactic, or simply be unable to afford participation.

An electoral victory does not certify every government decision as sound, just as a compelling grievance does not make every protest tactic defensible. The economic test is whether a proposed path produces lasting improvements in public welfare, at a reasonable social cost, and without imposing disproportionate burdens on the poor.

Peaceful protest has a legitimate place in democracy. It gives citizens a platform to voice their concerns, challenge government policy, and demand better from their representatives. That right must remain protected between elections. But protest cannot become a licence for violence, or a means of overturning an electoral mandate through coercion. Street mobilisation can be a tool to demand accountability, but cannot confer a mandate to govern. Those who seek to govern in the name of the Constitution must seek the people's approval at the ballot box.

RAJAT GUPTA

INDIA'S INSTINCTIVE response to climate-linked trade regulation has been to resist it. The EU's Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism is described as protectionist; deforestation and product-traceability rules as intrusive; and sustainability clauses in trade agreements as an attempt to impose rich-country standards on a developing economy. Some of this criticism is justified.

But green trade regulation is no longer a temporary irritant that can be negotiated away. EU carbon allowances for domestic producers are being withdrawn on a fixed schedule. The scope of carbon border adjustment is set to widen. Other economies with domestic carbon prices will face the same pressure to protect their producers. India must ask a more fundamental question: Can the demand and price signals created by these rules finance the early years of its own green industrialisation?

Most of the India of 2070 (the targeted net-zero timeline) is yet to be built. The country can continue to set up new power, steel, aluminium, chemical and transport systems around fossil fuels and then pay to replace them. Or, it could use the upcoming global green-trade rules to establish lower-carbon industries from the outset. Cleaner technologies are more capital-intensive and initially more expensive. The opportunity is to make regulated foreign markets pay part of that early cost while India builds scale and capability at home.

Green ammonia, for which India has discovered some of the world's lowest prices, illustrates this approach. While domestic demand will take time to mature, India could export to Europe, Japan and Korea. Long-term export contracts could help finance the early plants, lower costs through scale and build an industry that then supplies green fertiliser at home, substituting imported natural gas.

Sustainable aviation fuel (SAF) offers a second example. ReFuelEU Aviation regulation began with a 2 per cent blending requirement in 2025 that rises sharply over time. Global production remains tiny and the fuel commands a premium over conventional jet fuel. Ethanol from the domestic petrol-blending programme can be diverted to make higher-value aviation fuel for exports, while EVs serve the domestic mobility market.

As carbon costs are loaded onto European primary steel, prices in Europe will rise. India could use the resulting price umbrella and export revenues to finance cleaner blast furnaces, more scrap-based capacity and eventually hydrogen-based production. In aluminium, India's exposure will grow when indirect emissions from electricity are counted. Investments in recycled aluminium and smelters using clean power can derive an export advantage.

The world's electrification will require vastly more transformers, cables, switchgear, batteries and solar equipment. Across the largest traded categories, a market of roughly $500 billion, China has about 30 per cent of exports while India has less than 2 per cent. Without an industrial response, electrical equipment could become one of India's largest import bills as domestic demand surges. With one, it can become a major export engine. For example, India supplies nearly 20 percent of the UK's non European transformer imports, while having a negligible share in Europe, which presents an opportunity.

There is also an opportunity in the compliance infrastructure itself. Carbon borders, deforestation rules and digital product passports all depend on trusted data. India built digital public infrastructure (DPI) that enables ubiquitous payments and communications at low costs. It should now build low-cost, interoperable systems for product-level carbon accounting, traceability and third-party verification. Becoming capable of tracking and verifying carbon at the lowest cost in the world would lower compliance costs and make our green products more competitive.

Finally, external pressure should be used to redesign India's own recently established carbon market to incentivise decarbonisation. Carbon price (the fee emitters must pay for every tonne of greenhouse gas) needs to be $30-50 a tonne to change investment decisions in steel, hydrogen or fertiliser. At these levels, India also retains more of the carbon revenues under the CBAM regulations. Sector-level targets (like in Europe) are better than the current plant-specific targets, which perversely reward high emitters and penalise efficient plants.

India should contest protectionism, seek transition periods and demand that rich countries share technology and finance. But the primary aim should shift to enabling Indian firms to turn overseas green regulation into export advantage. For example, India could use bilateral trade and green-partnership agreements to secure mutual recognition of carbon accounting, testing and certification.

A durable path for India is to lower the carbon content of our production, capture the overseas markets that regulation creates and use it to build the industries the domestic economy will eventually need. This requires a shift in the mindset of both the government and industry.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stand united

THE SUCCESS of any protest indeed lies in the unity of all stakeholders ('Going forward, all protests must be one, coordinate efforts and energies', IE, October 14). The right to protest is a fundamental right that cannot be curtailed using disproportionate force. Permitting dissent and acknowledging divergent views is fundamental to democracy.

Unending crisis

RESTORING NORMALCY in Manipur requires more than disarming groups and deploying security forces ('In Manipur, the work of peace is still to be done', IE, 14 October). Displaced families need safe homes, livelihoods and confidence that violence will not recur. The government must ensure impartial law enforcement, recover looted weapons and hold offenders accountable, irrespective of community.

Abbharna Barathi, Chennai

THE UNRESOLVED Meitei-Kuki conflict in Manipur has now been compounded by tensions involving Naga, Kuki and Zomi communities ('In Manipur, the work of peace is still to be done', IE, 14 October). When will this cycle of violence end? The question also arises whether the "double engine" government is doing enough to restore peace. Extending AFSPA by another six months will only deepen public anxiety. Despite appointing former Union home secretary Ajay Kumar Bhalla as Governor, the Centre has failed to prevent further escalation. Extending the benefits of the Sixth Schedule deserves serious consideration to protect tribal interests and strengthen local self-governance. With China pursuing its strategic ambitions, India cannot afford prolonged instability in a sensitive border state. Peace, dialogue and constitutional safeguards must take precedence over coercion.

Our Durga doesn't fast, she feasts

IN GOOD faith

PARTHA SINHA

LAST MONTH, in Liluah, thousands of phones rose into the dark like obedient moons. Bageshwar Baba had asked for a show of lights. Those who ate meat on holy days, he said, were hypocrites. Then the phrase that gave the game away: Free Bengal, this Navratri. This Navratri.

The word sat in the sentence like a stranger at a family wedding: Correctly dressed, entirely wrong. Bengal knows Navratri, but it lives in pujo: Mahalaya before dawn, the long ache of nabami night, the terrible clarity of dashami morning. The two calendars overlap the way a map of Kolkata overlaps a memory of it. Roughly.

What followed was farce with the weight of a referendum. Even the BJP CM Suvendu Adhikari went to Kalighat and sat down to basanti pulao and a fish head offered to Ma Kali. "As a Bengali," he said, "I accept the bhog." A saffron chief minister eating saffron pulao to rebut a saffron sadhu. Bengal likes its irony slow-cooked.

Elsewhere, pilgrims climb to the goddess. In Bengal, she comes down. She leaves the ash-smeared husband and his ganja on Kailash for her father's house, where Menaka has waited since Bhadro. She brings the children: Lakshmi, Saraswati, Ganesh with his belly, Kartik with his peacock and too-careful hair, all pressed into one ekchala like a family in an Ambassador bound for her parents' house. The icon is a family photograph before it is theology.

She brings the children: Lakshmi, Saraswati, Ganesh , Kartik, pressed into one ekchala like a family in an Ambassador bound for her parents' house

The agamani songs of Ramprasad and Kamalakanta know her mother, a Bengali woman who has heard her son-in-law is a vagabond and her daughter has grown thin, and who makes the oldest promise mothers make: This time, I will not send her back. A society that married its daughters young and far gave its goddess a married daughter's itinerary. Four days at her parents'. Then sindoor, tears, the river.

Yet the loudest sound in that pandal is the Chandi path. At four on Mahalaya morning, Birendra Krishna Bhadra rises from the radio, and half of Bengal — most of whom have never read the Markandeya Purana — knows every cadence of Ya devi sarvabhuteshu in the dark. At Sandhi puja, 108 lotuses greet Chamunda as she bursts from the goddess's brow. The dhak enters a trance; so does the para.

The same face holds a homesick daughter and a ten-armed fury with a trident through a buffalo's heart.

Bengal never chose. The Shakta delta keeps Annapurna in the kitchen and Kali on the burning ghat. The goddess eats what field and river offer; fish, after all, is a vegetable that swims. Nabami's mutton, cooked without onion or garlic, is called, with a straight face, niramish mangsho. Vegetarian meat. The Baba called it hypocrisy. A semiotician might call it range.

Other *devi*s endure in stone. Bengal's is river clay and straw, built to dissolve, and in Kumartuli she still begins with earth from a sex worker's doorstep. The holiest body is incomplete without soil from a threshold society calls impure. In much of the north, the season is a fast that ends with Ravana in flames. Pujo is a feast that happens to have a priest.

In Delhi's C R Park, the Kali Mandir keeps its little hill while the fish market nearby roars with bhetki. The farther the probashi lives from the Ganga, the more fiercely he insists on fish in the pujo meal.

We are not innocent. We look at garba with the condescension of people who read the menu in French. We cheer Mahishasura's slaying and seldom ask why the Asur villages of Purulia mourn. Every family photograph has someone cropped out of the frame.

On dashami, the idol will descend into the river at Bagbazar. Women will smear sindoor on her cheek and then on each other's, as if to keep a little of her. Someone will call out ashchhe bochhor abar hobe, as though it were a promise and not a prayer.

She was never ours to lend. We only ever had her for four days.

Peace Nobel to Navi Pillay is a challenge to impunity

SAPTARSHI BASAK

THE POWER of the Nobel Peace Prize can often be gauged by how governments read it as a verdict on themselves.

Consider the fury of Germany when Carl von Ossietzky, a journalist jailed for exposing the country's secret rearmament in violation of the Treaty of Versailles, was awarded the prize in 1935. In 1975, the Soviet Union denounced the award to Andrei Sakharov, a physicist who had helped develop its hydrogen bomb but later became a critic of its repression. Like Ossietzky, Sakharov was barred from travelling to accept the prize. China followed a similar script when Liu Xiaobo, imprisoned for his advocacy of human rights, won the prize in 2010, and froze ties with Norway for years.

Israel's reaction to this year's prize warrants a return to these examples. "The Nobel Prize committee has lost its moral compass," PM Benjamin Netanyahu's office said after the award went to Navi Pillay, a former judge of the International Criminal Court (ICC), "for her efforts to promote peace and international law". The Nobel Committee's announcement does not mention Israel by name, and unlike the above-cited dissidents who were targeted by their own governments, Pillay isn't even Israeli.

What, then, explains the angry reaction from Israel, and from the US and its President, Donald Trump, who claimed to have "never heard" of Pillay? In September 2025, a UN commission she was chairing at the time concluded that Israeli authorities and security forces had "committed genocide" against Palestinians in Gaza. The Committee's announcement included that commission in Pillay's list of contributions, and Israel and the US heard the rest for themselves.

Understandably so. By honouring Pillay, the Committee has recognised the validity of an investigation that has placed Israel's conduct in Gaza under the harshest possible international scrutiny. It has lent legitimacy to the findings, which Israel and the US have sought to discredit, that have challenged Israel's account of its military campaign. And it has affirmed the importance of the institutions and individuals who pursue accountability, even when their findings are unwelcome to powerful states.

The prize cannot compel governments to change course, but it can deny them the final word on their own actions

Speaking of the powerful, look at Washington's response. Right after Pillay was honoured, the Trump administration announced new sanctions against the ICC. Secretary of State Marco Rubio said the US would "ban transactions with this rogue court". This, despite the fact that the ICC and the UN commission that Pillay chaired are separate institutions, and the Nobel Committee's announcement does not mention the US at all.

If Pillay's career demonstrates anything, it is her relentless pursuit of accountability, most famously in the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, which prosecuted those responsible for the 1994 genocide. She is also serving as an ad hoc judge at the International Court of Justice in the case brought by The Gambia against Myanmar over allegations of genocide against the Rohingya. One can hardly be blamed for putting faith in a woman who has a long record of investigating violence by the state, rather than in a government accused of committing violence, or one that has funded it.

Perhaps that is the real measure of the Peace Prize. It cannot compel governments to change course, but it can deny them the final word on their own actions. Thanks to Pillay's work, the world cannot be prevented from considering the evidence of the destruction of Gaza — however furiously the powerful may object.

Night of shocks: Inter Milan lose, Bayern held to a draw by Viking

Reuters
Madrid, October 14

NICOLO TRESOLDI'S hat-trick powered Club Brugge to a stunning 4-3 Champions League victory at Inter Milan on a night of scares for Europe's heavyweights on Tuesday, while Barcelona recovered to beat Galatasaray 4-1.

Bayern fought back from two goals down to lead in Norway but Michael Olise's dismissal left them exposed and Herman Johan Haugen struck in added time to earn Viking a point.

