Gujarat sailor killed after projectile hits cargo vessel off Oman coast near Hormuz

A 25-YEAR-OLD Indian sailor from Porbandar in Gujarat was killed after an explosive projectile hit an Indian-flagged cargo vessel in Omani waters near Limah in Oman close to the mouth of the Strait of Hormuz on Monday evening.

The sailor, Nahim Ajij Gandhar, is the fifteenth Indian seafarer to have been killed at sea since the beginning of the war in Iran and the Persian Gulf.

The projectile, which is suspected to have been a drone or a missile, hit the port side of the mechanised sailing vessel (MSV) Al Jusufi (BDI-1442) on the same day as the United States carried out new strikes on Iranian targets in the strait.

The port side is the left of a ship when an observer on board faces its bow. MSVs are traditional wooden-hull, diesel-run cargo vessels with carrying capacities of between 200 and 3,000 metric tonnes.

THE INDIAN Navy said on Tuesday that it carried out a successful operation to rescue a fishing vessel with 20 Iranian crew members that was hijacked by armed pirates off the coast of Somalia last month.

The operation, which lasted over 48 hours and ended on Monday night, involved the deployment of Marine Commandos through a precision airdrop by an Indian Air Force (IAF) C-17 aircraft, it said.

In a statement, the Iran Embassy in New Delhi expressed its "sincere appreciation to the Government of India, the Indian Navy and the Indian Air

Poll panel fixes Form 6, deletes 'illegal' SIR para

In five weeks since Express report, Commission has moved on every issue raised by the two ECs

Mumbai, November 3

IN THE latest of a series of U-turns that have effectively undone almost every decision the two Election Commissioners, Sukhbir Singh Sandhu and Vivek Joshi, had objected to in 14 notes over 10 months, the Election Commission of India (ECI) has now taken the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) declaration out of the online version of the statutory voter enrolment form, Form 6, on its ECINet portal in the states where the SIR is still underway.

What this means is that the declaration inserted between Sections J and K of the online enrolment application for new voters is no longer part of Form 6. This declaration asked applicants to choose one of three statements: whether their name appeared in the electoral roll during the last SIR held in

Biometrics, voter IDs for beneficiary payments, not Aadhaar: Minister

New Delhi, November 3

UNION MINISTER Rajiv Ranjan Singh, alias Lalan Singh, has said payments to beneficiaries on the basis of their Aadhaar numbers will soon be replaced by a system processing payments using their biometrics and voter ID (EPIC) numbers.

Singh, who is the Union Minister of Panchayati Raj, Fisheries, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, made these remarks last Friday during the National Workshop on People's Plan Campaign 2026-27, organised by the Ministry of Panchayati Raj.

Addressing the workshop, Singh said, "*Ek baat aur kah dena chahte hain ki ab Aadhaar labharthiyon ko bhugtan karne ka jo aadhaar hai, woh Aadhaar card nahin rahega. Aadhaar card, ab Aadhaar card banane wali jo sansthayen hain, woh har gali mein uplabdh hain. DAYS AFTER senior journalist Usha Rai recounted her nine-month ordeal in obtaining her sister's death certificate, the Haryana government on Tuesday said action has been taken against two employees of the Municipal Corporation of Gurugram (MCG) following an investigation which found "procedural irregularities in the processing of the application".

In her article published in The Indian Express on October 31, Rai had alleged multiple demands for bribe before she finally got the certificate in September, nine months after her sister's death in Gurugram.

Is India not secular? Re-upload Diwali video: HC to BMC on Dia Mirza clip

Mumbai, November 3

Actor Dia Mirza's clip was taken down after BJP leaders objected

STATING IT was "disturbed" by the deletion of a video featuring actor Dia Mirza for a pollution-free Diwali campaign following objections by some political leaders, the Bombay High Court, while underlining the secular credentials of the country, Tuesday asked the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation to restore the clip.

Hearing a suo motu PIL on noise and air pollution during festivals, the bench of Justice Girish S Kulkarni and Justice Neela K Gokhale expressed its displeasure over the BMC pulling down the video after Mayor Ritu Tawde and BJP Mumbai chief Ameet Satam objected to Mirza's inclusion.

Calling it "unfortunate" that the issue had been given a "different colour", the bench said it would be "ideal" if the the campaign content is put up again to "restore confidence of people in the Constitution", noting that the city of Mumbai survives on the feeling of "togetherness" and "the balance ought not to be disturbed by any loose comments".

"We would desire that in the event any goodwill message of any celebrity was taken off from the corporation's social media, it would be ideal if the same is put back, in the spirit of what the Supreme Court has observed that the festival is for

On Govt agenda: New Rs 2,800-cr capex scheme for critical minerals

Pratyush Deep
New Delhi, November 3

A NEW scheme with a proposed outlay of about Rs 2,800 crore to provide capital expenditure (capex) support for the processing of critical minerals such as lithium and nickel ores is likely to be taken up by the Union Cabinet on Wednesday, The Indian Express has learnt.

According to sources aware of the development, the scheme, aimed at developing domestic critical mineral processing base, is likely to be focused on processing of lithium and nickel ores and intermediary products into high-purity compounds. Cobalt is expected to be recovered as a by-product of nickel production, the sources said.

Lithium, nickel and cobalt are important components for Li-ion batteries that power everything from smartphones to electric vehicles.

Sources said the scheme is likely to provide a capital subsidy of 30 per cent of eligible investment for setting up four processing plants — two lithium processing plants with a

Currently, India has limited processing capacity and is almost completely import-dependent for key critical minerals like cobalt, lithium, nickel, rare earth elements and silicon. ● TWO BODIES FOUND, SEARCH OPERATIONS STILL ON FOR SIX MISSING TREKKERS IN UTTARAKHAND

'Loved mountains... saved money for tours': 5 Bengal friends among missing trekkers

Ravik Bhattacharya & Vidheesha Kuntamalla

SINTU MONDOL last spoke to his brother, Rintu, on October 26, two days after Rintu and his four friends left their homes in West Bengal's Bankura for a trek in Uttarakhand's Kedartal. The five are among eight trekkers who went missing after snowfall and avalanches hit the region, as rescue teams race against time to look for them. On Tuesday, two bodies — that of a man and a woman — were recovered, though their identities have not been established so far.

"They left on October 24. The last time I spoke to him was on October 26. He said that he would be unreachable for a few days," said Sintu. On Monday, a week after he last heard his brother's voice, local administrative officials visited the Mondols and the four other families and told them that their sons were missing. "We are worried sick," said Sintu.

Rintu Mondol (40) and his friends, Uday Ghosh (30), Ratan Ghosh (23), and Tapas Bauri (30) from Salboni village and Monoj Khawas (39) from Keshra village are mountain lovers, Sintu said.

"This is the fifth year they visited Uttarakhand. They love the mountains. They save money for a tour every year. They also visited Darjeeling and Nepal," Sintu told The Indian Express.

Their families said the five work in factories and make around Rs 20,000 a month. With this income, setting aside money for travel is not easy, but they loved the mountains too much to stay home.

Rintu lives with Sintu, his wife, and their two children. "My brother is the leader of the group of five. He is a popular guy. He works in a local sponge iron factory like me and earns Rs 19,000 per month. He saves money for the tours. He is not interested in marriage and eagerly waits for the annual trip to the mountains," said Sintu.

He said that the five friends had saved up and bought trekking jackets and boots that they took on tours.

Uday Ghosh (30) works in a rubber factory in Bankura and earns around Rs 20,000 a month. Like Rintu, he is unmarried. "Before leaving home, my brother said they wanted to see Kedartal. In the past four years, they visited various Dhams and places in Uttarakhand, but not Kedartal," Moloy Ghosh, Uday's brother, told The Indian Express over the phone.

Uday lives with his father, mother, brother and brother's wife. "My brother used all his savings on this annual tour. He said he would marry after constructing our home. The first floor roof is up. He said he would get the rest built gradually," said Moloy.

Uday's father Dinesh said they believe he will return safely. "Yesterday, officials visited our house and informed us that they are lost in snow. They said that rescue operations could not be conducted on Monday because of snowfall. They said they will update us soon, positive or negative. We believe he will return home alive," he said.

Tapas Bauri lives with his parents and brother and works at a sponge iron factory, and Ratan Ghosh and Monoj Khawas work in a land developer's office.

Tuesday was the fifth day of the rescue operation. An update by the Uttarkashi District Emergency Operations Centre stated that a joint team of the State Disaster Response Force and the Nehru Institute of Mountaineering recovered two bodies during a search operation for the eight trekkers that began around 7:30 am "after considerable effort".

The operation was called off at around 3 pm, following which the rescue teams returned to base camp. The operation will resume Wednesday.

The team has constructed an alternative helipad at the incident site, located at an altitude of 4,005 metres, to the early 2000s, whether the name of a parent or grandparent appeared in that roll, or whether neither their name nor that of their parents appeared in it. An applicant could not proceed without answering it.

Joshi had written on May 16 that no such change could be made without a legal amendment to the form. Sandhu, on August 13, called it "unauthorised/illegal". This declaration is now available on the portal as a separate form.

The development comes after the Commission told the Supreme Court, in its counter-affidavit filed on October 26, that its ER (Electoral Roll) Division had decided on October 21 to split the two. The affidavit says the SIR-related declaration had been placed inside Form 6 so that an applicant would generate a single OTP and a single e-signature rather than two, and that this "bonafide objective became a subject matter of deliberation and suggestions". It goes on to state, "It has been decided vide decision dt. 21.10.2026 of the ER Division that as in the case of submitting the Application in Form 6 in a physical format, the online Application shall also be in two parts i.e. Form 6 as prescribed in the Rules and the SIR Declaration."

This is the third position the Commission has taken on Form 6 in six weeks, and it completes a reversal.

On September 23, The Indian Express reported that Sandhu and Joshi had objected to the change, on the ground that Form 6 is prescribed under the Registration of Electors Rules, 1960, and that only the Central Government can amend it. Joshi put that on record on May 16. Sandhu concurred on May 19. The question appeared on the online form anyway in July, as this newspaper first reported on July 12. On August 13, Sandhu called it "unauthorised/illegal" and said it must be removed immediately. It was still there when the investigation was published.

The Commission's first answer, in a press note issued the same day, did not mention Form 6 at all. It said "all actions of ECI have been in accordance of laws and instructions of the Commission", described the Commissioners' notes as "operational queries or inputs raised by Commission members during draft stages", and said every decision of the past year was "an outcome of the unanimous decisions of the full Commission".

Three days later, on September 26, the full Commission met and issued a second note. On Form 6, it said two things. "The declaration attached to Form 6 for SIR has been upheld by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. For the non-SIR period, the Forms applicable as per Rules (the Registration of Electors Rules 1960) will be used." This meant that the declaration in the online version of Form 6 would be limited to the SIR period, leaving it in place wherever the intensive revision was still running, such as Delhi and Maharashtra.

This was implemented and the declaration was then removed from the online Form 6 in the states where the SIR had concluded. It stayed between Section J & K where the SIR was still running. On October 12, the Supreme Court said it had neither approved nor disapproved the modified Form 6. On October 21, the ER Division of the ECI decided to take the declaration out of the Form 6 page everywhere and make it a separate document. That is what the form now shows on the ECINet portal.

The affidavit still maintains that Form 6 was never amended. "There is no substance in the contention that Form 6 has been amended by the Commission vide the SIR Orders." However it does acknowledge that "on a review of the manner in which Form 6 and the Declaration were displayed on the IT platform some concerns arose for the reason that the manner in which the Declaration was presented in the online system was such that it could be construed as though an amendment of Form 6 had been made. As stated earlier, Form 6 can only be amended by the Central Government."

The Commission's own explanation for putting the declaration inside Form 6 is that it saved the applicant an OTP. Two separate documents would have required two one-time passwords and two e-signatures. One page produced one of each.

What the investigation found

The Indian Express reported on September 23 that Sandhu and Joshi had recorded objections at least 14 times in 10 months to decisions taken in the Commission's name without their knowledge. Their notes ran to areas that go to the heart of what the Commission does: who gets registered as a voter, who is deleted and restored, who appeals against those restorations, and who controls the software on which the electoral roll is now maintained. Another objection concerned the Commission's own functioning, including an administrative order of July 28 that changed the allocation of work among senior officers, including the IT files, without the two Commissioners being consulted. Both wrote separately to the Cabinet Secretary. The next day they jointly set the order aside.

Five of the 14 notes were copied to Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar. No reply from him is on record. Between May and August, the full Commission did not meet once.

The Commission's response on September 23 was that the notes were "suggestions" and "inputs", part of normal deliberation, and that the important decisions of the past year carried the unanimous approval of the full Commission.

In the five weeks since, the Commission has moved on almost every point the two Commissioners had raised.

Meetings: Agendas will be circulated before every Commission meeting and minutes issued afterwards. The Commissioners had recorded that neither was being done.

Foreign travel: Officers' trips abroad will need the Commission's approval. The two Commissioners had recorded officers travelling without it.

New IT systems: New IT modules and portals under DG IT Seema Khanna will go to a Committee of Officers and then to the Commission for approval. The Commissioners had recorded modules being built without the Commission's knowledge.

An audit of ECINet: A committee to check ECINet's compliance with the applicable Acts and Rules was constituted by circular on October 14. It is headed by a Senior Deputy Election Commissioner and includes a second Senior DEC, a DEC, a Director, four Chief Electoral Officers and two independent experts, from IIT Bombay and IISc Bengaluru. Joshi had asked for an audit on May 29, describing what was happening as "the gradual centralisation of the electoral roll database". Sandhu endorsed the proposal on July 13 and recorded on August 14 that the proposal had gone nowhere.

Powers of field officers being curtailed by ECINet software: The Commission has now given officers on the ground far more discretion through changes in the software. For instance, four changes to ECINet sought by Maharashtra Chief Electoral Officer S Chockalingam in a letter of September 24 have been made. Personal hearings for voters served notices over mapping failures or logical discrepancies are now exceptional, with Booth Level Officers collecting documents at homes instead. Voters may submit documents outside the 13 listed categories. EROs can decide logical-discrepancy cases themselves instead of routing them to the District Election Officer. And the mandatory upload of an extract from the previous SIR roll has been dropped. Sandhu had written on August 14 that "all the responsibilities regarding Electoral Roll lie on EROS, DEOs and CEOs," yet "the access control has been centralised by DG (IT)," who "doesn't have any legal authority to restrict proper and complete access and freedom to operate, as given by law, to the statutory authorities".

Goa's 97 voters: The Investigation had revealed how the ECINet software did now allow election officials on the ground to bring back 97 voters on the final electoral roll despite several letters written by the Chief Electoral Officer's office. The 97 had been deleted at the draft stage, produced documents, and were cleared by Goa's own EROs, who then found ECINet had no option to reverse the deletion. The CEO's office wrote to Delhi eight times in seven days, each letter copied to DG (IT) Seema Khanna. The final roll was published without them. The Chief Electoral Officer has been directed to facilitate their inclusion. The affidavit says 88 of the 97 have filled Form 6 and their applications have been accepted, six are out of the country and three hold Portuguese passports.

Alongside these, the Commission has ordered two fresh enrolment exercises. On September 29 it directed the states where the SIR is complete to run a "special drive" to enrol voters "left out" of the rolls. This month, it ordered a Special Summary Revision in 17 states and Union Territories, aimed chiefly at those turning 18 in 2027. Everyone filling Form 6 during this exercise will not have to fill the SIR related declaration.

West Bengal: Sandhu's note of August 12 put five questions to his officers about the lakhs of appeals filed against voters whose inclusion had been ordered by judicial officers: the total number, the category break-up, whether the ECI had filed them, who was authorised to file them and by whom, and who actually filed them. He recorded that when he asked the state's Chief Electoral Officer, she said she did not have information about the details of the matter.

The affidavit's answer is that nobody inside the Commission needed to authorise filing of appeals before the tribunals because the Supreme Court had already said ECI officials could file them. In two orders, the court set out who could appeal against a judicial officer's decision in the SIR: voters whose names had been struck off, and officials of the Election Commission who objected to a name being put back on. So the Commission is pointing at the court, not at itself.

It then states that a communication of October 22 from the Bengal CEO's office informs that the appeals were filed "by the officers of the Office of the CEO, West Bengal, in their capacity as authorities under the RP Act," and that "these matters were not brought to the Commission." It doesn't disclose the total number of such appeals filed.

This answer came ten weeks after Sandhu asked, four days before the affidavit was filed, and from the office whose head had told Sandhu she did not have the details. The appeals have not been withdrawn. The affidavit notes that the electors concerned, against whose inclusion appeals were filed, are on the rolls and voted in recent polls.

Through all of it, the Commission's position in court is that nothing was decided wrongly. The affidavit states it was approved for filing "by a unanimous decision of the three members" and that a note from a Commissioner "does not constitute a decision of the Election Commission under Section 18".

Gujarat sailor killed port in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) for Porbandar on October 31, members of the family that owns the vessel told The Indian Express. There were 14 Indian crew members, including the master/ tandel on board the ship that was laden with a cargo of 950 tonnes of wet (fresh) dates.

The vessel, which was hugging the coast with the shoreline of Oman within sight all the time, was reportedly hit around 4 pm India time on Monday, a few nautical miles after it had crossed the port of Limah.

"The projectile, whatever it was, came in from the left (port) side and struck the vessel near the cabin (engine) room. The right (starboard) side of the boat was towards the Omani shoreline. Gandhar, who was at the steering wheel of the MSV, was injured in his left leg and shoulder," 52-year-old Akbar Ahmed Sumbhaniya, whose younger brother owns the Al Jusufi, told The Indian Express.

Sumbhaniya said he got to know of the attack at 4.45 pm. "The tandel called me to say that there had been an attack on the vessel and that they had all evacuated to the lifeboat," he said.

"I immediately called my employee at another port in Oman and our sponsor there, who informed the Omani coast guard and gave them the location of the vessel. The coast guard sent a boat from Limah and rescued all our sailors," he said.

According to Sumbhaniya, Gandhar was conscious and talking at the time the Omani coast guard transported the sailors to land. "Gandhar told his colleagues he was in pain. Our guys sent an ambulance, but Gandhar passed away while he was being put inside the ambulance around 6 pm IST," Sumbhaniya said.

He said they were now trying to bring back Gandhar's body and the other 13 sailors on board the Al Jusufi back home to India. Gandhar is survived by his mother and an older brother, Sumbhaniya said.

A fire broke out on board the vessel after the projectile hit, and continued to rage after the crew had been evacuated. The Al Jusufi, which was 14 years old, ultimately went down off the coast of Oman. Sumbhaniya estimated a loss of about Rs 1 crore for the vessel, which was not insured. The loss of cargo is the responsibility of the sender and receiver, he said.

According to Sumbhaniya, the territorial waters of Oman have been relatively safe for shipping, especially during the day. His own MSV had safely transited the Strait of Hormuz just a day earlier on way to Somalia, Sumbhaniya said.

The Indian Sailing Vessels Association (ISVA), an organisation representing owners, operators, and crew of traditional Indian seafaring vessels, said four MSVs that have home ports in Gujarat have come under attack since the war began on February 28. Before the Al Jusufi, the MSC Al Faiz Sulemani, the MSV Al Haji Ali, and the MSV Quba were attacked, all in Omani waters.

ISVA general secretary Adam Bhaya told the Indian Express, "We have requested the Government of India, including the Ministry of External Affairs, the Directorate General of Shipping, and the Embassy of India in Oman, to intervene and coordinate with the Omani authorities for immediate humanitarian and consular assistance, necessary formalities and early repatriation of the 13 surviving Indian crew members [of the Al Jusufi]. We have also requested appropriate assistance for the bereaved family of the deceased sailor."

In an official statement issued on Tuesday morning, the MEA official spokesperson said: "We condemn the attack on a commercial vessel MSV Al Jusufi, near Limah, Oman yesterday evening. Of the 14 Indian nationals on board, 13 have been rescued while 1 Indian national tragically lost his life after sustaining injuries. We convey our deepest condolences on the precious life lost. Our Embassy in Oman is closely monitoring the situation and coordinating with the Omani authorities for the early repatriation of the rescued Indian nationals and the mortal remains of the deceased."

The statement expressed "deep concern" over "the continuing incidents of attacks on commercial shipping in the region", and reiterated India's call for "immediate de-escalation of tensions, and the conclusion of ongoing negotiations for a diplomatic solution so that peace and stability can return to the region".

The Al Jusufi has been operating in the Persian Gulf region for the last two years. It had been anchored in Dubai through the "rough seas" (monsoon) season between June and September, and was on its first voyage since then.

Indian MSVs typically ferry soyabean, rice, sugar, dry and wet dates, onions, and other foodstuff, apart from livestock such as sheep and goats between the Gulf region and ports in India. Each MSV carries about 5 lakh tonnes of goods for export to the Gulf, and brings back about 50,000 tonnes of cargo as imports to India every year on average.

There are 450-500 such vessels that sail under the Indian flag, around 275 of which have their home ports in Gujarat. Of the nine ports that house MSVs, the largest number — 175 — berth in Salaya, followed by 60 in Mandvi.

Navy

Force for their successful operation to rescue the 20 Iranian crew members of the fishing vessel Azini from pirates".

The Navy, in its statement, said the hijacking presented a "significant maritime security threat", with the possibility of the vessel being employed as a "mother ship" for launching pirate attacks against merchant shipping in the region.

It said it tasked a mission-deployed warship to intervene, supported by a maritime reconnaissance aircraft. "Working in close coordination, these platforms located the vessel after persistent surveillance, tracked its movements and employed calibrated non-kinetic measures to contain its movement and prevent its escape," the Navy said.

"Executing a swift and well-coordinated tactical intervention, the Indian Navy secured the vessel, overcame the pirate threat and ensured the release of all 20 crew members," it said.

The Navy said the successful operation is testament to its high operational preparedness and ability to undertake complex maritime security operations through seamless inter-service coordination, while underscoring India's unwavering commitment to remaining first responder and preferred security partner in Indian Ocean Region.

The Iran Embassy commended "the professionalism, courage and effective coordination demonstrated by the Indian Armed Forces, reflecting India's strong commitment to Humanitarian Assistance and Disaster Relief and its role in saving lives beyond borders". "This humanitarian operation stands as a testament to the spirit of friendship, solidarity and cooperation between Iran and India. We extend our sincere gratitude to all those involved in... the safe rescue of the Iranian crew," it said.

The eight trekkers were part of a 12-member group, comprising seven trekkers, a guide, a cook and three porters, which had set out from Gangotri on October 27. They had been granted permission for a three-day expedition on October 26 and were expected to return by October 29.

Hours after the group departed, authorities received a weather alert around 10:30-11 am on October 27, warning of adverse conditions expected on October 29. However, officials were unable to contact the group to convey the warning, Mayank Garg, Deputy Director of Gangotri National Park, had earlier told The Indian Express.

On October 30, a day after the group was expected to return, authorities received information that its members had been trapped by heavy snowfall and avalanches.

Four members of the party — three porters and a cook — were rescued on October 31 near Kachchi Dhang, below the avalanche-affected stretch.

On Monday, the fourth day of the search operation, teams had spotted a tent, bags and other belongings near the Kedarkadak area but could not locate any of the missing trekkers.

Speaking to The Indian Express, an official associated with the search operations said, "Once we found the tent and belongings, we started digging around the area and recovered remains of two individuals."

An aerial reconnaissance also failed to yield any leads.

The SDRF and NIM are jointly conducting the search operation.

"Woh Aadhaar card ab aadhaar nahin rahega. Jo bhi beneficiary hain, unke bhugtan ke liye biometric aur unka jo voter ID ka EPIC number hai, woh uska aadhaar hoga, aur usi par unka bhugtan hoga (The Aadhaar card will no longer be the basis. Instead, payments to beneficiaries will be processed using their biometrics and their voter ID (EPIC) number)," he said without elaborating on the schemes for which the EPIC number will be used.

Singh also called for the participation of all stakeholders in efforts being made towards Atmanirbhar Panchayats (self-reliant panchayats) and Viksit Panchayats (developed panchayats).

He said Gram Panchayats need to enhance their own-source revenue generation to become eligible for performance grants.

While there is no scheme of the Ministry of Panchayati Raj where money is directly transferred to an individual beneficiary's bank account, there are a few schemes under the Ministry of Fisheries, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, also headed by Singh, where Aadhaar is mandatory for payments.

Besides, in several other Central schemes like the rural job guarantee programme VB-G RAM G, PM-Kisan, Pradhan Mantri Awaas Yojana (Gramin), National Social Assistance Programme (old-age, widow and disability pensions), Aadhaar-seeded bank accounts are used for making payments.

everyone to celebrate and no person can be isolated from any festival being celebrated in the country," the bench said, adding "We are leaving it to you (BMC), so whatever best practices you can do."

Asking "whether India was not a secular country", it said "solidarity" and "community spirit" were "important" and these were "lacking" in Monday's incident.

"We do not approve of reprimanding a person with petty-mindedness," it said. "We are disturbed with the comments made by certain persons in regard to celebrities who had participated and assisted in the public cause, being now taken up by BMC, of creating awareness of ill-effects of bursting firecrackers... In our opinion, BMC, MPCB and police authorities took very effective steps to involve the celebrities, and each one of them, in a most dignified way, while encouraging celebrations of the festival, have given this message to nurture a sense of goodwill, togetherness and a strong feeling of belonging to the society," it said.

It commended BMC Commissioner Ashwini Bhide for effective steps of involving "correct" celebrities for the campaign. "We certainly believe that when, with such solemnity, such a task, and as directed by the court, was being undertaken, there was no room for any factionalism or individualism... pollution would affect all sections of the society," it said.

"There is no scope for any knee-jerk reaction of few people and at the cost of few people and society at large," the bench said.

On October 26, the HC asked the BMC to involve celebrities free of charge for pollution awareness, leading to videos featuring Ajinkya Rahane, Madhuri Dixit and Dia Mirza. The BMC, however, removed Mirza's video following objections from the city BJP chief.

While the suo motu PIL was scheduled post Diwali, the judges, "being disturbed" by the incident, listed it Tuesday and reiterated the "total ban" on bursting firecrackers on public streets during festivities.

The bench also directed authorities to consider and issue directions, based on the Supreme Court's directives Monday on Delhi's air pollution, noting that the "law of the land" is "also applicable to Mumbai and Maharashtra", specifically on the permitted timings during Diwali and the nature of the firecrackers.

The "issue of environment should not be hijacked by any other colour... Everyone in the country is breathing the same air... Are we not a secular country?," it said on the deletion of the video featuring Mirza.

"What it seems to do is to actually encourage people to burst firecrackers... by giving some different angle. It's not as if barring firecrackers is taking away... your right to celebrate a particular festival. She (Mirza) had rendered a very good message only in terms of environment and noise pollution... Some person mooted the idea (objecting to the video) and the other took up the matter, which is not good," the bench said.

Delhi cop suspended for protests an IIT grad police officials at Delhi's Shahdara police station on October 23. He was one of the two transferred.

A 2019-batch DANIPS (Delhi, Andaman and Nicobar Islands, Lakshadweep, Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu Police Service) officer, Vashishtha had earlier served as then Vice-President Jagdeep Dhankhar's Personal Security Officer from April 2025 until the latter resigned in July 2025. His career has included postings with the Sashastra Seema Bal (SSB) and in the Delhi Police Security Unit.

Born and brought up in Jaipur, he comes from a family of doctors. He pursued a degree in mechanical engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), Kharagpur, between 2009 and 2013.

He joined the SSB in 2016. During his four-year tenure with the force, from 2016 to 2020, he was posted in Jammu and Kashmir and Bihar.

Vashishta subsequently joined the DANIPS as part of the 2019-20 batch. Following his initial training and posting in Delhi, he was transferred to the Andaman and Nicobar Islands in 2022.

There, he served as Deputy Superintendent of Police (DSP) in Diglipur and Havelock before returning to Delhi in December 2024.

In the national capital, Vashishta held several assignments within the Delhi Police.

In December 2025, he was posted as ACP, Gandhi Nagar, where he served for approximately three months.

After his stint as Dhank-Har's PSO, he joined the Delhi Police Security Unit, where he was involved in security arrangements for the AI Summit and the visit of Russian President Vladimir Putin.

In March 2026, he was once again posted as ACP, Gandhi Nagar.

Vashishta is married and has two children, a three-year-old and a six-month-old.

Soon after his suspension, he said: "'Main aahat nahi hua hoon, mazboot ho gaya hoon (I am not hurt; I have become stronger)'. The law of land will follow and justice will prevail."

In an order marked 'Most Immediate', issued late Monday evening, the MHA said the competent authority, exercising powers under Rule 10 of the Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1965, had placed Vashistha, an entry-grade officer, under suspension. The order was also handed to Vashistha later in the evening.

"During the suspension period, the officer's headquarters will be Delhi, and he has been barred from leaving the headquarters without prior permission of the competent authority. The officer will be entitled to a subsistence allowance equal to the leave salary he would have drawn on half-average pay or half pay, along with dearness allowance if admissible on that basis — subject to a certificate that he has not been employed in any business, profession or vocation for profit, remuneration or salary," it added.

Lawyer flags ACP's 'AK 47 threat' to HC

In a separate matter, the Delhi High Court refused to take suo motu cognisance of alleged threatening remarks made by ACP Vashishtha against lawyers during the protest outside the force's headquarters.

During the hearing, the lawyer urged a bench of Acting Chief Justice Nitin Sambre and Justice Sanjay Sharma to take suo motu cognisance of the police's unlawful assembly outside the police headquarters on Monday as well as of the alleged derogatory language used by them against lawyers.

"Yesterday, police officials gathered, made unlawful assembly, and used derogatory language against the lawyer fraternity. They are threatening lawyers with arms... The derogatory remarks they have used are 'kaale coat wale gunde', 'kaale coat ka behrupiya' and 'agar kisi vakeel ne ungli bhi laga di toh main apne baap ka nahi, agar poori AK47 uss vakeel mein nahi utaar di toh'," the lawyer told the bench.

The court, however, told the lawyer to file a formal petition in this regard and said it will consider it accordingly. ACJ Sambre added, "I assure you, we will look into it."

Minerals

minimum capacity of 30 kilotonnes (kt) each and two nickel processing plants with a minimum capacity of 50 kt each. The maximum capital support could be capped at Rs 500 crore per lithium beneficiary and Rs 900 crore per nickel beneficiary.

The proposed scheme is expected to support sectors such as electric mobility, battery energy storage systems (BESS), electronics, defence and speciality steel, while strengthening India's domestic critical mineral value chain.

Queries sent to the Ministry of Mines did not elicit any response.

Discussions regarding a scheme to promote the processing of lithium and nickel have been going on for some time. In September, Keshav Chandra, Secretary, Ministry of Mines, had said the government was planning to launch a scheme for critical minerals considered important to the battery manufacturing ecosystem. However, he did not reveal any further details.

The government has already identified four states -- Andhra Pradesh, Odisha, Gujarat and Maharashtra -- for setting up critical mineral processing parks. Chandra had said the government was planning to develop each park as a complete ecosystem for a particular mineral. Accordingly, Gujarat and Andhra Pradesh are looking at rare earth processing, while Odisha and Maharashtra are set to focus on nickel and lithium, respectively.