Barcelona proved more convincing in Istanbul, overturning a first-half deficit with Lamine Yamal supplying two assists, while Atletico Madrid won 2-0 against Manchester United, who had Leny Yoro sent off, and Arsenal scored three times in seven minutes to defeat Lille 3-0.

Tresoldi put Brugge ahead with a penalty on the half-hour mark. Lautaro Martinez equalised before halftime, holding off his marker and turning to finish after Marcus Thuram and Federico Dimarco combined down the left.

But a misunderstanding between Inter goalkeeper Josep Martinez and his defence allowed Carlos Forbs to knock the ball through the keeper's legs, leaving Tresoldi to tap into an empty net and restore Brugge's lead.

Tresoldi completed his hat-trick in the 74th minute before Martinez's second goal seven minutes later revived Inter's hopes.

Romeo Vermant made it 4-2 in the 87th minute, leaving Ange-Yoan Bonny's reply deep into added time as scant consolation for the home supporters.

Gianni Stensness headed Viking ahead from a second-minute corner and the hosts doubled their advantage in the 38th with a sweeping counter-attack. Harry Kane began the comeback with a 54th-minute penalty following a lengthy VAR review, then headed Bayern level six minutes later.

Luis Diaz put Bayern ahead in the 71st minute, but Olise received his second yellow card three minutes later and Haugen's late equaliser denied the visitors victory.

Yoro sent off

Atletico needed only 50 seconds to punish Manchester United's high defensive line, Alex Baena breaking clear down the left before squaring for Pablo Barrios to finish. United's task became harder when Yoro was sent off in the 74th minute for denying Jonathan David a goal-scoring opportunity. Five minutes later, Ademola Lookman tapped into an empty net.

Arsenal had to wait until the 64th minute for Jurrien Timber to break Lille's resistance from Noni Madueke's pass. Substitute Bukayo Saka then set up Eberechi Eze's goal before Kai Havertz supplied Saka for the third in the 71st minute.

• KEY RESULTS

Galatasaray	1-4	Barcelona
Arsenal	3-0	LOSC
Atletico	2-0	Man Utd
Villarreal	3-1	Napoli
Viking	3-3	Bayern
Inter	3-4	Club Brugge

INDIA VS WEST INDIES: FOURTH T20I

Tanishq Vaddi
Hyderabad, October 14

Sherfane Rutherford (centre) gestures towards Abhishek Sharma as he celebrates. AP

RUNS CONTINUED to flow like a torrent, the wicket once again was flat in the first half of the game and the batsmen went for big hits — 29 sixes in all. West Indies posted a mammoth 247 for three, and India, as expected, started strongly, thanks to Sanju Samson's 56 from 22. But once he was dismissed, despite a 70-run partnership between Tilak Varma and Nitish Kumar Reddy, India were always playing catch-up. The wicket slowed down towards the second half of the Indian innings but credit must go to the West Indies bowlers for sticking to their plans and pulling off a 24-run win to level the five-match series 2-2.

None of the Indian batsmen carried on to make a big score, like West Indian captain Shai Hope who scored his second century of this T20 series.

After winning the toss and opting to bowl first, the pace bowlers Arshdeep Singh and Mayank Yadav started poorly.

Arshdeep, who was the Player of the Match in the previous game, struggled to find his line and length. His yorkers with the new ball lacked venom, and his slower balls were too predictable for the West Indian batters.

It was not just the left-armer. His opening partner, Mayank, bowled with pace in the early overs but lacked control. His hard-length deliveries, which usually trouble batsmen, were too short.

Left-arm spinner Axar Patel did his job again by getting the breakthrough in the powerplay, dismissing debutant Jewel Andrew with an undercutter. But this did not put the brakes on the Windies batting line-up. With the lack of a fifth bowling option, India looked short of ideas when the ball was flying all around the stadium in Uppal.

Naman Dhir, who has picked up wickets consistently this series, was only used for one over today, which went for 19 runs. The responsibility of bowling the remaining quota of that fifth bowler fell on Nitish Kumar Reddy, who conceded 39 runs.

While all the other bowlers were smashed around, conceding at a rate exceeding 11 runs per over, Prince Yadav figured out what the pitch demanded, using clever variations and sharp yorkers.

He ensured that whenever he bowled, he kept the batters in check and also picked up a brilliant catch off his own bowling to dismiss Shimron Hetmyer, who had smashed 33 runs from just 12 deliveries by then. He was the most economical of the Indian bowlers conceding 36 runs in his quota of four overs and taking a wicket.

Samson lone star

Last time Samson played a T20I in Hyderabad, he entertained the fans by scoring a sublime century against Bangladesh. Today's innings might not have been as long, but it was breathtaking. Chasing 248 runs, the right-hander set the tone immediately. Off-spinner Roston Chase, who is a favourable match-up for Samson, went for 30 runs off just 11 deliveries. Abhishek Sharma, usually the aggressor in the partnership, had to play second fiddle. However, the left-hander could not shift into a higher gear through the evening.

Once Samson's wicket fell, though, India lost their way through the middle overs. Kemo Paul dismissed Samson with a short ball that cramped him, and soon after, he picked up Ishan Kishan, who flicked the ball straight to a mid-wicket fielder. Shreyas Iyer, who averages 40.81 in chases, too perished to Shamar Springer while trying to carve the ball through the off-side and was caught at third man.

Tilak-Nitish partnership did give the Indian team hope, but there was too much left to do for them in the end. When the duo got together, India still needed 118 runs from 50 deliveries. Tilak, who embraces pressure situations like these, did threaten to take the game away. He identified fast bowler Romario Shepherd as the weaker link in this bowling lineup and attacked him, to keep India in the chase.

Meanwhile, Nitish Kumar Reddy, who knows these conditions as well as anyone as he plays for Sunrisers Hyderabad, took the initiative against Shamar Joseph by hitting back-to-back sixes, that injected the required momentum into the innings. An evening that went to plan for Hope and his bowlers for the most part started to go wrong. Then came a miscue from Tilak against Shepard, which gave West Indies the breakthrough they were looking for.

As has been the trend during the IPL season, once the ball got 10 overs old, it tends to stick in the surface, and bowlers with clever, smart variations come into play. Paul, who had already picked up a couple of early wickets, had a skill set tailor-made for these conditions.

He scalped the all-important wicket of Nitish, which ended India's chances on the night. He followed it up with a gem of a delivery to Prince and got rid of Axar to complete his second five-wicket haul.

BRIEF SCORES: West Indies 247/3 in 20 overs (Shai Hope 102 not out; Prince Yadav 1/36) beat India 223 in 19.3 overs (Sanju Samson 56; Keemo Paul 5/41) by 24 runs.

Orthodox Hope makes an impact in new-age T20 cricket

Tanishq Vaddi
Hyderabad, October 14

When a high-risk shot wasn't necessary, he calmly manoeuvred the ball into the leg-side with his rubbery wrists

HEAD COACH Darren Sammy, ahead of the game, had dismissed the idea that Shai Hope is the only route for the West Indies to win games. But their ongoing tour of India has hardly backed his assessment. Whenever the visitors have had any success, their captain has invariably played a leading role.

On Wednesday, Hope's composed century was the thorn in the flesh of Shreyas Iyer and his men.

In his 50-ball 102, he took a couple of overs to assess the conditions. His first six came off Mayank Yadav in the third over, who uncharacteristically attempted a slower ball that Hope smashed over mid-wicket. Through the knock, his approach was to wait for the bowlers to enter his hitting arc rather than go searching.

When a high-risk shot wasn't necessary, he calmly manoeuvred the ball into the leg-side with his rubbery wrists. His strong bottom-handed technique repeatedly provided access to the mid-wicket region.

That approach allowed Hope's teammates to play explosive cameos from the other end. Jewel Andrew, Shimron Hetmyer and Rovman Powell served starters, but the main course was delivered by the partnership between Hope and Sherfane Rutherford, who had been the stars for the team in Ranchi. The duo put on a 91-run partnership off 43 deliveries here.

This was Hope's fourth century on the current tour and he is, by definition, leading from the front.

"He brings calm to the middle when he is there, and perhaps some of our other players need to emulate that calmness when the pressure is on. But he is not the only reason we win games," Sammy had said on the eve of the fourth T20I.

"He doesn't really say much. But when he speaks, he's quite clear as to what he's expecting from himself and from the group. I don't think he gets enough credit for what he's done for the West Indies, how he's played, and the commitment he's given us. Class player, great individual," the two-time T20 World Cup-winning captain had said earlier in the series.

Evolution

For a long time in his career, Hope was seen as a specialist in the longest version of the game due to his orthodox technique. However, in this series, he has shown his evolution into a top-class T20I opener. He is averaging 130.50 in this series at a strike rate of 190.51.

What's also remarkable is that Hope is meeting the demands of the modern scoring rate with his very orthodox techniques, one which has borne him fruit in other formats.

Hope said his younger brother, Kyle, helped him improve his power-hitting. He mentioned how his sibling points out the slightest tweaks needed for him to improve his game.

Hope also believes playing in franchise leagues has shaped his T20 game.

"I've been involved with the ILT20 [in 2024-25]. My first time playing, we [Dubai Capitals] won. I got the most runs as well in the tournament. So that meant a lot to me, playing against and with some of the best in the world and performing the way I did and helping the team lift the trophy," he had told ESPNCricinfo.

In 2024, Hope got his IPL opportunity with Delhi Capitals, but scored just 183 runs in nine games, looking like a work in progress. His game was miles behind where the league was heading. But Hope, instead of taking it as a failed season, took it as experience and credits it in his evolution as a T20 cricketer.

"There are so many different things (like getting) picked for IPL (in 2024). We all know how big a tournament that is. We didn't get to the latter stages, unfortunately; we just missed out. But the experiences will live with me forever," Hope said.

As soon as Sammy was appointed head coach, he started paying special attention to Hope's T20 game, and worked with him on his striking drills.

"We started to focus on some of those things. Our batting coach is Floyd Reifer. We're all just trying to continue progressing and trying to find ways to help every batter, not just me," Hope said.

Shai Hope scored his second century of the series to power West Indies to a 24-run victory on Wednesday. ANI

Mandhana at the helm, India hope to crack T20 code

Mumbai, October 14

Smriti Mandhana feels that the team needs marginal improvements and not a total overhaul to perform better in the T20 World Cup. CREIMAS

THE LAST year has brought plenty of success for India's women cricketers, with a World Cup triumph followed by the Asia Cup win and the Asian Games gold. Yet as Smriti Mandhana begins her tenure as India's new all-format captain, the team still needs to take the next step in one area - T20 cricket.

The women's team failed to progress past the league stage in the previous two T20 World Cups and will start its preparation for the 2028 edition with a three-match series against Zimbabwe in Raipur on Friday.

Mandhana, however, felt that the team only needed marginal improvements and not an overhaul to do better in the biennial tournament.

"Yes, the last two T20 World Cups, we were not able to qualify (for knockouts). And for sure, we all have a lot to learn from this. We felt that we had prepared well. But definitely, I think the things that are required in T20 cricket, in terms of fitness, and fielding, and bowling, and batting, in all the departments, I wouldn't say that we are not good. We are good. But we just need 10 per cent improvement. And I think the girls are very aware of it," she told reporters on Wednesday.

"And we are all really working towards it. And we are a pretty young group. So definitely, it's a fun group to work with." She said the team needs to work on a few things in the shortest format. "We have won the World Cup in the last one and a half years. But there were a few things which we needed to work on in the T20 format especially. But I would say our strength has been the players who have come in. They have done extremely well," she added.

One of India's focus areas would be to find a reliable No. 3 batter in Jemimah Rodrigues' continued absence due to injury. Pratika Rawal played at number three in the Asia Cup, while G Kamalini, Bharti Fulmali and Harmanpreet Kaur rotated in the position during the Asian Games.

Young options

Mandhana backed youngsters Niki Prasad and Anushka Sharma, as well as Kamalini, to step up if offered a chance. "Jemimah has been injured for the last two months. And I think we have got exciting players - Anushka and Niki, who have done really well in India. And of course, Kamalini, who was number three in the Asian Games. So, we have a lot of options. And I am really happy. I am really positive that they will do well. There is a lot of batting here," she said.

Another important part of Mandhana's new role will be balancing leadership with her own batting. In 18 matches as captain in the shortest format, the left-hander has made 484 runs at a strike rate of 146.66. She did not expect her approach to change after taking over the captaincy.

"I have become a captain on the field. There should be no changes in my batting. Because whenever I used to bat, my coach used to tell me, whenever you bat, even when I was 15 years old, always think you are the captain. Because you always take that responsibility. And those things have never changed. If the ball is in the zone, I will still go for it. And I will still play whatever the team needs me to," the left-hander said.

New captains often look to build a core of players they can rely on as they begin building the team in their own way. Mandhana, however, refused to single out any player, saying she wanted all 15 members of the squad to see themselves as match-winners.

"There are only 15 players. And in the future, we will think that there are only 15 players. And all 15 players will be the match-winners in the future," she said.