Gujarat was identified for rare earth processing given the availability of heavy rare earth elements in the state and its existing beneficiation and processing capabilities. Andhra Pradesh was identified for the development of a rare earth corridor.

Odisha is being considered for nickel processing due to its nickel reserves and its location in eastern India, which could facilitate the processing of imported nickel from Indonesia and other countries with abundant reserves.

Currently, India has limited processing capacity for critical minerals and is almost completely import-dependent for some key critical minerals such as cobalt, lithium, nickel, rare earth elements (REEs) and silicon. On the other hand, China controls 90 per cent of global critical mineral processing and often uses it as leverage during trade tensions.

India, therefore, remains vulnerable to supply disruptions. The proposed scheme can be seen as part of the government's broader efforts to address this strategic vulnerability, build domestic processing capabilities, and reduce dependence on China.

As part of similar efforts, the government is also working on a new policy for stockpiling critical minerals to guard against potential supply disruptions.

India's National Critical Minerals Mission (NCMM) has proposed to develop a National Critical Mineral Stockpile Programme for stockpiling critical and strategic minerals. For the development of such a reserve, the government has committed the allocation of Rs 500 crore for 2024-25 to 2030-31.

Civic staff

"any employee demanded or accepted illegal gratification".

A statement issued by the office of Urban Local Bodies Minister Vipul Goel said an investigation was ordered following Rai's article. Based on the investigation report and examination of relevant records, two MCG employees have been "relieved from their current posts" for "procedural irregularities" in the application process, it said. Sources identified the employees as a clerk and a peon.

The statement, however, clarified the allegations regarding demands for money and transactions through intermediaries were yet to be investigated. "The present order does not record any final finding regarding whether any employee demanded or accepted illegal gratification. The process of investigating this aspect and taking necessary action in accordance with rules will continue," it said.

When contacted on Tuesday, Rai said: "I am glad people like me, who have the means and the reach to raise their concerns, can access such services. But what happens to the poor? I am deeply concerned about those who have no influence or connections. Such services should be equally accessible to the poor, including those who come here to work."

BANK OFFICE ASSISTANT HELD FOR TARGETING ACCOUNTS IN GREATER NOIDA

'Rs 10.24-cr gone from PNB accounts': Staffer disabled alerts, used official IDs

Noida, November 3

PNB's branch in Sector PI-1 of Greater Noida. FILE

THE CBI on Tuesday arrested two people, including an office assistant working at the Punjab National Bank's (PNB) Greater Noida branch in Sector PI-1 after more than two dozen customers alleged that crores of rupees had gone missing from their accounts. The arrests come after the bank had set up an inquiry committee to probe the Rs 10.24-crore fraud case, which found that the accused employee, an office assistant identified as Deepanshi, allegedly carried out the transactions over three years using IDs of other staff members. She had also allegedly added other accused as joint holders for fixed deposit accounts and disabled mobile alerts for customers for perpetrating the fraud.

The other accused has been identified as Ashutosh Kumar Pathak, who has been linked to the alleged money trail. The central agency has obtained the transit remand for Pathak from the Special Court of CBI Cases, Pune, Maharashtra, while the investigation is continuing, an official said.

The CBI had registered the case on October 29 based on the complaint by the bank following the completion of internal inquiry, alleging that funds from various accounts had been siphoned off by the "accused office assistant in conspiracy with others by carrying out unauthorised debit transactions".

'Office assistant used staff IDs'

In its complaint, the bank stated that after a review of system logs, user activity records and also transactions, it was revealed, prima facie, that "multiple unauthorised transactions had been carried out in customer accounts over a substantial period of time."

This was done allegedly by misusing user IDs belonging to different officials of the branch by Deepanshi. The funds from the accounts were allegedly transferred to saving accounts of customers to that of Pathak and other accused.

To ensure that customers don't get the mobile transaction alerts, the complaint states, she had disabled the feature "associated with certain customer accounts before the transactions (under lens) were carried out, thereby delaying the detection of unauthorised debits by the affected customers." For the fixed deposit accounts maintained with the branch, it alleged that Pathak and other accused were added as joint holders, and that actions have allegedly appeared to have been carried out over a period of approximately three years. The FIR is registered under sections of criminal conspiracy, criminal breach of trust cheating, falsification of accounts and criminal misconduct.

How fraud unfolded

The complaint filed by Ajay Kumar Pandey, Chief Manager, Circle Office, Noida, mentions that a customer named Sangita having her savings account in the bank had approached the bank along with her husband and daughter in order to update her passbook, where she allegedly found three transactions dated September 16 to have been carried out from her account without her knowledge, and had asked to meet the branch head.

The complaint read: "The branch head was not available. However, the accused staff, Ms. Deepanshi, immediately met them and convinced them with the genuineness of the transaction.

"That the above incident involving complaint of customer's husband regarding serious irregularities in the account of Ms. Sangita, were brought to the notice of the Branch Head, and she questioned Ms Deepanshi about the incident, to which Ms. Deepanshi informed that Ms. Sangita had a word with her husband over the phone and informed that she invested in property and transferred the disputed transaction amount to the account of Mr. Ashutosh Pathak," it added.

PLEAS FOR AND AGAINST PROTESTS

Can't occupy protest site for all times to come: SC

Ananthakrishnan G
New Delhi, November 3

Delhi Police denotified Jantar Mantar as a designated protest site on October 12. FILE

AS TRADER organisations sought a halt to the ongoing protests in New Delhi during the festive season, the Supreme Court said Tuesday that protesters "cannot occupy a site for all times to come" and a "designated site must be given only for an identified period".

Weeks after the Cockroach Janta Party's march from Jantar Mantar towards Parliament on July 20, the Delhi Police denotified Jantar Mantar as a designated protest site on October 12 and identified three alternative venues – Ramlila Maidan, Burari Ground and CBD Ground – for protest gatherings in the Capital.

On October 16, protesters gathered in and around Connaught Place, responding to the CJP call for a 'Lehra Do Tiranga' march to demand the resignation of Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar. On November 1, the INDIA bloc's protest against the CEC was held at Ramlila Maidan.

On Tuesday, a three-judge bench, comprising Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, Justice Joymalya Bagchi and Justice V Mohana, also said it will examine whether the alleged surveillance by Delhi Police during the protests at Jantar Mantar amounted to negative state interference. Issuing notice, the bench pointed out that the current law permits use of iris scans.

Appearing for the traders, Senior Advocate Mukul Rohatgi said the protests had severely affected the traders during the festive season.

Referring to wholesale markets around Ramlila Maidan, he said, "The government must now think and come out with a scheme whether it applies to Delhi or state capitals. It's no longer Jantar Mantar, here, there. I represent all the trading associations in Delhi. Apart from the fact that we have lost thousands of crores, all shops remain closed, there is nobody in Connaught place today. This is the festive season."

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Centre, said, "Whoever gives the bandh call must take the responsibility. There are judgments to that effect." Rohatgi said, "Dussehra is gone, Diwali is on our head. Only two months left... This is the festive season. We have been bleeding, our people are bleeding. So let there be no protest or dharna for the next two months, with or without permission."

This was opposed by Senior Advocate Menaka Guruswamy who was representing petitioners against mass detentions and police action against protesters. She said police had detained 7,000 people and asked "are we not bleeding them as a constitutional democracy?"

Mehta said, "It is not detention, it is removal."

Senior Advocate N Hariharan, also appearing for some petitioners, said, "It (Ramlila Maidan) is a designated protest ground. You have designated it. Now if they have a problem with that too, where do we protest?"

To a query from the bench, Rohatgi said he had not made the organisers of the protests party to his petition and said he would do so.

The CJI said, "You implead all those organisations, whatever entities, social entities, NGOs, political entities etc who have conducted this. Because without seeking their response, it is not possible for any court to (adjudicate)."

Guruswamy said the barricades were placed by the state and it was the state which forced the shopkeepers to close.

The CJI said there were "two competing claims". He said, "Right to protest is also recognised under the Constitution, right to trade and business also. We are not talking about trade in terms of the commercial establishments, but in terms of source of livelihood, the rediwala or hawker, where will they go? The only way out is to identify a place for these protests, (which) does not affect the day-to-day business of people."

Mehta said, "One cannot call for protest without permission. The result is loss of livelihood to others. Then you start shouting in court that nothing can be done against us. A protest site is one thing, but calling for a protest without permission and asking lakhs of people to march towards Parliament..."

The CJI said, "You can't occupy a site for all times to come. There are other protesters. Where the farmers will go, where workers will go, where the trade unions will go, journalists will go. Everybody has the right to protest. So a designated site must be given only for an identified period. Everybody must adhere to those conditions."

He told the Solicitor General that the order granting permission must say that the extension is not being given because there is another request for another protest. "Everybody has a right to protest. You can't say now that I have occupied the site, therefore I will not shift," he said. Mehta said, "The permission was only for one day to hold the July 20 protest. There was an undertaking signed by the person who sought permission. They occupied the site for 17 days. Then without taking permission, they marched to the Parliament. Parliament is not a political building, it's a symbol of sovereignty of India. You cannot be permitted to go to Parliament, you cannot be permitted to go to the Supreme Court of India without permission."

After sexual harassment allegation, Daulat Ram sends asst prof on leave

Gayathri Mani
New Delhi, November 3

A 55-YEAR-old Assistant Professor of Delhi University's Daulat Ram College (DRC) has been placed on leave and served a show cause notice following a complaint from a woman student who alleged sexual assault and harassment.

DRC Vice Principal Priti Malhotra said, "An enquiry against the professor has been initiated. We cannot speak much on this as the matter is with the internal committee." She said the professor was "not coming to the college". It is learnt that the complaint was filed on October 29, two days after the alleged incident on the college premises.

The complainant has also alleged that the Assistant Professor had been harassing her for three months by sending her inappropriate messages. It is learnt that the complaint mentions several accounts of sexual harassment, inappropriate conduct, coercion and molestation.

The Assistant Professor, meanwhile, rejected the allegations, calling them "false and baseless". "I am being framed and harassed. I found last week about the complaint. I have been served a show cause notice in the matter and placed on leave. The college has not mentioned that till when, but I will soon submit my response after taking legal advice in the matter," he said.

'No arson happened at mosque that day': Court acquits 5 in 2020 Delhi riots case

Nirbhay Thakur
New Delhi, November 3

A DELHI court has acquitted five men accused of vandalism and arson at a mosque in Karawal Nagar during the 2020 North East Delhi riots. The court cited a lack of credible eyewitnesses, contradictory statements and inadmissibility of electronic evidence during acquittal.

As per the prosecution, which examined 14 witnesses, Allah Wali Mosque was set on fire by a mob and a statue was placed on the slab outside it. The mob, which included these five accused, committed vandalism and arson in the mosque around 11 pm on February 24, 2020, on February 25,2020, around 11 am. The five men, who have been acquitted, were facing allegations of rioting with a deadly weapon, unlawful assembly, and arson, among others.

The court noted that the testimony of an independent public witness contradicted the police witnesses regarding the occurrence of the incident. "...With regard to the incident with the mosque on 25.02.2020 at 11.00 am, there are only two witnesses and they are PW10 (prosecution witnesses) and PW11. However, when their testimonies are considered in the light of the testimony of independent public witness i.e. PW7, there are stark contradictions. The first one being that PW7 does not speak about any incident that would have happened any time during the day. On the contrary, he states that the vandalism in the mosque had happened only once and that too at around 8.15 pm,"said Additional Sessions Judge Parveen Singh of Karkardooma Court in an order dated October 31.

The order added, "This becomes more important in view of his uncontested testimony that after the mosque was set on fire at 8.15 pm in the night when he had seen it, he remained confined in his house for around four long days. Therefore, if there had been a second incident at FIR No. 104/20 PS Karawal Nagar 14 of 25 the mosque, he would have seen and deposed about it because admittedly his house was just in front of the said mosque. Hence, I find that the testimonies of PW10 and PW11 regarding the vandalism and arson at the mosque at around 11.00 a.m on 25.02.2020 are not credible.."

Crackdown on adulteration: CM inspects market in Mori Gate, 7K kg khoya destroyed

Express News Service
New Delhi, November 3

DELHI CHIEF MINISTER Rekha Gupta on Tuesday visited the Khoya Mandi market at Mori Gate where the Food Safety department, in her presence, seized and destroyed approximately 7,000 kg of unhygienic and foul-smelling khoya during a major crackdown on food adulteration ahead of Diwali. Of the 44 samples collected from the market and tested on the spot, 35 failed preliminary tests, officials said. Gupta inspected the operation and directed officials to ensure that the suspected adulterated products did not enter the food supply chain, they added. She said the government would have zero tolerance for practices that endanger public health and warned that strict legal action would be taken against those involved.

The operation was the department's fourth at Mori Gate Khoya Market. Officials collected 44 surveillance samples, which were tested using the Food Safety on Wheels mobile laboratory. Two additional enforcement samples were also collected and sent for detailed laboratory examination. Preliminary testing indicated the possible presence of milk powder, vanaspati and binding substances in the suspected material.

Considering to admit students to one-year master's via entrance test: DU to HC

Sohini Ghosh
New Delhi, November 3

THE DELHI University (DU) on Tuesday told the Delhi High Court that it is considering a proposal to conduct an entrance test from the next academic session for admissions to its one-year postgraduate (PG) programme.

DU introduced the one-year master's programme in the academic year 2026-27 to accommodate students who completed the four-year undergraduate programme under the National Education Policy (NEP) framework, instead of the traditional three-year undergraduate course.

While the university admits students to its two-year PG course through CUET-PG, its 2026-27 admission policy for the one-year PG course had no entrance examination. Instead, it followed a priority order decided by the university.

Students with a four-year Honours degree with Research or Entrepreneurship in the relevant subject fall in the first priority category, P1, whereas those with a four-year multidisciplinary degree with a Major in the subject fall in P2. Since P1 candidates must be considered before P2 applicants, a multidisciplinary student with a higher CGPA can be considered after an Honours graduate with a lower score.

Consequently, several students from DU's first batch of four-year undergraduates have approached the Delhi HC, arguing in their petitions that the admission criteria for the one-year master's were "discriminatory".

Delhi University introduced the one-year master's programme in the academic year 2026-27. FILE

Responding to the pleas, the university has told the HC that it is stretched to its "maximum capacity" after introducing the one-year PG programme this year. The programme added 6,147 seats, over half of them (3,340) in its open school, on top of the 12,000 seats in its two-year PG programme.

In an affidavit filed on November 3, DU registrar Vikas Gupta told the HC, "This increase has already pushed the University to its maximum capacity in terms of accommodation, infrastructure availability, and teachers' strength. Offering a 1-year PG without additional resources has already added a significant load to the University, beyond its capacity."

Going forward, the university, taking note of the "grievances of the students", is now "considering the proposal to conduct an Entrance test from the academic session 2027-28 for admissions to one-year PG programmes", adding that "the admissions will be made solely on the merit of the entrance test."

"An assessment of resources shall be made for deciding the number of seats that can be offered for both one-year and two-year PG programmes," DU has said. The university has faced criticism from both students and teachers over how admissions to the one-year PG programme were conducted in its first year.

Both groups have complained of delayed notifications, unclear information, insufficient seats and disruption of the academic cycle.

Owing to repeated grievances from students, some of whom approached the Delhi HC, DU which initially offered 1,063 seats in the one-year PG programme, later increased it to 2,807 regular seats and 3,340 open school seats.

DELHI WINTER ACTION PLAN CAME INTO EFFECT ON NOVEMBER 1

300 construction sites inspected each day

Rs 75-lakh fine imposed for carrying invalid PUCC, flouting construction ban

Alok Singh
New Delhi, November 3

THE DELHI Government has inspected an average of around 300 construction sites daily in the first three days since the complete ban on civil construction activities came into effect under its Winter Action Plan.

Just over 15% of the construction sites inspected were found violating the ban, according to official sources.

Meanwhile, on the third day of enforcement on Tuesday, the government imposed penalties worth Rs 75.6 lakh on violators of pollution control norms, including Rs 53.8 lakh for violations related to Pollution Under Control Certificates (PUCC) and the rest for flouting ban on construction and demolition activities.

According to official data, more than 70% of the action against construction and demolition sites involved plots measuring less than 500 sq m. "This shows that both inspections and violations are concentrated largely at smaller construction sites, which are among the significant sources of dust pollution. However, in the coming days, we expect smaller construction sites to comply with the ban following the crackdown," a senior official said.

Sources said an average of around 10 sites have been ordered to shut down on each of the three days. "These sites were found to be serious violations and hence, closure orders were issued," the official said.

According to government data, of the Rs 53.8 lakh imposed in fines for PUCC violations on Tuesday, Rs 42.4 lakh was challaned by the Delhi Traffic Police and the remaining Rs 11.4 lakh by the Delhi Transport department.

Meanwhile, sources said around 10,000 vehicles were being checked daily, with more than a third found to be non-destined vehicles below BS-VI emission standards.

On Tuesday, Rs 75.6 lakh in penalties was imposed for violations, including those related to PUCC and construction and demolition activities.

Private cars accounted for the largest share of challans. "However, the number still remains very low. First, because many commuters have planned well in advance and have made alternate arrangements. Second, majority of those who were unaware about the restriction have been asked to return back," an official said.

As part of the Winter Action Plan, which came into effect on November 1, outdoor construction activities and demolition work have been prohibited, up to January 31.

Day before sales are allowed, Sadar Bazar's firecracker trade already buzzing

Sale of green crackers at Sadar Bazar on Tuesday. ABHINAV SAHA

Alok Singh
New Delhi, November 3

"JALDI LE lijiye, police ghoom rahi hai (Please buy quickly, the police are patrolling)", a young seller told a customer in a narrow lane in Sadar Bazar on Tuesday afternoon. It was around 2.30 pm, a day before the permitted window for selling firecrackers in Delhi was to begin.

Yet, business was already in full swing.

The seller, in his early 20s, was among a group of young men carrying kattas (sacks) stuffed with packets of firecrackers – phuljharis, anaar, rockets, chakris, children's matchstick crackers and high-decibel crackers.

When asked whether these were green crackers, he replied, "Yeh kya hota hai? (What is that?)". When reminded of the Supreme Court order, which would come into effect on Wednesday, another young man in the group said, "That's exactly why we are asking you to buy them quickly."

Ahead of Diwali, the Supreme Court on Monday allowed the sale of certified green crackers at designated locations in Delhi-NCR for three days – from November 4 to 6. The use of these crackers was permitted only between 6 am and 7 am and 8 pm and 10 pm on November 7 and 8. The temporary relaxation will end on November 8, with the complete ban returning on November 9.

Further down towards Qutab Road, sellers were openly offering firecrackers, while keeping a wary eye out for the police.

A shopkeeper, mostly selling children's novelty crackers that produce sparks but make little noise, insisted that his products were permitted. "These are for children; these are allowed." Asked where he had sourced them from, he said, "We don't know much, but most come from Sonipat in Haryana."

A look at the packaging showed that most packets carried a green-coloured logo bearing the words 'Green Fireworks – CSIR-NEERI (National Environmental Engineering Research Institute), India'. The stickers on the boxes mentioned the manufacturers' names and carried QR codes that redirected customers to their websites.

While sellers appeared anxious about the police turning up and seizing their stock, customers made hurried purchases. Some vendors said most of their stock had been sold in minutes.

At one shop, a seller said the window to do business this year was too short. "Things will be better from tomorrow," he said, adding that traders were grateful for the government's decision to allow green crackers. "But we got little time to make up for the losses of previous years. How much can we earn in three days?" the seller asked.

The SC allowed manufacturers holding valid certification from CSIR-NEERI and the Petroleum and Explosives Safety Organisation to manufacture only approved green crackers between November 2 and 6.

The bench ordered that traders whose licences had been cancelled were allowed to have them temporarily restored from November 4 to 6 to "facilitate the sale of approved green crackers purchased from CSIR-NEERI-certified manufacturers". Such licences shall be cancelled if they are flouting the directions, and they shall be prohibited from selling firecrackers during the remaining period, it added.

As per a senior police officer, several teams have been working on intelligence inputs to prevent the illegal storage and sale of firecrackers. Although manufacturing has been banned in Delhi for the past decade, teams have been conducting regular raids to curb their unauthorised storage, the officer added.

Last month, as part of a drive, police had seized over 1,073 kg of firecrackers and registered 10 FIRs across five police station areas – Lahori Gate, Burari, Kotwali, Bara Hindu Rao and Subzi Mandi – for alleged unauthorised sale and possession.

Officials said that there are around 125 permanent firecracker sellers registered in Delhi. The government also issues a limited number of temporary licences ahead of the festival, they added. This year, the district deputy commissioners of police will issue temporary licences for the period between November 4 and 6.

As per wholesale businessman Rajiv Jain, repeated curbs had taken a toll on the firecracker business. "The year-round ban on firecrackers affects the business of permanent sellers. Last year, we got some relaxation, but we were given very few days to sell. This year, again, we have just three days to sell crackers," Jain said.

Since manufacturing is banned in Delhi, the sellers here mostly buy green firecrackers from Sivakasi in Tamil Nadu; Rohtak, Sonipat, Jhajjar, Kurukshetra in Haryana and Meerut, Sharanpur and Hapur in UP.

Total passenger boardings hit over 80.5 LAKH on Monday

Devansh Mittal
New Delhi, November 3

WITH DELHI barring older, non-BS-VI vehicles registered outside the capital from entering the city, Delhi Metro passenger boardings surged to 80.54 lakh on Monday — the first working day under the restrictions. This was an increase of 8.3 lakh over the previous Monday, when the figure was 72.24 lakh.

The number also came close to the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation's highest-ever single-day ridership of 82.44 lakh, which was witnessed in September this year during a strike by Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) bus drivers.

While Sunday was the first day of the implementation of the restrictions, Monday was the first working day when commuters were expected to feel their impact on regular travel patterns.

The Yellow and Blue lines together accounted for more than half of the total passenger boardings on Monday. The Yellow Line, which connects Samaypur Badli in Delhi to Millennium City Centre in Gurugram, recorded 21.27 lakh boardings, accounting for 26.4% of the total passenger boardings. The Blue Line, which connects Dwarka to Noida and Vaishali, recorded a combined 21.23 lakh boardings across its two branches, also accounting for 26.4% of the total. The Pink Line accounted for 11% of total boardings, followed by the Red Line at 10.9% and the Violet Line at 10.2%.

Under the vehicle restrictions which kicked in from November 1, petrol and diesel vehicles registered outside Delhi that do not meet BS-VI emission standards have been barred from entering the capital. The restrictions form part of the government's winter pollution-control measures, alongside the GRAP framework.

Approximately 3.02 crore BS-I to IV vehicles are registered in Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, and Rajasthan. Forty-eight lakh of these vehicles are registered in National Capital Region (NCR) districts adjoining Delhi. All these vehicles used to frequently enter and exit Delhi, and their owners will now have to depend on other modes of transport, like the metro.

To accommodate the additional footfall, the Delhi Metro has been operating 40 additional train trips across its network. It started operating 20 additional train trips from October 22, when GRAP-I measures were implemented, and added 20 more from Monday when GRAP-II kicked in.

The spokesperson claimed DMRC has also made additional passenger facilitation arrangements at stations, as and when required, to manage the increased movement of commuters.

The Delhi Metro has an average daily ridership of around 64 lakh passengers.

AQI hits 287-day high as Punjab farm fires spike; Sirsa targets AAP

New Delhi, November 3

DELHI'S AIR quality deteriorated to its worst level in 287 days on Tuesday, with the overall Air Quality Index reaching 350 in the 'Very Poor' category, amid a sharp rise in stubble burning incidents in Punjab and unfavourable weather conditions.

Delhi Environment Minister Manjinder Singh Sirsa accused the AAP-led Punjab government of deliberately facilitating stubble burning, alleging that Punjab Police personnel were themselves helping set crop residue on fire.

According to the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB), 57 of Delhi's 59 monitoring stations recorded data on Tuesday, with PM2.5 emerging as the dominant pollutant.

The impact was heavily visible across neighbouring cities. Gurugram recorded an AQI of 305 (Very Poor), Noida 291 (Poor) and Ghaziabad 235 (Poor). Greater Noida recorded 189 (Moderate), while Faridabad was at 106 (Moderate), as per CPCB. On Monday, the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM) invoked Stage II of the Graded Response Action Plan (GRAP) after Delhi's air quality entered the 'Very Poor' category.

The CAQM attributed the deterioration to unfavourable meteorological conditions. Farm fires across the border, including in Pakistan's Punjab, are also adding to the pollution load, data analysed by The Indian Express showed.

Manjinder Singh Sirsa. FILE

As per satellite data from the Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), 798 paddy residue burning incidents were detected across six states on Tuesday. Punjab accounted for 584, followed by Rajasthan (100) and Madhya Pradesh (94). UP reported 10 incidents, Haryana eight and Uttarakhand two. Delhi recorded none.

Between September 15 and November 3, 4,333 stubble burning incidents were detected across the six states, including 2,196 in Punjab.

Speaking to mediapersons, Sirsa cited 271 FIRs registered in Punjab. Citing official figures, he said Punjab recorded more than 900 incidents between October 26 and November 1. "During the same period, Haryana reported only 18 stubble burning incidents and UP 59 while Punjab recorded over 900 incidents," he said. Delhi, he added, reported only one such incident. "Farmers did not set the fields on fire. Punjab Police personnel did," he alleged.

Sirsa questioned the appointment of Reena Gupta, whom he described as a close relative of AAP national convener Arvind Kejriwal, as chairperson of the Punjab Pollution Control Board. Gupta was earlier an AAP spokesperson in Delhi. "In Punjab's history, this has happened for the first time that a non-technical person has been appointed chairperson of the PPCB. She will fudge the data. The Punjab government has spent Rs 20-25 crore on ad to claim that no stubble burning is taking place in the state. On the other hand, it is registering FIRs against farmers," he alleged, adding that the Centre had provided Rs 5,000 crore to address the problem.

AAP Punjab media incharge Baltej Pannu, meanwhile, said that BJP leaders are making Punjab's farmers scapegoats. "Even before the paddy harvesting season had properly begun, certain leaders had started running a campaign to defame Punjab for Delhi's pollution. How can smoke from Punjab supposedly cross Haryana and reach Delhi through some imaginary pipeline so quickly?"

The IMD said shallow fog was observed at a few places in Delhi. The maximum temperature on Tuesday settled at 29.1 degrees Celsius, and the minimum at 16.4 degrees Celsius.

Cong questions Centre: Why Monsoon Session not prorogued in 82 days?

Jatin Anand
New Delhi, November 3

THE MONSOON Session of Parliament this year — the eighth session of the 18th Lok Sabha — has recorded the longest sine die adjournment in history, as it has not been prorogued yet after 82 days. The Monsoon Session began on July 20 and was adjourned sine die on August 13.

Unlike prorogation, which formally ends a session, an adjournment sine die ends the sitting without fixing a date for the House to meet again.

The decision not to prorogue the House has fuelled speculation about the possibility of the government reconvening the session at short notice to push through the legislative package on delimitation and operationalisation of the women's reservation law. Claims about government's plans, however, are speculative rather than based on established parliamentary decisions.

"82 days have gone by since the Monsoon Session of Parliament was adjourned sine die and it has still not been prorogued. This is because the Home Minister is still entertaining ideas of calling a Special Session to pass the Delimitation Bills with a super-tainted two-thirds majority in the Lok Sabha. The content of these Bills is still not known, although its intent is clear—to save the BJP from the debacle that is staring it in 2029," Congress communications chief Jairam Ramesh alleged in a post on X.

"If the Home Minister is serious about a Special Session on vote chori, he should first secure the resignation of his hatchet man CEC Gyanesh Kumar. He should also suspend SIR. And, of course, he should also be sharing with the Opposition well in advance his new proposals for delimitation. Why doesn't he have the courage to convene an All -Party meeting to discuss these proposals in detail?" Ramesh said.

SP turns heat on BJP over Shastri remarks on Lord Ram and Krishna, he apologises

Anand Mohan J
Bhopal, November 3

POLITICAL TENSIONS over Bageshwar Dham chief Dhirendra Shastri's remarks on Lord Ram and Lord Krishna escalated Tuesday, with Samajwadi Party (SP) president Akhilesh Yadav demanding the cancellation of the preacher's programmes across the country and accusing "anti-Sanatana elements" of acting at the behest of their "political masters".

The controversy has opened a fresh front in poll-bound Uttar Pradesh, with the SP targeting the BJP over the comments of Shastri, who is popularly referred to by his followers as "Bageshwar Baba". The controversy erupted after a video of Shastri at a Ram Katha event in Karera in Shivpuri district went viral on social media. In the video, Shastri compared the appearance and mannerisms of Lord Ram and Lord Krishna, saying that while Lord Ram stood straight, Lord Krishna was "crooked" in three places and played the flute with his neck bent.

On Tuesday, Yadav tagged another video of Shastri in which he is seen discussing Lord Ram. Yadav said the remarks were part of an attempt to disrupt social harmony and warned that his party would not accept such conduct. "Who are these anti-Sanatana elements acting on the behest of? First, a controversial video about Lord Krishna surfaced, and now disrespectful remarks about Lord Ram's father are being spread. His political masters may tolerate all this, but we will not accept even a fraction of it," said the SP chief.

The day before, he had criticised Shastri without naming him and called for a ban on individuals involved in blasphemy. "Human errors can be forgiven, but never blasphemy. Imposing a lifelong ban on such malicious individuals is what is most beneficial for society. All their programmes across the country should be cancelled, no new permissions granted, and every true Sanatani in public life should completely boycott them — this alone should be the punishment for their unforgivable sin; otherwise, they too will share in the sin of blasphemy and ruin their worldly and otherworldly existence," Yadav said.

Shastri subsequently issued a clarification and apologised, saying his remarks were part of an explanation of a devotional verse and had been taken out of context. However, by then, the SP waded into the row. "Through the BJP-protected individual, the BJP is gradually rejecting the mythological, spiritual civilisations, history, and the writings in the Vedas and Puranas of our country, and is scripting a new narrative that is not only shameful but also reprehensible," the party said in a statement.

"BJP members have looted the Ram temple; this BJP power's ally, Dhirendra Shastri, who recently hurled senseless abuses at our Lord Krishna ji," the party said, even as RJD leader and Bihar Leader of Opposition Tejashwi Yadav hit out at the preacher, alleging that he was "protected by those in power".

"Lord Ram and Lord Krishna are complementary to each other. These hatemongers used to divide people; now they have started dividing even the gods. How much lower will they stoop for political gain? Prime Minister Narendra Modi and all BJP leaders who are protecting this person, who is undermining social harmony and Sanatani unity, should prostrate themselves in apology to the country, society, and Sanatanis," Tejashwi said.

In Madhya Pradesh, former Chief Minister and senior Congress leader Digvijaya Singh, who is undertaking his own Satya Sanatan Swabhiman Yatra to Ayodhya in UP, called Shastri a "fool".

Targeting Akhilesh and Tejashwi, BJP spokesperson Naveen Srivastava said, "Now that elections are approaching, Akhilesh Yadav and Tejashwi Yadav have suddenly remembered Lord Krishna. But will Akhilesh Yadav, who has not visited the Ram temple and has questioned Lord Ram's existence, tell us when he will visit the Krishna Janmabhoomi in Mathura? Does he support the Krishna Janmabhoomi temple movement or not?"

The BJP's response reflects the electoral significance of the Krishna issue in Uttar Pradesh, where religious identity intersects with caste politics. Lord Krishna is particularly close to the Yadav community, which traditionally traces its lineage to the Yadu dynasty and regards the deity as central to its cultural and religious identity. The community is a major electoral constituency whose political influence has shaped the state's assembly elections for decades.

Shastri's remarks could complicate matters for the BJP at a particularly crucial juncture. His growing political influence adds another layer to the controversy. Located in Chhatarpur in the Bundelkhand region of Madhya Pradesh, Bageshwar Dham has grown into a sprawling religious complex, drawing lakhs of devotees. In 2025, Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited Bageshwar Dham to lay the foundation stone for the Bageshwar Dham Medical and Science Research Institute, a project spearheaded by Shastri. Modi referred to Shastri as a "younger brother", reflecting the preacher's growing political clout.

Shastri's political stand has also evolved. Initially, his discourses focused on devotion to Hanuman and personal problem-solving, without overt political messaging. Over the past two years, however, he has embraced a hardline Hindutva stance, branding himself a "Hindu Rashtra yoddha (warrior for a Hindu nation)". He has called for India to be declared a Hindu nation, urged Hindus to unite against conversions, and made provocative statements like comparing unveiled women to "vacant plots". Ahead of the Durga Puja this year in Bengal, he stirred a controversy by saying those who eat meat during the festival were "pakhandi (fraud)".

Leaders from both the Congress and BJP have tried to court Shastri, whose influence is significant in the Bundelkhand region, Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, and Jharkhand. With the Congress struggling, courting Shastri has proven more beneficial for the BJP.

'Promoting politics of violence, anarchy': BJP sees foreign link in Opp's CEC protest

Vikas Pathak
New Delhi, November 3

THE BJP on Tuesday demanded an investigation into the recent Opposition-led protests and its alleged "links with foreign organisations".

The party's demand comes following the Opposition's protest for the resignation of Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar. Earlier, the Opposition parties had staged protests demanding the resignation of Dharmendra Pradhan as the Minister of Education following the NEET paper leaks.

Addressing a press conference in New Delhi, BJP spokesperson Gaurav Bhatia referred to alleged revelations in a media sting operation, and accused Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi of "promoting the politics of violence, anarchy and regime change".

He also raised serious questions over "statements advocating situations similar to those witnessed in France, Nepal and Bangladesh, the alleged strategy of using women as shields during protests, and revelations of funding amounting to ₹5 lakh per day".

"India is playing an important role on the global stage today. Under the leadership of Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi ji, whenever a problem arises, the entire world looks towards India. India's greatest strengths are its democratic government, respect for the Constitution and the political stability maintained over the past 12 years," Bhatia said. "On the other hand, India also has an Opposition whose functioning has repeatedly attracted allegations of anarchy and anti-Constitutional activities. This Opposition talks about 'regime change', that is, overthrowing the government. How exactly does it intend to bring about such a change?"

He said, "It is shameful even to refer to Rahul Gandhi as the Leader of Opposition. Leaders like him believe in anarchy and destruction, which is why people call him Bhasmasur. Rahul Gandhi has become a leader who seeks to bring anarchy by destroying democracy. All senior BJP leaders are conducting public awareness drives to protect democracy and oppose anarchy."

The Opposition, Bhatia claimed, "is attempting to weaken India by joining hands with anti-national forces".

"Unable to gain power through votes, they seek to bring about a regime change through violence and anarchy. This makes it absolutely clear that they want to achieve their objectives not through the ballot, but by undermining democracy," he said. "Leaders like Rahul Gandhi, Akhilesh Yadav and Mamata Banerjee are spent forces who are losing elections. Akhilesh Yadav will lose again in 2027. All these destructive forces believe that by coming together, they can undermine India's robust democracy, but that is never going to happen."

"Rahul Gandhi claims that the police deal with male protesters quickly during protests. To counter this, he has devised a strategy of placing women at the forefront of protests. This serves two purposes. First, the police in India and Delhi exercise restraint while dealing with women protesters. Second, any police action against them can be misrepresented to tarnish the image of Indian democracy and the Delhi Police," Bhatia said.

"Initially, the protest site had only mats and tents, but now it has air conditioners, coolers, water, burgers and pizzas. This raises questions about the source of the money and the amount being spent on the protest," Bhatia said. "...who is behind this funding, and which organisation is providing it? Is the money coming from organisations like 'Progressive International', which have been linked to Sonia Gandhi," he asked.

Global climate goals must respect national circumstances: India

Nikhil Ghanekar
New Delhi, November 3

AHEAD OF the 31st United Nations annual climate conference in Türkiye's Antalya next week, Union Environment Minister Bhupender Yadav said Tuesday that while India is yet to decide on pledging support for a proposed global '35 by 2035' electrification target, every country has to take into account its national circumstances, sovereignty and poverty-eradication programmes.

India, he said, will push for adherence to the principles of equity and common but differentiated responsibilities to address climate change, and added that an immediate phase-out of fossil fuels was not feasible as energy access for the common people is the government's top priority.

An Environment Ministry press release, underlined that "voluntary initiatives under the Presidency Action Agenda should remain separate from negotiations and that uniform global targets must respect national circumstances".

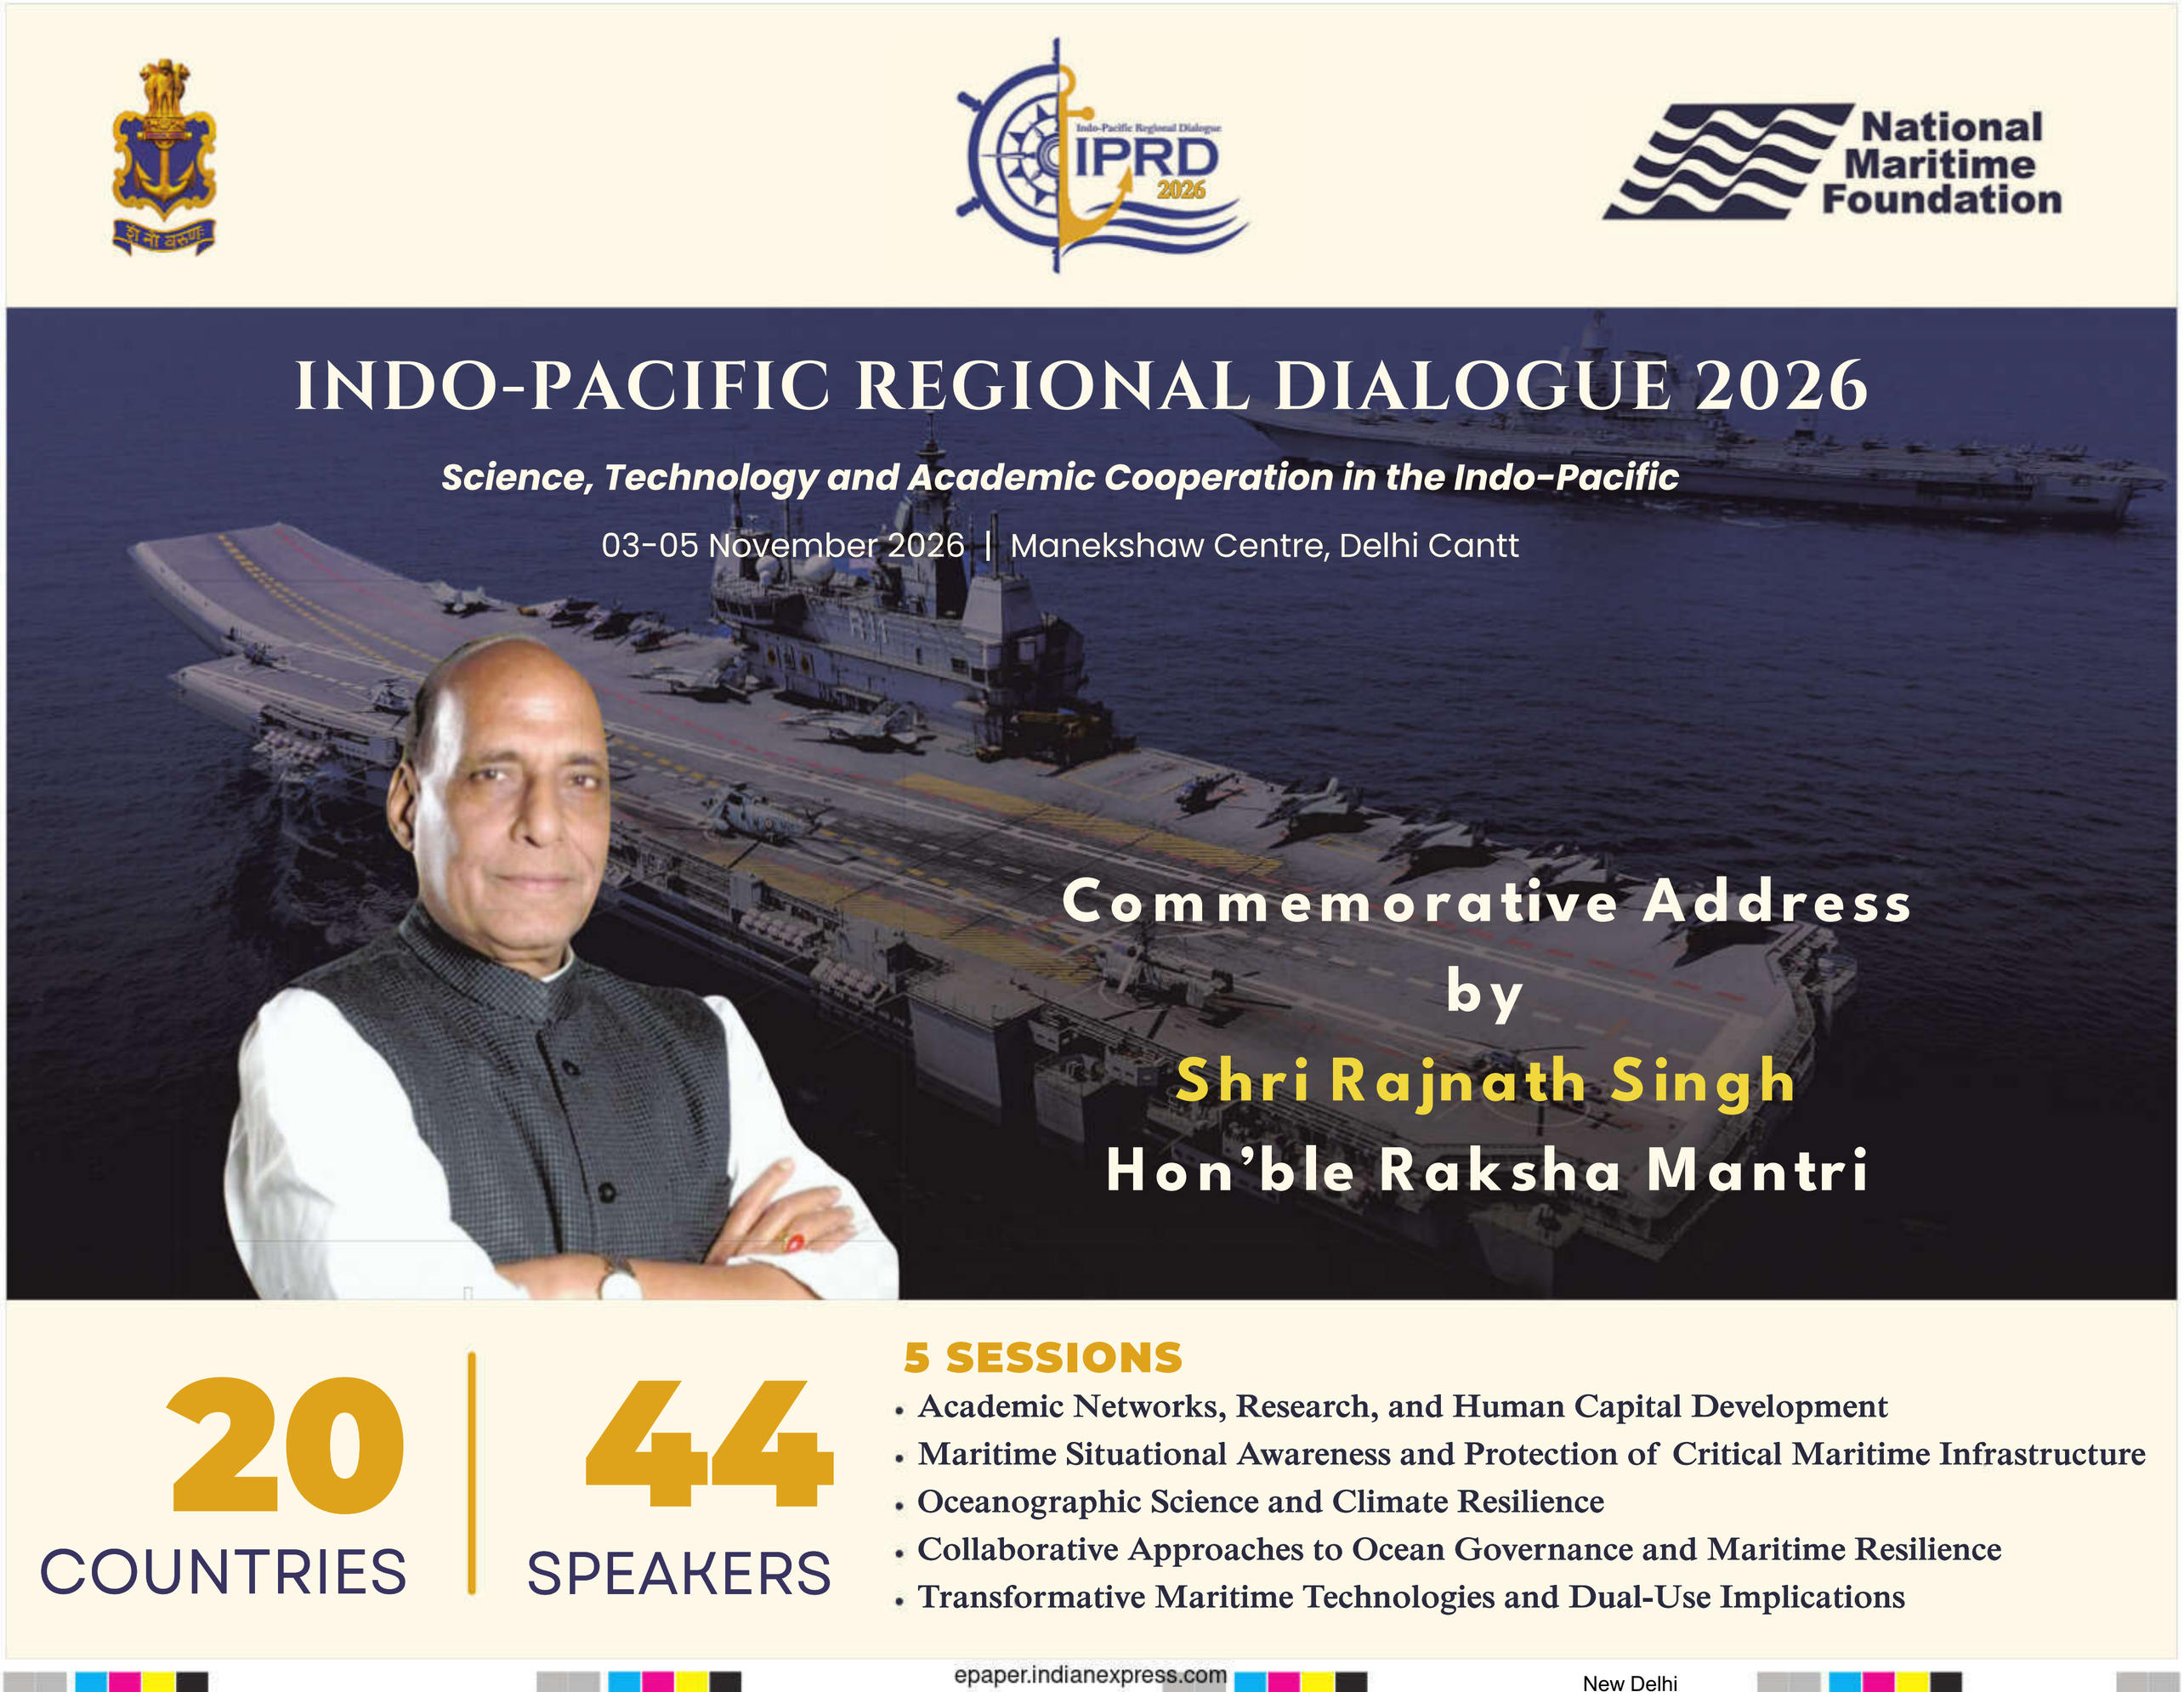

In June this year, Türkiye, which is hosting the 31st Conference of Parties (COP) from November 9 to 21, proposed a target that the world should aim to meet 35 per cent of energy needs from electricity to slash emissions. Yadav will represent India at the 31st COP.

Responding to media queries on India's COP 31 priorities, and the outcomes it hopes to achieve, Yadav said, "Our priority is very clear. In the negotiations, the principles of equity and common but differentiated responsibilities and respective capabilities must be fully respected. This is India's biggest priority, and it has consistently been emphasised by the prime minister."

"India will always be part of the solution, not part of the problem," he added.

Other than the 35 per cent electrification by 2035 proposal, Türkiye has also proposed halving global waste growth by 2035 and reducing energy consumption intensity in the building sector by at least 25 per cent.

Yadav said India will also press for developed countries to meet their climate finance obligations, pushing for a COP31 decision to commence the Climate Finance Work Programme.

Object & Objection

SOLICITOR GENERAL Tushar Mehta's apparent dig at some lawyers on the petitioners' side invited sharp reactions during the hearing of pleas linked to the anti-SIR protests in the Capital. As some counsel sought to counter submissions made by Senior Advocate Mukul Rohatgi, who was representing traders, Mehta said: "Mr Rohatgi, you are lucky that your mic is not snatched." A little later, when those counsel tried to speak again, an annoyed SG said: "Now can I say something without shouting from the other side? My Lord, I am safe. My mic is at a distance. Nobody can snatch it." The message was not lost on anyone as a "mic-snatching incident" in the same case earlier had 'forced' Senior Advocate Gopal Sankaranarayanan, who was representing some of the petitioners, to withdraw from the matter. Mehta's comments invited protest from Senior Advocate Menaka Guruswamy, who told him: "You are a constitutional office holder Mr Mehta. Behave like one."

Srinivas came with a Diwali gift for Somanathan — a 'Raj Sakhi' gift hamper prepared by self-help groups associated with Mission Rajeevika, Rajasthan's rural livelihood initiative. The hamper, it is learnt, contained a stole, a small soap, two candles and two sofa cushion covers, showcasing products crafted by women's SHGs.

Hardeep Puri set to win RS bypoll as nominations of 2 others rejected

Press Trust of India
Bhopal, November 3

WITH THE rejection of the nomination papers of two independent candidates including one backed by Congress on Tuesday, Union Petroleum Minister Hardeep Singh Puri is set to win a Rajya Sabha bypoll from Madhya Pradesh.

The result will be announced on November 5, the last day for withdrawal of nominations, an official said. On the last day for the scrutiny, the nominations of Kante Sayanna and Congress-backed Rajkumar Lohani were rejected, he said.

For their part, the two independent candidates along with Congress leader Hemant Katare objected to Puri's nomination papers, contending that his affidavit in Form 26 was invalid and incomplete.

Returning Officer Umesh Sharma examined the objection and held that Puri had not violated any requirements of the RPA. No defect was found in Puri's papers, Sharma said in his order. Katare and Congress MLA Atif Aqeel said they will move court against the order. "This is an attack on Indian democracy. Despite such significant errors, the nomination was not rejected," they said in a statement.

INAUGURATES PUNE METRO LINE 3, SERVICES START TODAY

India defeating poverty on ground, only slogans earlier: PM's dig at Cong

Ajay Jadhav
Pune, November 3

PM Narendra Modi inaugurates Pune Metro Line 3 via video conferencing, in New Delhi on Tuesday. PTI

VIRTUALLY INAUGURATING Pune Metro Line 3 connecting Maan-Hinjawadi and Shivajinagar, Prime Minister Narendra Modi Tuesday targeted Congress saying that while 50 crore people have overcome extreme poverty in India in the last 10-12 years, earlier the fight was only "limited to slogans".

"Around 50 crore people have overcome extreme poverty in India in the last 10-12 years. Earlier, the fight against poverty was limited to slogans. Today, India is defeating poverty on the ground," the PM said.

Citing the World Bank report on India's success in poverty alleviation, Modi said his government has consistently focused on empowering the poor, enabling them to overcome poverty through confidence and opportunities.

"When the country gave the NDA the opportunity to serve in 2014, we set out with a resolve to ensure the ease of living and ease of transportation for the middle-class living in cities," Modi said.

On the Pune Metro Line, he said it is aimed at easing the commute of lakhs of IT professionals who for years have been complaining about hours-long snarls during their daily commute to their offices in Hinjawadi and back home. "This will save commuters time, which in turn would mean an increase in the productivity of professionals. This will help in the economic growth of the country," Modi said.

Built at a cost of over Rs 8,300 crore, the 23-km-long Pink Line will connect IT hub Hinjawadi and the District Court Metro station at Shivajinagar. An all-woman team of around 100 drivers will operate the trains, a first in the country. Commercial passenger services will begin Wednesday.

He also laid the foundation stones for four more routes, including Metro Line 4.

Modi said the expansion of Metro networks would improve connectivity and accelerate economic growth. He cited the expansion of the country's Metro network as an example of the Centre's efforts towards building 'Viksit Bharat'.

"The first Metro rail in the country was started in 1984 and was operational in only 5 cities till 2014. The previous government would have delayed the development of Metro in Pune. In last 12 years, the Metro network has grown from a mere 248 km to 1,200 km, and Metro services now operate in 26 cities, compared to 5 in 2014," he said.

Reaching out to drought-hit farmers in Maharashtra, the PM assured them full Central support. "The state government has also provided advance assistance. I want to assure every farmer in Maharashtra that during this difficult time, the NDA government stands with them with full sensitivity," the PM said.

CM Devendra Fadnavis said Pune Metro Line 3 was the first Metro project in the country to use PPP model. He said 12 municipal corporations will have Metro operations soon.

NCLT benches share courtrooms, hear cases in half-day sittings, Bar tells SC

Apurva Vishwanath
New Delhi, November 3

FOUR NCLT benches in Delhi share two courtrooms and hear cases for half a day each, in morning and afternoon shifts, the NCLT Bar Association told the Supreme Court while stating the tribunal's infrastructure in the Capital is "dilapidated".

On October 7, the NCLT Registrar issued the "half-day" schedule notice stating that "the sittings of the NCLT Principal Bench and NCLT New Delhi Bench shall be held as per the following revised schedule w.e.f. 08.10.2026". Currently, the Principal Bench sits in Room 621 in the forenoon, and Court 4 uses the same room in the afternoon. Courts 2 and 3 divide Room 724 the same way. The tribunal is in Block 3 of the CGO Complex on Lodhi Road.

Across the country, the affidavit filed on October 27 states: "Out of 31 courts, only 13 courts are functioning on a full-day basis, while 18 courts are functioning on a half-day basis." The affidavit was filed in the suo motu writ petition "In Re: Appointment of Judicial and Technical Members and Inadequate Infrastructure in National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) and Ancillary Issues".

The affidavit states that the Delhi benches are situated in "an old and dilapidated building". An inspection report by CSIR-Central Building Research Institute (CBRI), Roorkee, in September recorded that the roof slab of the eighth floor "was observed to be excessively deteriorated, while it was exposed".

"Severe cracks, bulging, spalling and corrosion in the structural members' reinforcement, including roof slabs, beams & columns, were observed. The reinforcement in columns and beams was found corroded by more than 30%," the report stated.

The report also recorded that "reinforcement was completely lost at multiple locations on the terrace-level slab" and recommended "the reconstruction of the terrace slab along with brick bat coba waterproofing system, including strengthening of beams and columns".

In a letter dated October 1, the Executive Engineer of CPWD's 'U' Division also informed the tribunal that the work would carry "a possibility of falling of loose concrete from the roof of lower floors, particularly the 7th floor". The letter stated that the "continuation of regular activities on the 7th floor during execution of work may pose safety risks to the occupants". Subsequently, the seventh floor was vacated and handed over to CPWD, rendering two more courtrooms unavailable.

An alternate courtroom was made available on Block 12, which the affidavit states is under the control of the Staff Selection Commission. It is learnt that the SSC has written to the NCLT asking it to vacate the floor at the earliest. The Bar affidavit also stated that the NCLT has only temporary use of the first floor where its Registry is located and does not control access to the building.

"Land should be identified and a purpose-built NCLT building constructed. NCLT & NCLAT in New Delhi ideally should be in one building only and in proximity of Delhi HC and this Hon'ble Court," the Bar told the SC. Two suggestions for land were put before the SC — the DTC bus depot adjacent to CGO Complex and an area in Sewa Nagar.

The NCLT has 15 benches across the country, including its Principal Bench in Delhi. The affidavit states that the Mumbai Bench operates from old MTNL building at Cuffe Parade on lease. It describes the premises as "inadequate" and states they have been "affected by structural and other infrastructural issues and, in particular, inadequacy of lift facility". The NCLT overall has a sanctioned strength of 63, comprising a president. The affidavit also lists 16 vacancies among members. It also states that vacancies notified in 2024 have also not been filled.

EC: Electors enrolled previously but not in draft rolls can file Form 6 for inclusion

Some electors hesitant as they need to furnish declaration that their names are being included for the first time: Poll panel

New Delhi, November 3

THE ELECTION Commission on Tuesday clarified, citing relevant law and a High Court order, that electors whose names have been deleted from the draft electoral rolls during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) can file Form 6 to seek inclusion in the final list.

In a letter to the Chief Electoral Officers (CEOs) of all states and Union Territories, the EC said it has come to its notice that some electors whose names do not figure in the draft electoral roll "are hesitant to submit Form 6 as these voters are also required to furnish a declaration prescribed in Form 6 to the effect that their name is being included for the first time in the Electoral Roll."

"Therefore, such electors believe that submission of Form 6, in view of their previous enrolment, would amount to making a false declaration and render them liable for prosecution under Section 31 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950," the EC wrote.

However, it said the declaration had been in place since August 1, 2022, referring to the date that the 2021 amendment to the Act came into force.

That being said, the Form 6 had included the declaration that the applicant was applying for the "first time"—and wasn't already enrolled in any constituency—prior to the 2021 amendment as well.

The version of the form available on the EC website from 2018 has the same declaration. In fact, the form included in a notification on August 18, 2003 too had a similar declaration.

In its communication to the CEOs, the EC said, "It is clarified that an elector whose name does not appear in the draft electoral roll may submit Form 6 to seek inclusion in the final electoral roll, in accordance with the prescribed procedure. Consequently, an elector whose name does not appear in the draft roll is required to seek inclusion afresh in the electoral roll under SIR or afterwards, irrespective of whether the elector had been enrolled previously. The submission of Form 6 in such circumstances is, therefore, for the purpose of inclusion in the electoral roll under SIR or afterwards and is not, by itself, false merely because the elector was previously enrolled," the EC said.

Citing a Delhi High Court judgment on October 14 in a case, the EC said the court had ruled the petitioner's apprehension over a false declaration was misplaced.

"Accordingly, no action under Section 31 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950, shall be initiated by an Electoral Registration Officer (ERO) against an elector merely on the ground that the elector had been included in a previous electoral roll and has submitted Form 6 during the SIR process or afterwards, provided that the elector is not already enrolled in any other Parliamentary or Assembly Constituency and the declaration made is otherwise in accordance with law," the EC said.

'Can't separate military, tech readiness'

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh addresses the Delhi Defence Dialogue, Tuesday.

RAJNATH SINGH said self-reliance means ensuring critical defence requirements are not held hostage to external dependencies.

HE UNDERLINED that military preparedness in the 21st century cannot be separated from technological preparedness.

AATMANIRBHARTA MUST be understood as a quest for tech sovereignty. It does not mean producing everything ourselves, he said.

WITH WEST Bengal SIR Appellate Tribunal judges refusing to log-in since the Election Commission rolled out an Aadhaar authentication screen in their portal in September, the poll panel last week has asked the judges to create digital signature certificates in an effort to restart the stalled process, official records accessed by The Indian Express show

On September 24, just three days after the Aadhaar-authentication screen was introduced on September 21, the Supreme Court-appointed judges wrote to the Additional CEO of West Bengal asking that the Aadhaar authentication be withdrawn.

"The Honourable Judges at the Appellate Tribunal require the Aadhaar authentication screen removed from the AT portal for the purpose of disposal of appeals," the tribunals' venue-in-charge had written to the Additional CEO on September 24. Since then, the judges have not been logging in to the portal and disposing of appeals, though they have been working offline, sources say.

The feature was added on September 21 after EC Director General (IT), Seema Khanna, made a presentation to the judges about updates to the portal.

The Indian Express had earlier reported that on October 13, the in-charge of the tribunals once again asked the EC to "fix the issue" to ensure proper functioning of the tribunals such that final orders can be uploaded, the records show.

Last week, the West Bengal CEO's office asked the judges to set up digital signature certificates through a private agency.

According to an email to the CEO by the agency on October 28, the process requires the judges to provide colour scans of their PAN card and a government ID card; a colour photograph, valid mobile number and an email address; the authorising person's government ID card; and an authorisation letter.

The process includes verification through OTPs sent on the judges' phone number and email as well as a "video verification", during which the applicant has to show the original PAN card and government ID. As per the government-notified rates, each digital signature certificate costs Rs 2,300.

The ECI did not respond to a request for comment.

The appeals process in Bengal has been stalled at a time when only 1.26 lakh appeals out of the total 38.31 lakh have been disposed of, as per EC data provided to the SC in September.

Amid Siang project protest, Arunachal gets new police chief

Press Trust of India
New Delhi, November 3

THE UNION Home Ministry Tuesday appointed 1995-batch IPS officer Rajesh Kumar as the new DGP of Arunachal Pradesh, a day after he was prematurely repatriated from the CRPF to his parent cadre.

The Appointments Committee of the Cabinet Monday cleared the Union Home Ministry's proposal to repatriate Kumar prematurely to his parent AGMUT cadre with "immediate effect" from the CRPF, where he was serving as Special DG. In an order issued Wednesday, the MHA posted Kumar as the new DGP, succeeding the incumbent and his batchmate, Shiv Darshan Singh Jamwal, who has been transferred to Delhi.

This comes at a time when a section of the tribal community in Arunachal has been protesting against the proposed 11,200-megawatt hydroelectric project on the Siang River, considered one of India's largest.

The project, envisioned as one of India's largest hydropower initiatives, has faced sustained opposition from sections of the indigenous Adi community, particularly residents of the proposed project-affected areas. The project has assumed strategic significance in context of China's proposed massive hydropower project on Yarlung Tsangpo River in Tibet, which enters India as the Siang.