Mandhana has also discussed the road ahead with former captain Harmanpreet Kaur, who led India for 10 years. "She has led India for 10 years. She is a very experienced player in the team. For sure, she will always have my support. And we had discussed how to take Indian cricket forward, and what all things are needed to do well in the future," the left-hander said.

With a new captain at the helm, India will hope the Zimbabwe series marks the beginning of a more consistent T20 side. For Mandhana, the task is to keep the team's strengths intact, work on the areas that need improvement and make sure the lessons from the last two World Cups help India be better prepared for the 2028 edition.

New Delhi, October 14

THE DELHI Golf Club (DGC) has seen several stalwarts on its tight fairways and tricky greens over the decades, including Tiger Woods for a solitary round with a friend and sponsor. Last year's inaugural DP World India Championship brought arguably the biggest star cast India has seen in a competitive setting.

The event is still young, but with Rory McIlroy and defending champion Tommy Fleetwood back in the field, it has made a mark on the DP World Tour, formerly the European Tour.

The field for the second edition includes three of the four Major winners of the 2026 season. McIlroy successfully defended his Masters title at Augusta in April. The others are Open champion Ryan Fox of New Zealand and PGA Championship winner Aaron Rai, the Englishman likely to draw local interest because of his Indian roots.

Justin Rose, Patrick Reed, Bubba Watson and Shane Lowry are among the other Major winners competing for a share of the USD 4 million purse. Luke Donald, a former World No.1 who has led Europe to Ryder Cup wins at home and away, is also in the field, along with Ryder Cup player Viktor Hovland and PGA Tour winner Min Woo Lee.

"It's always fun to play in new events. I've heard that the DGC is a great test," two-time Masters winner Watson said.

The best in the game will be tested by a layout whose challenge doesn't depend on distance. Trees on both sides of the fairways reduce the margin of error from the tee, and sand and other hazards are used liberally and strategically. Then there are the undulating greens. The DGC cannot be tamed by a gung-ho approach. It demands patience, careful course management and precise execution.

Trees on both sides of the fairways reduce the margin of error from the tee, and sand and other hazards are used strategically

"Just as tight as I remember from last year. It's definitely a different golf course than what we're used to playing," McIlroy said on the eve of the tournament. "It doesn't offer you a lot of room off the tee, a lot of irons and strategic play with your tee shots."

"This year, I think the rough is a lot longer and thicker than it was last year, so that's going to present a challenge," he added. "But if you're hitting irons off tees, you shouldn't really be in the rough. I will be telling myself that tomorrow."

Indian interest

The tournament comes at an interesting time for Indian golf. A sizeable home contingent is in action. The Indian men's team finished sixth at the Aichi-Nagoya Asian Games, but Pranavi Urs's gold and the silver in the women's team event should add interest in a sport still trying to shed its elitist tag.

Local knowledge is often said to count for something, but the best players usually come out on top. Shubhankar Sharma, Anirban Lahiri and Shiv Kapur will need to do more than rely on their DGC experience. The event also gives the Asian Games trio of Saptak Talwar, Veer Ahlawat and Yuvraj Sandhu an immediate chance to bounce back from the disappointment in Japan.

The DP World India Championship is the penultimate event of the regular season, and it will help decide the field for the play-offs, for which only the top 70 golfers qualify.

Ranji Day 4: Vidarbha, Bengal win, J&K, Kerala draw

J&K HOLD ON FOR DRAW

At Srinagar, a delayed start did not take the drama out of the day. Resuming on 151/5, Madhya Pradesh declared at 249/6, with captain Shubham Sharma unbeaten on 106, and set J&K 326. The hosts' only option was to bat out the day and avoid a second successive defeat after the Irani Cup. Even that looked unlikely when the MP seamers, led by Avesh Khan and Aryan Pandey, ran through the top order and left them on 12/5. The lower order stopped the slide, and J&K took one point.

BRIEF SCORES: MP 196 & 249/6 dec (Shubham Sharma 106 n.o; Auqib Nabi 3/53) drew with J&K 120 & 88/7 (Avesh Khan 3/30, Aryan Pandey 3/31). Pts: MP 3, J&K 1

ANDHRA MANAGE 3 PTS

Karnataka's positive approach set up the chance of an outright result before Andhra held on for a draw and three points. Resuming on 176/4, a lead of 32, Karun Nair completed his century and went on to an unbeaten 155. Karnataka declared on 337/9 and set Andhra 194 in the second half of the day. With time enough for either side to force a result, Karnataka started well and reduced Andhra to 53/4. Seeram Rahul and Revanth Reddy then dug in to save the game.

BRIEF SCORES: Karnataka 274 & 337/9 dec (Karun Nair 155 n.o; Lalith Mohan 5/117) drew with Andhra 418 & 104/4. Pts: Andhra 3, Karnataka 1.

BENGAL DEFEAT DELHI

Delhi's hopes of batting out the day fell flat at Kalyani as an all-round effort from the Bengal attack earned the hosts six points. Resuming on 101/3, Delhi's only option was to bat through the day. Apart from skipper Ayush Badoni, who made 85, the rest offered little support, and Delhi were bowled out for 277.

BRIEF SCORES: Bengal 429 & 89/1 bt Delhi 240 & 277 (Ayush Badoni 85; Pradipta Pramanik 3/72) by nine wickets. Pts: Bengal 6, Delhi 0.

VIDARBHA WIN

Vidarbha opened their season with a win at Nagpur on the final day, having been 54/5 in the first innings. Resuming on 22/1, the hosts declared on 175/3 and set Pondicherry 291, or the option of batting out for a draw. Left-arm spinners Harsh Dubey and Parth Rekhade then took charge. Pondicherry slid from 4/2 to 24/4 and kept sliding until they were bowled out for 130 in 41.1 overs.

BRIEF SCORES: Vidarbha 428 & 175/3 dec (Dhruv Shorey 69 n.o, Aman Mokhade 65) bt Pondicherry 313 & 130 (Prasad Pawar 48; Harsh Dubey 4/29) by 160 runs. Pts: Vidarbha 6, Pondicherry 0.

JHARKHAND DENIED

As expected on a flat pitch at Jamshedpur, Kerala conceded the first-innings lead but denied Jharkhand an outright win. Resuming on 269/6, Kerala were bowled out for 395, with their professional Aditya Sarwate making 95. With time running out, Jharkhand enforced the follow-on, but taking another ten wickets was always going to be hard.

BRIEF SCORES: Jharkhand 587 drew with Kerala 395 & 60/2 (Aditya Sarwate 95; Utkarsh Singh 4/69, Manishi 4/92). Pts: Jharkhand 3, Kerala 1. ENS

INTERVIEW: PRITHVI SHAW

Noise blocked, social media shut, Prithvi fights battle with himself

One-time prodigy admits 'might have made mistakes along the way', but is determined to evolve further

Shuvaditya Bose
New Delhi, October 14

Prithvi Shaw is currently captaining Maharashtra and topped their run charts in his first season itself. PTI

> "Yes, I might have made mistakes along the way. Nobody goes through life being 100% correct all the time — it's all part of your journey and destiny. I don't look back at the past anymore; I'm solely focused on moving forward."
> PRITHVI SHAW
> MAHARASHTRA CAPTAIN

AT PALAM on Wednesday, Maharashtra captain Prithvi Shaw put on display every facet of good leadership. There was the recurrent chirp of encouragement, "lagey raho" (keep at it), the shrewd field placings, the efficient bowling changes, the careful husbanding of resources.

The reward was a victory — one that seemed improbable only 24 hours back. Maharashtra defended a total of 268, bowling Services out for 120. All ten wickets fell on the final day, the last of them with only a few minutes left before the umpires would have called it a stalemate.

"I'm really enjoying it (captaining Maharashtra). It is a lot of fun," Prithvi tells The Indian Express on the sidelines of the Airforce Complex Ground. "The younger players are smart; they know what they're doing. It's an exceptional team."

Eight summers have passed since he was hailed as a prodigy, when comparisons were drawn and parallels invoked. Fate, as it does, had its own twist to add, and yet here he is, all of 26, an age at which many are only just finding the dawn of their professional lives.

'26 is still very young, is it not?'

"I know it is. But when I watch these 18-year-olds do what they are doing, I am like 'Bloody hell! I feel old, man.' Age is just a number, I know, but it keeps moving. You have to accept that."

At 18, Prithvi captained India to the ICC Under-19 World Cup in New Zealand. At 18, he became the second-youngest Indian to score a Test century, behind only Sachin Tendulkar.

And yet, at 26, he has only five Test appearances to his name. Time moves fast, and the Indian team faster still. They seemed to have moved on from the very player once ranked among the most gifted this country has ever produced. Prithvi, though, has not stopped dreaming.

"If that hunger wasn't there, I wouldn't even be playing today. The ultimate, biggest goal is still to get back into the Indian team. There is a long queue of openers trying to move up to the national team, so you have to stay consistent to stay in contention."

Seconds of reflection on his words. Then, the correction:

"But actually, for me, it is not about proving anything to anyone. It is me vs me."

A couple of years ago, Shaw was abruptly axed from the Mumbai team. This newspaper had reported that the Mumbai Cricket Association was dissatisfied with his fitness and had asked the opener to follow a rigorous two-week programme.

"He needs to shed some body weight to be considered for selection," an MCA official told his masthead at the time.

A year later, Prithvi crossed over to Maharashtra, and topped their run charts in his first season: 537 runs at 48.81.

What changed?

Not talent — that, he never lacked. Driving the renaissance bid were extraneous factors.

"I'm working harder than ever before. Right now, I'm off social media and just focusing on just three things — my cricket, my family and myself. Everything else, I just ignore and push aside."

For a player seldom out of headlines, however, ignoring noise can be an ordeal.

"I try to stay home. I still go out for dinners with my family, but I try to avoid public attention as much as possible. I never call the paparazzi. Some people might enjoy the cameras, but I don't like having them around during my private time. I value my private space now."

On the scrutiny he draws on social media, he says: "Outside comments don't matter to me. What matters to me is the kind of person I am, and what my family feels about me."

Nobody is 100% correct all the time. With his maturity higher than ever, he acknowledges the mistakes of the past.

"Yes, I might have made mistakes along the way. Nobody goes through life being 100% correct all the time — it's all part of your journey and destiny. I don't look back at the past anymore; I'm solely focused on moving forward. I want to enjoy my cricket, be with my teammates, maintain high work ethic, and spend quality time with my family. Once the day is done, I just go back to my hotel room and play some PS5. I am actually playing career mode with my own character — Prithvi Shaw. Whenever I get out on a low score in real life, I get on the game and hit 400-500!"

At 26, Prithvi finds himself walking two paths at once: his own corrective one, which might yet lead back to the Indian dressing room, and that of the younger teammates he is mentoring on the pitfalls of youth.

"Having played over 60 Ranji Trophy matches, I understand that winning at this level requires giving 101% every single time. It's not easy, and that's the standard I try to demonstrate on the field for the newcomers. People are going to make mistakes regardless of what you tell them — it's how everyone learns. I'm not the kind of person who lectures others on what not to do. It's their life, and they have every right to enjoy it. My only piece of advice to them is never let your enjoyment compromise your work ethic. Put in the hard yards first; after that, you have one life, so live it."

BRIEF SCORES: Maharashtra 333 & 141 beat Services 227 & 120 (Nakul Sharma 36; Vicky Ostwal 5/50) by 127 runs.

Bhuvan Gupta
Jaipur, October 14

ON THE eve of Rajasthan's 2026-27 Ranji Trophy home opener against Tamil Nadu (TN), their bowling coach Anup Dave had predicted the game could end in a draw. "An outright win is difficult here (in Jaipur); it's all about the innings lead usually. There is a history of matches ending in draws as it is a batting-friendly surface and all 40 wickets do not fall in four days." Four days later, that's exactly how the match panned out.

The hosts added 111 runs to their overnight lead of 170 before declaring, and TN batted out 23 overs without losing a wicket. The teams shook hands after tea, with Rajasthan walking away with three points after gaining an 89-run first-innings lead and Tamil Nadu earning one point from the draw.

TN were left to rue their lower-order batting collapse the previous day - the last four wickets fell for 10 runs. Captain Sai Kishore felt it was a "toss-oriented wicket", in that it only offered spin from Day 3 onwards. But he admitted a lack of application from the last four batters meant they could not take the lead. Rajasthan bossed the Day 4 morning session. In the fourth over, Karthik Sharma lofted Saravana Kumar over the long-off boundary. Soon, he and Mahipal Lomror began showing urgency with their running between the wickets. Acceleration followed by a declaration seemed to be the mandate.

Rajasthan declared at 192 for 6, setting TN a 282-run target. As Sai Kishore did on Day 3, Manav Suthar bowled with the new ball for Rajasthan. But TN rode the two sessions out.

BRIEF SCORES: Rajasthan 363 and 192/6 decl. in 70.1 overs (Mahipal Lomror 84; Sai Kishore 3/50) drew with Tamil Nadu 274 and 73/0 in 23 overs (N Jagadeesan 42 not out).