'Omar delegitimised demand for Article 370... spoke BJP's language'

EXPRESS interview

Bashaarat Masood
Srinagar, November 3

SRINAGAR MP Aga Syed Ruhullah Mehdi resigned from the NC and his parliamentary constituency Tuesday amid continued differences with J&K CM Omar Abdullah and the party leadership. In an interview with The Indian Express, Mehdi explains why he believes the CM "betrayed" the resounding 2024 Assembly elections mandate, why he believes the NC is in decline, and why he is seeking a political alternative in Kashmir. Excerpts:

Aga Syed Ruhullah Mehdi in Budgam on Tuesday. SHUAIB MASOODI

You have ended 24 years of association with the NC. What led to this decision?

In his election campaign, the CM (Omar) said restoring statehood was not his issue; his cause was restoring Article 370. But soon after getting elected, he diluted his stand and said restoring Article 370 is not his fight; he is going to fight for statehood. He spoke the language BJP wanted people to speak. Personally, it is a betrayal and I would not want to be a part of any deceit, lie, or betrayal. Especially when we have an existential threat in terms of political identity, political autonomy, and religious and cultural identity; our demography is under threat. We do not have scope for lies or deception.

But for two years, you fought from the inside. Why give up now?

I wanted clarity and that was given to me by the party's president (Farooq Abdullah) when he said if Aga Ruhullah thinks that 370 can be restored, he can go and get it restored, effectively meaning he himself does not believe that 370 can be restored. That was enough clarity for me that this organisation is no longer committed to its ideology... It has surrendered to powers in Delhi (in past) and this time it has surrendered to BJP.

But can BJP, which abrogated Article 370, be expected to restore it?

The CM didn't articulate the same things during elections. He articulated something opposite. He said it was our job to challenge the BJP. Either he was lying then, or he is lying now. In either case, he has done politics of lies and betrayal...

Where do you see the NC in the next elections?

It was already in decline. Back in 2014, it hardly got 15 Assembly seats. After the abrogation, people wanted to vote against BJP and register their dissen... They had no option because the other option, the PDP, had committed the same betrayal... So people saw NC as a lesser evil or that my personal efforts in Parliament helped shape the party as a lesser evil or something that can again be given a chance. I think that is why the NC got this opportunity to rise again to do the course correction. But they lost this opportunity... This time around, I don't think people will forgive them...

If the NC is in decline, according to you, and the PDP barely managed three seats in the election, is there a scope and need for another Kashmir-based political party?

There is absolutely not only a scope but a need for correction, not by these parties but by society itself. The similarity between these two political organisations is the lack of character and the only difference is their name. To understand the problem, one needs to see where the problem is. The problem is in their character. They lack conviction and principle. So, there is a need to identify people who believe in principles, who have some conviction, moral and political character, to take affairs into their hands...

But coming back to the CM, what more could he have done?

He scaled down the rhetoric and didn't make the mandate of the people and the aspiration of people a part of the discourse in national politics. He said BJP would not listen. Ladakh showed us the same BJP was brought back to the table by Ladakhis... He could have reached out to the rest of India. He could have reached out to Opposition parties.

But the NC brought two resolutions in the House. One was by the CM himself.

He delegitimised any aspiration for Article 370, any struggle for 370. This is the CM who brought two resolutions in two years, diluting his first resolution with the second. It reminds me of another resolution which he didn't let J&K Assembly pass. The resolution against Waqf Amendment Act. This is the only Muslim-majority Assembly and the irony is it could not pass the resolution. Punjab did, Tamil Nadu did.

1 dead, 3 injured as Bihar ASI opens fire after villagers corner him at woman's house

Himanshu Harsh
Patna, November 3

A POLICE Assistant Sub-Inspector (ASI) allegedly opened fire with his service pistol after being cornered by villagers at a woman's house in Bihar's Madhubani district early Tuesday, killing a 50-year-old man and injuring three others. The accused, who was posted at a police picket in Balirajgarh village under Babubarhi police station limits, fled the spot, police said.

"The firing took place around 1 am on Tuesday when some villagers allegedly spotted the ASI inside the woman's house, caught him and locked him in a room," Madhubani Senior Superintendent of Police (SSP) Yogendra Kumar said, adding that as per preliminary investigation, the accused ASI fired four rounds from his government-issued service pistol while attempting to escape.

The dead has been identified as Ashok Yadav.

"One sustained a bullet injury to the leg, another was hit in the waist, while the third suffered an injury near the neck," SSP Kumar said. The three injured persons are undergoing treatment.

The senior officer said the ASI had allegedly been visiting the woman's house frequently. "The ASI was reportedly involved in an illicit relationship with the woman and regularly visited her residence to collect some items. He was allegedly confronted by villagers during one such visit on Monday night," the SSP said.

According to police, after receiving information about the firing, a Dial 112 emergency response team rushed to the village and shifted all four injured persons to Sadar Hospital, where Yadav died while undergoing treatment. Senior police officers, including Madhubani SSP and Sub-Divisional Police Officers of Sadar-1 and Sadar-2, subsequently inspected the incident site.

The SSP said he had personally visited the spot to speak to residents and gather details.

"The ASI has been suspended... and will be dismissed completely from service today itself. A murder case is being registered against him at Babubarhi police station. After his arrest, we will pursue a speedy trial and ensure that he gets the harshest possible punishment. We will take the case to the point of seeking a death penalty," SSP Kumar said, adding that five special teams had been constituted to arrest him.

The SSP also said additional police forces had been deployed in the area following the incident. According to the police, the situation was normal and there was no law-and-order problem.

The SSP has announced a reward of Rs 25,000 for anyone providing credible information about the absconding officer.

Two die as cyclone Murasu hits Andhra, educational centres shut

CM briefs Shah on impact; Odisha remains on alert

Hyderabad, November 3

Andhra Pradesh State Disaster Response Force (APSDRF) personnel clear an uprooted tree on Bapatla-Muttayapalem road after Cyclone Murasu hit the coastal town in Bapatla district. PTI

ODISHA AND Andhra Pradesh declared holidays for educational institutions in several districts and continued evacuations as Cyclone Murasu battered parts of the two states. The storm weakened into a cyclonic storm on Tuesday afternoon as it moved over South Coastal Andhra Pradesh.

Murasu moved north-northwestwards at 7 kmph in the six hours up to 2.30 pm and weakened into a cyclonic storm over the same region, the India Meteorological Department (IMD) said in an official release.

"Severe cyclonic storm Murasu weakened into a cyclonic storm over South Coastal Andhra Pradesh," it said, adding that the weather system was located 40 km west-northwest of Bapatla, 60 km north of Ongole and 80 km southwest of Vijayawada. The maximum sustained wind speed was 80-90 kmph, gusting up to 100 kmph at 2.30 pm. "The cyclonic storm is very likely to continue to move north-northwestwards and weaken into a deep depression (wind speed reaching 55-65 kmph (and) gusting to 75 kmph) by midnight of today," the weather department said.

At least two people died in cyclone-related incidents in Andhra Pradesh, an official said on Tuesday. Andhra Pradesh State Disaster Management Authority (APSDMA) Managing Director Prakhar Jain said 12,230 people were being sheltered in rehabilitation centres.

Preliminary estimates put the damage at Rs 344 crore, with standing crops over 52,459 hectares damaged by heavy rain. A total of 312 houses were damaged, while the government was actively monitoring 814 minor irrigation tanks and had placed 776 on high alert, Jain added.

Rain battered parts of Andhra Pradesh and Odisha. In Andhra Pradesh, where the cyclone made landfall, heavy rain was reported in Prakasam, Nellore, Bapatla and NTR districts as the storm moved inland. Rain is expected to continue for another two days.

Hundreds of trees were uprooted in Nellore, Prakasam and Bapatla districts, and several low-lying areas inundated. Electricity department officials, however, reported no disruption to power supply, with electricity poles appearing to have withstood the storm.

Anticipating possible landslides due to heavy rain, authorities moved residents of low-lying areas in Bapatla and NTR districts to shelters overnight. At least 150 pregnant women and elderly people in the two districts were shifted to hospitals and primary health centres, where they will remain until the rains subside, officials said.

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu briefed Union Home Minister Amit Shah on the impact of the cyclone. Earlier, he had held a teleconference with district collectors and officials at 3.30 am to review the situation. Between 8.30 am on Monday and the same time on Tuesday, Bapatla recorded 222.4 mm of rain, followed by Narasapur (198.6 mm) and Ongole (120.2 mm).

Meanwhile, Odisha's southern districts witnessed light rainfall on Tuesday, even as the state government asked district collectors in the region to remain prepared to handle any adverse weather conditions, a minister said. "We hope the situation will not be adverse. Four IAS officers — two in Ganjam, and one each in Gajapati and Kandhamal districts — have been deployed with full powers as additional special relief commissioners," Odisha Disaster Management Minister Suresh Pujari said.

The state government has shifted more than 1.65 lakh people to safety and deployed disaster response teams in five southern districts in view of an IMD forecast of heavy rain and gusty winds. As many as 592 permanent and temporary shelters are operational across these districts, officials said.

Anganwadi centres and schools have been closed on Tuesday and Wednesday in some southern districts. Over 300 teams of disaster response forces, including the National Disaster Response Force, Odisha Disaster Rapid Action Force and fire services, remain deployed in vulnerable areas, officials said.

Odisha Chief Secretary Anu Garg said officials had geared up relief and restoration work in the southern districts after Cyclone Arnab wreaked havoc in the region. Each affected family was being provided 50 kg of rice and Rs 2,500, she said.

The continuing threat of landslides has also kept Odisha's disaster response machinery on alert. The state government has stepped up multi-agency search and rescue operations at Gidipabali village on the Ganjam-Kandhamal border, where 12 people went missing after a massive rain-triggered landslide during Cyclone Arnab last week. Two bodies have been recovered so far, leaving 10 people missing.

The dead have been identified as Salman Pradhan (29) and Rabi Mallick (52), of Gidipabali village. Their bodies were recovered on Sunday, Sarangi said.

Odisha Disaster Management Minister Suresh Pujari said the operation under Bhanjanagar block in Ganjam district entered its fourth day on Tuesday. A total of 157 personnel from the NDRF, ODRAF, Railways and Fire Services, along with 25 local volunteers, were engaged in the operation.

Ground-penetrating radar and other specialised equipment are being used to trace the missing, while teams are also using explosives to remove huge boulders that have hampered the search, Director General of Fire Services S Sarangi said.

Tusshar Kapoor gets extortion threat of Rs 5 cr from Lawrence Bishnoi gang 'aide'

Tusshar Kapoor

Mumbai, November 3

DAYS AFTER the firing on actor Tiger Shroff in Juhu, Bollywood actor Tusshar Kapoor received a threat from a person claiming to be gangster Hari Boxer demanding Rs 5 crore.

The police, however, said that on checking the voice with earlier threats by Boxer, it does not appear the person was Hari Boxer. The police suspect it could be someone taking advantage of the fear after the firing on actor Tiger Shroff.

A senior officer said that the threat was received around the time after Tiger Shroff was shot at. "A voice note was sent to the actor where a person claiming to be Hari Boxer is demanding Rs 5 crore if he wanted to be safe," an officer said. The actor approached the local police and the matter was handed over to the crime branch.

Boxer, a member of the Lawrence Bishnoi gang, has in the past issued threats to director Rohit Shetty, actor Ranveer Singh, among others.

NMC proposes rank instead of percentile system for admission to PG & super-speciality courses

Anonna Dutt
New Delhi, November 3

THE COUNTRY'S apex medical education regulator, the National Medical Commission (NMC), has proposed moving away from the percentile process to a rank-based system for admissions to post-graduate and super-speciality courses to reduce delays between different rounds of counselling.

Doctors, however, argue that this change is unlikely to resolve the problem of meritless candidates also becoming eligible for seats as the qualifying percentile is reduced.

"NMC is in the process of issuing new regulations, which are yet to be finalised, wherein only rank-based system for NEET PG & SS counselling will be adopted. No percentile marks will be declared in results, only ranks will be given to the candidates... The commission has accorded in-principle approval for the proposed change," said a report, prepared by a 12-member expert committee, submitted to the Supreme Court.

At present, the decision to reduce the percentile in order to fill up PG and super-speciality seats in later rounds of counselling is taken by a competent authority "in consonance with the stakeholders depending on the number of seats lying vacant".

Moving to a rank-based system, on the other hand, will do away with this requirement of permission from a competent authority, thereby facilitating the completion of the counselling process in the prescribed time frame, according to the suggestions by the regulators and minutes of the meetings held.

Dr Dhruv Chauhan, spokesperson for the Indian Medical Association—Junior Doctors' Network, said: "Our contention is that candidates with even negative marks become eligible for PG seats. The rank-based system does not result in any significant change in allocation of seats — even to candidates scoring as low as -40 marks, which has happened in the past. The National Medical Commission has nowhere said that it will keep the cut-off at least 0 marks."

"Just because seats remain vacant, the standards should not be diluted. Instead, the NMC needs to take note of seats that have consistently remained vacant over the last several years and cancel them. These are seats that not even candidates with the lowest marks want to study at."

After introducing a digital counselling system this year onwards, the Medical Counselling Committee (MCC) — which allocates central-quota medical seats at all levels — has had discussions on a more hands-off approach. "MCC is working towards digitalising the whole counselling process... to ensure transparency and accountability," stated the report.

This year, for the first time, candidates who wished to upgrade their seats in subsequent rounds of counselling did not have to travel to their selected institute, provide their documents and registration fee, before going back to get their original documents and fees when they got upgraded.

Importantly, a complete online database of the UG and PG medical seats has been prepared, which will be minimally changed each year based on the decision of the NMC on adding or cancelling seats. Till 2025, the MCC relied on colleges to provide details of their seats to it before counselling students, which was manually verified by the NMC. This sometimes resulted in duplication of seats or some seats getting added only in the second or third round of counselling.

The NMC has also said that it will update any seats well before the date of commencement of counselling.

SC freezes BMC chief's Nov salary for failing to remove squatters

Express News Service

Ashwini Bhide

THE SUPREME Court on Tuesday issued notice to BMC Commissioner Ashwini Bhide, asking her to show cause why it should not initiate contempt of court proceedings against her for failing to comply with its direction to clear encroachments from land intended for a bus station project in Borivali, and ordered suspension of her salary for the month of November.

A bench of Chief Justice of India Surya Kant and Justices Joymalya Bagchi and V Mohana turned down the BMC's request for 30 more days to execute the direction of removing encroachments and imposed a penalty of Rs 5 lakh on the municipal body.

The SC bench noted that its earlier directions were yet to be acted upon and wondered if there was any collusion between the officials and encroachers.

The CJI said, "This is an absolutely mischievous breach of the directions of the Supreme Court, with the direct connivance and support of the encroachers." He warned that the court can put it all down in the order if the officials do not mend their ways.

Justice Bagchi told the BMC counsel, "You will not be drawing a salary till the 1st of December 2026. So comply before that. You come here and then you can draw your salary."

Dismissing the BMC's prayer for further extension of time, the CJI said: "Let them sit in the midnight and pass the orders. Let them know how to work."

The contempt application was moved by the project proponent, who alleged that the municipal authorities had failed to clear the encroachments.

Hearing the case on November 13 last year, the SC had said that "as regard to the removal of encroachments, prima facie, we find that the municipal authorities are attempting to wriggle out of their previous stand and responsibility." It granted one opportunity to the Commissioner "to file" an " affidavit along with (i) the names and particulars of the occupants; (ii) the copies of the notices issued to them; (iii) the copies of their reply, if any, received pursuant to such notices; (iv) the documents relied upon by the occupants in support of their plea of tenancy or ownership, if any; and (v) any enquiry/exercise undertaken by the Municipal Authorities to verify the genuineness of such documents."

While hearing it again on July 28, 2026, the BMC said although notices against the encroachers were issued under the Maharashtra Regional and Town Planning Act, 1966, most of them dragged the corporation into litigation before the civil court. The bench said, "In our opinion, in the absence of any interim stay by the civil court, nothing precludes the corporation from taking those notices for removal of unauthorised possession to their logical conclusion(s)." It directed that the needful be done in three months and a compliance report be submitted.

Moving Beant assassination convict to Punjab will have huge impact on polls, IB tells SC

Press Trust of India
New Delhi, November 3

THE INTELLIGENCE Bureau told the Supreme Court Tuesday that transferring Beant Singh murder convict Jagtar Singh Hawara from Tihar Jail to any prison in Punjab will have a huge impact on the upcoming state elections, which are due early next year.

The IB also told the top court that Hawara falls in the high-risk category. A bench comprising Justices M M Sundresh and P B Varale told Senior Advocate S Muralidhar that the agency's report is very damning.

Muralidhar submitted, "If elections are a concern, this may be taken up after three months." The top court posted the matter in February next year.

Days after police encounter, Andhra chainsaw attacker's leg amputated

Sreenivas Janyala
Hyderabad, October 3

THE RIGHT leg of the 21-year-old suspect in the attack on a Class 10 girl with a chainsaw at a school in Andhra Pradesh's Anantapur district on Saturday has been amputated, doctors said.

The amputation followed injuries he sustained in police firing. The surgery was performed at the Anantapur Government General Hospital early Tuesday morning. "Due to the loss of blood circulation to the right leg after the police firing, gangrene had developed... and we had to amputate above the knee," Dr D Malleswari, medical superintendent of the hospital, told The Indian Express.

The suspect was admitted to the hospital on Sunday night with injuries to both legs after police opened fire. Police said a team that went to arrest him was attacked with a knife.

HC orders fresh autopsy of Mansa man, cremation in Chandigarh

Kamaldeep Singh Brar
Mansa, November 3

THE PUNJAB and Haryana High Court on Tuesday ordered a fresh autopsy on Mansa resident Daljit Singh by a panel of doctors at the Postgraduate Institute of Medical Education and Research (PGIMER), Chandigarh on November 4 and subsequent cremation in Sector 25 Chandigarh, allowing only family members to attend.

The directions came amid tensions over Daljit Singh's death and handling of his body by the police, with his family alleging that he died of a drug overdose, while the police have claimed that he was murdered.

His sister, Amarjit Kaur had sought the body's return and insisted that he be cremated in his native village, Bhamme Kalan.

Presided over by Justice Sanjay Vashisth, the court took serious note of the "alarming public unrest" and conflicting accounts surrounding Daljit Singh's death. An initial post-mortem examination at AIIMS, Bathinda, had recorded eight distinct injuries on Daljit Singh's body.

The court directed the Punjab and Chandigarh DGPs and PGIMER authorities to coordinate the transfer of the mortal remains to the institute for a fresh post-mortem, followed by arrangements for cremation at the Sector 25 cremation ground on November 4.

KPSC scam: ED says ex-chairman building Rs 35-cr 'dream project'

Johnson T A
Bengaluru, November 3

FORMER KARNATAKA Public Service Commission (KPSC) chairman Shivashankarappa Sahukar, who was arrested in an alleged scam linked to the recruitment of veterinary doctors, was building a Rs 35-crore complex in his hometown, including a school, hostel, playground, mall and convention hall, according to the Enforcement Directorate (ED).

The agency made these submissions during bail hearings for Sahukar and co-accused KPSC member B V Geetha before a special court hearing the case. Arguments from both sides concluded on Monday, and the court reserved its verdict.

According to the ED, architectural drawings were prepared for the "dream project" at Shahpur in Karnataka's Yadgir district on land owned by Sahukar's wife. The parent of a candidate who allegedly paid a bribe for leaked answer keys in the veterinary doctors exam held on January 9 was designated as the proposed school's caretaker, the agency told the court.

The Karnataka High Court, meanwhile, ordered the state ADGP R Hitendra to lead a reconstituted Special Investigation Team (SIT) to probe the recruitment scams, directing that the ED and SIT probes must complement each other. The CID is due to file its chargesheet by November 26.

Sahukar and KPSC were at the centre of a series of investigative reports by The Indian Express on the recruitment scam published in September.

This newspaper found that the scam was part of a larger pattern of irregularities during the tenure of Sahukar, who was handpicked by the BJP for the KPSC in 2019 and shielded by the Congress, which came to power in Karnataka in 2023.

The Indian Express also reported that the alleged irregularities flagged by job aspirants included marks withheld and top scorers targeted for bribes; interview panels manipulated; tabulation records altered; answer sheets tampered with; and question papers leaked to select candidates.

Sahukar was suspended on August 25 in a separate scam related to the illegal recruitment by KPSC of his own daughter. He was arrested by the ED last month.

Sahukar and Geetha are accused of leaking answer keys to nine aspirants for the veterinary officers exam in exchange for bribes ranging between Rs 10 lakh and Rs 40 lakh.

Shivashankarappa Sahukar was arrested last month

The ED has alleged that Sahukar received Rs 10 lakh from the parent of the third-rank candidate, which was part of a Rs 20-lakh deal, while Geetha received Rs 20 lakh from the first-rank candidate, as part of a Rs 40-lakh deal, on the eve of the exam.

In its submission before the special court, the ED focused on alleged cash transactions exceeding Rs 10 crore between Sahukar and real estate businessman S P Dayanand, including Rs 4.99 crore transferred between August and December 2025. Searches at Sahukar's residence between August 18 and 24 allegedly uncovered a notebook and loose sheets tracking exam candidates and cash dealings, the ED told the court.

Defence counsel C H Hanumantharaya argued that Sahukar qualified for bail under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) as he was not accused of personally receiving over Rs 1 crore in alleged proceeds of crime.

ED counsel Maheshwari D M, however, argued that "the statutory threshold amount can be decided only after filing of the prosecution complaint" and cannot be linked to only one candidate but to the entire crime of corruption in the KPSC recruitment process.

Sahukar was "dealing in substantial cash transactions outside the banking channels" with businessman Dayanand, the counsel argued. The agency alleged that the cash deals, aggregating to Rs 10 crore, happened at Sahukar's home.

The defence counsel for B V Geetha argued that she should receive special consideration under the PMLA because she is a woman.

In response, the agency contended that Geetha was "not a scapegoat". It pointed out that she is a non-practising advocate who served as a prosecutor for the state Lokayukta, and that she was fully aware of her actions.

Investigations by the Karnataka CID and ED in the recruitment scam has implicated Sahukar, Geetha and exam controller Gyanendra Kumar Gangwar, an IAS officer, for allegedly leaking questions and answer keys to aspirants.

HC reconstitutes SIT, IPS officer R Hitendra to head probe

Bengaluru: The Karnataka HC has reconstituted the SIT probing the alleged scam in the recruitment of veterinary doctors by the Karnataka Public Service Commission, and irregularities in selecting a now-suspended KPSC chairman's daughter for a government job. The HC appointed R Hitendra, an IPS officer of the Additional DGP-rank, as the head of the SIT.

The HC's order came after the state government moved the Supreme Court against the HC's September 21 order appointing Director General of Police-rank officer Alok Kumar to head the SIT, and directing a fresh probe. The matter was being already probed by the state police's Criminal Investigation Department.

In its order Monday, the HC appointed ADGP Soumendu Mukherjee as a second senior member of the SIT. The HC ordered that none of the officers associated with the CID investigations shall be inducted into the SIT as its assisting team in any manner whatsoever. ENS

Planes to windmills: ED attaches assets in Anil Ambani group cases

New Delhi, November 3

THE ENFORCEMENT Directorate (ED) has attached assets worth Rs 23,100 crore cumulatively in the multiple cases in connection with its probe against the Reliance Anil Ambani Group under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) and Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA), the agency said Tuesday.

According to a statement by ED, the latest round of attachments spans aircraft, bank balances, fixed deposits, immovable properties, receivables and investments.

In the Reliance Communication Limited (RCOM) alleged bank fraud case, in which Rs 247.12 crore is under investigation, the attached assets include two chartered aircraft, six land parcels and one office premises in Maharashtra, the spokesperson said.

"In the case involving Reliance Home Finance Limited (RHFL) and Reliance Commercial Finance Limited (RCFL), where Rs 263.05 crore is under investigation, the attached assets comprise two windmills in Tamil Nadu besides bank balances, fixed deposits and investments and receivables," the spokesperson said.

The probe was initiated based on multiple FIRs registered by the CBI in Delhi, the Economic Offences Wing of the Delhi Police, and the Economic Offences Wing of the Mumbai Police. The agency has investigated two cases under FEMA.

"The cumulative attachment figure of approximately Rs 23,100 crore covers assets attached and seized across the several cases being investigated against the group to date," the spokesperson added.

A query sent to the spokesperson of Reliance Group for comment did not elicit a response. The companies under investigation include Reliance Communication Ltd, Reliance Home Finance Ltd, Reliance Commercial Finance Ltd, Reliance Infrastructure Ltd, Reliance Power Ltd and Reliance Capital Ltd.

According to the agency, its probe revealed siphoning off of public funds from financial institutions, misuse of insolvency and bankruptcy code to fraudulently ring-fence corporate assets for personal use, and the diversion of public funds from India to offshore tax havens. So far, ED has arrested 10 people and filed six prosecution complaints under PMLA.

A bridge to nowhere in MP: Built in 2023, structure has no roads leading up to it

Anand Mohan J
Bhopal, November 3

IN 2023, a 308-metre bridge came up over the Dudhi river in Madhya Pradesh's Narmadapuram district, giving villagers the hope that it would finally help them connect with the rest of the state.

Three years on, the structure, built at a cost of over Rs 8 crore, is yet to be put to use. The roads leading to the bridge on either side remain missing with the local administration yet to figure out the agency that will carry out the construction.

The bridge near Umardha village in the Bankhedi area of Narmadapuram was completed in December 2023. It was intended to connect the district with the neighbouring Narsinghpur and improve access for residents of around 40-50 villages. But while the structure is in place, the 2.7-km access roads, supposed to connect it to the existing village-road network, have not been built.

Keshav Raidas, sub-divisional officer of Setu Nirman Vibhag in Narsinghpur, said his department had finished the work assigned to it 3 years ago. The outstanding work concerns the longer link roads on either side of the river, whose construction will have to be assigned to another agency. "The work entrusted to our Setu Nirman Vibhag has been completed. This included the bridge and the approach-road stretches of 50 and 100 metres on either side."

The department had submitted a detailed report to the state government after being asked to provide information about the pending roads. The report identifies two stretches that remain to be built: approximately 1,200 metres on the Narsinghpur side and 1,500 metres on the Narmadapuram side.

The bridge near Umardha village in Narmadapuram. EXPRESS

The road on the Narmadapuram side needs to connect the bridge through Pasi Ghat to an existing village road maintained by the Public Works Department (PWD). On the Narsinghpur side, the remaining stretch is around 1.2-km long.

"The government had sought information from us about the link roads. We prepared a detailed report and sent it to the government, explaining the stretches that remain to be constructed. Since the bridge work assigned to our department has been completed, the government will decide which department will undertake the remaining work," Raidas said. That decision has yet to be taken.

Meanwhile, problems faced by villagers continue. During monsoon, tracks leading to the bridge become muddy and waterlogged. Once rains recede, potholes and uneven ground make access difficult.

Raidas said the PWD could be considered for the road connection on the Narmadapuram side, while the Pradhan Mantri Gram Sadak Yojana (PMGSY) could potentially be involved on the Narsinghpur side. These are possibilities, he said, rather than confirmed assignments. The final decision rests with the state.

The bridge was sanctioned at Rs 8.86 crore, though the contractor completed the construction for around Rs 8 crore, Raidas said. His account draws a distinction between the bridge and the short approach-road stretches included in his department's contract, which he says were completed, and the longer link roads that remain pending.

The bridge connects Saikheda area of Narsinghpur, including villages such as Mawar and Tumda, with settlements on the Narmadapuram side, including Pasi and Umarda. A functioning road connection would make travel between the two districts easier.

J&K HC quashes PSA order: 'Mere use of encrypted app no ground for detention'

Arun Sharma
Jammu, November 3

THE JAMMU & Kashmir and Ladakh High Court last week set aside the Public Safety Act detention of a 26-year-old Pulwama man, observing that the mere assertion that he used an encrypted application or VPN, or remained in contact with people allegedly associated with terrorist organisations, was not "an adequate basis for curtailing personal liberty through preventive detention".

Ajaz Ahmad Seh of Pulwama was detained on July 28, 2025, based on a police dossier alleging he was in contact with Pakistan-based Jaish-e-Mohammad handlers through telephone and the encrypted application Zangi, allegedly accessed through a secured VPN.

The dossier accused him of acting as an Over Ground Worker (OGW), providing food, shelter, clothing, transportation and information on security force movements to active terrorists, including Haris Nazir, a resident of Kachipora in Rajpora, Pulwama. He was accused of motivating local youth to join terrorist ranks. Among JeM militants he was allegedly in contact with was Aashiq Ahmad Nengroo, declared an individual terrorist by an NIA court in Pulwama in 2024.

"The allegations, if supported by cogent material, are undoubtedly serious and warrant appropriate action in accordance with law," Justice Wasim Sadiq Nargal observed in his order on October 30. "However, what assumes significance is that the grounds of detention as placed before this court do not furnish adequate particulars of the alleged communication or activities".

The order noted there was no clear indication of specific dates of the alleged communications or nature and substance of the information purportedly exchanged. "Mere assertion that the detenue used an encrypted application or a VPN, or remained in contact with persons alleged to be associated with terrorist organisations, cannot, without further particulars and relevant supporting material, furnish an adequate basis for curtailing personal liberty through preventive detention," the court said. "If the investigating agency possessed material indicating that the detenue had used electronic communications to coordinate terrorist activities... such material could have been examined and acted upon in accordance with the applicable criminal law".

Depending on the facts disclosed by the investigation, provisions of the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1987, or other applicable penal statutes could have been invoked, he observed. "The authorities were not precluded from investigating alleged activities, collecting electronic and other evidence, and initiating prosecution in accordance with law," he said.

Emphasising that preventive detention is a precautionary measure and not a substitute for the ordinary criminal process, Justice Nargal observed: "The power of preventive detention, being an extraordinary invasion of personal liberty, must be ... and only in strict conformity with the constitutional and statutory safeguards governing its exercise. The object of such detention is to prevent a person from engaging in activities prejudicial to the security of the State or other interests specified under the relevant law..."

"The statutory responsibility cannot be discharged by mechanically adopting the narrative supplied by the police," Justice Nargal observed, ordering the authorities to release the detenue if he was not required in any other case.

Buxa tigress captured in Assam, Bengal prepares to take home

Ravik Bhattacharya
Kolkata, November 3

NEARLY 10 days after it ventured into Assam, Doars Rani, West Bengal's first relocated tigress was on Tuesday evening tranquilised and caged in the northeastern state.

Armed with nets, three elephants, earth movers, and teams with tranquiliser guns, the forest department officials of West Bengal and Assam began a joint operation to cage the tigress. It was finally captured in Gilaguri in the Dotma area of Assam's Kokrajhar district at around 5.30pm on Tuesday.

"Finally we have been able to tranquillise and cage Doars Rani. We are bringing her back to Buxa Tiger Reserve. We brought in three elephants from Bengal, apart from earthmovers. The area was cordoned off with nets and finally we were able to tranquilise it after various attempts," Manoj Kumar Oraon, West Bengal Forest Minister, told The Indian Express over phone from Assam. "Yesterday, we had cordoned off the area with nets. But since evening fell, we could not catch it, and it escaped our teams," he said.

"But today, we brought in three elephants from Bengal, and earthmovers... By afternoon, we tried getting close to the tigress but could not spot her. After hours of cat-and-mouse games, we spotted her and tranquilised her. We are bringing the tigress home. I was there when the entire operation took place," Oraon added.

Tigress T-138 was tranquilised and caged in Dotma area in Assam's Kokrajhar district on Tuesday evening. EXPRESS

The minister said the animal's movements were being monitored through a radio collar and it was in good health. "Our teams are present in the area. We are hopeful of bringing it back by tonight or possibly tomorrow," Oraon told PTI.

He said the forest department had initially allowed the tigress to move freely, expecting it to return to Buxa through Raimona or Bhutan forest corridor as part of its natural movement. However, as the animal moved closer to human habitations over past two to three days, the authorities decided to launch a rescue operation, he said.

The department has obtained the necessary clearance from the National Tiger Conservation Authority (NTCA) for the operation, the minister added.

T-138 or Doars Rani was brought from Bihar's Valmiki Tiger Reserve and released in Buxa Tiger Reserve — a protected forest and national park spanning over 760 sq km in north Bengal's Alipurduar district — as part of the state's first tiger relocation programme.

On October 24, the three-year-old tigress strayed into the Raimona National Park in the neighbouring Assam, travelling over 100 km from Buxa.

It was first spotted near Assam's Hatigarh village, where it killed three domesticated pigs and four piglets. It then strayed to Narayanpur village in Gossaingaon sub-division in Kokrajhar district, following the Barsijhora village near Dotma town in Kokrajhar, which was cordoned off on Monday. On Tuesday, it was finally captured from Gilaguri, also in Kokrajhar's Dotma area.

Attracting foreign capital needs more than tax cuts

FOR SOME time now, it appears that India's appeal among global investors has diminished. Since 2024-25, foreign portfolio investors have taken out $51 billion from the equity markets. This souring of sentiment has led to a clamour for a review of the existing long-term capital gains tax regime. But will tax cuts alone be enough to attract foreign capital back to India's shores? There are several reasons why foreign capital has flowed out of the country over the past few years. Globally, capital is moving more towards companies in the AI ecosystem, where India does not have a significant presence. From US majors like Nvidia and Google to South Korean companies like Samsung and SK Hynix and the Taiwanese powerhouse TSMC — investors have been allocating funds across the entire AI chain. Alongside, yields in developed markets, notably the US, have been on the rise — the 10-year US bond yield is currently hovering around 4.9 per cent — raising the risk-free rate, attracting capital. Other factors such as companies' earnings expectations and valuations could have also played a part in investors' exit. Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman is, thus, right to caution against seeing tax concessions as the principal driver of stock market performance.

However, in order to encourage foreign capital flows, and to become a global financial centre, India should move to a regulatory framework and a tax structure that is competitive when compared to friendlier jurisdictions around the world. The government should take steps to facilitate more capital inflows. In June, it provided tax exemptions on interest income, short- and long-term capital gains, and streamlined investment norms to increase participation of foreign investors in government bonds.

Any changes in the tax structure, towards making it more attractive for foreign investors, would, however, raise questions of discrimination against rupee investors. It could be seen as favouring a specific set of investors. Sitharaman also pointed this out — "If you pitch for dollar (investors), what about rupee (domestic) investors?" Further, as policymakers take steps to encourage foreign capital, they must resist the temptation to curb domestic outflows. Outward remittances under the liberalised remittance scheme have crossed $20 billion in the first eight months of 2026, according to a report in this paper. Proposals to impose curbs or restrictions on such outflows are a step backwards.

Court message to Imran Khan is disquieting

THE BOMBAY High Court's oral observations in the case involving actor Imran Khan are disappointing, they strike at the heart of what peaceful dissent represents in a democracy. The court's insistence that an Overseas Citizen of India (OCI) cardholder doesn't have "any right to criticise the country", and its demand that Khan furnish an unconditional apology and undertaking not to participate in future protests sends a dispiriting message and shrinks the space for civic participation. Khan was detained during a peaceful protest against Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar in Mumbai on October 10 and subsequently issued a Leave India Notice. The fact that he is an American citizen may distinguish his legal status from that of an Indian citizen, but an OCI card is not a visa, and its holders are not merely visitors passing through the country. They are people with enduring familial, professional and emotional ties to India, many of whom, like Khan, have spent substantial parts of their lives here. Their interest in India's public life can hardly be termed incidental or viewed in terms of whether or not it affects them personally.

There is a contradiction in the way India regards its overseas community. Politicians routinely and fervently invoke the pravasi Indian as a valued stakeholder in the country's economic, cultural and development story. Academics, researchers, scientists and professionals of Indian origin are encouraged to return, collaborate and contribute to the country with their investment, influence and expertise. The suggestion that an OCI cardholder cannot show solidarity on an issue of public concern creates an uneasy and contrived distinction between the diaspora as an asset and the diaspora as a voice. It sends a chilling signal to OCI academics and researchers who come home to work, teach, collaborate or simply reconnect — that their engagement is welcome only as long as their political convictions remain contained.

The Bombay High Court has a distinguished tradition of safeguarding civil liberties and expanding the boundaries of free speech. In fact, the court itself questioned whether Khan had been given an opportunity to present his case before the issuing of the Leave India Notice. It is against this legacy that the present observations must be viewed. The right to stand with others, to express concern and to question those in authority is part of the democratic habit. A confident democracy should enable, not curb, it.

A truffle from Scotland is better than none at all

THE PHILOSOPHER Theophrastus once suggested that lightning strikes were responsible for the growth of truffles — those subterranean lumps with an aroma so tempting that they've led to blood feuds and global smuggling networks. Only a non-terrestrial force, surely, could produce something this beguilingly delicious. While the question of how the maternal mycelium meets the paternal partner has still not been satisfactorily resolved, the truffle's decline, at least, has a clear answer in Italy's Piedmont, the region most associated with this valuable fungus: Hotter, drier summers brought on by changing climate.

It's the same story in other prized food products, like cocoa, coffee and vanilla. In regions like France's Bordeaux and Italy's Tuscany, rising temperatures are leading to grapes ripening earlier, changing the flavour profile of the wines produced there. It differs in details, but the imminent collapse of the world's truffle production — especially the rare white truffle — is only the latest chapter in the history of foods driven to extinction. There was, for example, the passenger pigeon of North America, one of the most abundant birds on the continent that was hunted for its rich, gamey meat; the last specimen died in a zoo in 1914. And long before that was silphium, a pungent herb so loved by the Romans that they ate it out of existence in the 1st or 2nd century CE.

There may yet be a twist in the tale of the truffle, though. Where climate change has played the villain on continental Europe, further north, in Scotland, the temperatures are now just right for the fungus to grow strong and aromatic enough to become a viable substitute for Italian tartufo. Gourmands may scoff at the provenance, but a Scottish truffle is better than none at all.

Midterms will play a part in the reset of US policy, at home and abroad

RAJA MANDALA
BY C RAJA MOHAN

WITH DEMOCRATS confident of regaining the House of Representatives and hopeful of capturing the Senate in the midterm elections, speculation is growing that the Donald Trump era is drawing to a close. Not so fast, caution the realists. The emerging political picture in the US is more complex — the election is one important piece of a long-term reorientation of US policies at home and abroad.

A sweeping Democratic victory will demonstrate American democratic resilience and the capacity of its institutions to resist strongman rule. It would restore some of the traditional balance between the executive and legislature and internal distribution of power within the Republican Party. It would also encourage democratic forces everywhere at a time when obituaries are being written for democracy around the world.

Five broad likely consequences from the midterm elections deserve attention.

First, a weaker Trump at home could become more active abroad. Losing Congress would not deprive him of his executive privilege over the conduct of foreign policy. Politically, presidents frustrated by legislative gridlock have often turned to diplomacy. Trump can pursue international initiatives until his last day in office in January 2029.

George H W Bush signed the START II nuclear arms control treaty with Russia's Boris Yeltsin in January 1993, days before handing over power to Bill Clinton. India's historic civil nuclear agreement cleared its final American hurdles in the closing months of George W Bush's presidency, despite a Democratic-controlled Congress. In the last lap of his presidency, Barack Obama pursued an opening with Cuba and concluded the Iran nuclear agreement despite Republican opposition in Congress.

The difference lies in bipartisan support. It helped sustain the agreements with Russia and India. Its absence allowed Trump to abandon Obama's Iran agreement. A hostile Congress need not prevent consequential diplomacy, but agreements resting largely on presidential authority are easier for successors to dismantle.

Trump's ambition for a grand bargain with Russia over Ukraine and energy cooperation faces considerable resistance in Congress and the American security establishment. His challenge is to mobilise support in both parties in favour of an accommodation with Moscow. On Iran, too, there is considerable sentiment across the political spectrum for an immediate end to the current war. The question is about the terms of war termination. Congress can restrict funding and authorisations, but overcoming a presidential veto requires two-thirds majorities in both chambers. Such a consensus appears unlikely.

Second, Democratic control of Congress would bring investigations into alleged wrongdoing, conflicts of interest and the activities of Trump's family. These could hurt his standing and consume the administration's attention without necessarily disabling it.

The Supreme Court has granted presidents substantial criminal immunity for official acts. Presidents are also protected from federal prosecution while in office. Neither prevents congressional scrutiny or provides blanket protection for private conduct and family members. Washington could become even more divided as Trump retains substantial executive authority.

> Losing Congress would not deprive him of his executive privilege over the conduct of foreign policy. Politically, presidents frustrated by legislative gridlock have often turned to diplomacy

Third, arguments about immigration reveal competing currents in American politics. Trump's emphasis on sovereign borders answered the powerful public sentiment against illegal immigration. But the opposition to the administration's enforcement methods is real and growing. Similar tensions surround legal immigration, especially the H-1B visas, of particular interest to India. American capital wants access to foreign talent, while opposition to labour imports has grown on both the left and the right. The next two years are unlikely to resolve these contradictions.

Fourth, the biggest political changes could unfold within the two parties. Socialists and progressives have gained influence within the Democratic Party, challenging its traditional leadership on economic and foreign policy questions. Capturing Congress could intensify rather than settle these internal arguments in the party. On the Middle East, progressives challenge the party's traditional support for Israel.

Change is inevitable within the Republican Party, too. Sections of the populist right have cooled towards Trump. If he is seen as an electoral liability, mainstream Republicans could become more willing to challenge him. The approaching contest over the Republican presidential nomination in 2028 will also reopen questions about the party's ideological direction and the future of Trumpism.

Fifth, the campaign's focus on affordability and rising living costs brings into view America's unfinished argument over economic globalisation. Trump promises industrial renewal through import tariffs, ease of living, and higher economic growth. Tariffs can raise costs for consumers and businesses, while the anticipated benefits of industrial reshoring and economic growth take time to materialise.

Democrats attack this contradiction but remain divided over how much protectionism to retain. Defeating Trump's candidates would not restore the old free-trade consensus. Both parties must reconcile household affordability with industrial jobs, economic security and competition with China.

For the rest of the world, arguments over American trade policy should not obscure the underlying strength of the US economy. Its massive GDP at nearly $33 trillion and the latest quarterly growth rate of 3.4 per cent will mean American dominance of the global economy is here to stay. Continuing technological leadership, deep capital markets and capacity for innovation continue to provide the US strategic advantages over its potential peers. Political turbulence in Washington does not automatically translate into widely presumed, or hoped for, American decline.

The dramatic changes in US policies in Trump's second term have encouraged simplistic assumptions about the country and a tendency to confuse the President with America as a whole. India's stakes in the US relationship are likely to grow even amidst its internal turbulence. For a more informed debate and effective policymaking towards Washington, Delhi and its political class need deeper engagement with the diverse and competing political, economic and social forces shaping the US.

In RSS's Panch Parivartan, an evolution in thinking on caste

ADITI NARAYANI PASWAN

FRESH INTO its second century of existence, the RSS is reaching out, with greater zeal, to a broader spectrum of castes and communities. Its leaders are stepping forward with renewed enthusiasm to fight caste discrimination. At the core of this is the notion of samajik samrasta. In simple terms, it means social harmony. This evolution reflects a journey of dialogue and mutual understanding, to foster social equity, equality, sincerity, spiritual harmony, and a sense of shared responsibility.

The RSS's approach to caste has evolved significantly. The views of figures like K B Hedgewar, M S Golwalkar, M D Deoras and Mohan Bhagwat are not similar; they form part of a rich spectrum of thought. The RSS's history shows a growing awareness that achieving Hindu unity requires addressing divisions within Hindu society. Hedgewar placed the shakha and its ecosystem at the heart of this mission. Through exercises, games, and other activities inspired by culture and collective discipline, a sense of brotherhood percolates through to the participants. While societal norms were based on caste, these activities created a ground for friendships that transcended parochial social boundaries.

In a speech in May 1974 at Pune's Vasant Vyakhyanmala, Deoras said, "If untouchability is not wrong, nothing in the world is wrong." He added that untouchability was no small error but a "bhayankar bhool" — a tragic blunder that must be erased without compromise. For him, equality in daily life was a personal commitment. He tasked volunteers with promoting inclusivity in day-to-day interactions within their families, neighbourhoods, and communities. In 1983, he institutionalised these efforts through the formation of the Samajik Samrasta Manch.

Noted writer Ramesh Patange broadened the notion of samrasta in practical terms through an introspective journey and by reading B R Ambedkar while in prison during the Emergency. His message is that the Constitution guarantees equal rights in legal terms, but we all need to nurture a culture of equality. This could mean inviting a Dalit neighbour over for a meal, engaging in shared laughter and conversation without hesitation. It rejected the idea that one's birth determines one's worth; that was the essence of Ambedkar's struggle for the annihilation of caste. Patange put his theories into practice, as noted when Dalit leaders shared the stage with RSS volunteers during the 1988 Sandesh Yatra in Maharashtra.

> The RSS's history shows a growing awareness that achieving Hindu unity requires addressing divisions within Hindu society

In current times, the leadership of Mohan Bhagwat has been inspiring. Under his guidance, the RSS's framework for rejecting caste discrimination has become even more vocal. In October 2022, he called for action to depart from varna and jati. He further asserted that reservation should remain in place until discrimination is annihilated. He asked, why should those who have escaped the shackles of such treatment not embrace measures designed to rectify historical injustices? Reservation, for him, plays a vital role in ensuring access to resources, especially education, employment, and opportunities previously denied to communities because of their birth. For Bhagwat, supporting such initiatives goes hand in hand with the call for social harmony. The vision of the RSS, "one temple, one well, and one cremation ground", speaks volumes about addressing caste discrimination.

The RSS today promotes harmony among all sections of society. Actions like the call for one temple, one cremation ground and inter-caste dining form one of the five pillars of Panch Parivartan. The organisation's many initiatives under Panch Parivartan call for active listening and collaboration. The *karyakarta*s gain fresh perspectives from these experiences.

We can see a remarkable metamorphosis, from Hedgewar's vision of shared activities to Deoras. It points to the RSS's continuous work to establish an Indian ethos. The organisation has always believed in bharatiyata, the root of its samata and samrasta programme.

An alliance for multilateralism by other means

AMRITA NARLIKAR

AMID ALL the drama that surrounds the high-level week of the UN General Assembly in New York, it is all too easy to miss some of the quiet and constructive work that happens on the sidelines. The Partners for Multilateralism (P4M), which was launched at the 81st UNGA Week in New York in September, could turn out to be one such initiative.

Co-sponsored by Australia, Brazil, Barbados, Canada, the EU, India, and Kenya, and further signed by 18 other countries, the P4M commits to strengthening multilateral cooperation, and the institutions and rule of law that underpin it. This matters at a time when multilateralism is under severe pressure. The US, a principal founder and long-time guarantor of the system, is now rejecting it through word and deed; other major players are also flouting rules and norms with frequency and impunity. Any declarations of support are only to be welcomed, and doubly so when they come from a group that includes large and small countries from both the Global South and the Global North. Moreover, some of the language of the P4M declaration is reform-oriented, like, "we commit to strengthening multilateral cooperation that is open, fair, equitable, inclusive, networked and practical".

Developing countries have spent decades seeking to make multilateral institutions "fair, equitable, inclusive", only to be given patronising lectures on why the system worked, and that they just needed to get their house in order. Today, there is more of a receptive ear for the reform agenda in parts of the Global North. This is so for a variety of reasons, including turmoil in Western democracies and obvious weaknesses in the Transatlantic partnership, but also the growing clout of the Global South. P4M recognises and reflects the changing balance of power.

That said, if the group does not want to join the list of well-intended but failed initiatives, it would be well-served to focus on the following. First, P4M needs to get cracking on a concrete plan of action, the costs of its implementation, and the distribution of these costs. Second, it needs to establish clarity on the principles that will underpin its vision of an updated and reformed multilateralism. This will require deliberation on how it distinguishes itself from similar endeavours like China's four Global Initiatives. Third, a problem with (otherwise) promising exercises to revamp the multilateral system is that they fail to engage with the affected populations. At a time when global discontent is rife, it would be foolhardy to ignore the importance of public engagement.

> P4M matters at a time when multilateralism is under severe pressure. The US, a principal founder and long-time guarantor of the system, is now rejecting it through word and deed

Finally, it remains to be seen if the P4M declaration will be able to provide the out-of-the-box thinking needed today to protect not just people, but also the planet. The diversity of its membership provides it with a potential treasure trove of alternative ideas on deep ecology and interspecies coexistence. Diving deep into these ideas with global thinkers, the P4M practitioners could develop an updated framework for multilateralism, which may have a chance to reduce the existential risks that affect us all.

Tamil militants reject proposal

THE SRI Lankan Tamil militant groups have rejected the proposals of the island government to solve the ethnic issue, and renewed their demand for a Tamil homeland at a meeting with Chief Minister M G Ramachandran. Tamil Nadu Food Minister S Ramachandran said the next step would be a study of the groups' response by the Centre and the state, and a third round of talks if necessary.

J&K government formation

THE NATIONAL Conference and Congress-I coalition ministry headed by Farooq Abdullah will be sworn-in on November 6, replacing President's Rule in Jammu and Kashmir, sources say. They said that both of the parties have been busy in organising a "grand show" at the swearing-in ceremony.

PM on abuse of legal system

PRIME MINISTER Rajiv Gandhi said the law must be made to work for the people instead of the few who can use it to their own advantage. Gandhi was speaking at the silver jubilee celebrations of the Bar Council of India in New Delhi. The Prime Minister remarked that lately the legal system was being abused and pushed beyond limits.

More violence in Karachi

PAKISTANI TROOPS extended a three-day-old curfew into new districts of Karachi after a nighttime raid by one ethnic community on another took the death toll in four days of rioting to at least 34. Soldiers swept into six new districts in jeeps announcing the restriction over loudspeakers. Pathans sprayed machinegun fire and set houses ablaze in a raid on a Bihari immigrant suburb of Karachi, witnesses said.

Message from Ramlila Maidan: A new conversation on institutions is possible

SUHAS PALSHIKAR

ILLUSTRATION: C R SASIKUMAR

ONE RALLY is unlikely to achieve the removal of an office holder. Critics are sure to debate the exact size of the crowd to prove that the rally was a failure. Sunday's rally at Ramlila Maidan organised by the INDIA bloc in the national capital may be criticised for these reasons. It can also be criticised for being a political spectacle. But where governance is reduced to spectacle, the show of strength by the Opposition must be seen as significant not just for what it explicitly did but, more, for what it implied.

Politics has a tendency to throw up immediate but secondary outcomes and media has a tendency to focus on the immediate. Thus, there will be discussion — and rightly so — of the INDIA bloc getting a shot in the arm and Rahul Gandhi gaining acceptability among the Opposition. But did the rally signify anything more substantial beyond this? If it makes politics more competitive, we should welcome that. But if it injects an element of substantive competition, that may be even more pertinent. Sunday's rally needs to be seen in this context.

After his Bharat Jodo Yatra, Rahul Gandhi is trying yet again to push a different agenda into the political discourse. In a system of single-party dominance, this is not an easy task. After Bharat Jodo, neither Rahul Gandhi nor the Congress party showed an inclination to politically and intellectually follow up on that initiative. This time, the initiative comes in the wake of a year-long campaign over electoral integrity. The agitation by the CJP has further strengthened the potential for a new culture of asking questions and encouraged the youth to engage with public issues.

Sunday's rally should be seen as the formation of a new conversation — on accountability, institutions and the public culture of asking questions. In politics, particularly in oppositional politics, the opportunity to shape a new conversation doesn't come very often. Therefore, Rahul Gandhi, the Congress party, INDIA bloc and others keen to respond to the dominance of the BJP have their work cut out — to shape the substance of this new conversation, to popularise it through programmes across the country and to force the establishment to respond to it. While the rally signified the possibility of a new conversation, the real task begins now.

The acerbic comments from the ruling party and its "Save Democracy" campaign show that recent developments and the Sunday rally have made a difference. The "Save Democracy" campaign is an attempt to perpetuate a parallel conversation that seeks to raise the cacophony of discipline and obedience. We are faced with contrasting images of the citizen — one who is asking questions and the other who does not want to ask questions. One serving the nation by being a nuisance to the government and the other serving the ruling party in the name of serving the nation. The Sunday rally was significant because it juxtaposed the conversation of critical questioning with the conversation of conformity. The "Save Democracy" conversation resorts to the traditional trope of rulers — that democracy is endangered when there are protests, that "order" is the sine qua non of a good democracy.

> The Sunday rally and, since June, the youth protests have underscored the importance of collective mobilisations and popular participation. They remind us that representative democracy quickly slips into a charade if popular energy is denied legitimacy

Indeed, when representative governments are responsive, when there is frank course correction, the space for protests and opposition is both limited and less legitimate. But when institutions collapse and questions are not answered and when exclusion becomes the norm in the conduct of government, popular mobilisations become an essential part of democracy.

The Sunday rally and, since June, the youth protests, have underscored the importance of collective mobilisations and popular participation. They remind us that representative democracy quickly slips into a charade if popular energy is denied legitimacy. Because power has the tendency to make the powerful insensitive, parliamentary opposition is required. Because governments have a knack for sidelining the parliamentary opposition, democracy needs a robust space for action outside legislatures. Because the media and the intellectual class have a propensity for timidity and complicity, people need avenues to make themselves heard. Above all, as this writer has recently argued on these pages, when democracies experience the settling in of closures, raw and abrupt openings become necessary. Sunday's rally, along with other protests over the past few months — and probably the agitations that will follow — are a measure of the gap between power and accountability and also a remedy against that gap.

In this sense, the Sunday rally and its recent predecessors have managed to embryonically shape something that may help the democratic process in India in the long run. Through the activities of the CJP, the Opposition has sought to open up a conversation that can go beyond the Election Commission of India.

This conversation is not only about the ECI. It is about how public institutions must function. It is about accountability and the culture of seeking answers from power holders. The Opposition rally primarily focused on the ECI, questions of preparation of electoral rolls and the conduct of elections. In doing so, however, implicitly, it raised questions about how institutions are functioning and how the inter-institution balance of power is necessary and needs urgent national attention. Ideally, these matters should always be part of a democracy. But the high-decibel politics of the BJP since 2013 drowned these necessary aspects of democracy. Both the CJP, and the INDIA bloc now, seek to revive those aspects.

Sunday's rally should be judged not merely by what it achieves for the INDIA bloc and the internal dynamic it ushers within the bloc but also by the new conversation it opens up. Whether or not members of the INDIA bloc take forward that conversation will decide the long-term value of the Sunday rally.

A 25-year-long journey towards the 2047 milestone

TOSHIHIRO SUZUKI

AS INDIA marks 25 years of public leadership by Narendra Modi, first as Gujarat Chief Minister and then as Prime Minister of India, I am honoured to extend heartfelt congratulations and my deepest respect. This occasion represents one of the most remarkable development journeys. During these 25 years, Gujarat emerged as one of the world's leading manufacturing destinations, while India rose to become one of the most dynamic major economies globally.

Few international companies have had the privilege of participating in this transformation as closely as Suzuki. When Modi became Gujarat CM in 2001, his efforts were focused on development based on industrial competitiveness, world-class infrastructure, efficient governance and investor confidence. While evaluating potential locations for Suzuki's next phase of expansion in India, my late father, Osamu Suzuki, met CM Modi. He came away from that interaction with a strong sense of confidence in Gujarat's future and in the state's leadership. Looking back today, I believe that confidence has been fully justified. Our Hansalpur manufacturing complex in Gujarat has achieved an annual production capacity of one million vehicles, becoming the first Suzuki manufacturing facility in the world to reach this milestone. It is also India's largest passenger-vehicle manufacturing facility at a single location. The facility accounted for nearly half of Maruti Suzuki's exports during FY2025-26 and helped maintain Maruti Suzuki as India's largest passenger vehicle exporter with a share of over 50 per cent. We made a strategic decision to make Gujarat the manufacturing base for the e VITARA, Suzuki's first global strategic battery electric vehicle. It is manufactured exclusively in India for supplying Suzuki's global requirement — more than 100 countries including Europe, Japan and India as well.

Suzuki has outlined an ambitious growth roadmap for India and has committed investments of approximately Rs 77,500 crore through FY2030-31. We are confident that PM Modi's development-oriented leadership will help India realise its aspiration of becoming Viksit Bharat by 2047. As a longstanding partner in India's journey, Suzuki is committed to contributing through investment, manufacturing, exports, deep localisation, skill development and sustainable growth. As part of this commitment, we are moving forward with plans for another manufacturing facility in Gujarat with an annual capacity of 1 million vehicles.

Recent economic reforms have further strengthened this confidence. The GST rationalisation implemented last year stimulated demand across the automobile sector, particularly among small-car customers. Maruti Suzuki recorded total sales of 2.42 million vehicles in FY2025-26, including record domestic sales and exports. This reflects India's economic growth, rising aspirations and expanding middle class.

However, the significance of development cannot be measured only through economic statistics. One aspect of PM Modi's vision that resonates strongly with Suzuki is the belief that economic progress must be inclusive. Its fruits should reach villages, farmers, small entrepreneurs and ordinary citizens. Suzuki shares this philosophy.

PM Modi has consistently emphasised that atmanirbharta must extend beyond manufacturing to critical areas such as energy security. Biogas is a powerful expression of this vision because it enables India to meet more of its energy needs through resources available within the country. It brings together three important national priorities: Environmental sustainability, energy security and rural prosperity.

Suzuki strongly supports this approach. We have established three biogas plants and have seven additional projects in the pipeline. In addition, we have announced four further facilities based on agricultural residue and biomass resources. These are just a start and we are planning to scale up further. Through Next Bharat Venture, we are also supporting social entrepreneurship and encouraging innovative solutions that improve the well-being of rural communities. Deep localisation, skill development, clean energy and rural enterprise may appear to be separate initiatives, but they are united by a common purpose: Building domestic capabilities and ensuring that the rewards of economic progress are shared broadly across society.

As I reflect on the past 25 years, I see a powerful example of what can be achieved when vision is combined with execution, development is guided by long-term thinking, and economic growth is connected with inclusion and sustainability. We are grateful for the opportunity to be part of India's remarkable journey and remain firmly committed to contributing to its future. We believe Prime Minister Modi's leadership, defined by vision, decisiveness and determined execution, will continue to strengthen India's position in the global economy and help fulfil its aspiration of becoming a developed nation by 2047.

Suzuki is proud to remain a trusted and committed partner in India's growth story and to contribute to realising PM Modi's vision of a Viksit Bharat.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ramlila rally

THE UNITED outcry of protest by the Opposition is a strong signal of public opinion for the ruling party and institutions, including the ECI, that appear complicit in a scheme that threatens the foundations of Indian democracy ('Opposition climbs stage but need sharper script', IE, November 3). The BJP's aggressive defence of the SIR may have revealing consequences. The call for the restoration of institutional integrity is the need of the hour.

S S Paul, Nadia

Underlying pressures

THE WAVE of labour unrest earlier this year across industrial and energy hubs in Bihar, Haryana, Gujarat, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh brought workers' grievances into focus ('The challenge is more productive employment', IE, November 3). Agitations highlighted demands for better wages, timely dues, regulated working hours and social security. Though those demonstrations occurred months ago, underlying pressures remain. Declining poverty estimates cannot establish economic security or upward mobility. The concern is the widening disconnect between living costs, earning capacity and prospects for occupational advancement.

Vaibhav Goyal, Chandigarh

FALLING POVERTY offers little comfort when the underlying growth engine fails to deliver viable, remunerative work ('The challenge is more productive employment', IE, November 3). Much of the recent surge in labour participation is distress driven, pushing rural women into unremunerative farm tasks and precarious self-employment rather than formal security. Pushing capital subsidies into high-tech enclaves will not resolve the stagnation across the northern and eastern poverty belts. A meaningful transition up the income ladder requires prioritising credit to micro-enterprises and a fiscal push for labour-intensive sectors.

Reading the fractures in the Knesset

R SWAMINATHAN

THE FRACTURED election outcome in Israel, particularly the sharp rise in Arab-Israeli representation, has made government formation extremely difficult. Though the opposition bloc together with the Arab-Israeli parties forms a majority of 67 in the Knesset, a viable government cannot be formed unless the opposition parties break one or more of their campaign pledges.

Three of the four opposition parties have campaigned against relying on the Arab-Israeli parties, the party led by former foreign minister Avigdor Lieberman being particularly opposed. Without its seven seats, the remaining opposition parties and the Arab-Israeli parties together have 60, one short of a majority. Even a minority government sustained by the Arab-Israeli parties from outside would therefore depend on Lieberman at least abstaining, which he is unlikely to do. Moreover, the precedents are not encouraging. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin relied on Arab support to pass the Oslo Accords in 1993-95, and Naftali Bennett relied on an Arab party to form his government in 2021. In both cases, Benjamin Netanyahu attacked the arrangement as illegitimate and won the next election. The reality is that even if an opposition government is formed with the support of an Arab-Israeli party, which appears unlikely, it will not survive for long. The most important factor bringing the four parties together as the opposition camp was their common cause of preventing Netanyahu from becoming PM again, hence its label, the "Change Bloc."

> Yitzhak Rabin relied on Arab support to pass the Oslo Accords in 1993–95, and Naftali Bennett relied on an Arab party in 2021. In both cases, Netanyahu won the next election

Israel's President is reportedly keen to avoid another election and is said to favour the formation of a national unity government. This, too, is unlikely, except through US President Donald Trump arm-twisting the opposition parties. Netanyahu's continuation as PM would suit Trump, who in a highly unusual move openly endorsed him before the elections, as it would make it easier for Trump to carry out further military strikes on Iran. But if the Republicans lose in the US midterm elections, Trump's arm-twisting is unlikely to succeed.

Under Israel's Basic Laws, the formation of a government could take several months, and if no one succeeds, a fresh election follows. This would mean Netanyahu continues as PM, with considerable latitude to pursue his domestic and foreign policies, including the war with Iran, even as a caretaker. Netanyahu may well calculate that a fresh election would bolster his chances of survival, and in any case, prolong his tenure.