Kamaldeep Singh Brar
Amritsar, October 14

THE PUNJAB Police on Wednesday arrested Jobanpreet Singh, allegedly the key conspirator behind the murder of Punjabi social media influencer and makeup artist Madhu Sudan Sandhu, popularly known as Mad Sandhu, from Mumbai, a senior officer said. With this, a total of 11 persons, including one of the shooters, have been arrested.

Director General of Police (DGP) Gaurav Yadav said, "Initial investigations reveal that Jobanpreet was operating under the instructions of handlers based on foreign soil".

He said Jobanpreet is a resident of village Jandoke in district Tarn Taran. Police teams have recovered three pistols, including a 9mm Glock, a 9mm Beretta and a .30 bore PX5, along with five magazines and 11 live cartridges from him. The DGP said Punjab Police's Counter Intelligence (CI) wing, in coordination with the Maharashtra Anti-Terrorism Squad (ATS), apprehended Jobanpreet Singh, from Chembur in Mumbai.

ANTI-DRUG ACTIVIST'S MURDER

Accused held in Rajasthan, mob brings bulldozer to tear down shop

Kamaldeep Singh Brar
Mansa, October 14

A CHEMIST, who allegedly shot dead anti-drug activist Parvinder Singh Jhota in Punjab's Mansa, was on Wednesday arrested from Salasar in Rajasthan even as a mob brought in a bulldozer and demolished his medical store before setting it ablaze while authorities pulled down a portion of his house citing alleged "unauthorised construction".

Jhota's family, which has refused to cremate his body, called a Punjab bandh on Thursday with the Opposition parties in Punjab, including Congress, Shiromani Akali Dal, BJP, Akali Dal Waris Punjab De, apart from the Samyukta Kisan Morcha and the government employees' unions extending support to it.

Bathinda Range DIG Harjit Singh said chemist Ashwani Kumar is being brought back to Punjab. He said an FIR has been registered against two persons based on a complaint filed by Jhota's father Bhim Singh. According to the FIR, Bhim Singh was on his way to meet a lawyer when he heard gunshots. He rushed towards the spot and saw his blood-soaked son running past Ashwini's medical store.

Bhim Singh alleged that as his son ran away, Ashwani, carrying a pistol, followed him and fired shots in front of him. He also alleged that Ashwani and his associates had conspired to murder his son.

Jhota, 42, was livestreaming on Facebook when the incident took place. The footage of the confrontation and shooting has fuelled widespread outrage in Mansa, where Jhota had emerged as a prominent face of the campaign against the illegal sale of addictive substances. The markets in Mansa remained closed for a second day with large crowds gathering outside the Civil Hospital, where Jhota's body is kept.

Addressing a press conference, Jhota's father announced a state-wide shutdown on Thursday. He said the family will not accept the body or perform cremation and last rites "until complete justice is served". He reiterated his demand for post-mortem examination at the PGIMER in Chandigarh, handing over of the probe to the CBI and "immediate resignations of Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann and DGP Gaurav Yadav".

Protesters demolish a medical store whose owner, Ashwani Kumar, allegedly shot dead anti-drug activist Parvinder Singh Jhota in Mansa, on Wednesday. PTI

Bhim Singh also sought to know whom Kumar was speaking with on his mobile before opening fire on Jhota. To this, DIG Singh said according to preliminary investigation, he was speaking with one of his family members.

A joint action committee comprising various organisations and social activists formed after Jhota's murder too demanded resignations of Mann and DGP and dismissal of the Mansa senior Superintendent of Police and the DSP, SHO and drug inspector concerned.

As the killing triggered a political slugfest, Mann promised strictest punishment for the accused and appealed to the people to maintain peace.

"An unfortunate incident has taken place in Mansa...I want to make it clear that Punjab Police will leave no stone unturned to ensure the strictest punishment for the culprits. Anybody found hatching a conspiracy in this matter will also not be spared," Mann said in a video message.

The situation in Mansa, meanwhile, escalated around noon when protesters targeted the medical store where Jhota was shot dead. A mob, including some Nihang Sikhs, brought in a bulldozer and razed it down before setting it on fire amid heavy police presence. Protesters also attempted to march towards Kumar's house 700 metres away, but were stopped by police.

Soon after, the police and district administration deployed a bulldozer at Kumar's residence, pulling down part of the boundary wall and the front structure. Officials said they had received information about unauthorised construction on the premises.

Manish Sahu
Lucknow, October 14

A MEERUT court Wednesday sentenced Muskan Rastogi, 26, and her friend Sahil Shukla, 28, to death for the murder of her husband, Saurabh Rajput, whose dismembered body was found in a blue drum filled with liquid cement at their home last year. Muskan was allegedly in a relationship with Sahil.

Hours before the verdict was pronounced, Muskan made a plea to officials at the Chaudhary Charan Singh District Jail to let her see her elder daughter, whom she had not seen since the day she was jailed. The eight-year-old is living with Muskan's parents in Meerut.

"Muskan had asked for permission to write a letter on Tuesday. We have given her paper and a pen, and we will forward the letter to her parents," said Meerut jail superintendent Viresh Raj Sharma.

Additional District Government Counsel, Meerut, Ashwani Goel, said Muskan and Sahil appeared before the court through a video call and the court sentenced them to gallows.

Saurabh, 29, and Muskan married in 2016. They were in love and eloped to pressure their families into agreeing to their marriage.

Soon after the wedding, police claimed, Muskan pushed Saurabh to move out. The couple rented a home of their own in Brahmpuri, and their daughter was born in 2019.

Saurabh was then working in the Merchant Navy; in 2019 he quit the job and became a sales manager at a mall in London.

Around the same time, officials had claimed, a chance meeting outside a bakery in the locality ended with Sahil and Muskan, who were schoolmates, getting into a relationship. Sahil was an online shares trader who worked mostly from home.

In 2025, the prosecution said, Saurabh flew down from London on February 24 to celebrate two birthdays with his family — Muskan's on February 25 and their daughter's on February 28.

On the night of March 3, Muskan allegedly laced Saurabh's food with intoxicants, causing him to fall unconscious.

Muskan then called Sahil over, and the two allegedly stabbed Saurabh to death, cut his body into several pieces and sealed the remains in a drum of liquid cement, which police said had been bought in advance.

The two were arrested on March 19 last year.

STATE WON'T WAIT FOR CENTRAL AID: CM

Maharashtra: Up to 1.45 crore farmers to get Rs 5,000 each before Diwali

Alok Deshpande
Mumbai, October 14

WITH DROUGHT declared in 305 of Maharashtra's 358 tehsils and the Centre's relief package still pending, the state government will transfer Rs 5,000 each to an estimated 1.25 crore to 1.45 crore farmers before Diwali. Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis announced the decision on Wednesday, saying the state would not wait for central assistance to reach farmers before extending immediate relief.

The move could cost the state exchequer Rs 6,000-7,000 crore, according to officials. However, the final number of beneficiaries and the total expenditure remain uncertain as the eligibility criteria are yet to be finalised.

The government has said the assistance will be credited directly to farmers' bank accounts.

The state is treating the payment as an advance against the drought assistance expected from the Centre. Fadnavis said the money due under the central package would be provided when it arrives, while the state would arrange funds for the immediate payment.

Officials said the expenditure could be adjusted against the Centre's eventual package or met through supplementary demands in the winter session.

"A procedure has to be followed at the Centre for drought assistance, which is difficult to complete before Diwali. Due to the central government's rules, stages and dates, it is not possible to complete this work in such a short time. Seeing this situation, we discussed providing relief to farmers in the Cabinet today," Fadnavis said after a Cabinet meeting.

"... as immediate relief and as an advance on that assistance, we will give Rs 5,000 each to farmers before Diwali. This decision was made so that farmers have some money in hand during Diwali," he said.

The announcement coincided with the government increasing the number of drought-affected tehsils from 265 to 305, adding 40 more to the list. The state has a total of 358 tehsils.

Fadnavis said the government had departed from the pattern of declaring drought in November and providing assistance in December.

The announcement drew criticism from the Opposition and farmers' organisations, which said the amount was insufficient to offset losses incurred during the kharif season.

The All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS) termed the assistance a "cruel joke" on farmers, arguing that many had lost their entire investment in their crops.

"Rs 5,000 is such a small amount that it will not compensate for the investment they have made. From past experience, this advance aid turns out to be the final package and therefore this is nothing but a cruel joke played on farmers," the organisation said in a statement.

Marathwada has increasingly depended on water tankers, while the government has faced criticism over its response to the drought.

Parul Kulshrestha
Bhonda (Bharatpur), October 14

TWO DAYS after former BJP MLA Atar Singh Bhadana was beaten to death by a large crowd in Bhonda village, located around 50 km from Jaipur, it is empty of its men. Five people have been arrested so far.

As they tend to the cattle, the women say the story is not as straightforward as it seems. For 12 years, they say, they have been protesting against Bhadana's stone-crusher unit, and its trucks for blocking the path their cattle used to reach the grazing lands. They were doing the same on October 11 evening, the villagers allege, and were first "fired upon" by Bhadana's men. The attack, the women say, was a retaliation.

Police sources said no evidence had been received of any firing. Bhadana was a one-time MLA, who represented the Bayana constituency from 2003 to 2008. His subsequent attempt to get re-elected, on the Congress ticket, failed, after which he had returned to the BJP.

As per the FIR lodged by Bhadana's wife Kamlesh, who was present with him when the incident happened, the mob set upon Bhadana and his aide Gagan Sharma in a "planned" attack. She has named 65 people from Bhonda village and claimed they had issued threats to her husband earlier too.

Kamlesh said she and Bhadana were at a shelter built at the stone-crusher site when 70-80 people arrived around 6-7 pm, armed with sticks, axes, iron rods, and firearms. While she ran up to the first floor and locked herself in, Kamlesh said, the men caught hold of Bhadana and hit him on the head, hands, legs, back, ribs and chest. Even when Bhadana started bleeding from his head, the attackers did not stop till he fell unconscious.

Kamlesh said the attackers also tried to break down her door, but were unable to. They allegedly set fire to the shelter, which had staff inside, and vandalised the crusher machinery. Sources said that those inside the shelter were able to escape as the fire didn't spread.

Weir Police Station SHO Dhirendra Baswal (Bhonda falls in Weir tehsil) said that while they left for the spot as soon as they heard of the attack, because it was dark and due to the bad road and remote location, they lost their way and made it only one-and-a-half hours later. A probe is underway, he said.

On Tuesday night, three officials of the Weir Police Station, including SHO Baswal and an Additional SP, were suspended.

Police also said that Kamlesh, who rushed her husband and the others injured to hospital, took with her the Digital Video Recorder in which footage of CCTV cameras around the site is recorded. Sources said the family has told the police it will hand it over soon.

Remains of the day

Two days later, the site is strewn with machine and vehicle parts, with broken glass and burnt bedding across the shelter room. Blood stains still mark the spot where Bhadana was killed, with three guards standing around it.

Stone mines have been operational in the area since 1997 and in 2012, Bhadana acquired partnership in one of the units. This was four years after his MLA tenure ended. A senior local official confirmed the long-standing dispute between Bhadana and villagers since then.

"Villagers went to court against Bhadana alleging that grazing had been hampered and a water stream blocked due to vehicles that were part of the mining operations. The High Court ordered that a separate grazing land be allotted and the mining company be told to construct a culvert on the stream. The Supreme Court subsequently stayed the construction of the culvert but upheld the direction to provide separate grazing land," an official said.

In 2025, Congress Bharatpur MP Sanjna Jatav held a hunger strike against alleged illegal mining on pasture land. She also posted on Twitter against Bhadana, saying he had been able to operate due to the BJP government's "protection". Several Congress leaders, including Karoli-Dholpur MP Bhajanlal Jatav, attended the protest.

Bharatpur SP Rajesh Meena said Bhadana and the villagers filed multiple FIRs against each other over the years. "In some FIRs, a chargesheet has been filed." Multiple efforts to reach Kamlesh were unsuccessful.

Asked about illegal mining in the area, Bharatpur Collector Qummer Ul Zaman refused to comment.

Not just Bhonda

In 2015, a committee of five members was set up in Ghatari village, 7 km from Bhonda, by the government to study the impact of stone-crushers in the area. Its report stated that most of the stone-crushers were operating within a 500-metre distance from habitations, much closer than the minimum 1,500-metre distance stipulated for mining operations.

Eleven years later, protests are still ongoing against "illegal" stone mining and "rising diseases" in Ghatari, and a current one started on July 27.

Jaswant Singh, 35, of Ghatari, argues that if nothing is wrong, why were so many villagers suffering from silicosis. "Our produce from the farms is filled with dust, as are our homes." Ghatari villagers say they have written multiple times to the District Collector and SDM, but have been offered no solution.

Raggu Gurjar, 82, says they are a community of Gurjars, who are traditionally shepherds. "The activities of Bhadana and his men directly impacted our livelihood."

● RAMAN PRACTISED SEED PRESERVATION AND TRADITIONAL RICE CULTIVATION; HIS COLLECTION OF RICE VARIETIES GREW TO 55 — ALL OF WHICH HE SOWED ON HIS THREE-ACRE PLOT

Shaju Philip
Thiruvananthapuram, October 14

FOR MOST of his life, Cheruvayal Raman fought to preserve indigenous rice varieties, earning him the moniker 'Nella achaan (father of rice)' and a Padma Shri in 2023. On Wednesday, that battle came to an end — the tribal farmer breathed his last at the age of 76.

Raman was undergoing treatment at Kozhikode Medical College and Hospital.

A member of the Kurichiya tribe, Raman began working in paddy fields at the age of 10. Although he studied only up to Class 5, his knowledge of traditional rice cultivation and seed conservation made him a textbook model for agricultural scientists, farmers and researchers.

His journey into seed conservation began around 2000, when, inspired by agricultural enthusiasts who wanted him to preserve the seeds, he began collecting indigenous varieties from paddy fields across Wayanad and cultivating 4-5 rice varieties. Over the years, that collection grew to 55 kinds — many of them varieties he believed had all but vanished as traditional cultivation dwindled.

At a time when agricultural scientists and governments were promoting high-yielding hybrid seeds, Raman chose to preserve traditional varieties, despite their comparatively low yields and associated financial losses. But his task was tall, and critics of the "unprofitable pursuit" were plenty — some from his own family.

Between harvests, Raman would visit the paddy fields of Wayanad in search of different rice varieties. His rice bank slowly grew with every year, and by 2016, Raman cultivated all 55 varieties every year on his three acres of paddy land, dividing the fields into small plots to accommodate each variety. He did not sell the seeds but shared them with farmers on the condition that they return a portion of their harvest as seeds to sustain the practice.

Cheruvayal Raman was a Padma Shri awardee

"Farmers, one after another, have been abandoning paddy cultivation. Some of these seeds would have become history, but for my initiative. Nobody wants to follow this unattractive, loss-making cultivation of rice," he said then.

Until the end, his search for new varieties and efforts to conserve them continued. He typically stored the seeds in bamboo baskets inside the century-old ancestral mud house he shared with his wife, Geetha, and his family. Despite receiving recognition from agricultural institutions and the government, he did not seek assistance to maintain his collection. His work also took him beyond India: in 2018, he presented his rice conservation mission at an international symposium in Brazil. He also received the National Plant Genome Saviour Award instituted by the Protection of Plant Varieties and Farmers' Rights Authority.

When he was honoured with the Padma Shri in the category of agriculture in 2023, Raman, a Class 5 dropout, told The Indian Express of the pressure of moving against the tide. "They told me that I have become mad over rice. But I stuck by my decision, and now everyone has acknowledged it," he said then.

In his condolence message, Keralam Chief Minister V D Satheesan called Raman a guardian and gene bank of rare paddy varieties. "Homage to the memory of this noble soul who truly understood soil, cherished the seeds, and lived for nature," he said on X.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi also expressed his condolences. "Deeply saddened by the passing of Padma Shri Cheruvayal Raman, our beloved Ramettan. He devoted his life to preserving Wayanad's indigenous paddy seeds, keeping generations of Adivasi knowledge alive. I join the people of Wayanad in mourning him," he wrote on X.

Wayanad MP Priyanka Gandhi wrote on X: "Cheruvayal Raman called me his daughter when I met him, and he touched my heart. From then on, I teased him and called him my Malayali Acchan. When we last spoke to each other a month back, he wanted me to go and meet him. I promised that I would, but I had to cut short my trip to Wayanad because of events in Delhi so I missed meeting him thinking that I would return soon."

SC makes insurance must for all train tickets from Oct 27

Ananthakrishnan G
New Delhi, October 14

The direction came on a plea filed in the wake of the June 2023 Odisha train accident in which at least 261 people were killed. EXPRESS FILE

IN A move to extend protection to all train travellers, the Supreme Court has directed the Indian Railways to provide insurance coverage to tickets purchased over the counter from October 27, warning that the Railway Board would be held directly responsible for any failure to implement the order.

The October 6 direction came on a plea filed in the wake of the June 2023 Odisha train accident, seeking a commission of inquiry to probe the crash, which the petitioner attributed to the non-implementation of the Kavach safety system. The plea also sought directions to the authorities to ensure its early implementation across all trains.

Hearing the matter, the bench of Justices Ahsanuddin Amanullah and R Mahadevan expanded its scope to cover various aspects of passenger safety, including railway foot over bridges, fencing of tracks, and the lack of insurance for tickets purchased over the counter.

During earlier hearings, the top court expressed displeasure over the allocation towards passenger safety in the Railway budget and hoped that more would be done on this front.

On May 11, the Centre assured the court that a decision on the question of providing insurance to offline tickets too "has been taken" and "modalities are being worked out". The bench noted that it had not been given details on how, in areas of expanding Kavach, foot over bridges and fencing, special emphasis has been given, and the matter prioritised pursuant to its orders.

The court directed that "details showing that on ...three issues, there has been special drive taken by the Railways, which obviously would entail making special budgetary/financial commitments towards these projects, be filed" within two months. It asked the Railways to "bring on record actual progress of the work on the ground."

Hearing the matter again on October 6, the court expressed its "utter disappointment and displeasure at the conduct of the officers of the Ministry of Railways" in what it said was "such a serious matter concerning the safety of the common man."

"The Railways have been representing before this Court that all necessary steps are being taken in this regard. However, it appears that such assurances have remained largely on paper and that no substantial change has taken place on the ground. Even the budgetary provisions indicated for the targeted areas relating to the safety of the common man and prevention of untoward incidents have not been fully utilised," the bench said.

The bench initially directed that the Chairman and Members of the Railway Board be personally present before it to answer its questions.

The bench warned if it found that the Railways was giving assurances to the court without making a corresponding effort to ensure their implementation on the ground, it would take a serious view of the matter. "We are particularly concerned that despite budgetary provisions having been made, even basic safety requirements appear not to have been adequately complied with and that the provisions made have remained substantially unimplemented."

Appearing for the Centre, Additional Solicitor General Vikramjeet Banerjee urged the bench to grant him one last opportunity to file a categorical affidavit setting out the actual work carried out on the ground during the last year, and explaining the reasons for not achieving the prescribed targets, at least in respect of fencing.

The court accepted the request and put on hold its order summoning the Chairman and members of the Railway Board.

On insurance coverage, the bench noted that it had given the authorities sufficient time to devise a mechanism to extend coverage to economically disadvantaged passengers, who often buy tickets at railway reservation counters. "As there has been no progress on this aspect either, we direct...with effect from October 27, 2026, all tickets sold over the counter at all railway stations shall also be covered by insurance in the same manner as tickets purchased online. The aforesaid direction shall be implemented mandatorily, failing which responsibility shall be directly upon the Railway Board."

The court will hear the matter next on November 16.

3 Indians killed in fire at building in Germany; Keralam MPs seek Centre's assistance

Press Trust of India
Thiruvananthapuram, New Delhi, October 14

IDUKKI MP Dean Kuriakose on Wednesday sought the Centre's intervention to bring home the mortal remains of Nova Sabu, an Indian woman who died in a fire at an apartment building in Germany.

Kollam MP N K Premachandran has also approached the Union government following reports that another woman from his constituency was affected by the incident.

According to reports, three Indian nationals were killed in a fire at a residential building in the German city of Bochum, local media reported on Wednesday. The victims were two women aged 25 and 27, and a 26-year-old man, all Indian nationals, German public broadcaster WDR (Westdeutscher Rundfunk) reported, citing details released by Bochum police.

In a letter to External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar, Kuriakose sought urgent assistance to repatriate the mortal remains of Nova, 25, a native of Idukki district.

Quoting her family members, the MP said Nova died in a fire at an apartment building in Germany on Tuesday morning.

He said her family was deeply distressed and that she had no immediate family members or close relatives in Germany to coordinate with local authorities and complete the necessary formalities.

Kuriakose urged Jaishankar to direct the Indian diplomatic missions in Germany to coordinate with local authorities for completing the post-mortem procedures and obtaining the necessary clearances for the early repatriation of her mortal remains to Nedumkandam in Idukki district.

Meanwhile, Premachandran has sought the Centre's intervention after receiving information that a woman from his constituency was among those affected by the fire.

Speaking to PTI, he said her condition could not be independently confirmed.

UP HC directs state poll panel to hold panchayat elections within three months

Press Trust of India
Prayagraj, October 14

THE ALLAHABAD High Court on Wednesday directed the State Election Commission to hold polls to Panchayati Raj institutions in Uttar Pradesh within three months.

The order was passed by a bench comprising Justices Ajit Kumar and Garima Prashad.

The petitioner had moved the court seeking a direction to State Election Commission to place on record a detailed time-bound schedule for completion of the entire panchayat election process well before the expiry of district panchayats' tenure.

"It is expected from respondent No.2 (State Election Commission) that the entire schedule of holding the election should be finalised and brought on record before the next date of listing," the court observed, while allowing the plea by Dashrath Yadav.

Earlier, Additional Chief Standing Counsel had submitted the state government had appointed an OBC Commission for determining reservation aspects related to the Other Backward Classes category.

The election of gram pradhans and members of gram panchayats cannot be held until said exercise is completed, as a decision on the reservations would be part of said elections, he had submitted. Till date, the OBC Commission has not submitted its report. The HC directed that the election be held within three months with the completion of the reservation exercise.

Jewellery firm employee shot in Rajkot, gold & silver stolen: Cops

Ahmedabad, October 14

A 51-YEAR-OLD man employed at a jewellery firm in Rajkot was shot dead on Wednesday evening, allegedly by four unidentified persons who pulled up in a car to the gate of the firm's factory as he was exiting, carrying nearly 1 kg gold and 3 kg silver, police said on Wednesday. The suspects took the jewellery and fled in the vehicle, police said.

Speaking to mediapersons , Hetal Patel, DCP (Zone 1), said, "Sardhara was carrying around 900 grams of gold and around 3 kg silver. As soon as he reached his two-wheeler, three-four men pulled up in a car and tried to loot him. When he fought back, they fired three shots at him and fled with the jewellery."

Bihar: Man dies in police custody, family says he was taken at 2 am; six policemen suspended

Himanshu Harsh
Patna, October 14

The officer said, "He jumped from the moving police vehicle... sustaining serious injuries"

SIX POLICE personnel, including the station house officer (SHO) of Sahodra police station in Bihar's West Champaran district, have been suspended following the death of a man identified as Dilshad Ansari in police custody. The man's family has alleged he was assaulted and has questioned the circumstances around his death.

Apart from the SHO, West Champaran Superintendent of Police Kumar Gautam has ordered the suspension of a sub-inspector, three constables and a driver constable.

Ansari was arrested in connection with a case registered on August 2, 2025, under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act at Sahodra police station.

"He was arrested from Banuchhapar on October 12 and was being taken back to Sahodra when he jumped from the moving police vehicle in the Shikarpur police station area, sustaining serious injuries. He was taken to the sub-divisional hospital in Narkatiaganj, from where doctors referred him to the Government Medical College and Hospital (GMCH) in Bettiah. He was declared dead on arrival," an officer claimed.

The officer said further legal proceedings are underway to ensure an impartial investigation in accordance with the National Human Rights Commission's guidelines.

Ansari's family has disputed the police account, alleging he was beaten in custody. His father, Akbar Ansari, claimed his son had "an injury mark on his forehead but no visible scratches elsewhere on his body".

"The police had no evidence. They took away our son from home at 2 am for questioning, saying they would return him in the morning," Akbar Ansari claimed, alleging that the police had taken his son from their home during the night.

According to the family, they were asked to reach the hospital after being told that his condition was critical, only to learn on arrival that he had died.

Ansari's wife, Nagma Khatoon, said the family was asleep when the police arrived at their house at around 2 am.

"I was sleeping inside with our child. There was knocking at the outer gate, and when my in-laws opened it, around 20 police personnel in two vehicles surrounded the house and took my husband away," she claimed.

Ansari and Khatoon got married last year and have a four-month-old daughter. He was working for a finance company, the family said. The family has demanded a government job for a member of the household, compensation for Ansari's death and punishment for those found responsible.

Jaipur, New Delhi, October 14

AN AIR India flight (AI 2030) from Frankfurt to Delhi was diverted to Jaipur following a security alert over a suspected hijack threat. The Boeing 787-9 aircraft, with 306 people on board, landed safely at Jaipur International Airport on Wednesday morning and was moved to an isolation bay for security checks. The plane and its crew were cleared to continue to Delhi later in the afternoon. The alert, which turned out to be baseless, is under investigation and the incident will also be probed by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA), officials said.

According to preliminary information, air traffic control (ATC) observed squawk code 7500 being transmitted by the aircraft. This code stands for unlawful interference, usually indicative of a hijacking attempt. According to sources in the know, the code was received by ATC when the aircraft was in the Mumbai flight information region (FIR). When the ATC asked the pilots about the code, the flight crew said that they hadn't transmitted it and all operations were normal, sources said.