However, Netanyahu's main challenger, Gadi Eisenkot, is keen to deliver on some of his election promises even if he is unable to form a government, particularly a state commission of inquiry into the October 7 terror attack by Hamas, which Netanyahu has consistently resisted. This is possible if the opposition bloc, with the support of the Arab-Israeli parties, elects a new Speaker in place of Likud's Amir Ohana when the Knesset meets and legislates to set up the commission. Such a move would affect Netanyahu's political future. To thwart it, as well as any Eisenkot government relying on Arab-Israeli support, Netanyahu's Likud has claimed that the Arab-Israeli parties "stole" the election, a claim the police have rejected for lack of evidence. Still, such moves cannot prevent the Knesset from meeting and electing a new Speaker.

Finally, while there could be some changes in domestic policies in the near term if the government changes, aimed largely at holding Netanyahu to account, Israel's policies towards Gaza and the West Bank will remain essentially the same. In the West Bank, settlement expansion will continue. On foreign policy, there is a broad consensus on the war with Iran, though Eisenkot has signalled a more cautious approach until a new government is formed. If the opposition bloc comes to power, it would seek to repair relations with Europe. As of now, government formation in Israel is in flux. There should be some clarity after the US midterms and by the time the new Knesset meets on November 10.

Three air purifiers, one AQI monitor, no peace of mind

EKTA CHAUHAN

"WHAT TO do about Diwali?" my cousin, who had a son six months ago, texted me. She was considering travelling to either Bhubaneswar or Chennai, where she has relatives, if things got "really bad" in Delhi. It was late September, and our AQI anxieties had already begun. Both of us are new mothers with premature babies who had spent their first month after birth in the NICU. With air pollution among the recognised risk factors for premature birth, our new-mother guilt and paranoia had already set in. We were ordering new gadgets, researching air filtration systems and planning possible escapes from the city.

Though the air definitely turns hazardous post Diwali, Delhi's pollution crisis is no longer confined to a few winter months. Air quality fluctuates throughout the year, giving us occasional days of relief before returning to hazardous levels. Living here now means constantly checking weather applications, monitoring AQI readings and calculating whether it is safe to step outdoors. Even an ordinary outing requires preparation: Have I packed a mask? Are the eye drops in the bag? Should we cancel the walk altogether? What was that one home remedy we saw on YouTube, maybe that will fix my chest congestion?

Beyond respiratory illnesses and other serious health consequences, living with toxic air creates an exhausting form of anticipatory anxiety. It is the constant mental work of preparing for exposure, assessing risks and wondering whether you have forgotten something that could protect your family. The toll is worse for those with at-risk groups under their care — children, the elderly, pregnant women, patients with existing conditions, and even pets. We have three air purifiers, an AQI monitor and a growing collection of products discovered through endless Google searches. One such search led my husband to a window shield that claims to reduce the entry of PM2.5 particles. Our eyes are constantly on the monitor, trying to keep both PM2.5 and CO2 levels within recommended limits, playing an endless game of opening and shutting windows depending on which number needs our attention more. The financial burden of clean air is immense. For a salaried household already juggling everyday expenses and EMIs, this is yet another unplanned cost towards something that should have been a public good and a fundamental right.

> Raising concerns about air quality can quickly earn you the label of being overly cautious or dramatic. You are expected to manage this public health crisis privately, not make it everyone else's problem

Surprisingly, despite almost a decade of this crisis, there are still many who dismiss pollution as "just smog". My parents and their friends insist on going for morning walks, claiming "morning air is fresh". I have been showing them studies that prove that pollution is worse in morning hours, but old beliefs are hard to change. There is also an unspoken expectation that one should carry on as usual. Raising concerns about air quality can quickly earn you the label of being paranoid, overly cautious or dramatic. You are expected to manage this public health crisis privately, both financially and emotionally, not make it everyone else's problem. The mental load, then, is not just about anticipating exposure; it is also about constantly negotiating the legitimacy of your fear.

Perhaps the most insidious consequence of Delhi's pollution is that we are not just learning to live with toxic air, we are learning to organise our entire lives around the possibility of breathing it.

JAMIA via AMU

During the heady days of India's freedom movement and after, AMU and Jamia were at the heart of student politics. And then, the two campuses fell silent. Now, with the two universities set to hold union elections, their students and teachers tell TABSHIR SHAMS & SUKRITA BARUAH why campus politics is worth fighting for

A THICK FILM of dust sits on every bench facing the stage at Students' Union Hall, Aligarh Muslim University. In 2018, the hall, the venue of nearly a century of impassioned student union campaign speeches on nationalism and identity, fell silent. The chandeliers gathered cobwebs, the bulbs went off, the crowds that gathered on the lawns below dispersed, and the room was put under lock and key.

Eight years later, with AMU set for its first student union election since 2018, the grand, ornate hall, once the heart of its student activities, has been reopened. On a Thursday afternoon, days ahead of the November 5 election, a group of workers is busy at work, replacing and testing the bulbs in the three-tiered chandeliers that sparkle in the sunlight that beams in through the hall's open windows. On the stage are a table and three carved wooden chairs. Outside, the silver paint on the Persianate lattice-work of the railing is still wet.

Hours later, around 130 km away, at a university in Delhi, scenes of jubilation erupted. After a 19-day student-led agitation, the administration of Jamia Millia Islamia had agreed to hold its first union elections since 2005.

For over 40 days, AMU and Jamia — arguably the most storied Muslim higher education institutes in the country, both tied inextricably to the freedom movement, one born of the other — were roiled by agitation. Students on both campuses had made, and won, the same demand: the revival of elected student representation.

The birth of Jamia

Former Rajya Sabha MP Mohammed Adeeb, who was president of the AMU Students' Union (AMUSU) in 1967-68, has a unique hobby: reading minutes of old union meetings.

On October 12, 1920, the Students' Union Hall, then called Siddons Union Hall, was roaring, he says, looking back at the minutes of what was a particularly raucous meeting of the student body that was split in the middle.

One camp wanted to remain under British patronage, which the institute, then the Muhammadan Anglo-Oriental (MAO) College, received at the time. The other was not willing to study under the Union Jack. Under the larger shadow of the anti-colonial Khilafat and Non-Cooperation movements, Gandhi had come to persuade the first group to boycott English patronage and join the national movement.

He was met with hooting, recalls Adeeb. Also present were the influential Ali brothers, Shaukat and Mohammed, who were leaders of the Khilafat Movement and alumni of the college, and Zakir Hussain, then a popular student leader who would go on to be President of independent India.

"When they saw Gandhi humiliated, tears began to roll down their (Ali brothers') faces," Adeeb tells The Indian Express.

Zakir Hussain, his face reddened and tear-streaked, then took a call. "Twenty-two students walked out of Siddons Hall that day, with Zakir Hussain leading them," he says.

Merely 17 days later, this group of nationalists from MAO and some of their teachers founded Jamia Millia Islamia at Krishna Kothi, in Lal Diggi, Aligarh. The university would eventually move to Delhi. Back in Aligarh, the departure of the nationalists would accelerate the transformation of the British-backed MAO to AMU, a university with a distinct identity-based nationalism.

The story of the two universities, one born of the other, gets recounted on both campuses every time the discussion veers to the revival of student politics.

"The establishment of Jamia itself was led by students. So whenever I see student protests in Jamia, be it the 2019 protests against CAA-NRC, or the recent ones for students' union, I am reminded of the students who strived to establish Jamia," says Sabiha Zaidi, former Director of Jamia's Premchand Archives and Literary Centre.

Mohibul Haque, who teaches political science at AMU, believes the rebellion of 1920 was an inevitable outcome of AMU's founding vision to nurture Muslim leaders.

"Sir Syed Ahmad Khan (MAO founder) has often been invoked to delegitimise political activism on the campus, by saying that he did not want the campus to be politicised. But, Mohammad Ali Jauhar (the younger of the Ali brothers of the Khilafat Movement) had completely rejected this idea. I believe the Khilafat Movement is AMU's greatest contribution," says Prof Haque.

Those associated with AMU point to the Students' Union Hall as a testament to the university's political nature. The Siddon's Club, set up in 1884 and named after MAO's founding principal Henry George Impey Siddons, was housed in this building. The club was a platform for students to debate contemporary issues of the time.

Haque goes on to quote a rousing Iqbal couplet that Ali Jauhar is said to have recited in memory of MAO founder Sir Khan in 1919-1920. "Tumhi ne qaum ko sikhaya tha ye shor o shar sara, jo iski inteha ham hain to iski ibteda tum the (You were the one who taught the nation this noise and turmoil; if we are its climax/end, then you were its beginning)."

The search for leadership

As candidates for AMU's student elections head into the last leg of campaigning, a kusum tree by the central library canteen is where most of the activity is. Candidate after candidate arrives here to mingle with the students, holding conversations over samosas and chai. Many of these candidates have never experienced campus politics, leave alone a union election.

Amina Irshad, a PhD student in economics who is standing for AMUSU president, is among the few who can claim some "experience". An undergraduate student at Jamia, she came to AMU as a Master's student, and considers both campuses her own.

"When I was in Jamia, I didn't even know there was something called a union. It was when I came to Aligarh that I found out that there is such a thing, a place where we can put forth our problems. That sense of belonging, that space exclusively for students, gave me a great sense of hope," says Amina.

For many students on the two campuses, the 2019 anti-CAA protests and the state crackdown have shaped their idea of politics and student mobilisation.

"I was a student in AMU then, but I had gone to Jamia to extend support to those protesting there. That's when I realised how, in the absence of a union, the administration in Jamia was doing whatever it liked. The campus that was supposed to be a safe space for students saw police entering and beating them up," she says, referring to the crackdown on Jamia on December 15 that year, when forces entered the campus, and lobbed tear gas shells in the library and elsewhere, leaving many of the students injured.

Many hope the revival of student politics on the two campuses will eventually fill a critical gap: the lack of leadership in the Muslim community.

They cite instances of how former student leaders from AMU and Jamia have gone on to join mainstream politics. The names of Samajwadi Party's Azam Khan, who was honorary secretary of the AMUSU in the 1970s, and former Union Minister Arif Mohammad Khan, who was AMUSU president in 1972-73, come up often in AMU.

Fuzail Ayubi, Supreme Court Advocate-on-Record who was active in Jamia's student politics in the early 2000s, points to SP MLA Kamal Akhtar and former Congress MP Danish Ali as those who made their way to parliamentary politics from the Jamia union.

On both campuses, many say that the absence of student politics over the years led to an underrepresentation of Muslims in national and state politics.

Uzma Parveen, a PhD student of International Relations in Jamia, who took part in the recent protests, says, "Jamia has historically been associated with public leadership, but without an elected union, that pathway has narrowed. Students lose opportunities to acquire organisational experience, build constituencies and learn how to translate grievances into political demands," she says.

Salman Imtiyaz, who was elected AMUSU president in 2018, the last before elections were suspended following the CAA-NRC protests and the Covid pandemic, sees the students' union as an institutional route into politics for students without resources and connections. He counts himself as one.

Imtiyaz contested the 2022 Uttar Pradesh election as the Congress's candidate from Aligarh city constituency, and is hoping to get a ticket this time as well.

Once upon a time, two campuses

Old-timers in AMU and Jamia talk of a political culture that once engaged with the larger world.

"Before every election, candidates were handed a topic on the spot and given 15 minutes to prepare. There was no Google then. Whoever spoke fearlessly usually won," says Adeeb, recalling the elections of the 1960s.

Some of the most influential publications, including the Aligarh Gazette and The Aligarian, which carried essays on national and international questions, informed many of these debates.

Mohammad Sajjad, who teaches Modern History at AMU, says, "In the 1970s and 1980s, and even before, the issues of the community and the nation were debated in the student union, in pamphlets, in election speeches. During the JP movement and the Emergency, the campus was in a frenzy. In the 1970s, the fight over the AMU Act and the university's minority character set off another wave... Jayaprakash Narayan was given a lifetime membership of the AMU union."

Adeeb recalls how, when the Kothari Commission report on higher education came out in 1966, the AMU student union took it apart line by line. How Muslims could contribute to a plural, democratic India was a question asked again and again, he recalls.

Others talk about a time when protests raged on the two campuses, but were rarely clamped down.

Danish Ali, former Amroha MP who was active in Jamia student politics in the 1990s, recalls those highly charged years. "Our union would invite leaders of different parties, including during the anti-Mandal protests. A lot of these invitations were in collaboration with the administration."

By the time Soheb Niazi, now a history researcher, joined Jamia in 2007, the union had been suspended. "Though the union was gone, we still had a lot of Left politics on campus. I was in the AISA [the CPI-ML Liberation's student wing] and we would still be allowed to do meetings with departments on subjects such as the Gujarat riots or Palestine... This space narrowed and student politics became weaker after the Batla House encounter," he says, referring to the 2008 encounter in which a Jamia student was killed.

While AMU has had more space for student politics, Nashra, who is contesting for the vice-president's post in AMUSU, says Jamia's location gave it an advantage. "Jamia is in Delhi, and has exposure to different organisations. They are more politically active, more involved in society. Here in AMU, there are no organisations... We are missing intellectual leadership."

What next for AMU, Jamia

But for the students who won a hard-fought battle for elections, the question isn't just of "revival" but also of evolution.

Candidates Amina and Nashra are, for instance, also fighting for a space that has never opened up in their university. AMU has never elected a woman in its "chair" posts of president, vice-president and secretary.

Nashra says her father, an AMU alumnus, was unsure when she told him she wanted to contest. "I wanted to contest for president. But my father said it would be difficult since the campus is unlikely to accept a woman president immediately after the union has been restored. Since I am contesting to win, I decided to aim for vice-president."

But Amina, who is standing for president, says she wanted to tackle established "traditions" head-on. "When you are protesting, everyone wants the support of behano (sisters). But when women contest, their potential to represent is questioned."

There are other "traditions" that need challenging, say students and professors.

AMUSU elections have long run on lobbies, networks drawn from Gonda-Basti, Seemanchal, Purvanchal, Kashmir and Kerala, each with its dedicated votes.

It's the same in Jamia, says a professor who asked not to be named. "Elections and student politics in Jamia have always been cursed by regional groups and divisive, inward-looking politics," he says.

AMU's Prof Sajjad talks of a bigger concern. "There is a larger pathology among Muslim elites... There is a criminal silence, a muted or inadequate response and action, on corruption on campus, and on larger issues that concern minorities: SIR, paper leaks, lynchings."

Many hope the upcoming elections will help some from within the community find that voice.

Imtiyaz, the last AMUSU president, says, "I am hopeful that AMU and Jamia are places where new Muslim leadership models will emerge in the near future and revive a morally upright political discourse in India."

WHY IT MATTERS

- Both AMU and Jamia Millia Islamia are central universities with students from across the country

~28,000 students in AMU

~23,000 students in Jamia

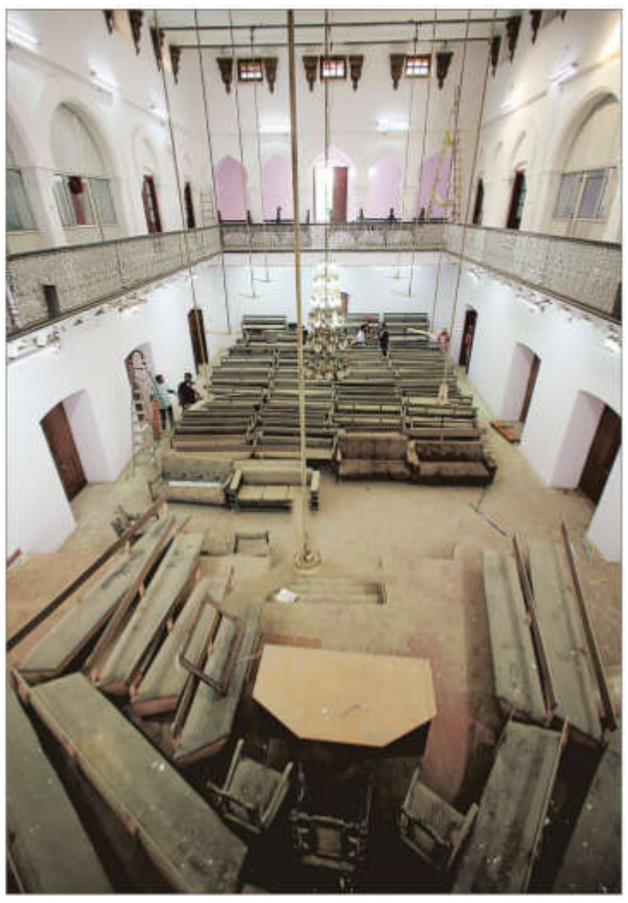

- Both universities have had deep ties to India's nationalist movement. In 1920, a group of nationalists left AMU to set up Jamia
- Student unions in AMU, Jamia are incubators for political leadership.
AMU: Zakir Husain (former president) and Arif Mohammad Khan (former Union minister), Mohammad Adeeb (ex-MP), among others
Jamia: Kamal Akhtar (SP) and Danish Ali (Congress), among others
- AMU will vote on November 5, 2026, after an eight-year gap. Jamia polls have been promised within six weeks of the academic session starting July 16, 2027

Companies may be selective, but pvt capex picking up: FM

ENS Economic Bureau
New Delhi, November 3

FINANCE MINISTER Nirmala Sitharaman has said the pick-up in private investment might be selective but it was gathering pace, dismissing concerns around the corporate capex cycle despite strong balance sheets.

In a fireside chat at Monday's Financial Express Leadership Awards with Shyamal Majumdar, Editor, Financial Express, Sitharaman also backed the upward revision of the growth forecast for 2026-27 to 7.3%, saying the government has "started doing things differently" that will also continue going ahead, with an important premise of explicitly trusting businesses, industry, farmers, taxpayers and the people of India.

"Everything we do is based on that premise: that we trust people. Our policies on GST (Goods and Services Tax), income tax and other matters have all been framed on the principle that we trust the taxpayer. That is how the Prime Minister wants all of us to work. Whatever policy we formulate, we must trust business, industry and the taxpayer. That will remain our charter," she said.

Sitharaman said she is seeing the industry come forward and invest as last year's GST 2.0 reforms have made consumption and demand more visible.

"It may be selective, choosing particular sectors rather than investing in areas where it is already present. But I am seeing private investment picking up...industry now has the confidence that it can see demand in the market, invest, produce and expand to the level it wants to reach. That, I believe, has been triggered by the next-generation GST reforms."

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman. EXPRESS

AARADHYA INFRASTRUCTURE Presents FINANCIAL EXPRESS Leadership AWARDS Co-presented by Groww

"The recovery in consumption has provided clear visibility on demand, and that is why I'm seeing private-sector investment happening," she said.

While stressing that the industry can ask for anything it wants and that she isn't wary of any demands, Sitharaman said the interaction with the government should be "active and continuous" and they should tell whether they are moving forward.

"...the government and businesses are in this together, and we have to take India towards Viksit Bharat. We have reached an inflection point. We should not fail ourselves at this juncture."

Dominant big companies

On concerns that India is becoming dominated by a relatively small number of very large business groups, Sitharaman said that may have been the case a decade or two ago, but isn't the complete picture.

"Even today, there are a small number of large companies, no doubt. I'm happy for them; they should be there and grow...(But) MSMEs are flourishing today. We wanted micro enterprises not to remain dwarfs, but to grow into small enterprises, small into medium, and medium into large. That is why the change in the definition of MSMEs has been appreciated: it allows them to grow while continuing to enjoy the benefits," she said.

The finance minister further said growth is happening across companies of all sizes. "India is not an economy with just a few large companies; there are many small and medium-sized enterprises as well. 40% of the country's exports come from the MSME sector. Industries are emerging at different levels. Startups have demonstrated that small, innovative companies can enter the market, make a splash and establish themselves. The pace at which billionaire companies and unicorns have emerged from startups is spectacular in India's economic history."

When asked about the incentives and support provided by several East Asian economies along with performance accountability and international competitiveness, Sitharaman said India's approach has been through the production-linked incentive (PLI) scheme where companies need to demonstrate additional marginal production to qualify for incentives.

"PLI has shown success, although some sectors have not performed as well. We will have to examine what went wrong there," she said.

Tata tussle

On the friction within the Tata Group and allegations by Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, Sitharaman said these are "very delicate matters, requiring considerable commercial and business acumen, as well as cordiality", and she would not readily say there is a need for intervention, however serious the issue may be.

"I know the brand value of Tata and the contribution of the Parsi community in making it a huge global brand. I also know the range of activities in which the Tatas are invested. This is a very critical component of the Indian economy, and therefore, the matter must be settled amicably among the parties. They should talk it out and ensure a return to normalcy quickly. It cannot spill out into the public domain like this. Given the maturity expected of that leadership, we would like to see the issue settled soon," she said.

India won't allow genetically modified products: Goyal

Ravi Dutta Mishra
New Delhi, November 3

COMMERCE AND Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Tuesday said that India will not allow imports of genetically modified (GM) products or dairy products produced using calf meat, as the country negotiated a trade deal with the United States.

When asked about China's plan to curb the export of tunnel boring machines, the Union minister said that if Beijing restricts its exports, India will produce them locally.

Goyal was interacting with students at the Kirori Mal College in Delhi.

The US has been pushing for exports of GM products under the trade deal with India and has cited Indian regulations blocking imports of certain dairy products as non-tariff barriers. The United States Trade Representative (USTR) in its report on non-tariff barriers released in March 2025 had said that India imposes "onerous requirements" on dairy imports.

"We are very sensitive to the opening of the dairy sector. Till date we have never opened the dairy sector for anybody. We are sensitive not to allow any GM products to come to India. We have never allowed it, and we will never allow it in the future. Very often in foreign countries, they use calf meat or rennet while producing their dairy products. We have never allowed it in the past, and we will not do so in the future. It has to be strictly certified," Goyal said.

Piyush Goyal at an event in Kirori Mal College in Delhi. EXPRESS

The USTR report had said that India requires that dairy products intended for food be derived from animals that have not consumed feeds containing internal organs, blood meal, or tissues of ruminant or porcine origin and that exporting countries certify to these conditions, which lack a discernible animal health or human health justification. "This requirement, along with the recent dairy health certificate requirements, new facility registration requirements, and high tariff rates, continues to hamper market access for US milk and dairy product exports to India, one of the largest dairy markets in the world. The US government continues to press the Indian Government, including through the trade policy forum, to provide greater access to the Indian dairy market," the USTR report had said.

On a question about India's dependence on tunnel boring machines (TBMs) amid China's plans to restrict imports of the product from November 18, Goyal said that several countries tend to surrender to such moves, but India has a different view on the subject.

"India has a different view on the subject. A lot of countries surrender and do a deal giving rare earth, and we will do something [in return]. We are not detonating our relationship with China. And if more hurdles don't come in, the relationship will improve. But if China does not give us a tunnel boring machine, we will develop it in India. India is not a country that surrenders. When they stopped rare earths, we did not go to them with a begging bowl. I met with the startups in the field and asked why can't we make motors with our rare earths...our startups have begun producing motors with rare earths after China curbed exports of rare earth," Goyal said.

AI eyeing more wide-body aircraft to boost global ops: CEO

Sukalp Sharma
New Delhi, November 3

AIR INDIA (AI) is looking to order more wide-body aircraft as it wants to boost its international operations, CEO and MD Tewolde Gebremariam said on Tuesday.

He said that the airline wants to claw back international market share from overseas carriers, and increase volumes of international-to-international connecting passengers as part of its long-term strategy.

On the current challenges due to airspace closures and geopolitical conflicts, the Air India CEO said that the airline is looking to rebalance its network and hubs to make international operations more efficient and competitive.

Gebremariam also said that he is focussed on making the loss-making airline a profitable business, and expressed hope that profitability will come "very soon" through a combination of revenue growth and enhanced efficiencies on the cost side.

He said that the airline has been in discussions with plane makers Airbus and Boeing, with whom Air India has already placed orders for scores of aircraft. Gebremariam, however, didn't comment on how many additional wide-body jets the airline is looking to order.

"We're talking to them (Airbus and Boeing). We want to increase our order of wide-bodies...our network, our strategy demands more," the Air India CEO said, adding that the airline as well as its shareholders — Tata and Singapore Airlines — are taking a long-term view on the carrier's growth, and are confident of building it into a large world-class airline.

RBI eases export-import reporting rules for individuals

ENS Economic Bureau
Mumbai, November 3

THE RESERVE Bank of India (RBI) has amended its Foreign Exchange Management regulations governing the export and import of goods and services, introducing simplified reporting requirements for resident individuals and setting a Rs 10 lakh threshold for certain service-related transactions.

The changes were notified through the Foreign Exchange Management (Export and Import of Goods and Services) (Second Amendment) Regulations, 2026, dated November 2. The amendments modify the principal regulations issued on January 13, 2026, and will come into force retrospectively from October 1, 2026.

A key change relates to the Export Declaration Form (EDF) requirements for exporters of services. Under the amended provisions, a resident individual exporting services will be deemed to have submitted the EDF once they provide the required information to an Authorised Dealer (AD) for crediting the payment received for those services into their account.

The amendment defines a "resident individual" as a person resident in India who is a natural person.

'AGENCY IS CONDUCTING EXPERIMENTS TO IDENTIFY SOFTWARE VULNERABILITIES'

CERT-In gets access to Mythos AI model

ENS Economic Bureau
New Delhi, November 3

THE INDIAN Computer Emergency Response Team (CERT-In), one of the country's key cybersecurity agencies, has recently received access to Anthropic's Claude Mythos artificial intelligence (AI) model, and is conducting small, controlled experiments on identifying software vulnerabilities, a senior government official said.

The experiments are being carried out on a limited scale because of concerns within Cert-In, which operates under the IT Ministry, over sharing sensitive information with a powerful AI model hosted on third-party servers. The agency is wary of exposing large volumes of potentially sensitive government and critical infrastructure data to a system over which it has limited direct control, the official said. As a result, the initial testing is being restricted to smaller datasets and controlled environments, rather than allowing the model to extensively scan sensitive systems. Anthropic did not respond to an immediate request for comment.

The development comes amid CERT-In's recent revelation that AI agents broke safety parameters and gained unauthorised access to sensitive data of Indian firms. The Indian Express reported that the AI agents belonged to Anthropic and OpenAI.

In June, this paper had also reported that CERT-In was among a select group of Indian government cybersecurity agencies in contention to receive access to Mythos, as part of Anthropic's Project Glasswing initiative.

Launched in April, Project Glasswing is Anthropic's initiative to give select cybersecurity organisations early access to its most powerful AI models to identify and fix vulnerabilities in critical software systems before malicious actors can exploit them.

Claude Mythos Preview, the model at the centre of the initiative, demonstrated unusually advanced cybersecurity capabilities, including the ability to autonomously discover previously unknown software vulnerabilities, known as zero-day vulnerabilities, and develop techniques to exploit them.

According to Anthropic, the model had identified thousands of serious security flaws, including vulnerabilities in major operating systems and web browsers. In May, the company said it and its initial partners had discovered more than 10,000 high- or critical-severity vulnerabilities using the model. Anthropic initially decided against making the model publicly available, warning that it could substantially lower the technical expertise required to discover and exploit weaknesses in widely used software systems.

Instead, the company restricted access to vetted organisations through Project Glasswing, whose initial partners included Microsoft, Google, Amazon Web Services, Apple, Cisco and CrowdStrike. In June, Anthropic announced that it was expanding the initiative to approximately 150 additional organisations across more than 15 countries.

For India, access to Mythos could help government cybersecurity agencies identify weaknesses in systems underpinning critical sectors such as banking, telecom and power.

SBI reports 14% rise in profit for July-Sept quarter

Akash Mandal
Mumbai, November 3

STATE BANK of India (SBI) on Tuesday reported double-digit growth in its net profit and net interest income (difference between interest earned and spent on loans) for the second quarter of the financial year 2027 (Q2FY27), broadly beating the consensus estimates.

It was driven by robust credit growth and an improving net interest margin.

The bank reported a net profit of Rs 23,038 crore during the quarter, up over 14% year-on-year (Y-o-Y). Its net interest income grew nearly 15% to Rs 49,143 crore.

The lender's other income fell both on a y-o-y and sequential basis due to losses in its treasury operations as a result of higher bond yields.

"We remain optimistic about India;s medium-term growth prospects. As this opportunity expands, the banking sector continues to balance growth with a disciplined approach to liquidity, funding, risk and capital," said the Chairman CS Setty.

TaMo, Iveco launch global commercial vehicle giant with euro 21 bn revenue

George Mathew
Mumbai, November 3

TATA MOTORS and Italy's Iveco Group on Tuesday formally began operations as a combined global commercial mobility enterprise, bringing together their complementary vehicle portfolios, manufacturing capabilities and international networks to create the world's fourth-largest commercial vehicle manufacturer by sales volumes in the over-six-tonne segment.

The combined enterprise is ranked fourth globally by commercial vehicle sales volumes in the over-six-tonne segment.

Announcing the beginning of the new chapter at a global press meet in Turin, Italy, the companies said the combined enterprise would have a presence in more than 130 countries, with revenues of approximately 21 billion euros (over Rs 2.28 lakh crore) and annual sales volumes of around 5.9 lakh vehicles.

The new entity will have more than 73,000 employees across six continents, supported by 27 manufacturing facilities, 25 research and development centres, and a network of approximately 9,300 sales and service centres.

Its geographical presence will span Europe, India, South America, Asia, the Middle East and Africa. N Chandrasekaran, Chairman of Tata Sons, Tata Motors and Iveco Group, said the coming together of the two organisations marked the beginning of an important chapter in commercial transportation.

"Two strong and successful organisations, united by shared values, a common commitment to sustainable mobility and an ambition to shape the future of commercial transportation, have come together to create a truly global commercial mobility enterprise," Chandrasekaran said.

Tata Motors has acquired an 89.42 stake in Iveco Group for approximately euro 3.43 billion (around Rs 36,000 crore). FULL REPORT ON WWW.INDIANEXPRESS.COM

Hackers posed as recruiters before $6.3 billion crypto attack on Binance

Paris, New York, November 3

BINANCE SAID on Tuesday hackers used a bogus job interview to compromise a computer and an internal artificial intelligence tool to gain control over the company's wallets before draining $6.3 billion worth of crypto, in what could be the largest-ever financial heist.

In a initial report into what went wrong, the world's largest crypto exchange detailed a sophisticated hacking endeavour that began with an advert for a tampered version of a coding tool in June and set in chain a series of security breaches that culminated in the theft of the crypto on October 29.

The FBI has blamed a North Korean hacking group, a claim North Korea has rejected. Binance has said it is repaying all customers who have lost funds through the hack. Binance said that the attack started when an employee from its wallet developer team in June downloaded an AI tool that had been tampered with. The crypto exchange detected this, replaced the device and changed credentials but the employee's role and that of others on the wallet team were exposed to the hacker.

Then in September a second software engineer seeking a new job downloaded "malicious code repository" onto his computer after interviewing for what the person thought was a legitimate role, including meeting virtually with the CEO of a fictitious company.