Given the situation involved a possible security threat, all security protocols were followed, and pilots were asked to divert to Jaipur — one of the Indian airports designated to handle aircraft security threats like hijackings, they added.

At this stage, it is not clear what triggered the squawk code — a mistake, or a technical glitch with the aircraft or the ATC systems. There have been instances of technical faults leading to hijack alerts being transmitted. In fact, on Tuesday, a Corendon Airlines flight from Greece to Germany squawked 7500, prompting the German air force to scramble two fighter jets. The plane landed safely in Nuremberg and the airline said that the code was transmitted due to a brief malfunction in the radio communication system.

Earlier on Wednesday, Jaipur airport head Charan Singh had said that as per initial information, there was a possibility the pilot may have transmitted the alert by mistake, but added that the investigation was underway.

After the plane landed in Jaipur, another official said the aircraft was taken to an isolation bay at the airport where all the necessary security checks were performed, after which it was cleared for operations by the security agencies. The passengers and crew boarded the plane and continued the journey to Delhi.

"Air India flight AI2030 operating from Frankfurt to Delhi on 14 October was diverted to Jaipur following a perceived security concern. The aircraft landed safely in Jaipur. The relevant security agencies carried out the necessary checks... All passengers ... have since reboarded the aircraft. The flight is expected to continue its journey to Delhi shortly," Air India said in a statement on Wednesday before the plane left Jaipur for Delhi. As per flight tracking data, the aircraft departed from Jaipur at 2:37 pm and landed in Delhi 35 minutes later. Sources said the same pilots operated that flight.

Kolkata, October 14

AFTER A purported dashcam video of bikers slipping on a 'rainbow' flyover in Kolkata went viral, triggering the Opposition's criticism, the West Bengal Urban Development Minister, Agnimitra Paul, on Wednesday said an enquiry has been ordered to look into the cause of the accident.

"The chief minister (Suvendu Adhikari) has instructed officials to visit the spot and inspect the matter immediately. The officials have been directed to investigate the cause of the accident. Some people are saying that the colours are straining the eyes while driving. If that is the case, an alternative arrangement will be made. Whatever is convenient for the people's needs will be done," the minister told mediapersons.

Assuring the paint was not permanent and applied for the Durga Puja, the minister rejected the Opposition's claims that glossy paint was used. "We have used anti-skid paint... We have painted the roads and made alpona (traditional floral motifs) for the Puja as it is a part of our Bengali heritage and tradition," said Paul, who has been leading the road-painting drive.

The Mamata Banerjee-led Trinamool Congress faction said the flyover in the viral video has now become a "death trap".

Ashutosh Chatterjee, general secretary of the state Congress unit, earlier wrote to Paul and Smita Pandey, commissioner and administrator of Kolkata Municipal Corporation, about risks posed by coloured streets. "Our concern: glossy paint on roads intended for motor vehicle traffic is dangerous and should not be permitted. Anyone can paint a road, but the entire area of the carriageway used by vehicle tyres cannot be painted with ordinary household paint... Glossy paint makes surfaces smooth, which is dangerous for road safety. When wet with water, oil or diesel, its coefficient of friction may fall from 0.6–0.7 to below 0.3. As a result, two-wheelers and cars may skid. Poor adhesion to bitumen/concrete, road-marking materials are used as alternatives to conventional oil paint because of their technical performance, durability and reflective properties. Also, oil paint contains no glass beads, making it difficult to see at night or in rainy conditions."

Slamming BJP government, the Mamata Trinamool Congress said in a post on X, "The BJP government, which has come to power in Bengal by stealing the people's mandate, is now putting people's lives at risk! The freshly painted flyover has turned into a death trap, with bikes skidding ...at the very first spell of rain. Minister Agnimitra Paul must be held accountable for this gross negligence. The people of Bengal deserve safe roads, not dangerous infrastructure."

AFTER OP SINDOOR, STATES RUSHED TO BUY SIRENS. NOW A PROTOTYPE THAT CAN BE SET OFF BY A TEXT MESSAGE IS BEING TESTED FROM JAISALMER TO MUMBAI

Mohamed Thaver
Mumbai, October 14

ON OCTOBER 7, Mumbai's civic body issued a brief press note with an unusual request. Sirens would be sounded in south Mumbai's Fort area on October 8 and 9, it said, and citizens should not panic or misunderstand the sound. The test was pre-planned, and there was no actual emergency or threat.

When the sirens sounded the next day from the Old Secretariat building, what few realised was that similar tests had been carried out in Rajasthan's Jaisalmer on September 30 and in Bihar just two days earlier, on October 6.

The Mumbai test was part of a larger, nationwide exercise. After Operation Sindoor, states had rushed to buy air raid sirens, often without any specifications. Now the Centre wants to replace that patchwork with a single, advanced air raid warning system for the whole country, one that can be set off with a text message.

Leading the effort is a team from the Centre for Development of Telematics (C-DOT), under the Department of Telecommunications (DoT), working with the Director General, Civil Defence, New Delhi. Along with Civil Defence officials, the team has been travelling across the country, listening to sirens being played out and taking copious notes.

The trials began in border states such as Rajasthan and have now moved to coastal states such as Maharashtra. Punjab is likely to be next month.

At each stop, officials note how far the sound carries, how long the siren goes off, its technical connectivity and the type of noise it makes, along with the varying needs of the local area. The aim is to see whether the prototype needs any changes before it is finalised as the device for "centralised siren triggering".

A rush after 'Operation Sindoor'

The push for one system grew out of the tense weeks of May 2025. After the Pahalgam terror attack in April, India launched Operation Sindoor on May 7, striking terror camps in Pakistan and Pakistan-occupied Kashmir. Pakistan responded with drone and missile attacks on Indian border areas, and the hostilities lasted until a ceasefire on May 10.

On the day the strikes began, the Union Home Ministry ordered civil defence mock drills in 244 districts across the country, the first such nationwide exercise in decades. Air raid sirens were central to the drills, and to the fear that cities could come under attack. But in many places, the sirens had long fallen silent.

During the trial, the system demonstrated "real-time, centralised and geo-targeted dissemination" of cell broadcast messages, with geo-fenced activation of the siren. EXPRESS

"After Operation Sindoor when there was the possibility of a threat, various states had purchased sirens without any specifications. There was a rush to purchase these as most states had stopped the use of sirens so departments purchased whatever they could as the old sirens were not working," an official from Maharashtra said.

Once the urgency passed, the focus shifted to uniformity. "After the demo took place following instructions by the Centre due to the possibility of attacks post Operation Sindoor and the urgency passed, a need was felt to ensure that there was uniformity in the sirens used and there be a prototype using which the necessary specifications could be defined for future purchase," the official added.

A siren switched on by text

At the heart of the prototype is cell broadcast technology developed by C-DOT. The same technology was launched nationwide for disaster management on May 2, 2026, when alerts were sent to mobile phones across the country. It is now being evaluated for a second use -- activating sirens installed at different locations from a single central system.

In simple terms, a text message would flip the siren's switch, instead of someone having to operate it manually. Geo-fencing would allow sirens to go off only in a particular area, rather than across an entire state or the country.

A note by Maharashtra Civil Defence said C-DOT had successfully conducted the operational trial and field testing in Mumbai at the Old Secretariat Annexe Building on October 8, as part of modernisation of the Civil Defence Air Raid Warning siren system. During the trial, the note said, the system demonstrated "real-time, centralised and geo-targeted dissemination" of cell broadcast messages, with geo-fenced activation of the siren. The siren was activated multiple times through cell broadcast messages.

Why one size may not fit all

Even a standard system will have to bend to local conditions. In Mumbai, the problem is the skyline.

"Every state has their own unique issue. For instance, in Mumbai, where there are many skyscrapers, keeping a siren on the third floor will not be effective as adjacent buildings will block the sounds. Hence, state or city specific factors will also have to be taken into consideration before coming up with a final decision," the official said.

Sound output and activation are among the technical parameters being examined, and officials and experts recorded their observations during the trial to help improve the system. The siren system, an official said, serves as a vital medium for issuing timely warnings to the public in a potential emergency. For now, the technology remains in the prototype and testing phase, with its capabilities and possible improvements being assessed at different locations.

Soumyarendra Barik
New Delhi, October 14

SUNIL BHARTI Mittal, Chairman of Bharti Airtel, said on Wednesday that the group was ahead in line of Elon Musk's Starlink in receiving final clearances for launching satellite communications services in the country.

His comments come as Musk has upped the ante over the delay in receiving security clearance for his service.

"We are all awaiting our approvals. I think I am significantly ahead of him in the queue. I applied five years back. I have had my patent ready for the last three years. My settlers have been hovering over India for the last five years. We don't have the permission, so we'd be very happy to get it at least a few days before him (Elon Musk)," Mittal said during a panel discussion at the Bloomberg New Economy Forum 2026.

Starlink is among the operators that have secured GMPCS (global mobile personal communication by satellite) licences and other statutory approvals needed to launch satellite communication, or satcom, services in the country. Others who have received it include Bharti-backed Eutelsat OneWeb, and Jio Satellite Communications Ltd, a wholly owned subsidiary of Jio Platforms. Jeff Bezos-owned Amazon Leo is also in contention for a licence.

Last week, Musk took to social media, blaming "certain oligarchs" for blocking Starlink in the country, and calling it a "crime against the people of India". The Centre has said satcom applications were pending security clearance at the Home Ministry, saying the country's regulatory framework for satcom services is fair and non-discriminatory.

In a statement, the Ministry of Communications said, "The government has put in place a fair and non-discriminatory authorisation framework for all telecommunication services, including satellite communication services... Under the terms and conditions of licence, every such licensee is required to demonstrate compliance with security conditions... aimed at ensuring that services provided meet various security requirements to ensure safety of all users and their data."

Akash Mandal
Pune, October 14

HYUNDAI MOTORS India on Wednesday launched its new manufacturing plant in Talegaon, Pune, and committed to investing Rs 11,000 crore by 2030 to raise the plant's carmaking capacity by nearly 90% to 3.2 lakh units annually.

The carmaker's global and Indian management, along with the Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, attended the inauguration. The company's investment commitment comes a day after the South Korean automaker's global management committed $15.5 billion to India by 2032 in a meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The Pune plant, which will manufacture the company's Venue model among others for shipping globally, is also a key factor in the company reclaiming its second spot in the Indian car market, HMIL CEO Tarun Garg said. OVERALL LNG IMPORTS ROBUST DESPITE HORMUZ HIT

Oman replaces US as top LNG supplier to India

Sukalp Sharma
New Delhi, October 14

LNG imports from the US declined 60.7% in September.

INDIA'S LIQUEFIED natural gas (LNG) import slate underwent a discernible reshuffle in September with the US slipping a couple of positions from the top supplier spot, as European importers stepped up competition for American cargoes.

Nonetheless, New Delhi continued to import higher volumes of super-chilled gas on a year-on-year basis from a diversified pool of sources despite the disruption in supplies through the Strait of Hormuz crisis.

Robust LNG demand in India has led to Indian importers competing hard to pick up cargoes from the spot market at higher prices, even as some of the other major Asian LNG buyers have curtailed imports.

The West Asia crisis has pushed India to secure cargoes from non-hormuz dependent supply sources, as New Delhi has been prioritising supplies over price considerations amid demand from various sectors, which include city gas distribution (CGD), fertiliser, power, and ceramics.

According to tanker data, Oman and Nigeria topped the list of LNG suppliers in September, followed by the US.

In August, the US was the top supplier to India, followed by Nigeria, Oman, and the UAE.

Imports from the UAE rose significantly on a sequential basis in September, and volumes from Qatar also saw an uptick, reflecting the growing risk appetite of these Gulf states in sending their cargoes through the fraught waters of the strait, according to trade sources.

Prior to the West Asia conflict, Qatar was India's top source of LNG, while the UAE and the US frequently traded the second and third places between them.

LNG imports from the US in September declined 60.7% month-on-month to 0.34 million tonnes, while volumes from Oman rose 11.6% to 0.59 million tonnes, according to vessel tracking data from commodity market analytics firm Kpler.

Imports from Nigeria declined 35.1% from August to 0.35 million tonnes, while those from the UAE rose 27.3% to 0.31 million tonnes.

LNG imports from Qatar rose 6.7% sequentially to 0.1 million tonnes in September, but were down 88.5% year-on-year.

India's total LNG imports in September were down 12.7% month-on-month at 2.24 million tonnes, largely due to seasonal demand fluctuations. On a year-on-year basis though, September LNG imports were 7% higher.

According to industry insiders and experts, the UAE has been able to export sizeable cargoes despite the Hormuz blockade using tactics like switching off the LNG tankers' transponders to avoid detection and capitalising on windows of opportunity based on maritime security assessments in the region.

While Qatar has also exported some cargoes using this strategy, the UAE has been far more aggressive, displaying a higher risk-tolerance.

India depends on LNG imports to meet about half of its natural gas requirement, and about 60% of those imports came through the critical maritime chokepoint of the Strait of Hormuz, primarily from Qatar and also the UAE.