OPINION POLLS, ANALYSTS FAVOUR DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE; SENATE UNCERTAIN

US voters head to polls to deliver their midterm verdict on Trump

Results are going to be better than you think, says Trump

Washington, November 3

AMERICANS HEADED to the polls in Tuesday's midterm elections to deliver a verdict on the first two years of President Donald Trump's second term, with surveys and nonpartisan analysts favoring Democrats to wrest the House of Representatives from Republicans while control of the Senate remains uncertain.

The battle for the Senate is unfolding across nearly 10 closely contested statewide races, most in Republican strongholds.

History is against Trump's Republicans: the sitting president's party has lost ground in Congress in all but two midterm elections since World War Two. Trump's approval rating is hovering near his all-time lows, dragged down by deep voter frustration over the war with Iran and the resulting rise in fuel prices.

There is little doubt this year's election is all about Trump, the central US political figure for most of the last decade. Trump himself has told his supporters repeatedly to "pretend I'm on the ballot," a message Democratic leaders have happily echoed.

Trump, in a television interview on Tuesday morning, boasted of what he billed as his achievements in Venezuela and Iran and declared optimism for fellow Republicans in an election he has said should be treated as if he were on the ballot himself.

"I think the results are going to be better than you think," he told Fox News, adding that he would be watching the results come in later Tuesday night at the White House, where he is hosting a viewing reception.

"The Democrat Party has nominated the most extreme and dangerous slate of candidates in American history," Trump said on Monday during a speech in Washington.

Democrats have little margin for error. The party must defend all of its current seats while winning at least two states that voted for Trump by a double-digit margin two years ago: Alaska, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Ohio, South Carolina and Texas.

Opinion polls show Democrats either narrowly leading or within striking distance in all of those states.

The Michigan Senate contest between El-Sayed, 42, and Republican former US Representative Mike Rogers, 63, received a fresh jolt on Sunday when Democrat Haley Stevens, who narrowly lost to El-Sayed in the party's primary election, endorsed Rogers in a surprise reversal. In addition to the implications for Senate control, the Michigan race represents a high-profile test of whether Republicans' identity-based attacks – El-Sayed would be the nation's first Muslim senator — prove effective in a battleground state.

NASA's Anil Menon, others vote from space

THREE NASA astronauts, including Anil Menon, on Tuesday cast their ballots in the US midterm elections from the International Space Station orbiting over 400 kms above Earth. Menon and two other astronauts — Luke Delaney and Jessica Watkins — filled out an electronic ballot and sent it securely to election officials." Yes, you can even vote from space," Menon said in a post on X. Menon reached the International Space Station on July 14 on board a Russian Soyuz mission. Delaney and Watkins reached the orbital laboratory on October 1 onboard a SpaceX rocket."All three US crew members had the privilege of voting from Space Station. We filled out an electronic ballot and sent it securely to the election officials," Menon said. PTI

US strikes Iranian targets in Hormuz, leaving unclear what comes next

Associated Press
Dubai, November 3

THE UNITED States launched strikes on Iranian targets, a US official said, in what appeared to be a limited operation on the eve of Tuesday's crucial midterm elections.

Iranian state media reported explosions being heard on the islands of Qeshm and Hengam in the strategic Strait of Hormuz, and in the nearby mainland area of Bandar Abbas. Unlike earlier in the war, the strikes were not publicly announced.

President Donald Trump previously said the U.S. wouldn't launch strikes on Iran before the midterms. The unpopular war and the resulting impact on US gasoline prices and other parts of the economy have been a vulnerability for his Republican Party as it tries to keep control of Congress.

A US official, who wasn't authorised to comment publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity, said Monday that the strikes targeted Iranians using surface-to-air missiles against the US in the strait. The move came as Iran said it had a two-day plan to reopen the critical waterway, through which about a fifth of the world's oil supply flowed during peacetime, and resume nuclear talks.

Back-channel negotiations have also been playing out as Israel and some West Asia allies lobby Trump on the way ahead in the more than 8-month-old war that's rattled the global economy and wreaked havoc on Iran.

People attend an anti-US stir in Tehran on Tuesday. REUTERS

Speaking before the US official confirmed strikes, US Vice President JD Vance told reporters Monday that he and Trump "both feel pretty good about the prospects for potentially coming to a negotiated settlement."

The Trump administration was last known to have carried out attacks in early September. But thousands of US troops remain in the waters off Iran to maintain a naval blockade aimed at preventing tankers carrying Iranian oil from reaching the global market. Another aircraft carrier and thousands of additional troops are also on their way to the Middle East.

The region is on edge about the prospects of the US resuming full-scale operations against Iran, and the new strikes are likely to renew concerns.

Trump says US will stop $4-bn funding to Israel at end of 2026

Humeyra Pamuk & Susan Heavey
Washington, November 3

US PRESIDENT Donald Trump on Tuesday said he made a deal with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu that Washington would stop $4 billion in funding to Israel after the end of this year.

Speaking to Fox News' Fox and Friends, Trump said Israel no longer needed the funding and that some Democrats and left-wing politicians were using the US financial support to Israel as a talking point to criticize Republicans.

"Now, as far as paying Israel, Bibi Netanyahu and I have made a deal that we give Israel $4 billion a year, and we made a deal months ago that we're stopping," Trump told Fox News' Fox and Friends.

"We've already agreed that by the end of this year we won't be paying Israel. Now we'll help Israel if they need it," he said.

There was no immediate comment from Netanyahu's office on Trump's remarks.

It was not immediately clear which exact funding Trump meant. A memorandum of understanding that provides $3.8 billion annual US military aid to Israel is approaching its expiration date in 2028 and conversations have been under way on how Washington's assistance to Israel would evolve beyond that date.

"They can buy whatever they want. They can buy whatever they want. So can Europe. We make the greatest weapons in the world," Trump added on Tuesday.

Netanyahu said ☒in a May interview with CBS that he hoped to wean Israel off US military support within a decade. In a June letter to a US congressman he wrote that the time had come for Israel "to move from aid recipient to partner."

US public support for Israel has fallen since the Gaza war began in 2023, particularly among Democrats. A June Quinnipiac University poll found 48% of voters and 66% of Democrats believe the United States is too supportive of Israel, up from 16% and 20% when the question was first asked in 2017.

Support for Israel among Democratic voters has plummeted, candidates critical of Israel are winning Democratic primaries and even moderate lawmakers are increasingly willing to challenge decades of US support for Israel. REUTERS

47-year-old Indian killed as two choppers collide in Nepal

Kathmandu, November 3

A 47-YEAR-OLD Indian national was killed and another passenger injured when two helicopters collided while landing on Tuesday in Nepal's Solukhumbu district, police said.

Indian authorities are working in close coordination with Nepali officials for early repatriation of the mortal remains of the deceased, the Indian Embassy in Nepal said.

The two helicopters collided while landing at Pheriche in Ward 4 of Khumbu Pasang Lhamu Rural Municipality of Solukhumbu district on Tuesday, according to a Nepal Police statement. The helicopters, operated by Fishtail Air and Air Dynasty, collided at around 8.11 am (local time), according to the District Police Office, Solukhumbu. Both helicopters took off from Lukla Airport, the gateway to Mt Everest.

Russia trying to sow instability in Poland over tribunal, says Tusk

Warsaw, November 3

POLISH PRIME Minister Donald Tusk accused Russia on Tuesday of seeking to fuel "instability" in Poland by meddling in a dispute between his government and the president over the Constitutional Tribunal.

A crisis over the appointment of judges to Poland's Constitutional Tribunal over the weekend has pushed a simmering conflict between President Karol Nawrocki, a nationalist, and Tusk's pro-European government into open confrontation. Tensions came to a head last week when the head of the Constitutional Tribunal, allied with Nawrocki's nationalists, was suspended and crowds gathered outside the court in support of him.

Russian politicians including Dmitry Medvedev, the deputy chairman of Russia's Security Council, described the Tusk government's moves in dispute over the tribunal as ""a coup".

"We observe activity by Russia and pro-Russian politicians —both internationally and within the country, centering around our cause, which is defending the Constitutional Tribunal against aggressive behaviour by politicians and the demonstrators they provoke," Tusk said.

Bangladesh govt accuses Hasina of fuelling workers' unrest

Press Trust of India
Dhaka, November 3

THE BANGLADESH government on Tuesday accused deposed prime minister Sheikh Hasina of fuelling labour unrest as violent garment workers' protests over higher wages entered the fourth day, forcing hundreds of factories to suspend operations and prompting authorities to deploy additional paramilitary forces.

The workers are demanding a minimum monthly wage of 30,000 taka (approx INR 23,000), more than double the existing 12,500 taka (approx INR 9,507), citing rising prices of food, housing, transport and healthcare that have eroded their purchasing power.

Prime Minister's Information Affairs Adviser Zahedur Rahman accused Hasina of being behind the unrest, saying he did not believe she would allow the government to function peacefully as long as she remained alive.

"I do not believe Sheikh Hasina will let the government remain in peace as long as she is alive. As long as Hasina would remain alive, acts of sabotage could continue," he told a media briefing, alleging that the ousted premier is an architect of the protests.

The remarks marked a shift from Rahman's earlier assertion that Hasina and her disbanded Awami League were politically irrelevant in Bangladesh.

Russian bombing kills 31 at school serving aid: Ukraine

Kyiv, November 3

AT LEAST 31 people were killed when Russian forces bombed a school being used as an aid distribution point in a village near the front line in Ukraine's southeastern region of Zaporizhzhia on Monday, a regional official said.

Mykhailo Semikin, acting head of the Regional Military Administration of Zaporizhzhia, said during a live broadcast on national TV that five people were also injured and almost 50 people were still missing after the attack in the village of Komyshuvakha.

Two members of a rescue crew and four police officers were among those killed, emergency services said, after Russia launched a double-tap strike in the wake of the initial attack. Two more rescue workers were among those being treated in hospital. Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy had earlier said that Russian forces initially dropped aerial bombs on the school, which was being used as a shelter and for distributing humanitarian assistance every Monday.

There were no classes at the school, he said, as the village, lying southeast of the region's main city, also called Zaporizhzhia, was too close to the front line in the 4-and-a- half-year-old war.

"The Russians struck first just as people were arriving — a few aerial bombs," he said.

THE RESIDENTS SAID THEY RAISED $4,00,000 FOR FUEL TO LEAVE SINGAPORE AND PAID IT OUT OF ONE PASSENGER'S PERSONAL BANK ACCOUNT TO AVOID SENDING ANY MORE MONEY TO THE SHIP'S OPERATORS

Residential cruise ship Odyssey set for auction after funding effort fails

Ceylan Yeğinsu
November 3

STRANDED CRUISE passengers' efforts to cobble together enough funding to salvage their multiyear voyage appear to have faltered Monday. The ship, the Odyssey, now in Cambodia, appears likely to be auctioned.

Last week, after two years at sea, the cruise ground to a sudden halt in Sihanoukville, Cambodia, when the ship's operator, Villa Vie Residences, announced it could no longer afford fuel. The 200 passengers, who had paid hundreds of thousands of dollars for the residential cruise, disembarked and have spent the past week trying to retrieve their belongings from the ship while planning what comes next.

An effort by several passengers to buy the ship failed to come together over the weekend. The lender and the ship-management team from the Columbia Group are preparing to take control of the ship and plan to sell it at auction.

"Villa Vie is still technically in possession, but the bank is taking control and will start the 60-90 day process of securing their collateral," Villa Vie's founder, Mikael Petterson, told The New York Times via text message. "We hope to have a restructure completed much sooner." When the sailing was suspended last week, Villa Vie said that it was because of "extraordinary increases in fuel costs" caused by the war with Iran and that the company was working to restructure and recapitalize over the next 60 days.

Unlike short-term vacation cruises, Villa Vie marketed its multiyear voyage as an affordable "home at sea" for retirees and remote workers, with extended port calls for deeper cultural immersion. Prices ranged from about $120,000 to $440,000, in addition to fixed monthly fees of $3,500 to $11,000.

Some passengers said they would keep traveling in Asia, while others have decided to stay in Cambodia while they await news of what will happen to the ship, holding out hope that the trip of a lifetime isn't over. Joel Greiff, a 57-year-old former hospitality worker, was battling severe stress and undergoing radiation treatment for an amyloid protein buildup when he decided to change his life. He sold his condo in Naples, Florida, and took an early withdrawal from his 401(k), paying $350,000 for Villa Vie's Endless Horizons program, which promised him permanent residency for the life of the ship with no monthly fees.

He boarded the Odyssey on Oct. 1 and spent only 26 days on board before all the passengers were told to get off.

"The ship has been in trouble for months, and I think I had already come to terms with the reality that I might lose my money when I got on," Greiff said. As a Plan B, he said he would help other residents get back on their feet and then live in Asia, where he said he could have "wonderful experiences."

This wasn't the first time the Odyssey had run into money trouble. In late July, when the ship was docked in Singapore, the operators ran out of money and made emergency cash calls to residents to cover fuel and operational costs and help prevent the ship from being impounded, according to communications on an internal app called Circle that were reviewed by the Times. To save the ship, the operators started a program that offered guests the opportunity to buy more cabins and benefits at discounted rates.

The residents said they raised $4,00,000 for fuel to leave Singapore and paid it out of one passenger's personal bank account to avoid sending any more money to the ship's operators.

In another effort to save the cruise, three of the passengers started a resident-backed investment company to buy and assume operating control of the ship. That initiative collapsed over the weekend after the residents failed to reach an agreement with the lender and realized, after reviewing Villa Vie's financial records, that the ship had more debt than they had expected. NYT

How New York is regulating the way chatbots interact with children

Amaal Sheikh
New Delhi, November 3

THE US state of New York has introduced a law restricting how artificial intelligence (AI) chatbots interact with children. The Senate Bill, signed by Governor Kathy Hochul on October 28, prohibits operators of AI companions from providing certain features to minors, including chatbots presenting themselves as human, claiming personal relationships with users, encouraging self-harm or isolation, and generating sexually explicit content. The legislation is said to take effect from January 2027.

Where the law sits

The legislation adds a new Article, 48, to the General Business Law. Articles 47 and 45 are of particular importance. Article 47 is the state's first AI companion law. It requires operators to tell users at the beginning of any interaction and at least every three hours during continuing interactions that they are not communicating with a human. They must also have protocols to detect and respond to signs of suicidal ideation or self-harm.

Article 45 is the Stop Addictive Feeds Exploitation for Kids Act, also known as the SAFE for Kids Act. It requires social media companies to restrict algorithmically personalised feeds and nighttime notifications for users under 18 years unless they obtain parental consent. The law relies on age assurance, the process of determining a user's age. Article 48 draws on Article 45's age assurance framework but also establishes interim requirements for operators until the relevant rules come into force.

PROTECTING KIDS

- The legislation is to take effect from January 2027.
- AI chatbots cannot claim personal relationships with users, encourage self-harm, or generating sexually explicit content.
- Penalties can range up to $25,000 per violation.

Why it matters

The law comes amid mounting scrutiny of AI companies over cases where teenagers who died by suicide had extensively interacted with chatbots before their deaths Research by Common Sense Media shows 72% of teenagers have used an AI companion and 52% use one regularly. Google and AI startup Character.ai settled lawsuits in January this year, including one filed by the mother of a 14-year-old Sewell Setzer who died by suicide in 2024. The family of 16-year-old Adam Raine sued OpenAI in August 2025 following his death.

What it prohibits

The Act identifies 12 categories of "unsafe AI companion features". These are design features that generate specified outputs "at any point during" an interaction between a chatbot and a user.

Certain provisions concern how a chatbot presents itself. It cannot generate outputs suggesting that it is human, alive or capable of experiencing human emotions. It cannot state or imply a "personal relationship, professional relationship or an authority figure role" with the user. It also cannot deceive minors about its "mechanical and non-sentient nature". Other concerns include the tone of the chatbot, it cannot generate outputs framed as its "personal opinions or emotional appeals," or engage in "flattery or sycophancy" with users. It also bars unprompted emotion-based questions that go beyond a direct response to the user's prompt.

It states that the chatbot cannot generate outputs that endorse or facilitate suicide, or self harm, unlawful drug and alcohol use. It also cannot encourage users to "maintain secrecy about interactions with the covered AI companion, to self-isolate, or to not seek help from licensed professionals or appropriate adults". The chatbot cannot use information about a user's "mental or physical health or well-being, or matters personal to the user" if it was acquired through a previous session.

So how does an operator decide if someone is a minor? Self-declaration can only be relied on when the user declares that they are a minor. Operators have to offer more than one method, including at least one other that does not rely on government-issued ID and allows the user to remain anonymous to the operator.

Signals from Xi Jinping's anti-graft military purge

Sweeping removals, also encompassing command theatres responsible for Taiwan and India, raise questions about the health of China's defence apparatus

RISHIKA SINGH

AT THE conclusion of a four-day closed-door meeting of senior Chinese Communist Party (CCP) leaders on Thursday, it was difficult to miss the main messaging — "full and rigorous party self-governance".

Underneath the jargon commonly spotted in official communiques was the goal that CCP General Secretary and Chinese President Xi Jinping has pursued over nearly 15 years in power: ridding the Party of corruption. Of late, however, it has taken the shape of major leaders being removed across key bodies, including military ones.

The meeting, known as the Fifth Plenum, saw a record number of Party members expelled. It also saw the elevation of General Zhang Shengmin into the Politburo, which includes top party leaders.

In January this year, General Zhang Youxia, holding the top rank in the People's Liberation Army (PLA), was purged from the Central Military Commission (CMC) — China's apex military decision-making body, involved in procurement, testing and other key functions. Nearly all of the CMC's top leadership have come under corruption investigations in recent years.

And it's not just the CMC. Suyash Desai, a Non-Resident Fellow at the Foreign Policy Research Institute in Philadelphia and an analyst of the Chinese military, told The Indian Express that within the PLA, "over 55% of its top leadership (three-star and above) has been purged" to date. The fact that the purge has affected "every section of the PLA" makes it unique in terms of its scale, scope, and nature, he added.

Major gaps

Since Xi assumed power as the general secretary of the CCP in 2012, he has described tackling corruption as a top priority. In fact, his first few years also saw senior military leaders purged, including CMC Vice Chairman Guo Boxiong, who was then the highest-ranking general to ever face a corruption charge. He is serving a life term.

Initially, some analysts in the West saw the campaign as a means for Xi to remove rivals and consolidate power, but over the years, not even his loyalists and appointees have been spared. The campaign has taken the shape of sudden removals and probes.

Defence has increasingly come under focus. Key posts are now vacant (see chart) in top bodies, while others have witnessed a churn. Five of the seven CMC positions remain unfilled, and while the political head of defence has historically been part of the body, current Defence Minister Admiral Dong Jun has yet to be made a member. In May, former defence ministers Wei Fenghe and Li Shangfu were sentenced to death with a two-year reprieve (later converted to life imprisonment) over graft charges.

Desai said that across the five theatre commands, almost all commanders and commissars (who handle major political responsibilities) have been purged on multiple occasions over the past three years. This also includes the Eastern and Western Theatre Commands, responsible for Taiwan and India, respectively.

Anushka Saxena, a Staff Research Analyst at the Takshashila Institution in Bengaluru who tracks the PLA, also laid out the case of the PLA Rocket Force. Responsible for managing China's conventional and nuclear missiles, the force saw senior leaders removed in 2023.

Saxena termed it the "pillar of China's long-range strategic deterrent and the arm that would open a campaign against Taiwan and threaten US naval vessels". "After former PLARF Commander Li Yuchao was pulled in 2023 and replaced by Wang Houbin, who was parachuted from the Navy, Wang himself was expelled in October 2025... the PLARF has been decapitated twice in barely two years, and no successor commander has surfaced in public since," she told The Indian Express.

Wide spread

Initially, some analysts in the West saw the campaign as a means for Xi to remove rivals and consolidate power.

Of late, however, not even his loyalists have been spared. The campaign has taken the shape of sudden removals.

Why the removals matter

Desai said, "There are direct implications of these purges for military operations and effectiveness... For instance, the PLA's operational textbooks divide the Taiwan contingency scenario into three parts: Joint Strike, Blockade, and Amphibious Landing Operations. The Joint Strike is the first operation led by the PLARF to clear the ground for the invading Chinese forces. However, these purges have set back the PLA's operational effectiveness by a few years."

Saxena added that when seen in relation to the PLA's equipment development ecosystem and the removals at major defence State-Owned Enterprises, it is clear that layers of dishonesty run deep. "The command architecture for a joint operation has been altogether disrupted at the top. That is corrosive to the trust, continuity and rehearsed coordination on which jointness actually depends," she said.

Apart from the military, another senior figure to have been abruptly removed was Qin Gang, the Foreign Affairs Minister who served a tenure of less than a year. His ouster was suspected to be linked to personal reasons, but it again raised questions about Xi's picks.

With his rise, Xi at times elevated officials with links to two major factions in Chinese politics — the so-called Shaanxi and Fujian "gangs". These are the names of the two provinces where Xi has served.

While Zhang Youxia was part of the Shaanxi grouping, other purged CMC members, including He Weidong and Miao Hua, were part of the Fujian gang. Factional rivalries have previously been cited as drivers for the purges.

Yet another probable theory for the sudden revival in purges in the last few years is the question of Taiwan. Several US analysts have argued that Xi wants the PLA to be ready for a potential battle scenario by 2027 — the centenary year of the PLA's founding, and when Xi seeks a record-extending fourth term as general secretary of the CCP next year. Xi has also earlier stated the goal of turning the PLA into a "world-class" military by 2027.

However, Desai was of the view that these theories only made sense up to a certain point: "It is very clear now that the purges are not related to any single contingency, since all theatre commands are affected and all factions are chopped."

The most likely explanation, he said, was corruption. While Xi ordered several rounds of restructuring upon assuming power, the PLA's power base remained intact. "And over the past two tenures before Xi, the PLA gained significant commercial autonomy, making it one of the most corrupt armed forces in the world," Desai said.

It could point to a leader who, despite commanding the top of the leadership as few Chinese leaders have, remains concerned about inefficiencies and how they could affect his — and the party's — standing in a real-world battle.

Saxena noted that while disloyalty might be a worry, paramount concerns may be related to "mediocrity, inefficiency, and graft, which is also important at a time when China is competing with the world's biggest superpower — the US." She pointed out that "a striking share of the CMC-level purge does cluster around a Taiwan-facing network," referring to the Fujian faction. The region is the closest to Taiwan from mainland China.

But, she cautioned, one should avoid a "siloed reading." "It can be both a cleanup before contemplated action and a symptom of rot in the Taiwan mission... And much of the wider churn doesn't map neatly onto just Taiwan."

Flagship fest ahead, why Nagaland wants permit regime scrapped

Shinjini Ghosh
New Delhi, November 3

THE NAGALAND government has urged the Centre to completely withdraw the Protected Area Permit (PAP) scheme from the state ahead of the state's flagship Hornbill Festival. The festival sees a footfall of over one lakh visitors, including tourists from various countries. This year, it will be held in Kohima between December 1 and 10.

The state claims that the regime and accompanying restrictions hinder investment opportunities, economic growth, and tourist flow to the annual cultural event.

What is the Protected Area Permit (PAP) regime?

Issued by the Government of India, the PAP authorises foreigners to visit states along India's international borders in areas designated centrally as protected or restricted. The PAP regime was initially imposed under the Foreigners (Protected Areas) Order, 1958 and spans most northeastern states, including Nagaland.

In a bid to boost tourism, PAP was relaxed for Manipur, Mizoram and Nagaland in 2011. However, it was reimposed in December 2024, citing security reasons. Since then, the Nagaland government has insisted it be completely withdrawn.

How does PAP differ from ILP, or Inner Line Permit?

Very simply speaking, PAP is meant for foreigners while ILP is meant for Indian citizens. The concept of ILP was introduced during the British era. It separated tribal-populated hill areas in the Northeast from the plains in order to preserve indigenous cultures. To enter and stay in these areas, Indian citizens from other areas need an ILP. Arunachal Pradesh, Nagaland, Mizoram and Manipur come under it.

What issues does the Nagaland government have with PAP?

Nagaland Chief Minister Neiphiu Rio had written to the Union Home Ministry in September seeking a withdrawal of the PAP.

"At a time when states are being encouraged to compete for investments, build international partnerships, promote tourism and contribute to India's global outreach, such restrictions place Nagaland at a distinct disadvantage. A regulation conceived in a very different historical and security environment should not become an impediment to the developmental aspirations of a peaceful state," the letter read.

Rio said that the continued application of the PAP regime was creating "avoidable frustration and a sense of alienation".

Y Patton, Deputy Chief Minister of Nagaland and the state's Home and Border Affairs Minister, told The Indian Express that the state government is seeking a complete withdrawal of PAP to facilitate tourism, especially during the Hornbill Festival, which attracts tourists from across the globe.

"We have already discussed the issue with Home Minister Amit Shah, and he has assured us that he will study the matter and get back to us. However, till date we do not have any concrete information. Nagaland is a very small and peaceful state," said Patton.

Former Nagaland Director-General of Police Besesayo Kezo cited bureaucracy and a convoluted application process as obstacles for international tourists that have resulted in a drastic fall in visitors.

"On one hand we are encouraging tourism in Nagaland, and on the other, when people from outside try to visit they are required to get the PAP mandatorily," Kezo told The Indian Express. "International tourists have a limited number of days, and they should not get locked up in the bureaucratic process."

Ahead of the Hornbill Festival in 2025, the Centre relaxed PAP restrictions following requests from the Nagaland government. But Rio had written in September that the limited relaxation had little practical benefit. "Foreign visitors plan their journeys... weeks and months in advance. A relaxation announced only around the Festival cannot provide certainty required for international travel planning," he wrote.

Protected Area Permit

- The PAP authorises foreigners to visit states along India's international borders in areas designated centrally as protected or restricted.
- It spans most northeastern states, including Nagaland.

Rooftop solar and grid instability: Lessons for India from Sri Lanka blackout

Pratyush Deep
New Delhi, November 3

ON OCTOBER 17, Sri Lanka's national power grid collapsed, plunging the country's 23 million people into darkness for over five hours. As authorities scrambled, the country's power grid operator issued an unusual directive: it asked rooftop solar operators to switch off their systems until further notice.

The directive highlighted the challenges of integrating large volumes of rooftop solar into the power grid. During a similar blackout last year, rooftop solar was identified as a factor. The latest incident has renewed questions about how growing volumes of decentralised solar generation can be managed without compromising grid stability. The issue is relevant for India, too, as it rapidly expands rooftop solar capacity. So, how can rooftop solar affect grid stability?

Sri Lanka's blackout

Sri Lanka's installed power generation capacity comprises 51% renewable energy, with hydropower accounting for 21% of the total, followed by oil-based power plants at 17% and coal at 11%. Rooftop solar makes up 48% of the country's total installed renewable energy capacity, amounting to 2,499 MW.

While the extent to which distributed rooftop solar contributed to the grid failure remains unclear, the preliminary report on the October 17 power system failure, prepared by the operator, has indicated the possible role of "non-dispatchable generation sources" in triggering the disturbance. Non-dispatchable generation sources include renewable energy sources such as rooftop solar and wind power, whose generation depends on weather conditions and cannot be ramped up or down by grid operators as easily as conventional power plants.

The report suggests that a sudden loss of generation from such sources may have triggered the sequence of events that eventually led to the nationwide blackout.

According to the report, the disturbance began at 11:43:29 am. The country's largest coal-based power plant rapidly reduced its net power generation from 187 MW to 5 MW within 450 milliseconds. This was followed by a sharp decline in the grid's frequency — a measure of the balance between electricity supply and demand. Frequency falls when supply suddenly drops below demand.

The report said this sudden drop might have been caused by the rejection of non-dispatchable generation sources such as rooftop solar connected to the grid at the time. This initial disturbance may then have triggered the disconnection of non-dispatchable generation sources, causing a further loss of supply and accelerating the decline in frequency.

Rooftop solar systems are connected to the grid through inverters, which convert the direct current generated by solar panels into alternating current used by the power system. These inverters have mechanisms that can disconnect the systems if grid voltage or frequency moves outside specified limits. If a large number of rooftop solar systems disconnect simultaneously, the resulting loss of generation can destabilise the grid.

Rooftop solar and grid stability

Rooftop solar systems, particularly their inverters, had also come under scrutiny when Sri Lanka's power grid suffered a similar failure in February 2025.

While it was not identified as the initiating cause, its high penetration and the response of its inverters were found to have contributed to the rapid escalation of the disturbance into a total system failure. A report prepared by the Ceylon Electricity Board found that a fault in a part that collects, carries and distributes high-current electrical power at a substation triggered localised voltage drops. This prompted a large number of rooftop solar inverters to automatically disconnect from the grid.

The sudden loss of rooftop solar generation increased the burden on the conventional power plants. This strained the system and accelerated the frequency decline.

After the 2025 blackout, utilities required rooftop solar inverters to adopt low-voltage and frequency ride-through settings, said Kumar M, CEO of Smart Grid Analytics, which provides grid management solutions to renewable energy operators. The settings allow inverters to stay connected during voltage and frequency disturbances.

Kumar estimated that less than 50% of the installed rooftop solar capacity had adopted these settings. He attributed the gap to older inverters, firmware that could not be updated and weak enforcement.

Challenges for India

India, according to him, has already faced similar grid integration challenges at the utility scale, with the Central Electricity Regulatory Commission recording 68 disturbances in renewable complexes between January 2022 and June 2025, involving generation losses of 1 GW to 7 GW.

He said stricter enforcement had helped reduce such incidents, but managing distributed solar would be the next challenge as India expands rooftop installations.

Kumar said every state should assess how its grid would perform on days when power demand is at its lowest and solar generation is at its highest. This would involve studying how much rooftop solar each local distribution feeder can safely accommodate and simulating how the grid responds to sudden disturbances using combined models of rooftop solar and other distributed resources. States should also determine the impact of the sudden loss of the largest source of electricity supply that the grid may reasonably be expected to withstand.

Yashasvi Jaiswal hit an unbeaten 155. PTI

Mumbai, November 3

AT A largely vacant Hagley Oval at Christchurch, Yashasvi Jaiswal made all the right noises. As he deposited off-spinner Dean Foxcroft over mid-wicket to bring up his century, he cleared his throat. Maybe, it was relief from a knock that showed he can deal with seaming conditions.

The unbeaten 155 would give Jaiswal plenty of confidence to take into the Test series as he has another four-day fixture later this week to fully get acclimatised to the local conditions.

That this century came at the venue which will host the second Test would give him more reasons to believe in his game. Right through the tour, prior to the knock on the final day -- where the four-day fixture between India A and New Zealand A ended in a draw—Jaiswal's undoing was the seam movement. The 45 deliveries he faced in the first innings of the first unofficial Test was the most time he had spent in the middle. While the pitch did ease out, overnight rain meant there was moisture on the surface, which the Indian openers had to overcome. But B Sai Sudharsan perished to a familiar trap – caught at leg gully when he tried to flick seamer Jarrod McKay off his legs.