The two Gulf countries are major LNG exporters at the global level as well. Unlike Qatar and the UAE, Oman's LNG exports don't depend on the strait.

"September LNG imports were also supported by higher gas-fired power generation, as weaker hydropower availability and stretched coal-fired generation increased the call on gas despite the power sector's high price sensitivity. We expect India's LNG demand to remain resilient through the end of 2026 despite elevated prices, as growing city-gas consumption, including LPG-to-PNG (liquefied petroleum gas to piped natural gas) switching, and declining domestic natural gas production sustain import requirements," said Sonal Ranjan, LNG and natural gas analyst at Kpler.

"While elevated Asian spot LNG prices should constrain discretionary demand in the industrial sector, these underlying requirements provide a firmer floor for imports," Rajnan said.

According to her, India is competing hard for LNG cargoes in the international market, while other major Asian buyers like China, Japan, and South Korea aren't buying as much in the current high-price environment, and are curbing natural gas use by shifting to alternative fuels. China is also buying LNG from Russia.

India and most other large importers don't import Russian LNG due to Western sanctions on Moscow's LNG projects.

After falling in March and April — the first two months of the West Asia war — India's LNG imports have trended consistently higher on a year-on-year basis. In the May-September period, its imports rose 17.8% year-on-year to 11.87 million tonnes, as per Kpler data. In the five-month period, the US was India's largest source of LNG with volumes at 3.41 million tonnes, or 28.7% of total LNG imports. US LNG import volumes during the period were almost 175% higher than the year-ago period. But over the past couple of months, aggressive pre-winter buying from European importers have altered global flows with a large number of American LNG cargoes going to Europe.

India's LNG imports from Oman were 2.33 million tonnes, up nearly 419% year-on-year and accounting for almost a fifth of India's LNG imports in May-September. LNG imports from Nigeria in the five-month period stood at 2.20 million tonnes, up nearly 169% year-on-year and accounting for 18.5% of India's LNG import basket.

UAE had a share of 9.3% and LNG volumes from the country declined 10.1% over May-September of last year to 1.11 million tonnes. Qatari LNG volumes crashed 90.2% year-on-year in the five-month period to 0.41 million tonnes, and had a paltry market share of 3.4%. FULL REPORT ON WWW.INDIANEXPRESS.COM

ENS Economic Bureau
Mumbai, October 14

JIO PLATFORMS Ltd, the digital and telecom business of Reliance Industries Ltd, is set to enter the capital market with a mega public offer on October 21. The issue will be open for subscription till October 23.

The company has fixed the price band for the much-awaited IPO at Rs 1,065-1,119 per share, valuing the company at around Rs 9.8 lakh crore at the lower end of the price range and over Rs 11 crore at the upper range.

This will make Jio the third or fourth largest listed company in terms of valuation.

RIL, the parent of Jio, has a market valuation of Rs 15.91 lakh crore, Bharti Airtel Rs 11.22 lakh crore, HDFC Bank Rs 10.95 lakh crore and ICICI Bank Rs 9.61 lakh crore. The public offer of Jio, which will be India's biggest, is a fresh issue sale of 27 crore shares.

The company has filed its red herring prospectus with the Registrar of Companies (ROC). The offer includes reservation of equity shares of Jio Platforms for eligible employees worth up to Rs 500 crore.

For the eligible shareholders of Reliance, including individuals and Hindu undivided families, the reservation is up to Rs 2,500 crore. The IPO is expected to mobilise about Rs 37,700 crore, or close to $4 billion.

Of the issue proceeds, Rs 27,500 crore will be utilised to repay debt and the balance will be used for general corporate purposes not exceeding 25% of the proceeds. RIL holds 66.43 % stake in JPL while Meta Platforms of the US, founded by Mark Zuckerburg, has 9.98% and Google 7.73%.

Not less than 35% of the net issue will be available for allocation to retail individual investors, according to the DRHP.

The proposed IPO of Jio Platforms has been one of the most closely watched developments in India's capital markets, largely because of the company's dominant position in telecommunications and its rapidly expanding digital ecosystem.

Since its launch in 2016, Jio transformed the Indian telecom sector through aggressive pricing, widespread 4G and 5G adoption and large-scale investments in network infrastructure.

Jio has over 524 million subscribers across India. Jio's network leadership in 5G continued to attract subscribers with a total 5G subscriber base reaching 268 million as of March 2026. Customer engagement also remains robust with 5G now accounting for 55% of total wireless traffic, the company said. Jio Platforms attracted billions of dollars in investments from global technology majors like Meta Platform, Google and Intel in 2020.

CENTRE'S FY27 DISINVESTMENT TARGET IS RS 80,000 CRORE

Siddharth Upasani & Aanchal Magazine
New Delhi, October 14

THE INDIAN government will continue pushing hard to sell stakes in public sector companies despite having met its target for the 2026-27 fiscal year following the Cabinet's approval to the "strategic restructuring" of IDBI Bank.

On Wednesday, the Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs announced Canada's Fairfax Financial Holdings, backed by Indian-Canadian billionaire Prem Watsa, as the buyer of 60.72% stake in IDBI Bank for Rs 52,878 crore.

Once the deal is completed — which is expected to happen by the end of the fiscal — the Centre will meet its full-year disinvestment target of Rs 80,000 crore. As part of the disinvestment, the government is putting up 30.48% of IDBI Bank on the block, while Life Insurance Corporation of India is going to sell 30.24%. As such, the total proceeds of Rs 52,878 crore will be split almost evenly between the two. As per latest data from the Department of Investment and Public Asset Management (DIPAM), the Centre has so far raised Rs 55,757 crore via disinvestments.

"We can't stop (after this)," a senior finance ministry official said. "Only a few weeks after the Budget was presented in February, the closure of Strait of Hormuz led to supply disruptions. So, the government is spending a lot this year, especially on oil and fertiliser."

"We had planned in advance to stock up fertiliser for the rabi season, but we continue to receive requests for more. And we can't say no. So, a steady flow of disinvestment receipts will help the government's fiscal situation," the official further said, adding that "everything decided in Cabinet (on disinvestment approvals) will keep going."

Some of the government enterprises where in-principle approval has already been given for whose strategic disinvestment but is not yet completed include BEML Limited, Shipping Corporation of India Limited, HLL Lifecare Limited, Project & Development India Limited, and NMDC Steel Limited.

"Disinvestment is a difficult process. A lot of people are involved. And while the pace of the process may not be as fast as everyone would want it to be, we are going ahead meticulously and steadily to ensure the result is process driven," the aforementioned official said.

The Budget for 2026-27 had estimated that the Centre will spend Rs 1.71 lakh crore as fertiliser subsidy. However, data from the Controller General of Account shows the combined subsidy spending on urea and nutrient-based fertilisers was Rs 1.03 lakh crore, 60% of the full-year target, in just the first five months of the fiscal, or April-August. The Centre is targeting a fiscal deficit of 4.3% of GDP in 2026-27, or Rs 16.96 lakh crore in absolute terms. FULL REPORT ON WWW.INDIANEXPRESS.COM

COLLAPSE OF UAE'S NMC HEALTHCARE

BoB vows to defend $15bn suit filed by NMC founder

ENS Economic Bureau
Mumbai, October 14

A DAY after BR Shetty, founder of NMC Healthcare and UAE Exchange, filed a $15 billion suit against Bank of Baroda (BoB) in the Bombay High Court, the bank said it had taken note of reports about the suit, adding that it would "defend the suit firmly" and take all necessary steps to protect its interests if served.

Shetty has alleged BoB and former executives of his business group led to the collapse of his business group.

In his suit, Shetty has sought $5 billion in direct damages for alleged fraud and negligence, $5 billion in consequential damages and a further $5 billion in compensation for reputational harm arising from actions taken by the bank, including the issuance of a lookout circular against him. He has also sought 18% interest on the first $10 billion.

The suit names Bank of Baroda, several of its current and former officers, former NMC executives, other individuals and companies.

"We wish to inform that Bank of Baroda has seen media reports of a suit said to have been filed by BR Shetty in the Bombay High Court on October 13, 2026.

"The bank has not been served with such a suit and cannot comment on the contents of pleadings which are untested in court. If and when the bank is served, the bank will defend the suit firmly and take all steps necessary to protect its interests," the bank said in an exchange filing.

FASTag at Delhi Airport: Can payment system be used to restrict entry?

Dheeraj Mishra
New Delhi, October 14

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) has taken cognisance of complaints regarding the use of FASTag for parking fee payments at the Indira Gandhi International Airport in New Delhi.

Officials said that it was recently learnt that only vehicles with active FASTag were being allowed at the arrival lane of the Delhi airport's Terminal 3 (or T3, which operates international and select domestic flights), while others were being diverted to the multi-level car parking (MLCP) facility located opposite the terminal.

This results in many vehicles exhausting the free waiting time limit of 8 minutes.

What is FASTag?

FASTag is an electronic toll collection system in India that NHAI operates using Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) technology for automatic and cashless toll payments directly from the customer's linked savings or current account, or prepaid wallet. An RFID tag has to be affixed to the vehicle's windscreen, which scans automatically at toll plazas, deducting the fare directly from the linked account or wallet. If a FASTag is linked to a prepaid account, it needs to be recharged or topped up based on the customer's usage. If the customer doesn't maintain an adequate balance, the FASTag gets blacklisted. FASTag is also vehicle-specific: once affixed to a vehicle, it cannot be transferred to another vehicle. It can be purchased from any of the National Electronic Toll Collection member banks — a group of over 40 financial institutions.

Only vehicles with active FASTag were allowed at the airport's T3 arrival lane. Others were diverted to multi-level car parking facility. REUTERS

What did officials say about FASTag usage?

Officials said that FASTag is only a payment system and it cannot be used for enforcing the entry restrictions. "It is about the purpose for which it is being used. FASTag is a payment instrument for parking facilities at airports and cannot be used as a means of enforcing entry restriction," an official told The Indian Express.

"The matter has been taken cognisance of and the authority has directed the banks, which operate at the airport, to ensure that the system is only used for the payment and discontinue it from any such restriction," the official added.

As things stand, the Delhi airport offers a free waiting time of 8 minutes for private vehicles in Lane 3 of T3's arrivals area. This was introduced in October 2024 to reduce traffic congestion by ensuring a steady flow of vehicles in and out of the pickup lane. After 8 minutes, the airport charges Rs 250 for 9-13 minutes and Rs 500 for over 13 minutes of parking. Making FASTag mandatory for entry into the arrival lane is inconvenient for many Delhi-NCR residents. According to the official, many vehicles don't have an active FASTag or FASTag with sufficient balance since they do not need to use toll plazas for commuting within the city.

Many users on the social media platform X have shared their grievances regarding payment of parking fees at the airport. Some have suggested using alternative mechanisms for levying parking fees.

HOUTHIS URGE INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING COMPANIES, CIVILIANS AND WORKERS TO EVACUATE SAUDI AIRPORTS, ENERGY SITES

Extensive damage caused, fire spread across floors: Sources

Reuters
Riyadh, October 14

YEMEN'S HOUTHIS vowed Wednesday to press on with attacks on airports and oil facilities in Saudi Arabia, a day after a strike sources said caused extensive damage to headquarters of oil giant Saudi Aramco.

The Houthis said the threatened locations were legitimate targets and described their attacks as retaliation for Saudi strikes on Yemen - threatening to escalate a conflict reignited by the US-Iran confrontation in the Gulf.

Saudi Arabia has faced widening Houthi strikes over the past week, including an attack on King Khalid International Airport in Riyadh on Saturday that killed 13 people.

Tuesday night's attack on Saudi Aramco's base in the eastern city of Dhahran caused a fire that spread across several floors, three people with knowledge of the matter told Reuters. The Saudi energy ministry had saidthe strike caused a limited fire.

A screengrab of CCTV footage shows people taking cover as flames and smoke fill part of King Khalid International Airport in Riyadh. FILE

Operations at Aramco were continuing normally, with employees working from home, according to two of the sources. Aramco did not immediately reply to a Reuters request for comment.

The escalating conflict has dealt a blow to Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman's ambitious plans to transform and diversify the Saudi economy and reduce its reliance on oil.

The Houthis say they have been retaliating for the kingdom's backing of Yemeni government forces in the Yemen war that restarted last month.

The Saudi-led coalition said it had intercepted a ballistic missile fired by the Houthis towards Riyadh on Wednesday, and several loud booms were heard in the Saudi capital.

Saudi authorities earlier issued an alert for a possible aerial threat in Riyadh on Wednesday before the warning was lifted, a witness said. It wasn't immediately clear what caused the booms and there was no immediate comment from the authorities on their source.

The Saudi government media office didn't respond to a request for comment about the cause of the booms.

In their statement on Wednesday, the Houthis said they had launched ballistic missiles, cruise missiles and drones at the Saudi Aramco facilities in Dhahran, Riyadh airport and an Aramco refinery in Riyadh.

In a broad threat, Houthis urged "international shipping companies", civilians and workers to evacuate Saudi airports and oil facilities.

2 ships sink near Strait after being hit by projectiles

A CONTAINER ship and a dry bulk carrier have both sunk near the Strait of Hormuz in the past 24 hours after being hit by projectiles in separate incidents, maritime officials said on Wednesday.

The Singapore-flagged GFS Pride, a small container vessel, sank while sailing through the strait. "GFS PRIDE sustained damage and a fire on board, and has since sunk. All 21 crew members were safely evacuated. No injuries have been reported," the Maritime and Port Authority of Singapore said.

In another incident, the Antigua and Barbuda-flagged Cape Dao sank close to the strait, weeks after being struck by a projectile, data from International Maritime Organization showed Wednesday.

Netanyahu: Not looking to attack Iran before polls

Reuters
Jerusalem, October 14

ISRAELI PRIME Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Wednesday he was not in favour of a preemptive strike against Iran before Israel's October 27 election but also warned Tehran and its proxies against striking Israel.

"It is not convenient for us, it's no good," Netanyahu said in an interview on Israel's Army Radio, when asked about the possibility of a preemptive strike and allegations by his political rivals that he was seeking a military confrontation ahead of the election.

"Even if Iran fires missiles at us they will blame me," Netanyahu said, though he also repeated his previous warnings to Iran, saying Israel would respond forcefully if attacked.

'Painful' that Trump chose different side, says Zelenskyy; London reaffirms support

Reuters
London, October 14

VOLODYMYR ZELENSKYY received a strong show of support in London on Wednesday, meeting Prime Minister Andy Burnham and King Charles after the Ukrainian leader's relationship with the US took a sharp turn for the worse.

Zelenskyy was given the red-carpet treatment, arriving in Britain after another night of heavy Russian attacks and after Ukraine accused Elon Musk's SpaceX of crippling its drones by limiting services.

The diplomatic display, which included a 25-minute audience with Charles and a ceremonial guard in Downing Street, echoed Zelenskyy's February 2025 visit to London after he had clashed with US President Donald Trump and his deputy JD Vance.

Britain's PM Andy Burnham with Volodymyr Zelenskyy at 10 Downing Street, Wednesday. AP

At the start of Wednesday's Downing Street meeting, Zelenskyy said he wanted to discuss the difficulties over Starlink and intelligence sharing, and that Ukraine still relied on its partnership with the US.

Trump said at the weekend Zelenskyy should be replaced as Ukraine's leader, days after he cut a deal with Moscow to lift sanctions on Russian diesel. Britain has said it does not support the US-Russia diesel deal, and called for allies to keep up economic pressure on Moscow.

In an interview with broadcaster Piers Morgan, Zelenskyy said it was painful when Trump sided with Russia over Ukraine. "It's painful when President Trump chooses one side, not our side."

Burnham said the last few days had been "very dark nd difficult" for Ukraine, but that Britain remained a staunch ally. "We're behind you, and that will not change," he said.

Ukraine drones strike Russia's top data centre

Moscow: Ukrainian drones hit Russia's biggest data centre on Wednesday, part of a series of attacks appearing to target Moscow's ambitions to develop Russian AI capabilities on a par with those from the US and China.

The strike on the Balakovo data centre followed three attacks in the past week on data centres owned by Russian technology group Yandex.

"We confirm the data processing centre was attacked. But... all of Sberbank's services are operating normally...," Sberbank First Deputy CEO Alexander Vedyakhin said. REUTERS

Former Ukrainian officer on trial over Nord Stream blasts

Associated Press
Hamburg, October 14

DEFENCE LAWYERS for a former Ukrainian army officer charged with damaging the Nord Stream gas pipelines in blasts four years ago have called for the dismissal of charges on the first day of his trial.

The trial that opened Wednesday in Hamburg centres on undersea explosions that damaged the Nord Stream gas pipelines linking Russia and Germany in what is considered one of Europe's biggest acts of sabotage since World War II.

Serhii Kuznietsov, 50, faces charges of causing an explosion, damaging property, disrupting public service and being an "accomplice to war crimes" by attacking civilian infrastructure.

His lawyers, making the motion for dismissal, argued that Kuznietsov was still an active-duty soldier and, as such, was obligated by Ukrainian law not to speak for reasons of secrecy linked to national security.

As the proceedings got underway at Hanseatic Higher Regional Court, Kuznietsov, dressed in a grey suit and dark tie, kept a calm expression as he sat between two lawyers in black robes. From the dock, Kuznietsov glanced over to a packed visitors area and exchanged smiles with two people.

He did not speak during the proceedings, which lasted about two hours, and listened to simultaneous translation from German into Ukrainian through white headphones.

After the charges were read out, a judge asked whether Kuznietsov wanted to comment, and his defence lawyers said he did not.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY will ban parties and social events at fraternity houses until the end of the academic year, its president said Tuesday, responding to the outcry over an alleged gang rape on campus in 2024.

The measure is the strongest reaction yet from Cornell's leadership to a lawsuit filed by a former undergraduate, Jane Doe, alleging seven men sexually assaulted her during a party. Over the last several weeks, the Ivy League school in Ithaca, New York, and its president, Michael Kotlikoff, have come under heavy criticism from students, faculty and donors over its response to the allegations.

The suspension of parties and social events will apply to Interfraternity Council houses. "These measures will provide time for a thorough review of fraternity life at Cornell to determine whether and how it can safely continue," Kotlikoff said in the statement.

Prosecutors reopened the investigation into the alleged gang rape after the lawsuit was filed. New York state Governor Kathy Hochul appointed New York Attorney General Letitia James as an independent special prosecutor in the case.

Wisconsin: Child among six killed in plane crash

Dellona: Six people, including one child, were killed Tuesday night in a plane crash near Wisconsin Dells, the Sauk County Sheriff's Department said.

The six-seat, single-engine plane was travelling from Kenosha to Menomonie when it crashed in a wooded area near Mirror Lake State Park in the Town of Dellona shortly before 10 pm, authorities said.

The National Transportation Safety Board said Wednesday the plane was flying at 24,000 feet when pilot reported icing and requested to descend.

Air traffic control approved the descent, and the plane began a right descending turn that increased in rate until communications and data tracking were lost, the NTSB said. REUTERS

Arun Janardhanan
Chennai, October 14

A FACEBOOK comment written in anger, deleted soon afterwards and followed by a public apology, had brought a Sri Lankan migrant worker within reach of execution in Saudi Arabia. On Tuesday, the kingdom's Supreme Court set aside his death sentence after months of legal proceedings and diplomatic intervention by Sri Lanka.

For Anojan Sivarasa, a young Tamil man from Kalmunai in eastern Sri Lanka's Ampara district, the decision marked an extraordinary reversal.

Sri Lankan President Anura Kumara Dissanayake welcomed the ruling, saying it brought "immense relief to Anojan, his family, and all Sri Lankans who have followed his case with deep concern."

The outcome, he said, "reflects the value of patient diplomacy, respect for the legal processes of a friendly nation, and the tireless work of those who stood by a Sri Lankan citizen abroad."

The case began in June with an argument on Sri Lankan social media over a dog named Subramaniam accompanying Hindu pilgrims to the Kataragama temple. Footage showing a Muslim youth kicking the animal near Kalmunai sparked public anger and police complaints. He was arrested, later released on bail, and apologised.

Sivarasa, who moved to Saudi Arabia for work in September 2025, was arrested in July. Amnesty International said he told a judge he had written the comment in anger and later expressed remorse.

On July 27, the Criminal Court in Al-Ahsa sentenced him to five years in prison and fined him $800,000 under the kingdom's Anti-Cybercrime Law. On September 17, the Court of Appeal in the Eastern Region increased the sentence to death, treating the offence as carrying a fixed punishment under its interpretation of Islamic law.

AN OPENAI employee who left the ChatGPT maker for Apple sent more than 100 files about an unreleased product to a personal account and later made a presentation about the unreleased product to senior Apple leadership, a new filing in the lawsuit between OpenAI and Apple alleges. In the filing in US federal court in San Jose, California, OpenAI alleged the presentation happened months ago and that Apple is now making AI products of its own, citing the release of Apple's HomeView product this week. "OpenAI is very concerned its trade secret and confidential information is now circulating inside Apple, where Apple engineers can shape upcoming products based on OpenAI's confidential and innovative work," OpenAI said in its filing. Court rejects ex-PM's bid to delay jail term

FORMER MALAYSIAN Prime Minister Najib Razak on Wednesday lost a bid to delay the enforcement of a 15-year jail sentence for corruption. Najib, 73, has been imprisoned since August 2022 in a graft case linked to the multibillion-dollar looting of the 1MDB state investment fund. Last year he was convicted and sentenced to another 15 years and fined $2.8 billion in a second, bigger graft trial tied to the 1MDB fund. He was found guilty of abuse of power. AP

Vatican City, October 14

POPE LEO'S recovery from surgery is progressing as expected and he has begun walking in his hospital room and eating normally, the Vatican said Wednesday, after doctors announced the 71-year-old pontiff was being treated for lung cancer.

World leaders, Catholics across the globe and senior cardinals at Vatican have offered prayers for Leo after he had part of his right lung removed in an operation Tuesday.

Blood tests and a chest X-ray carried out Wednesday showed normal post-operative results, the Vatican said, adding that the pontiff had undergone respiratory physiotherapy.

The cancer diagnosis for a pope known to be relatively young and energetic and who was elected only in May 2025 caused shock and raised questions about the future shape of his papacy as he deals with the illness.

Leo normally follows a very busy schedule. He is due to make a tour of Uruguay, Argentina and Peru from November 6 to 17 and the Vatican press office said on Wednesday that "nothing has changed" regarding the planned trip.

However, Peruvian President Keiko Fujimori said on Wednesday that the dates could change because of the amount of time his recovery would take.

The pope is the ultimate earthly authority for the world's 1.4 billion Catholics and does not have a deputy who steps in when he is sick.

When pope is incapacitated, business of Vatican's bureaucracy carries on as usual, holding off on any decisions that require papal approval.

Ted Anthony
October 14

PRESIDENT DONALD Trump's new press secretary stepped to the podium, the eyes of a packed room of journalists — and many in their audiences — upon her. She smiled broadly at the sea of faces both probing and friendly. With that, Katie Zacharia went live and became the official voice of the world's most powerful person.

Fourteen minutes and just three questioners later, she was done. In the aftermath, it was clear that the former Newsmax commentator accomplished at least one thing: She put the "brief" back in briefing.

In her debut Tuesday, Zacharia looked downward and often read directly from a script. She paused and grinned when she uttered the words "Department of War."

She stumbled on a question about her background and mixed up the words "husband" and "president." The few questions she took were nonconfrontational and from media outlets that have been sympathetic to the Republican president. In short: She made no memorable impression — or at least, to hear some tell it, not the one she likely wanted.

This would not be an easy job under any circumstances. Trump most frequently serves as his own spokesman. And his antagonism toward the media has created a new layer of tension. Zacharia is finding out on day one that she, too, will be under constant watch.

Some — including a few of those who have stood in her shoes — didn't think it went all that well. In fractured times, in a national media scrum unimaginable just a few decades ago, what is the proper way to approach a job like this?

How do you speak effectively when your boss speaks for himself so often that he commandeers the news cycle multiple times a day — and sometimes late into the night — with remarks provocative, unexpected and sometimes incendiary? For one, you realize for whom you work: not your audience of millions but your audience of one, and the absolute need for his approval.

White House Press Secretary Katie Zacharia at the James Brady Press Briefing Room in the White House on Tuesday. AP

"I get to do what I was doing on the outside already, which was hoping to amplify, multiply and expand upon President Trump's incredible agenda for the American people," Zacharia said. Nowhere did she mention the task of disseminating accurate information to Americans.

Over the nearly 10 decades since former journalist George E Akerson made his and the office's debut as Herbert Hoover's press secretary in 1929, the job has served many purposes: deliverer of information, amplifier of policy, jouster with journalists, protector of the presidential reputation and, sometimes, overlord of obfuscation.

Under Trump and his second-term press secretary so far, Karoline Leavitt, who resigned in August, the job has been primarily one of acting as the immovable object against an irresistible, and in Trump's eyes sometimes treasonous, force.

Leavitt got to know this terrain well in her 17-month tenure. She took a smiling but combative stance against a press that was increasingly coming under Trump's criticism for coverage — and was named in at least one lawsuit about White House media access.

She was not shy about interdicting what she considered media bias. "What a stupid question," she said to one reporter at a briefing last year. Trump, outside the White House on Tuesday shortly after Zacharia's briefing, praised her debut as "excellent." She was standing behind him at the time. Other early reviews were more critical. MS NOW quoted one unnamed White House official as saying of the performance: "She needs to get much better fast, otherwise she'll break Scaramucci's record."

Anthony Scaramucci, an early White House communications director for first-term Trump, lasted 11 days in 2017, said on X Tuesday afternoon: "I hope she makes it." Joe Biden's former press secretary, Jen Psaki put it more succinctly, posting on X: "Well the briefing was basically an SNL skit....except it wasn't." AP