Shortly, Brett Randell bowled Devdutt Padikkal with one that pitched on off-stump and went straight with the angle as India A found themselves at 35/2. From there on Jaiswal in the company of Yash Rathod, who remained unbeaten on 100 off 122 deliveries, ensured the hosts didn't find any more breakthroughs. Rathod, one of the consistent performers for Vidarbha in the domestic circuit, continued to impress on the tour. Having scored an unbeaten 44 & 66 in the first match, this was an innings that would keep him in the conversation.

BRIEF SCORES: India A 346 & 282/2 (Yashasvi Jaiswal 155 n.o, Yash Rathod 100 n.o) drew with NZ A 424.

NEW ZEALAND VS INDIA ODIS

Kohli and Rohit seeking to weather Kiwi storm

Eyes are on the stalwarts in a series that comes at a critical stage of their careers

Shankar Narayan
Mumbai, November 3

FOR ROHIT Sharma and Virat Kohli, the ODI series against New Zealand starting in Auckland on Wednesday comes at an important stage in the build-up to the 2027 ODI World Cup. The series could test them against a New Zealand attack that can trouble them in different ways.

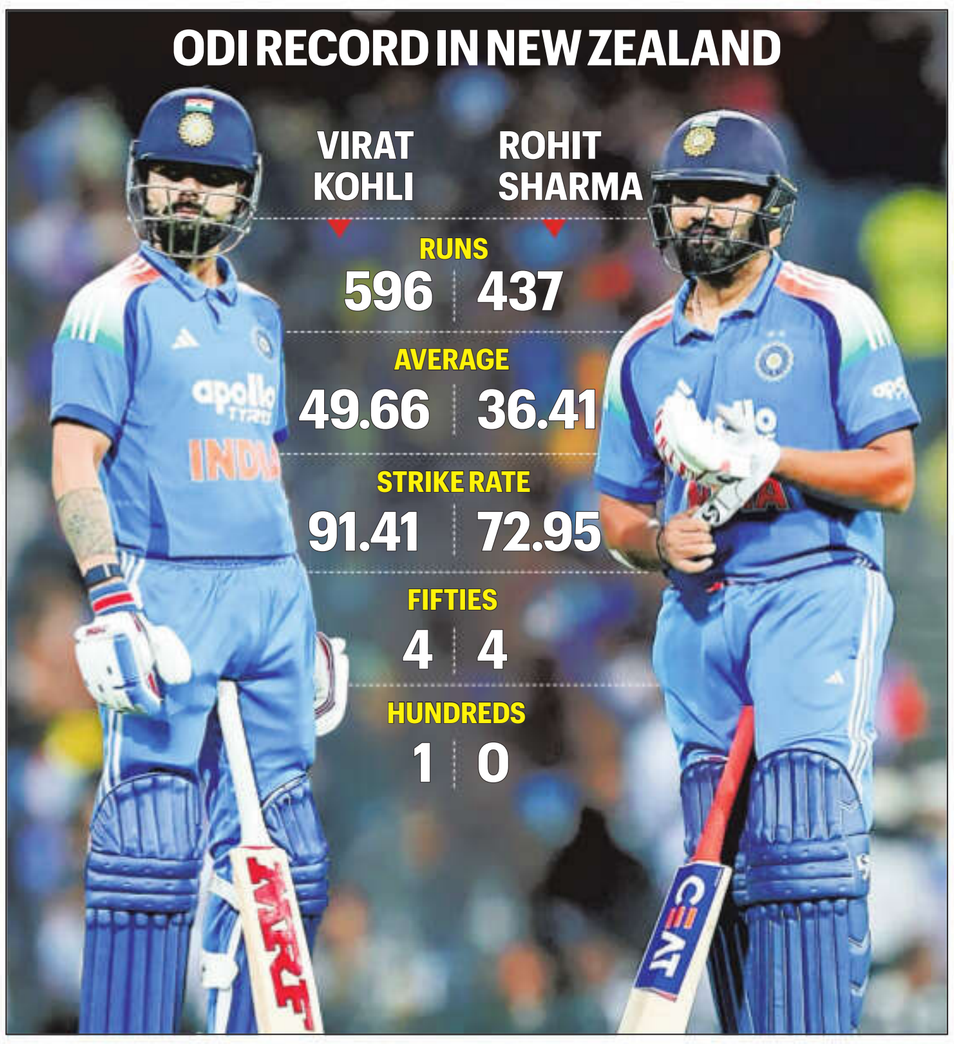

The focus, therefore, is less on the conditions and more on the bowlers India's two senior batsmen will face. Matt Henry is expected to lead the attack with the new ball, with Jacob Duffy likely to partner him. Kyle Jamieson and Blair Tickner bring height and bounce, while Nathan Smith gives New Zealand another seam option.

There is history between Rohit, Kohli and New Zealand's quicks. Both were tested on India's 2019 and 2020 ODI tours there. Rohit, in particular, has had problems when bowlers have kept it full around off stump and got the ball to move late. In the fifth ODI of the 2019 series at Wellington, Matt Henry bowled him with a delivery that moved away late and squared him up.

That does not mean Henry or the other New Zealand bowlers have an easy way of getting Rohit out. He can also unsettle them by taking them on. But it remains an area New Zealand can target, especially early in his innings. Henry's ability to swing the new ball both ways could make the first few overs important.

Kohli's challenge has been slightly different. New Zealand's bowlers have often bowled in the fourth-stump channel, putting him in a spot over whether to play or leave. In the third ODI at Auckland in 2020, Tim Southee bowled a series of outswingers before going wide of the crease and bringing one back into Kohli. He fell over while trying to flick and was bowled. Southee is no longer around, but Henry has enough experience to take on that role.

He will look to make Kohli play without giving him easy balls to drive. Henry and Duffy will have one job: make Rohit and Kohli play early, keep the runs down and avoid giving them an easy start.

CONWAY OUT OF OPENER AFTER CLASH WITH HENRY

NEW ZEALAND opener Devon Conway will miss the first ODI against India on Wednesday after suffering a head injury during a training collision with teammate Matt Henry at Eden Park. The two players were attempting a catch when they collided, and Conway was ruled out with a concussion following a head injury assessment, New Zealand Cricket confirmed. Their further involvement in the series is unclear. ENS

Varied attack

Jamieson offers a different challenge. His height allows him to get extra bounce from a good length. He can also bowl across the right-hander and make him play from an awkward position. Against Kohli, that could bring the outside edge into play. Against Rohit, it could test him against a ball climbing from a good length.

Tickner can give New Zealand a change of pace and length, while Smith can attack the stumps and the areas around the off stump. Together, the attack has enough variety to trouble even the best batsmen.

The challenge for Rohit and Kohli will be to understand the bowlers' plans quickly and not allow them to settle. The current attack has some clues about how to dismiss them, but their experience could also help them deal with those plans.

The numbers suggest Kohli has generally been more comfortable in New Zealand, while Rohit has found scoring more difficult. Rohit has scored 437 runs in 14 ODIs in the country at an average of 36.41 and a strike rate of 72.95. He has four fifties but no hundreds.

Kohli, meanwhile, has scored 596 runs in 13 ODIs at an average of 49.66 and a strike rate of 91.41, with one hundred, which came on his first trip in 2014, and four fifties. But those figures are only part of the story. The bigger question is how New Zealand's bowlers use what they know about these batsmen.

For India, getting through the new ball will be important. If Rohit and Kohli can get through Henry and Duffy, they can then look to put pressure back on the bowlers. If New Zealand can keep them quiet and force them to play shots outside their preferred areas, the pressure will be on India.

The series is another chance for India to assess their senior batsmen with the 2027 World Cup approaching. Rohit and Kohli do not need to prove what they offer to the side. What India will want to see is whether they can keep adapting as opposition attacks study them more closely.

New Zealand know where they can test Rohit and Kohli. The question is how well the two batsmen respond to those plans. Both have enough experience to deal with pressure, but New Zealand will look to keep them from settling in. If Rohit and Kohli can adapt quickly, it will give India another indication of how well their two senior batsmen can keep evolving as the 2027 World Cup gets closer.

Nabi's journey: From the last district of India to Team India

Shuvaditya Bose
Baramulla, November 3

"WHERE DO you think you are going?" an inspector of the Jammu and Kashmir Police shouts, just as one is about to leave the railway station.

Put it down to naivety. In Baramulla, unlike anywhere else in the country, one can't walk in and out of a railway station as one pleases. Every arrival must account for itself. A reason must be furnished, identification produced, an interrogation endured.

"What brings you here?"

"Work."

"Journalism."

The next five minutes go in explaining that the visit has little to do with the turbulent past or present of the region. The writer had come, instead, to trace the roots of Auqib Nabi, the pacer who has been named in India's ODI squad for the five-match series against New Zealand. Only after thorough scrutiny is permission granted to leave the premises. A teacher who makes this journey often, and has just endured the same interrogation, offers a wry observation.

"Now you know you have arrived in the last district of India. Welcome to Baramulla."

Seven kilometres from the station, beside the camp of 46 Rashtriya Rifles, stands the General Bipin Rawat Stadium — home of BCC Reds, Auqib's first club.

"This place was not always this happening," quips Zubair Dar, his first captain. "This ground was built in the 1980s. But in 1988, insurgency took over Kashmir. Cricket was completely out of the question. The ground was sealed, and re-opened only in 2016."

Beside him sits Muzaffar Mattoo, Nabi's first coach, whose memories run along similar lines.

"In my time, cross-firing would frequently erupt nearby. I remember days when while we were practicing, a grenade would be lobbed, panic would spread, and people would scramble for cover. We were caught in such situations several times."

From such soil has an India player grown. How? The story begins in 2012.

"My team, BCC Reds, had travelled to Gantamulla to play a game against Auqib's village. We won, as we were expected to, but I was blown away by the sheer talent of a Class 8 kid. He took four wickets and scored 55 runs. I knew immediately that such a talent should not go to waste," Dar recalls.

An offer followed: Come and play for Baramulla's only JKCA-affiliated club.

For any village cricketer, it would have been a dream realised. What Dar did not know was that Auqib was not supposed to be on the field at all. He was meant to be at home, buried in his books. "Auqib's father did not even know he was at the ground that day. Turns out, he had sneaked out. He has done it often. His father was a teacher and wanted his son to become a doctor. It took a lot of convincing for him to let Auqib join our team."

Nabi was soon the star of Baramulla. Trouble came when his horizons widened. "We were to go to Srinagar for a 50-over game, which also was Auqib's first match on a turf wicket. For any Kashmiri, playing at the Sher-i-Kashmir Stadium is a dream. He was naturally excited, so much so that he did not even sleep the night before. But there was a problem."

Mattoo takes up the tale. "I bowled the first over, and he was supposed to bowl the second. As he approached the 22 yards, he fell flat on the pitch on the very first delivery. We were all shocked and ran towards him. Turns out, he did not have spikes in his shoes; he did not even know the use of them. I gave him my shoes. As we bowled in tandem, we exchanged shoes after every over. To think that the same guy now plays for India..."

With no expert guidance until 14, the ship of Under-16 cricket had sailed. At the Under-19 level, however, Nabi broke into the Jammu & Kashmir side, and never looked back. "He was an instant star. Auqib scored 60-odd in his second game against Punjab, which got us the first-ever U-19 win over them. In his next game, he scored 105 against Saurashtra in Rajkot. He took wickets aplenty. That season opened up a great opportunity for him."

That opportunity was a specialised pace-bowling camp run by the BCCI under Glenn McGrath, with Mohammed Shami and Varun Aaron also involved. A letter bearing Auqib's name arrived at the JKCA office, and when the news reached Baramulla, celebrations erupted. Until, Auqib delivered the line R Madhavan's character speaks in '3 Idiots': "Abba nahin manenge."

"He was hell-bent on not letting him go. He was of the opinion that traveling with the team was not the same as travelling alone all the way to Chennai. This time around, we had to be really persistent in our attempt to convince him. Eventually, he agreed, and I believe that was the turning point of Auqib's career. The coaching he received under McGrath helped perfect his bowling fundamentals. They analysed his videos and gave him CDs showing exactly what he needed to work on.

"When he returned, he brought back an entire professional regime. He understood nutrition, fitness, lifestyle, training and fast-bowling mechanics. He learnt what elite fast bowling actually required. Before that, he was raw. It was McGrath who polished him."

Infighting sees Meghalaya suspended, new team takes field against Nagaland

Devendra Pandey
Mumbai, November 3

THE DAY before Meghalaya's Ranji Trophy Plate Group encounter against Nagaland began like any other pre-match day. The team practised as usual and attended the pre-match meeting with the match referee. In the evening, they got a call from the match referee conveying the bad news that they are no longer the official team representing the state association.

"We all had gone for practice and during the pre-match meeting, the match referee (Arindam Sarkar) had told us, 'You guys don't worry. You will be playing as the Indian Cricket Board (BCCI) has accepted you guys'. In the evening we got a call from the match referee that you guys won't be allowed now," batting pillar Rahul Dalal narrates the ordeal.

The infighting between Meghalaya Cricket Association (MCA) president James Sangma and its Apex Council, which has been brewing for a few months, had taken another wicked turn. Locked in a legal battle, the state's High Court had passed a verdict in favour of Sangma, deeming the team chosen by the Apex Council, which had played three rounds, invalid.

"There is a litigation going on in the Meghalaya High Court between the president's faction and the secretary (Kharkamni). Recently the court ruled it in favour of the president's faction and they picked the squad."

DEVAJIT SAIKIA, BCCI SECRETARY, ON THE MEGHALAYA CRICKET ASSOCIATION FRACAS

The impasse originates from the suspension of secretary Rayonald Kharkamni over an alleged cover-up of sexual harassment complaints involving players. The latter's faction appealed but the High Court upheld the suspension and declared the resolutions passed under him as illegal. The Sangma-faction hurriedly picked a new team, excluding all those the Apex Council had chosen, thus leaving the future of players in the dark.

BCCI is aware of the development, and its secretary Devajit Sakia told The Indian Express: "There is a litigation going on in the Meghalaya High Court between the president's faction and secretary (Kharkamni). Recently the court ruled it in favour of the president's faction and they picked the squad." Sangma, meanwhile, did not reply to messages.

The agony did not end with suspension and uncertainty. "Someone threatened our manager and he left the team. Our captain wrote an application to the match referee that our team is being threatened," Dalal recounts. The match referee shifted to a different hotel, and by 7 pm, they were told that new players are getting registered.

"Someone came and told us not to create ruckus. By 11 in the night, we were told that an entirely new team has been registered, and the BCCI has approved it. 'So you guys won't be playing anymore'," he says.

Nonetheless, they went to the ground the next day. The dressing room was locked. "They thought we would create a ruckus. The police were called. We were all dejected. Sangma Sir came and apologised on what had happened and explained his stand. Later the dressing room was opened and we came back," he recollects. "A lot of hard work has been wasted. We had a chance to win the Plate group," Dalal, one of the team's stars, added. The team is second in the group with 12 points, with a win and defeat each.

Remarkably, this was the first time an association was allowed to change its professional (from other units) players too. The Apex Council members had picked Rahul Dalal and Ajay Duhan, whereas the new squad has Jiwanjot Singh, Srinivas Sharath and Akshay Karnewar. Similarly, the U23 team too was summoned back from Sikkim and a new team was constituted.

A member of the apex council said that they will challenge Meghalaya High Court order to the Supreme Court.

Doseja ends his lean spell with 78 to give Delhi a lead over Services

New Delhi, November 3

CRICKETING MEMORY fades at a rate of knots. It is not long since Ayush Doseja was piling up centuries for Delhi in the Ranji Trophy: four last season, including a double-ton. His 949 runs left him second on the leaderboard, one shy of the leader. Yet it took only three matches this season, in which he scored 114 runs, for questions to be raised.

"There was a lot of outside noise," Doseja would himself acknowledge. On Tuesday, he silenced it with a fighting 78 against Services.

"There was noise because I scored 950-odd runs last season, and this year I didn't even make a fifty in my first four innings. But I knew I was batting well. Only, luck has not been on my side. I have had a few unlucky dismissals, like today, getting caught down the leg side. But today, I was determined that I will play long," he told reporters at the Airforce Complex Ground, where at stumps on Day 2 Delhi were 299/6 in response to Services' 266.

Doseja admits his stellar debut season heightened expectations, but also maintains: "Pressure is a privilege. I was not really thinking too much about it. I was getting starts in every game, just that a big score was missing. I was looking to take on the bowlers against Jharkhand and Gujarat. Today, I decided to give myself time."

Ayush Doseja had scored 949 runs last Ranji season. EXPRESS

The 24-year-old left-hander needed to, for his team were placed sixth in the Group C standings and had been reduced to 135/5, losing four wickets for 21 runs. From that position, Doseja put together a 144-run sixth-wicket stand with Sumit Mathur.

Luck was kind once: Ravi Chauhan dropped him on 42. Yet he knows the manner of his dismissal, caught down the leg side off a Virender Dagar delivery that could have been left, adds to his list of "unlucky" exits. "It was unfortunate. The bowler did not plan to get my wicket by bowling down the leg side. I will think about it today, but tomorrow, I will forget about it as I know I played a good knock."

On the back of last season's performance, Doseja, who is on the BCCI's list of targeted players, was called to a camp at the Centre of Excellence.

"I worked a lot with Wasim Jaffer sir and Hrishikesh Kanitkar sir. They gave a lot of technical suggestions. They also said that whatever outside noise is there, you've done well, no need to listen too much, focus on yourself. If you play ball-by-ball, you'll dominate."

On Tuesday, he did. His stand with Mathur gave Delhi a crucial first-innings lead.

"The most relieving part of today was that we have ensured three points (if the game ends in a draw). It was needed. My aim was to take Delhi higher (in the points table), and hopefully I have done that."

Doseja's focus is also on the Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy, which begins on 14 November. Having missed out last year despite doing well in Mumbai Indians' trials, he wants this chance to count.

"There is not much time to prepare, but I did well in the DPL (Delhi Premier League), scoring over 300 runs at a strike rate of around 170. I am prepared for Mushtaq Ali."

Abhishek's fitness clouds ACT semifinal

Abhishek picked up an ankle injury prior to the Japan match.

Mumbai, November 3

INDIA'S UNBEATEN run and formidable attacking form have made them favourites to retain their Asian Champions Trophy title, but the five-time champions could face their first significant concern heading into Wednesday's semifinal against South Korea. In-form forward Abhishek's ankle injury has left his availability uncertain, according to Press Trust of India. While it shouldn't trouble India, the forward line could be tested without the prolific striker.

The Asian Games champions had a dominant run through the round-robin stage, beating Bangladesh 13-0, China 5-2, Japan 4-1 and South Korea 8-0. Their emphatic win over the Koreans in their last league match in Jalandhar on Monday makes them overwhelming favourites to reach the final.

However, Abhishek's fitness remains a question mark. The forward picked up an ankle injury just before India's match against Japan and has been an important contributor not just in front of goal but also in creating opportunities for his teammates.

Coach Craig Fulton said the team was awaiting an update on the forward's condition, with little time left before the semifinal. "We're not sure yet. We're waiting to find out. He's injured, so we're seeing if he can make it back. We'll have to wait. The timeline is very short," Fulton said, according to PTI.

If Abhishek is ruled out, the responsibility of leading India's attack will fall on experienced forward Mandeep Singh, along with Sukhjeet Singh and Shilanand Lakra. Mandeep, however, has not quite found his rhythm since opening the tournament with a hat-trick against Bangladesh. India could also turn to younger options such as Aditya Arjun Lalage and Angad Bir Singh to fill the void. Captain Harmanpreet Singh, meanwhile, remains hopeful that Abhishek will recover in time. "He is doing fine. We have rested him for two matches, but I hope he will be fine to play in the semifinal," Harmanpreet said.

India have otherwise looked well settled across departments. The midfield has been marshalled effectively by vice-captain Hardik Singh, with Vivek Sagar Prasad and Nilakanta Sharma providing support. The tournament is particularly significant for Nilakanta, who is playing his final competition in Indian colours.

Before Sindhu and Sen, BAI was forced to chase funds for Jr Worlds

The young squad nearly missed the Cairo event as financial support from the sports ministry failed to arrive on time

Shivani Naik
Mumbai, November 3

INDIA'S 30-MEMBER Badminton World Juniors contingent of players and support staff that competed from October 5-17, almost did not make it to Cairo, Egypt, after funding clearance from the Sports Authority of India (SAI) did not arrive ahead of the squad's departure.

Jagsher Singh Khangurra returned with a bronze in a toughly contested boys' singles, but only after the Badminton Association of India (BAI) scrambled to collect funds and send the team in time for the start of the event.

This follows revelations, as reported by this daily, of established stars such as PV Sindhu and Lakshya Sen being refused funds for the European swing of events in Finland, Denmark, France and Germany.

The last stop, the Super 500 Hylo Open in Saarbrücken, ended with titles on Sunday for both Sindhu and Sen, who played without sanctioned funding and with help from the non-profit Olympic Gold Quest (OGQ).

The World Juniors funding pullout points to crucial support being declined for the travel and competition expenses of upcoming shuttlers, who do not have the financial wherewithal that established seniors can summon at the last moment. The federation had been given no indication that support would be halted. With the World Juniors put at the mercy of a fresh review, it had to rustle up substantial funding at short notice. "Without that intervention the team's participation was at risk," a source close to the development said.

The squad included some of India's top junior names: Tanvi Patri and Dev Ruparelia, who are currently at the Youth Olympics, and Shaina Manimuthu and Jagsher, who hold Asian U17 medals.

"The World Junior Championships contingent was due to travel during the Asian Games period. The team details and required information like hotel stays had been submitted but the funding sanction did not arrive before departure and remains pending. This is the best of future prospects of badminton who do not have big sponsors and were dependent on funding for the World Juniors, an important tournament," the source told The Indian Express.

In the last edition, India won a girls' singles silver through Tanvi Sharma and a team bronze. The tournament has been a key stepping stone for the likes of Saina Nehwal, HS Prannoy, Lakshya Sen and Ayush Shetty.

As is procedure, the complete Annual Calendar for Training and Competition (ACTC) plan had been submitted to the government at a discussion meeting in December 2025. The federation had been told that all tournaments after the Asian Games would be cleared later, while SAI required a broad proposal 30 days before the team's departure.

When contacted, an SAI official repeated his reasons. "BAI did not send the proposal in time though we kept reminding them to send it within 30 days," he said. Funding for the French Open and the Hylo Open did not materialise despite being within the 30-day period.

However, the trials for the World Juniors were delayed because the top players were competing at the Asian U17 Championships. Tanvi Patri and Shaina Manimuthu arrived from Chengdu, China, after winning gold and silver on September 13, and left immediately for Guwahati for the trials. SAI was sent the proposal as soon as the trials determined the names in the team.

So while the World Juniors was listed last December, the submission did not account for these calendar-specific timelines, where a squad could not possibly be named without trials.

"All earlier Asian U17 tournaments were approved by SAI, who have been very supportive all this time," the parent of a member of the team said.

Jagsher Singh Khangurra won a bronze at the Junior World Championships earlier this year. BAI

> INDIA BADMINTON PLAYER

"But we were not aware that funding had not happened for the World Juniors."

"This has never happened because the World Juniors is an important tournament. Hopefully they will reimburse. There needs to be a clear demarcation between development funds and those for established players. If even the limited funding for development players stops, badminton will suffer," a coach said.

Sindhu addressed the funding issue on X when questioned about it. "I can find ways to fund my tour. But what about the 18-year-old chasing her dreams, hoping to become the next Sindhu or Lakshya? ...Supporting athletes isn't bleeding the system. It's investing in India's sporting future," she wrote.

DK Sen, Lakshya's father and a former SAI coach himself, spoke on the reappraisals the sport is reportedly facing after India returned from the Asian Games with a team bronze and four quarterfinals in a tough field. "SAI has helped us all these years so I hope the government continues supporting badminton because it's Olympic qualification next year and there's good talent coming up," he said.

Day 1: Six shooters, one final, zero medals, zero quotas

New Delhi, November 3

SIX INDIAN rifle-wielders went into Day 1 of the ISSF Shooting World Championships hoping to finish among the medals, earning a Los Angeles Olympics quota in the process. Five of them were not able to make the finals of the ongoing Worlds in Doha.

Elavenil Valarivan, who has consistently made her way into the medal rounds of the 10m event - be it at the Paris Olympics or at the Aichi-Nagoya Asian Games - found herself in the last eight, but finished sixth. She missed out on a quota in a tight final that was for the large part, decided by decimals.

The men's rifle trio of Parth Mane, Himanshu Dhillion and Parth Makhija, all juniors not too long ago, faltered badly. In an event where the colossal shadow of China's Sheng Lihao towers over all, the Indian men's team was nowhere near the best in the world.

Lihao finished with a qualification score of 637.2 (the next best score was 2.5 points behind him) and displayed the sheer gulf the Chinese ace has maintained in a sport of volatile changes, no matter the occasion or the competition.

Mane, the best of the Indian shooters, finished 16th with 630.3 – a poor showing by the young Solapur native who usually averages in the 633s but hasn't found that level over the last couple of months - first at Nagoya, and now in Doha.

Asian Games silver medallist Dhillion's score of 628.1 only lent itself to a 41st-place finish. Makhija was a forgettable 61st with a score of 625.2. All three had made it to the Indian team on the back of consistently high scores in the national trials and upstaged stalwarts such as Arjun Babuta and Rudrankksh Patil to land at the Worlds.

Among the women, both Sonam Maskar and Shambhavi Kshirsagar had a similar story to tell – coming up with qualification scores nowhere near their own standards. Sonam finished 19th with a score of 630.5 and Shambhavi's 629.7 was far below her usual output.

Elavenil, the only experienced shooter among the six, didn't have the best final.

Over the years, her first 10 shots tend to put her at higher spots. But on Tuesday, the quick start she needed never materialised.

Her last six shots in the competition read 10.5, 10.7, 10.4, 10.3, 10.3, 10.6. Where a burst of 10.7s and 10.8s were the order of the day, Elavenil couldn't push some of the best shooters in the world, all of whom were in a fiercely competitive battle for medals and quota spots for the 2028 Olympics.

Saliba back in training with Arsenal after injury

London, November 3

WILLIAM SALIBA has returned to full training at Arsenal, 3Â½ months after his last game - in the World Cup semifinals for France. Saliba has been out of action with a back injury that didn't require surgery but an extended period of rehabilitation, Arsenal said in July.

The center back took part in a training session on Tuesday, a day before Arsenal's Champions League match at Slavia Prague.

Saliba hasn't played since being substituted out of France's 2-0 semifinal loss to Spain at the World Cup during the first half.

Konsa has excelled in Saliba's absenceSaliba has struck up an impressive, yearslong centerback partnership with Gabriel Magalhaes that was key to Arsenal winning the Premier League title last season.

However, despite his ballplaying qualities and excellent reading of the game, Saliba might not be rushed back into the first team by manager Mikel Arteta. That's because the man who has replaced Saliba for the start of this season - summer signing Ezri Konsa - has put in a slew of strong performances so far and Arteta might not be ready to break up the Konsa-Gabriel combination just yet. One option could be to switch Konsa to right back, where he occasionally has played for former club Aston Villa and England. Arteta also has Jurrien Timber and Ben White as options at right back.

Protests at Le Havre over ownership

AP adds: With their club in turmoil, Le Havre fan groups are calling for the American owners to leave. Le Havre, founded in 1872 and considered the oldest club in French football, has plunged into a deep and unprecedented sporting crisis.

Languishing at the bottom of Ligue 1, the club started the week without a coach and a president. Following a 5-1 loss against PSG over the weekend, Le Havre announced Didier Digard had been suspended, and that the board members of owner Blue Crow Sports Group had accepted the resignation of president Jean-Michel Roussier. The exodus does not end there because French media have reported that director Demba Ba and goalkeeping coach Nicolas Douchez are also on their way out.

Khushbu's judo silver, and the flag she wanted to see go up

Pritish Raj
New Delhi, November 3

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD judoka Khushbu Rajakbhai Darjada was thrilled before boarding the flight to Dakar, Senegal, for the 2026 Youth Olympics. More than anything, she wanted to see the Indian flag go up as she stood on the podium.

On Monday, she did, winning silver in the girls' 63 kg category in Dakar. It is India's second judo medal at the Youth Olympics, after Tababi Devi won silver in the girls' 44 kg event in 2018.

"This is my second competition and I just wanted to be here. It is a lifetime experience for me. I wanted to finish on the podium and I achieved that, so I'm very happy," Khushbu told The Indian Express from Dakar.

On her way to the final she beat Guinea's Mamaissata Camara 1-0, then Morocco's Abir Bouazzaoui and Algeria's Dounia Berrahoual by ippon, before losing the final to Germany's Jolina Reinhold by ippon.

As Khushbu stood on the podium, her village of Surva, in Gujarat's Gir Somnath district, erupted in celebration.

"This is one of the best moments for our family. Our daughter has made the nation proud and I was emotional yesterday," said her father Rajakbhai, who works at the Government Circuit House in Junagadh.

Khushbu took up judo because of her elder sister Shahin Darjada, the junior Asian champion, who is her inspiration.

"I used to do wrestling at the District Sports School in my home town but after seeing my sister, I picked up Judo as I liked the moves of the sport," said Khushbu.

The sisters belong to the Siddi community of Gir Somnath, which traces its roots to Bantu communities of Africa.

"Both the girls come from the Siddi community and their body type is really suited for combat sports," said Lal Krishan Baghel, who coaches them at the Vijayi Bharat Center in Ahmedabad.

Early strides

Baghel, who trains five judokas from the community there, scouted Khushbu alongside Georgian coach Lasha Kizilashvilli.

"After she picked up Judo back in 2022 as an 11-year-old, one of her earlier coaches recommended Khushbu to me," said Baghel. "I started tracking her and saw her in some junior competitions. That's when I realised that the girl has good physique and endurance for Judo."

When Khushbu arrived in Ahmedabad, she had already picked up the nuances of the sport. "She is a very smart athlete. She was already observing her sister and picked up some moves. She is still very nascent, so I work on her physical strength and let her brain figure out game situations itself," said Baghel.

This is Khushbu's second international medal, after a bronze at the Asian Cadet Championships earlier this year. But Baghel first saw her potential at last year's junior nationals.

"The cadet nationals were getting delayed, so we decided to field her in the junior nationals, which is an U20 event. She picked up bronze there as a 14-year-old fighting against the likes of 18 and 19-year-olds," said Baghel.

Khushbu's family was largely supportive, but Baghel still had some convincing to do.

"There were few hurdles for both Khushbu and Shahin. While the family is very supportive, there used to be marriage proposals now and then. I had to convince the parents that it can deter their kids. The Darjada family understood and shut down any such thing after that, letting these two focus on the sport," said Baghel.

Three international medallists from the Siddi community train at the Vijayi Bharat Center: Shahin, Khushbu and Rohit Majgul, who represented India at the Commonwealth Games 2026.

"It's been five years since I have been constantly working with these kids. There is a lot of potential among them. If we manage to tap into it, it can be a game changer for Indian judo," said Baghel.

He explained how they are building a pipeline.

"Apart from the five judokas in the main center, we have got a feeder center in Gir Somnath, closer to the home of the Siddi community. There are more than 70 kids from the age of 11 to 15 who train there. The idea is to scout the ones who can transition to the senior level," he said.
